B Heare me (o ye children) I will geue you a doctryne, how ye shal ordre yō mouth: who so kepeth it, shal not perish thorow his lippes, ner be hurt thorow wicked workes (As for the synner, he shalbe taken in his owne vaute: he that is proude and cursed, shal fall therin.) Let not thy mouth be accustomed with swearinge, for in it there are many falles. Let not the namynge of God be continually in ẏ mouth: for like as a seruaunt which is oft punyshed can not be without some sore, euen so what so euer he be ẏ sweareth and nameth God, shal not be cleane pourged frō synne. A man that vseth moch swearinge, shalbe fylled with wickednes, and the plage shall neuer go from his house. Yf he begyle his brother, his faute shalbe vpon him: yf he knowlege not his synne, he maketh a dubble offence: and yf he sweare in vayne, he shall not be founde righteous, for his house shalbe full of plages.

C The wordes of ẏ swearer bringeth death (God graunte ẏ it be not founde in the house of Jacob.) But they ẏ feare God, eschue all soch and lye not weltringe in synne. Vse not ẏ mouth to vnhoneſt and fylthye talkynge, for in it is the worde of synne. Remembre ẏ father and thy mother, whā thou art set amonge greate men: lest God forget ẏ in their sight, and lest thou dotinge in thy custome, suffre rebuke. and wyshe not to haue bene borne, and so curse the daye of thy natiuite. The man that is accustomed with the wordes of blasphemy, wyl neuer be refourmed all ẏ dayes of his life. To synne twyse is to moch, but the thirde bringeth wrath and destruccion. An whote stomack can not be quenched (euē like a burnynge fyre) tyll it haue swalowed vp somthīge: euē so an vnchaste mā hath no rest in his flesh, tyll he haue kyndled a fyre.

All bred is swete to an whoremonger, he wyl not leaue of, tyll he haue his purpose. A man that breaketh wedlock, & regardeth not his soule, but sayeth: Tush, who seyth me? I am compassed about with darcknes, the walles couer me, no body seyth me: whom nede I to feare? The ẏhyest wyl not remembre my synnes. (He vnderstondeth not that his eyes se all thinges, for all soch feare of mē dryueth awaye the feare of God from him: for he feareth onely the eyes of men, and considereth not that the eyes of the LORDE are clearer then the Sonne, beholdinge all ẏ wayes of men and the grounde of the depe, and lokynge euen to mens hertes in secrete places. The LORDE God knewe all thinges or euer they were made, and after they be brought to passe also he loketh vpon them all. The same mā shalbe openly punyshed in ẏ stretes of ẏ cite, and shalbe chased abrode like a yonge horse foale: and whan he thinketh leest vpon it, he shalbe take. Thus shal he be put to shame of euery man, because he wolde not vnderstonde the feare of the LORDE. And thus shal it go also rb euery wyfe ẏ leaueth hir hußbande, & getteth enheretaunce by a straūge mariage. First, she hath bene vnfaithfull vnto the lawe of ẏ ẏhyest: Secōdly, she hath forsaken hir owne hußbande: Thirdly, she hath played ẏ whore in aduowtry, & gotte hir childrē by another man. She shalbe brought out of ẏ cōgregaciō, and hir childrē shalbe loked vpō. Hir childrē shal not take rote: & as for frute, hir braūches shal brīge forth none. A shamefull reporte shal she leaue behynde her, & hir dishonō shal not be put out. And they ẏ remayne, shal knowe, ẏ there is nothīge better, thē ẏ feare of God: & ẏ there is nothinge sweter, then to take hede vnto the commaundementes of the LORDE. A greate worshipe is it to folowe ẏ LORDE, for longe life shalbe receaued of him.

The XXIIII. Chapter.

A WYßdome shal prayse hirselfe, & be honoured in God, & reioyse in ỹ myddest of his people: In the cõgregacions of the Hyest shal she open hir mouth, & tryumphe in ỹ beholdinge of his power: In ỹ myddest of hir people shal she be exalted, & wondred at in the holy fulnesse: In the multitude of the chosen she shalbe commended, & amonge soch as be blessed she shalbe praysed, & shal saye: I am come out of the mouth of ỹ Hyest, first borne before all creatures. I caused ỹ light ỹ fayleth not, to ary se in the heauen, & couered all the earth as a cloude. My dwellinge is aboue in ỹ heyth, & my seate is in the piler of the cloude. I my self alone haue gone rounde aboute the compasse of heauen, & pearsed the grounde of ỹ depe: I haue walked in the floudes of ỹ see, & haue stonde in all landes: my domynion is in euery people and in euery nacion, & with my power haue I troden downe the hertes of all, both hye and lowe.

B In all these thinges also I sought rest, & a dwellinge in some enheritaunce. So ỹ creator of all thinges gaue me a commaundement: & he that made me, appoynted me a tabernacle, and saide vnto me: Let thy dwellinge be in Jacob, and thy inheritaunce in Israel, & rote thy self amõge my chosen. I was created from the begynninge and before the worlde, & shal not leaue of vnto the worlde to come. In the holy habitacion haue I serued before him, and so was I stablished in Sion. In ỹ holy cite rested I in like maner, & in Jerusalem was my power. I toke rote in an honourable people, euen in the porcion of ỹ LORDE & in his heretage, & kepte me in ỹ fulnes of the sayntes. I am sett vp an hye like a Ceder vpõ Libanus, & as a Cypers tre vpon the mount Hermon: I am exalted like a palme tre in Cades, & as a rose plãte in Jericho: As a fayre olyue tre in the felde, & am exalted like as a plantayne tre by the water syde. I haue geuen a smell in the stretes, as ỹ Cynamom and Balme, that hath so good a sauoure: yee a swete odoure haue I geuen, as it were Myrre of the best.

C I haue made my dwellinges to smell as it were of rosyn, Galbanum, of Clowes and Incense, & as Libanus whan it is not hewẽ downe, & mine odoure is as the pure Balme. As the Terebynte haue I stretched out my braunches, and my braunches are the braunches of honoure and louynge sauoure. As ỹ vyne haue I brought forth frute of a swete sauoure, and my floures are ỹ frute of honõ and riches. I am the mother of bewtye, of loue, of feare, of knowlege & of holy hope. In me is all grace of life and trueth: In me is all hope of life and vertue. O come vnto me, all ye that be desyrous of me, and fyll youre selues with my frutes: for my spirite is sweter then hony, & so is my inheritaunce more then the hony combe: the remembraunce of me endureth for euermore. They that eate me, shal haue the more honger: and they that drynke me, shal thyrste the more. Who so herkeneth vnto me, shall not come to confucion: and they that worke in me, shal not offende. They that make me to be knowne, shal haue euerlastinge life. Ioh. 14. a

All these thinges are the boke of life, the couenaunt of the Hyest, and the knowlege of the trueth. Moses commaunded the lawe in the preceptes of righteousnes for an heretage vnto the house of Jacob, and cõmitted ỹ promyses vnto Israel (Out of David his seruaũt HE ordened to raise vp a most mighty kinge, syttinge in the seate of honoure for euermore.) This fylleth with wyßdome like as the floude of Phison, & as ỹ floude of Tigris, whan the new frutes are a growinge. Exo. 20. a and 24. a Psal. 111. b Act. 2. d Deut. 4. a and 29. b

D This bringeth a plenteous vnderstandinge, like Euphrates: & fylleth it vp, as Jordane in the time of harueste. This maketh nurtõ to breake forth as the light, & as the water Gihon in ỹ haruest. The first hath not knowne her perfectly, no more shal the last seke out ỹ grounde of her. For hir thought is fuller thẽ the see, and hir councell is profounder then the greate depe. Iosu. 3. c

I wyßdome haue cast out floudes. I am as a greate waterbroke out of ỹ river. I am as the ryuer Doux, and as a water condyte am I come out of the garden of pleasure. I sayde: I wyl water the garden of my yonge plantes, and fyll the frute of my byrth. So my waterbroke became exceadinge greate, and my ryuer approched vnto the see. For I make doctryne to be vnto all mẽ as light as the fayre morninge, and I shall make it to be euer the clearer. (I will pearse thorow all the lower partes of the earth, I wyll loke vpon all soch as be a slepe, and lighten all thẽ that put their trust in the LORDE.) I shal yet poure out doctrine, like as prophecy, and leaue it vnto soch as seke after wyßdome, and their generacions shal I never fayle, vnto the holy euerlastinge worlde. Behold, how that I haue not laboured for my self onely, but for all them ỹ seke after ỹ trueth. Eccl. 33. b

The XXV. Chapter.

A Three thinges there are, ẏ my spirite fa-en.13.b noureth, which be also alowed beom.12.a fore God and men: The vnyte of brethren, the loue of neighbours, and man ẏ wycl.40.d fe that agree well together.

Three thinges there be which my soule ha-teth, and I vtterly abhorre the life of them:
A poore man that is proude. A rich mā that en.18.b is a lyar, and an olde body that doteth and is vnchaste.

If thou hast gathered nothinge in thy youth, what wylt thou fynde thē in thine age? O how pleasaūt a thinge is it, whā gray headed men are discrete, ẏ whan the elders can geue good councell? O how cōly a thin-ge is wyßdome vnto aged men? yee vnder-stondinge and councell is a glorious thinge.
The crowne of olde men is to haue moch experience, ẏ ẏ feare of God is their worshipe.

B There be .ix. thinges, which I haue iudged in my hert to be happie, and the tenth wil I tell forth vnto men with my tonge. A man ẏ whyle he lyueth, hath ioye of his children, and seith ẏ fall of his enemies. Well is him, ccli.14.a that dwelleth with an houswife of vnderstōnd 19.c dinge, and that hath not fallen with his ton aco.3.a ge, and ẏ hath not bene faine to serue soch as are vnmete for him. Wel is him, ẏ fyndeth a faithfull frende: ẏ wel is him, which talketh of wißdome to an eare ẏ heareth him. O how greate is he, ẏ fyndeth wyßdome ẏ knowlege:
Yet is he not aboue him, that feareth the LORDE. The feare of God hath sett itself aboue all thinges. Blessed is ẏ man, vnto whō it is graunted to haue the feare of God. Vnto whō shal he be lickened, ẏ kepeth it fast?
The feare of God is the begynnynge of his loue, and the begynnynge of faith is to cleue fast vnto it. The heuynes of the hert is all the punyshment, and the wickednes of a woman goeth aboue all. All punyshment ẏ pla-ge is nothinge in comparison of the plage of the hert, euē so all wickednes is nothinge to the wickednes of a woman.

C What so euer happeneth vnto a man, is nothinge in comparison of it, ẏ his euell wil lers do vnto him: and all vengeaunce is no-thinge to the vengeaūce of the enemye. The re is not a more wicked heade then the heade Pro.21.c of the serpēt, and there is no wrath aboue ẏ wrath of a woman. I wyl rather dwell with a lyon and dragon, then to kepe house with a wicked wyfe. The wickednesse of a woman chaungeth hir face, she shal moffell hir cōutenaunce as it were a Beer, ẏ as a sack shall she shewe it amonge the neighbours. Hir hus bande is brought to shame amōge his negh bours, ẏ whā he heareth it, it maketh him to sighe. All wickednes is but litle to the wickednes of a woman, ẏ porcion of the ungod ly shal fall vpon her.

Like as to clymme vp a sondy waye is to A ẏ fete of the aged, euē so is a wife full of wor-des to a still quyete man. Loke not to narow- Eccl.
ly vpon the bewtye of a woman, lest thou be 21.a prouoked in desyre towarde her. The wrath of a woman is dishonoure and greate confusiō. If a woman gett the mastrie, then is she contrary to hir hußbande. A wicked wife maketh a sory hert, an heuy countenaun-ce and a deed wounde. Of the woman came Ge.
ẏ begynnynge of synne, and thorow her we 3.b all are deed. Geue thy water no passage, no not a litle, nether geue a wicked woman hir will. If she walke not after thy hande, she shall confounde the in the sight of thy enemies. Cut her of then from thy flesh, that she do not allwaye abuse the.

The XXVI. Chapter.

H Appie is the man that hath a vertu- A ous wyfe, for the nōbre of his yeares shalbe dubble. An honest woman ma-keth hir hußbande a ioyfull man, ẏ she shall fyll ẏ yeares of his life in peace. A vertuous woman is a noble gift, which shalbe geuen for a good porcion vnto soch as feare God.
Whether a man be rich or poore, he maye haue euer a mery hert, ẏ a chearfull countenaūce. There be thre thinges ẏ my hert feareth, and my face is afrayed of the fourth. Treason in a cite, a sedicious people, and noysome tonges, all these are heuyer then the death.
But whan one is gelous ouer his wife, it bryngeth payne and sorowe vnto the hert:
and a woman that telleth out all thinges, is a scourge of the tonge. Whan one hath an euell wife, it is euen as whan an vnlike pare of oxen must drawe together: he that getteth her, getteth a scorpion. A dronken woman is a greate plage, for she can not couer hir owne shame.

The whordome of a woman maye be knowne in the pryde of hir eyes and eyelydlyddes. If thy daughter be not shamefast, holde her straitly, lest she abuse hirself ether row ouermoch liberte. Bewarre of all the dishonesty of hir eyes, and marueil not yf she do agaynst the. Lik as one that goeth by the waye and is thyrstie, so shall she open hir mouth, and drynke of euery nexte water that she maye gett.

By euery hedge shal she syt her downe, ẏ opē hir quyuer against euery arowe. A lowe ge wyfe reioyseth hir hußbande, and fedeth his bones with hir wysdome. A woman of few wordes is a gift of God, and to a well nurtured mynde maye nothinge be compared.

C An honest and manerly woman is a gyft above other giftes, and there is no waight to be compared, vnto a mynde that can rule it self. Like as the Sonne whan it aryseth, is an ornament in the hye heauen of ỹ LORDE, so is a vertuous wife ỹ bewtye of all hir house. Like as the cleare light is vpon ỹ holy cādelstick, so is the bewtye of the face vpō an honest body. Like as the goldē pilers are vpon the sockettes of syluer, so are the fayre legges vpon a woman that hath a cōstant mynde. (Perpetuall are the foūdacions that be laied vpon a whole stonye rocke, so are ỹ commaundementes of God vpon an holy woman.)

D There be two thinges ỹ greue my hert, and in the thirde is a displeasure come vpon me. When an experte man of warre suffreth scarsenes and pouerte, Whan men of vnderstondinge and wysdome are not set by: And whan one departeth from righteousnes vnto synne. Who so doth soch, the LORDE hath prepared him vnto the swerde. There be two maner of thinges, which me thyncke to be herde and perylous. A marchaunt can not lightly kepe him from wronge, nether a tauerner himself from synne.

The XXVII. Chapter.

BEcause of pouerte haue many one offended: and he that seketh to be riche, turneth his eyes aside. Like as a nale in the wall sticketh fast betwixte two stones, euen so doth synne sticke betwixte ỹ byer and the seller. Yf he holde him not diligently in ỹ feare of the LORDE, his house shall soone be ouerthrowne. Like as whan one sifteth, the fylthynes remayneth in the syue: So, remayneth there some vncleane thinge in the thought of man. The ouen proueth the potters vessell, so doth tentacion of trouble trye righteous men. The tre of the felde is knowne by his frute, so is the thought of mās hert knowne by his wordes. Prayse no mā excepte thou haue harde him, for a man is knowne by his wordes. Yf thou folowest righteousnes, thou shalt get her, and put her vpon ỹ as a fayre garment. (And thou shalt dwell with her, and she shal defende the for ever, and in ỹ daye of knowlege thou shalt fynde stedfastnesse.) The byrdes resorte vnto their like, so doth the trueth turne vnto them that be occupied withall. The lyon waytеth for ỹ praye: so do the synnes lurke vpon the workes of wickednes. The talkinge of him that feareth God, is nothinge but wysdome: as for a foole, he chaungeth as ỹ Moone. Yf thou be amonge the vndiscrete, kepe thy worde to a conuenient tyme, but amonge soch as be wyse, speake on hardely. The talkinge of fooles is abhominaciō, and their sporte is volupteousnesse and mysnurture. Moch swearynge maketh the hayre to stonde vp, and to stryue with soch, stoppeth the eares. Ro. 12. b Col. 4. a C Eccli. 23. b

The stryfe of the proude is bloudshed-dynge, & their blasphemynge is heuy to heare. Who so discouereth secretes, leseth his credence, and fyndeth no frende after his will. Loue thy frende, and bynde thyself in faithfulnes with him: but yf thou bewrayest his secretes, thou shalt not get him agayne: For like as the mā is that destroyeth his enemye so is he also that dealeth falsly in the frendshipe of his neghboure. Eccli. 19. b and 22. d

Like as one that letteth a byrde go out of his honde, can not take her agayne: Euen so thou, yf thou geue ouer thy frende, thou canst not get him agayne: Nee thou cāst not come by him, for he is to farre of. He is vnto the as a Roo escaped out of the snare, for his soule is wounded. As for woundes, they maye be bounde vp agayne, and an euell worde maye be reconcyled: but who so bewrayeth the secretes of a frende, there is no more hope to be had vnto him. D

He that wyncketh with the eyes, ymagineth some euell, and no man shal take him from it. Whan thou art present, he shal hylie commende and prayse thy wordes: but at the last he shall turne his tayle, and slaūder thy sayenge. Many thinges haue I hated, but nothinge so euell, for the LORDE himself also abhorreth soch one. Pro. 10. b

Who so casteth a stone an hye, it shal fall vpon his owne heade: and he that synyeth with gyle, woundeth himself. Who so diggeth a pytt, shal fall therin: and he that layeth a snare, shal be taken in it himself. Who so geueth a wicked noysome counsell, it shall come vpon himself, and he shall not knowe from whēce. The proude blaspheme and are scornefull, but vengeaunce lurketh for them as a lyon. They that reioyse at the fall of ỹ righteous, shal be taken in ỹ snare, anguysh of hert shall consume them before they dye. Anger and rigorousnes are two abhominable thinges, and ỹ vngodly hath them both vpon him. E Exo. 21. b Hest. 7. b Psal. 7. b Pro. 26. c Eccle. 10. a

The XXVIII. Chapter.

A He that seketh vengeaunce, shal fynde vengeaunce of the LORDE, which shal surely kepe him his synnes. Forgeue thy neghboure the hurte that he hath done the, and so shal thy synnes be forgeuen the also, whan thou prayest. A man that beareth hatred agaynst another, how darre he desyre forgeuenesse of God? He that sheweth no mercy to a mā which is like himself, how darre he axe forgeuenesse of his synnes? Yf he that is but flesh, beareth hatred and kepeth it, who wyl intreate for his synnes? Remembre the ende, & let enmyte passe, which seketh death and destruccion, and abyde thou in ẏ commaundementes. Remembre ẏ commaundement, so shalt thou not be rigorous ouer ẏ neghboure. Thynke vpō the couenaunt of ẏ hyest, and forgeue thy neghbours ignoraūce. Bewarre of strife, and thou shalt make ẏ synnes fewer. For an angrie man kyndleth variaunce, and the vngodly disquyeteth frēdes, and putteth discorde amonge them that be at peace. The more wodd there is, the more vehement is the fyre: and the mightier ẏ men be, the greater is the wrath: and the longer the strife endureth, the more it burneth.

C An haistie brawlinge kyndleth a fyre, and an haistie strife sheddeth bloude. Yf thou blowe the sparke: it shal burne: Yf thou spytt vpō it, it shal go forth, and both these go out of thy mouth. The slaunderer and dubble tōgued is cursed, for many one that be frendes setteth he at variaunce. The thirde tonge hath disquieted many one, and dryuen them from one londe to another. Stronge cities hath it broken downe, and ouerthrowne the houses of greate men. The thirde tōge hath cast out many an honest woman, and robbed them of their labours. Who so harkeneth vnto soch, shal neuer fynde rest, and neuer dwell safely. The stroke of ẏ rod maketh yedders, but the stroke of the tonge smyteth the bones in sunder. There be many that haue perished with the swerde, but many more thorow the tonge.

D Wel is him that is kepte frō an euell tonge, & commeth not in ẏ anger therof: which draweth not the yock of soch, and is not bounde in the bondes of it. For the yock therof is of yron, and ẏ bondes of it of stele. The death therof is a very euell death: hell were better for one, then soch a tonge. But the fyre of it maye not oppresse them that feare God, and ẏ flamme therof maye not burne thē. Soch as forsake the LORDE, shal fall therin: and it shal burne them, and no man shal be able to quench it. It shal fall vpon thē as a Lyō, and deuoure them as a leparde. Thou hedgest ẏ goodes wt thornes: why doest thou not rather make dores and barres for ẏ mouth? Thou weiest thy golde and sylver: why doest thou not weye thy wordes also vpon the balaunce? Bewarre, that thou slyde not in thy tonge, and so fall before thine enemies, that laye wayte for the.

The XXIX. Chapter.

WHo so wil shewe mercy, let him lende vnto his neghboure: and he that is able, let him kepe the commaundement. Lende vnto thy neghboure in tyme of his nede, and paye thou thy neghboure agayne in due season. Kepe thy worde, & deale faithfully with him, & thou shalt allwaye fynde the thinge ẏ is necessary for the. There haue bene many, that whan a thinge was lent them, rekened it to be founde: and made them trauayle and laboure, that had helped them. Whyle they receaue eny thinge, they kysse the handes of soch as geue them, and for their neghbours good they humble their voyce. But whan they shulde paye agayne they kepe it back, and geue euell wordes, and make many excuses by reason of the tyme: & though he be able, yet geueth he scarse the halfe agayne, and rekeneth ẏ other to be founde. And yf he witholde not his moneye, yet hath he an enemye of him, and that vnserued.

He payeth him with cursinge and rebuke, and geueth him euel wordes for his goode dede. There be many one which are not glad for to lende, not because of euell, but they feare to lese the thinge that they lende. Be haue thou pacience with the symple, and withholde not mercy from him. Helpe the poore for the commaundementes sake, and let him not go emptye from the because of his necessite. Lese thy money for ẏ brother and neghbours sake, and burye it not vnder a stone, wher it rusteth and corruppeth. Gather thy treasure after the commaundement of the hyest, and so shal it bringe the more profyte then golde. Laye vp the allmes in the hart of the poore, and it shal kepe the from all euell. (A mans allmes is as a purse with him, and shall kepe a mans fauoure as the apple of an eye: and afterwarde shall it aryse, & paye euery man his rewarde vpon his heade. It shal fight for the agaynst thine enemies, better then the shylde of a giaunte, or speare of the mightie.

A good honest mā is suertye for his neghboure, but a wicked personne letteth him come to shame. Forget not the frendshipe of thy suertye, for he hath gene his soule for y. The vngodly despyseth y good dede of his suertye, & the vnthankfull and ignoraunt leaueth his suertie in daunger. (Some man promyseth for his neghboure: & whan he hath lost his honesty, he shal forsake him.) Suertiship hath destroyed many a ryche man, & remoued them as the wawes in y see. Mighty people hath it dryuen awaye, and caused the to wandre in straunge countrees. An vngodly man transgressynge the commaundement of the LORDE, shal fall in to an euell suertiship: and though he force himself to get out, yet shal he fall in to iudgment. Helpe thy neghboure out after thy power, and bewarre, y thou thy self fall not in soch dett. The chefe thinge that kepeth in the life, is water and bred, clothinge and lodginge, to couer the shame.

D Better is it to haue a poore lyuynge in a mans owne house, then delicate fayre amōge the straunge. Be it litle or moch y thou hast, holde the contēt withall (& thou shalt not be blamed as a vagabounde:) for a myserable life is it, to go from house to house: and where a mā is fremde, he darre not opē his mouth. Though one be lodged, and haue meate and drynke, yet shall he be taken as vnworthy, & heare many bytter rough wordes, namely thus: Go thy waye thou straunger, and prepare a table (for thy self) and fede me also of that thou hast. Awaye thou straunger (so, that he regardeth his honoure nomore) my brother commeth in to my house, & so he telleth him the necessite of his house. These thinges are heuy to a man that hath vnderstandinge: namely, the forbyddinge of y house, & that the lēder casteth him in the teth.

The XXX. Chapter.

WHo so loueth his childe, holdeth him still vnder correccion, that he maye haue ioye of him afterwarde (and that he grope not after his neghbours dores.) He y teacheth his sonne, shall haue ioye in him, & nede not be ashamed of him amōge his aquantañce. Who so enfourmed & teacheth his sonne, greueth y enemie, and before his frendes he maye haue ioye of him. Though the father dye, yet is he as though he were not deed: for he hath left one behynde him that is like him. In his life he sawe him, & had ioye in him, & was not sory in his death, (nether was he ashamed before y enemies.) For he left behinde him an auenger agaynst his enemies, and a good doer vnto the frendes. For the life of childrē he shal binde the woundes together, and his hert is greued at euery crye. An vntamed horse wylbe harde, and a wanton childe wyl be wylfull. Yf thou bringe vp thy sonne delicatly, he shal make y afrayed: and yf thou playe with him, he shal bringe the to heuynes. Laugh not with him, lest thou wepe w him also, and lest thy teth be sett on edge at the last.

Geue him not liberte in his youth, & excuse not his foly. Bow downe his neck whyle he is yonge, hytt him vpon the sydes whyle he is yet but a childe, lest he ware stubburne, & gene no more force of y (and so shalt thou haue heuynes of soule.) Teach thy childe, & be diligēt therin, lest it be to thy shame. Better is the poore beynge whole & stronge, thē a man to be riche, & not to haue his health. Health and welfare is aboue all golde, and an whole body aboue all treasure. There is no riches aboue a sounde body, & no ioye aboue the ioye of the hert. Death is better then a wretched life, or contynuall sicknes. The good thinges y are put in a close mouth, are like as whan meate is layed vpon y graue.

What good doth the offeringe vnto an Idoll? For he can nether eate, taist ner smell. Euē so is it also with the riche, whom God maketh sēke: he seith it with his eyes, & groneth therafter, and is euen as a gelded man, that lyeth with a vyrgin and sygheth. Geue not ouer thy mynde in to heuynes, & vexe not thy self in thine owne councell. The ioye & chearfulnes of the hert is the life of man, and a mans gladnes is the prolonginge of his dayes. Loue thine owne soule, and comforte thine hert: as for sorow and heuynes, dryue it farre from y, for heuynes hath slayne many a man, and bryngeth no profit. Zele and anger shorten the dayes of the life: carefulnes and sorow bringe age before the tyme. Vnto a mery hert euery thinge hath a good taist, that he eateth.

The XXXI. Chapter.

LRauayle and carefulnes for riches taketh awaye the slepe, and maketh the flesh to cōsume. Whan one lyeth and taketh care, he waketh euer vp, like as greate sicknes breaketh the slepe. The rich hath greate labor in gatheringe his riches together, and then with the pleasure of his riches he taketh his rest & is refreshed. But who so laboureth and prospereth not, he is poore: and though he leave of, yet is he a begger. He that loueth riches, shall not be iustified: and who so foloweth corrupcio, shal haue ynough therof. Many one are come in greate myssfortune by the reason of golde, &

haue founde their destruccion before them. It is a tre of fallynge vnto them that offre it vp, and all soch as be fooliſh fall therin. Bleſſed is the rich, which is founde without blemyſh, and hath not gone after golde, ner hoped in money and treasures. Where is there ſoch one? and we ſhal commende him, and call him bleſſed, for greate thinges doth he amonge his people. Who ſo is tryed, & founde perfecte in ſoch thinges, ſhalbe commended and praiſed. Who might offende, & hath not offended? Who coude do euell, and hath not done it? Therfore ſhal his good be ſtabliſhed, and the whole congregacion ſhal declare his almesses. Yf thou ſytt at a greate mans table, open not thy mouth wyde vpon it, and make not many wordes. Remembre, that an euell eye is a ſhrew.

B What thinge created is worſe then a wicked eye? therfore wepeth it before euery mās face? Laye not thine hand vpon euery thinge that thine eye ſeyth, and ſtryue not with and loke well therto: and whan thou haſt done all thy dewtye, ſyt the downe, that thou mayeſt be mery with them, and receaue a crowne of honoure. Talke wyſely & honeſtly, for wyſdome becommeth the right well, Hynder not muſyck. Speake not, where there is no audyence: and poure not forth wyſdome out of tyme, at an importunyte. Like Eccl.

Whā thou ſytteſt amonge many men, reach not thine hāde out firſt of all. O how well contēt is a wyſe man wt a litle wyne? ſo ẏ in ſlepe thou ſhalt not be ſeke therof, ner fele eny payne. A ſwete wholſome ſlepe ſhal ſoch one haue, and fele no inwarde greſe. He ryſeth vp by tymes in ẏ mornynge, and is well at eaſe in him ſelf. But an vnſaciable eater ſlepeth vnquyetly, and hath ache and payne of the body. Yf thou feleſt that thou haſt eaten to moch, aryſe, go thy waye, caſt it of thy ſtomack, and take thy reſt.

as the Carbuncle ſtone ſhyneth, that is ſet in golde, ſo doth a ſonge garnyſh the wyne feaſt: and as ẏ Smaragde that is ſet in golde, ſo is the ſwetnes of Muſyck by ẏ myrth of wyne.

Yf thou be amonge men of hyer auctorite, deſyre not to compare thy ſelf vnto them: and whā an elder ſpeaketh, make not thou many wordes therin. Before the thonder goeth lightenynge, and before nurtoure and ſhamefaſtneſſe goeth loue and fauoure. Stōde vp by tymes, and be not the laſt: but get the home ſoone, & there take thy paſtyme, & do what thou wilt: ſo ẏ thou do no euell, and defye no mā. But for all thinges geue thankes, vnto him that hath made the, and repleniſhed the with his goodes.

Who ſo feareth the LORDE, wyl receaue C his doctryne: and they that get them to him by tymes, ſhall fynde grace. He that ſeketh the lawe, ſhall be fylled withall: As for him ẏ is but fayned, he wyll be offended therat. They that feare the LORDE, ſhal fynde the iudgment, & their righteouſnes ſhalbe kynd led as a light. An vngodly man will not be reformed, but can helpe him self with the example of other in his purpose. A man of vnderstondinge despyseth no good councell: but a wylde and proude body hath no feare. My sonne, do nothinge without advisement, so shal it not repēt the after ẏ dede. Go not in the waye where thou mayest fall, ner where thou mayest stomble against the stone. Geue not ẏ self in to a laborious slypery waye, and bewarre of thine owne children. In all thy workes put thy trust in God from thy whole hert, for that is the kepinge of the cōmaundementes. Who so beleveth Gods worde, taketh hede to the commaundementes: and he that putteth his trust in ẏ LORDE, shal wante nothinge.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

A There shall no evell happen vnto him that feareth God: but whan he is in tentacion, the LORDE shall delyuer him. A wyse man hateth not ẏ lawe, but an ypocryte is as a shyp in a raginge water. A man of vnderstondinge geveth credence vnto the lawe of God, and ẏ lawe is faithfull vnto him. Be sure of the matter, then talke therof: Be first wel instructe, thē maiest thou geve answere. The hert of ẏ foolish is like a cartwhele, and his thoughtes renne aboute like the axell tre. Like as a wylde horse that neyeth vnder every one ẏ sytteth vpon him, so is it with a scornefull frende. Why doth one daie excell another, seynge all the dayes of the yeare come of the Sonne? The wysdome of the LORDE hath so parted them asunder, and so hath he ordened the tymes and solempne feastes. Some of them hath he chosen and halowed before other dayes. And all men are made of the grounde, and out of the earth of Adam.

B In the multitude of scyence hath ẏ LORDE sundered them, and made their wayes of dyverse fashions. Some of them hath he blessed, made moch of them, halowed them, and claymed them to himself. But some of thē hath he cursed, brought thē lowe, and put thē out of their estate. Like as ẏ claye is in the potters hande, and all the ordrynge therof at his pleasure: so are men also in the hande of him ẏ made thē, so that he maye geve them as it liketh him best. Agaynst evell is good, and agaynst death is life: so is the vngodly agaynst soch as feare God. Beholde thus all the workes of the Hyest, and there are euer two agaynst two, and one set agaynst another. I am awaked vp last of all, as one that gathereth after in harueste. In the giftes of God and in his blessynge I am increased, and haue fylled my wyne presse, like a grape gatherer. Beholde, how I haue not laboured onely for my self, but for all soch as loue nurture and wysdome. Ecclesiatici. 24.

Heare me O ye greate men of the people, C and harken wt yō eares ye rulers of ẏ congregacion. Geue not ẏ sonne and wyfe, ẏ brother and frende power over the, whyle thou lyvest: and geve not awaye thy substaunce and good to another, lest it repent the, and thou be fayne to begg therfore thy self. As longe as thou lyvest and hast breth, let no man chaunge the: For better it is thy children to praye the, then ẏ thou shuldest be fayne to loke in their handes. In all thy workes be excellent, that thy honoure be neuer stained. At the tyme whan thou shalt ende thy dayes, and fynish thy life, distribute thine inheretaūce. The fodder, the whyppe, and the burden belongeth vnto the Asse: Meate, correccion, and worke vnto the seruaunt.

Yf thou set thy seruaunt to laboure, thou D shalt fynde rest. But yf thou let him go ydel, he shal seke libertye. The yock and ẏ whyppe bowe downe the neck, but tame thou thy evell seruaunt with bōdes and correccion. Sende him to laboure, that he go not ydle: For Idylnesse bryngeth moch evell. Sett him to worke, for that belongeth vnto him and becōmeth him well. Yf he be not obedient, bynde his fete: but do not to moch vnto him in anye wyse, and without discrecion do nothinge. Yf thou haue a (faithfull) seruaūt, let him Eccli. 7. c be vnto the as thine owne soule, for in blonde hast thou gotten him. Yf thou haue a seruaunt, holde him as thy self, for thou hast nede of him as of thy self. Yf thou intreatest him evell, and kepest him harde, and makest him to be proude, and to renne awaye from ẏ, thou canst not tell, what wayes thou shalt seke him.

The XXXIIII. Chapter.

Vayne wyse people begyle them selues wt A vayne and disceatfull hope, and fooles trust in dreames. Who so regardeth dreames, is like him that wil take holde of a shadowe, and folowe after the wynde. Euen so is it with the appearinges of dreames. Before the face is the licknes of a face. Who can be clensed of ẏ vncleane? Or what treuth can be spoken of a lyar? Soothsayenge, witchcraft, sorcery and dreaminge is but vanyte: like as whan a wōmā travayleth wt chylde, and hath many fantasyes in hir herte. Where as soch visions come not of God, set not thine herte vpon them: For dreames haue disceaued many a mā, and they sayled, that put their truste therin.

B The lawe shalbe fulfilled without lyes, & wysdome is sufficient to a faithfull mouth. A wyse man ẏ is well instructe, vnderstonstondeth moch: & he ẏ hath good experiēce, can talke of wysdome. He ẏ hath no experiē ce, knoweth litle: & he ẏ erreth, causeth moch wickednes. Whan I was yet in erroure, I lerned moch also: yee I was so lerned, that I coude not expresse it all, and came oft in parell of death therouer, tyll I was delyuered from it. Now I se, that they which feare God, haue the right sprete: for their hope stō deth in him, that can helpe thē. Who so feareth the LORDE, stōdeth in awe of no man, and is not afrayed, for the LORDE is his ho pe and comforte.

C Blessed is the soule of him ẏ feareth the LORDE: In whō putteth he his truste: who is his strēgth: For the eyes of the LORDE haue respecte vnto them, that loue him. He is their mightie proteccion, & strōge grounde: A defence for the heate, a refuge for the hote noone daye, a sucore for stomblynge, & an helpe for fallynge. He setteth vp the soule, and lighteneth ẏ eyes: he geueth healthe life, and blessynge. He that geueth an offerin ge of vnrighteous good, his offerynge is re fused: and the scornefull dealinges of the vn righteous please not God. God hath no de lyte in the offerynges of ẏ vngodly, nether maye synne be reconcyled in the multitude of oblacions. Who so bryngeth an offeryn ge out of ẏ goodes of ẏ poore, doth euē as one ẏ kylleth ẏ sonne before ẏ fathers eyes.

D The bred of the nedefull is the life of the poore: he ẏ defraudeth him therof, is a man, of blonde. Who so robbeth his neghbō of his lyuinge, doth as greate synne as though he slew him to death. He that defraudeth ẏ labo rer of his hyre, is a blonde shedder. Whā one buyldeth, and another breaketh downe, what profit haue they then but labour? Whan one prayeth, & another curseth, whose voyce wyl the LORDE heare? He that washeth himself because of a deed body, & then toucheth the deed agayne, what doth his waßshinge? So is it with a man that fasteth for his synnes, and doth them agayne: who wil heare his prayer? Or what doth his fastynge helpe him?

Geue no vnrighteous gistes, for soch wil not he receaue. C The bely deuoureth all meates, yet is one meate better then another. Like as the tonge taisteth venyson, so doth an hert of vn-derstondinge marck false wordes. A frowar de hert geueth heuynes, but a man of experience lifteth him vp agayne. The woman receaueth euery man, yet is one daughter bet ter then another. A fayre wife reioyseth hir hußbande, and a man loueth nothinge better. Yf she be louynge & vertuous withall, then is not hir hußbande like other men. He that hath gotten a vertuous woman, hath a goodly possession: she is vnto him an helpe and piler wher vpon he resteth. Where no hedge is, there the goodes are spoyled: and where no houßwife is, there ẏ frēdles mour neth. Like as there is no credence geuen to a robber, ẏ goeth from one cite to another:
So is not ẏ man beleued, that hath no nest, and must turne in, where he maye abyde in the night.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

EVery frende sayeth: I wil be frendly vnto him also. But there is some fren de, which is onely a frende in name. Remayneth there not heuynes vnto death, whan a companyon and frende is turned to an enemye: O most wicked presumpcion: Frō whence art thou spronge vp, to couer the earth with falsede & disceate? There is some Eccli. 6. b companyon, which in prosperite reioyseth with his frēde: but in the tyme of trouble, he taketh parte agaynst him. There is some cō panyon, that mourneth with his frende for the bely sake: but whan trouble commeth, he taketh holde of the shylde. Forget not thy frende in thy mynde, & thynke vpon him in ẏ riches. Euery counceler bryngeth forth his councell: Neuertheles there is some, ẏ counceleth but for his owne profit. Bewarre of ẏ Eccli. 8. c counceler, & be aduysed afore wherto thou and 9. c self. Lest he cast the lott vpon the, & saye vn what shal become of the.

Axe no coūcell at him, ẏ suspecketh ẏ for B an enemie, & hyde ẏ councell from soch as ha te ẏ. Axe no councell at a woman, cōcernyn ge ẏ thinges ẏ she lōgeth for: ner at a fear-full & faintharted body, in matters of warre:
or at a marchaunt, how deare he wil cheape thy wares towarde his: or at a byer, of sel-lynge: Or at an envyous man, of thankes-geuynge: Or at the vnmercifull, of louynge kindnes: Or at ẏ slouthfull, of workinge: Or at an hyrelynge which hath no house, of pro fit or wealth. (An ydle body wolde not gladly heare speake of moch labō.) Take no soch folkes to coūcell, but be diligēt to seke coūcel at a vertuous man, ẏ feareth God, soch one as thou knowest to be a keper of ẏ cōmaun demētes, which hath a minde after thine ow ne minde, & is sory for ẏ whā thou stōblest.

And holde thy councell fast in thine hert: C for there is no man more faithfull to kepe it, then thou thy self. For a mās mynde is som tyme more disposed to tell out, then seuen watchmen that sytt aboue in an hye place lokynge aboute them. And aboue all this praye the Hyest, that he wil lede thy waye in faithfulnes & trueth. Before all thy workes axe councell first: and or euer thou doest eny thinge, be well aduysed. There be foure thin

ges that declare a chaunged hert, wherout there springeth euell & good, death & life, & a master full tonge that bableth moch. Some man is apte and well instructe in many thinges, and yet very vnprofitable vnto himself. Some man there is, that can geue wyse and prudent councell, and yet is he hated, & contynueth a begger: for that grace is not geuē him of God, to be accepted. Another is robbed of all wißdome, yet is he wise vnto himself, and the frute of vnderstōdinge is faithfull in his mouth.

D A wyse man maketh his people wyse, & ỹ frutes of his wißdome fayle not. A wyse mā shal be plēteously blessed of God: & all they that se him, shal speake good of him. The life of man stondeth in ỹ nōbre of the dayes, but the dayes of Israel are innumerable. A wyse man shal opteyne faithfulnes & credence amonge his people, & his name shalbe perpetuall. My sonne, prone thy soule in thy life: & yf thou se eny euell thinge, gene it not vnto her. For all thinges are not profitable for all men, nether hath euery soule pleasure in euery thinge. Be not gredy in euery eatynge, and be not to haistye vpō all meates. For excesse of meates bryngeth sikes, and glotony commeth at the last to an vnmeasurable heate. Thorow glotony haue many one perished: but he that dyeteth him self temperatly, prolongeth his life.

A Honoure the phisician: honoure him because of necessite. God hath created him (for of the hyest commeth medcyne) and he shal receaue giftes of the kynge. The wißdome of the phisician bryngeth him to greate worshipe, & in the sight of the greate men of this worlde, he shalbe honorably taken. The LORDE hath created medcyne of the earth, and he that is wyse, wyl not abhorre it. Was not ỹ bytter water made swete with a tre? that men might lerne to knowe the vertue therof. The LORDE hath geuen men wyßdome & vnderstondinge, ỹ he might be honoured in his wōderous workes. With soch doth he heale men, & taketh awaye their paynes: Of soch doth the Apotecary make a confeccion, yet can no man perfourme all his workes. My sonne, bryng forth thy teares ouer the deed: and begynne to mourne, as yf thou haddest suffred greate harme thy self: & thē couer his body after a conuenyent maner, & despyse not his buryall. Enforce thy self to wepe, & prouoke thy self to mourne, & make lamentacion expediently, and ỹ a daye or two, lest thou be euell spoken of: & then cōforte thy self because of the heuynes. For of heuynes cōmeth death, the heuynes of ỹ hert breaketh strength. Heuynes and powerte grieueth the hert in tentacion & offence. Take no heuynes to hert, dryue it awaye, and remembre the last thinges. Forget it not, for there is no turnynge agayne. Thou shalt do him no good, but hurte thy self. Remembre his iudgmēt, thine also shalbe like wyse: vnto me yesterdaye, vnto the to daye. 1.Re.

D The wyßdome of the scrybe is at cōuenyent tyme of rest: & he ỹ ceasseth from exercyse & labō, shalbe wyse. He that holdeth ỹ plough, & hath pleasure in proddynge & dryuynge ỹ oxen, & goeth aboute w' soch workes, he can speake of oxen. He setteth his hert to make forowes, & is diligent to gene ỹ tyne fodder. So is euery carpenter also & work master, that laboureth still night & daye: he carueth, graueth & cutteth out, & his desyre is in sondrye connynge thinges, and his hert ymagineth, how he maye conyngly cast an ymage, his diligence also & watchinge perfourmeth the worke. The yronsmyth inlike maner bydeth by his stythie, & doth his diligence to laboure the yron. The vapoure of the fyre brenneth his flesh, and he must fight with the heate of the fornace. The noyse of the hammer soundeth euer in his eares, and his eyes loke still vpon the thinge ỹ he maketh. He hath set his minde there vpon, that he wyll make out his worke, and therfore he watcheth, how he maie set it out, and bryng it to an ende.

So doth the potter syt by his worke, he turneth ỹ whele aboute with his fete, he is diligent & carefull in all his doynges, & his labour and worke is without nombre. He fashioneth the claye with his arme, and bi his fete he tepereth it. His hert ymagineth how he maye make it pleasaunt, & his diligence is to clense the ouen. All these hope in their hades, & euery one thinketh to be connynge in his worke. Without these maye not the cities be manteyned, inhabited ner occupied: yet come they not hye in the congregacion: they vnderstande not the couenaunt of ỹ lawe: they can not declare equyte & iudgment: they can not fynde out the darck sentēces: but thorow them shal the creature of ỹ worlde be manteyned: their prayer concerneth onely the worke & labo of cōninge.

The XXXIX. Chapter.

A BVt he ỹ applyeth his mynde to vnderstande the lawe of God, doth diligently seke out ỹ wyßdome of them of the olde tyme, & exercyseth him self in the propheties. He kepeth ỹ sayenges of famous men, and preasseth to the vnderstandinge of darck sentēces of wyßdome. He seketh out ỹ mysterye of secrete sayēges, and exercyseth him self therin cōtynually. He doth seruyce amonge greate men, & appeareth before the prynce. He goeth in to a straunge countre, & trauaileth thorow it: loke what good or euell is amōge men, he proueth it & seketh it out. He purposeth in his hert, to resorte early vnto the LORDE ỹ made him, & to praye before the hyest God. He openeth his mouth in prayer, & prayeth for his synnes.

B When the greate LORDE wil, he shalbe filled wt the spirete of vnderstādinge, ỹ he maie then poure out wyse sentences, & geue thankes vnto the LORDE in his prayer. He shal ordre his deuyce, and lede his knowlege aright, & geue him vnderstandinge of secrete thinges. He shal shew forth the sciēce of his lerninge, & reioyce in the couenaunt of the lawe of the LORDE. The whole congregacion shal cōmende his wyßdome, & it shal neuer be put out. The remembraunce of him shal neuer be forgotten, & his name shal con 44.b tynue from one generacion to another. His wyßdome shalbe spoken of, & the whole congregacion shall openly declare his prayse. Whyle he liueth, he hath a greater name thē a thousande besyde: & after his death, the same name remayneth vnto him. Yet wyll I speake of mo men of vnderstandinge, for I am full as the Moone.

C Herke vnto me (ye holy vertuous childrē) bringe forth frute, as the rose that is planted by the brokes of the felde, and geue ye a swete smell as Libanus. Florish as the rose garden, synge a songe of prayse. O geue thākes vnto God ouer all his workes. Geue glory and honoure vnto the LORDE, shew his prayse with youre lippes. Yee euen with the songe of youre lippes, with harpes & playenge, and in geuinge thankes vnto him, saye after this maner: All ỹ workes of the LORDE Gen.1.d are exceadinge good, and all his commaundementes are mete and conuenient in due season.

A mā nede not to saie: what is ỹ? what is that? for at time conuenient they shal all be Gen.7.d sought. At his cōmaundement ỹ water was as a wall, & at the worde of his mouth ỹ waters stode still. In his commaundement is euery thinge acceptable and reconcyled, and his health can not be minished. The workes of all flesh are before him, & there is nothinge hydd from his eyes. He seith from euerlastinge to euerlastinge, and there is nothinge to wonderfull or hye vnto him. A man nede not to saye then, what is this, or that? For he hath made all thinges to do good vnto man. His blessynge shall renne ouer as the streame, and moysture the earth like a floude of water. Like as he maketh the water for drouth, so shall his wrath fall vpon the heithen.

E Ose.14.f Rom.8.

His wayes are playne and right vnto ỹ iust, but the vngodly stomble at them. For the good are good thinges created from the begynnynge, and euell thinges for the vngodly. All thinges necessary for the life of man are created from the begynnynge: water, fyre, yron and salt, meel, wheate and hony mylke and wyne, oyle and clothinge. All these thinges are created for the best to the faithfull: But to the vngodly shal all these thinges be turned to hurte and harme. There be spretes that are created for vengeaūce, and in their rigorousnes haue they fastened their tormentes. In the tyme of the ende they shal poure out their strēgth, and pacifie ỹ wrath of him that made them. Fyre, hayle, honger and death: all these thinges are created for vengeaunce. Eccll.29. 1.Ti.4.a Matt.25. Eccli.40.

F

The teth of wylde noysome beestes, the scorpions, serpentes, and the swerde are created also for vengeaunce, to the destruccion of the vngodly. They shall be glad to do his commaundementes: and whan nede is, they shalbe ready vpon earth: and whan their houre is come, they shal not ouerpasse the commaundement of the LORDE.

Therfore haue I taken a good corage vnto me from the begynnynge, and thought to put these thinges in wrytinge, and to leane thē behynde me. All ỹ workes of the LORDE are good, and he geueth euery one in due season, and whan nede is, So that a man ne de not to saye: this is worse then that. For in due season they are all pleasaunt and good: And therfore prayse the LORDE with whole hert and mouth, & geue thankes vnto his name.

The XL. Chapter.

A GReate trauayle is created for all mē, and an heuy yock vpon all mens children, from the daye that they go out of their mothers wombe, tyll they be buried in (the earth) the mother of all thinges: namely, their thoughtes and ymaginacions, feare of the hert, councell, meditacions, longinge and desyre, the daye of death: from the hyest that sytteth vpon the glorious seate, vnto the lowest and most symple vpon the earth: from him that is gorgiously arayed, and weereth a crowne, vntyll him that is but homely and symple clothed. There is nothinge but wrath, zele, fearfulnes, vnquietnes, and feare of death, rigorous anger and stryfe. And in the night whan one shulde rest and slepe vpon his bedd, the slepe chaungeth his vnderstandinge and knowlege. A litle as nothinge is his rest, in ỹ slepe as well as in the daye of laboure.

B He feareth and is disquyted in the vision of his hert, as one that renneth out of a batayll: and in the tyme of health he awaketh, and marueleth that the feare was nothinge. Soch thinges happen vnto all flesh, both man and beest: but seuenfolde to the vngodly. Moreouer death, bloudsheddinge, stryfe & swerde, oppression, honger, destruccion and punyshment: these thinges are all created agaynst the vngodly, and for their sakes came the floude also. All that is of the earth, shal turne to earth agayne: and all waters ebb agayne in to the see. All brybes and vnrighteousnes shalbe put awaye, but faithfulnes and trueth shal endure for euer. The substaūnce and goodes of ỹ vngodly shalbe dried vp and syncke awaye as a water floude, and they shall make a sounde like a greate thonder in the rayne.

C Like as the righteous reioyseth whan he openeth his hande, so shall the trāsgessours be fayne, whan their goodes vanysh and consume awaye. The children of the vngodly shal not optayne many braunches: and ỹ vncleane rotes vpō the hye rockes shalbe roted out before the gras by the water syde & vpon the ryuer bankes.

Frendlynes and liberalite in the increase and blessynge of God, is like a paradise & garden of pleasure: soch mercy also & kindnes endureth for euer. To labō & to be content with that a man hath, is a swete pleasaunt life: that is to fynde a treasure aboue all treasures. To beget children and to repayre the cite, maketh a perpetuall name: but an honest woman is more worth thē they both. Wyne and mynstralsye reioyse the hert, but the loue of wyßdome is aboue them both.

Pypinge and harpinge make a swete noyse, but a frendly tonge goeth beyonde them both. Thine eye desyreth fauoure and bewtie but a grene sede tyme rather thē they both. A frende and companyon come together at oportunyte, but aboue them both is a wife that agreeth with hir hußbande. One brother helpeth another in the tyme of trouble, but allmes shal deliuer more then they both. Golde and syluer fasten the fete, but a good councell is more pleasaunt then they both. Temporall substaunce and strength lift vp the mynde: but the feare of the LORDE more then they both. The feare of the LORDE wanteth nothinge, and nedeth no helpe. The feare of ỹ LORDE is as a pleasaunt gardē of blessynge, and nothinge so bewtyfull as it is. My sonne, lede not a beggers life, for better it were to dye thē to begg. Who so loketh to another mans table, taketh no thought for his owne lyuynge how to vpholde his life, for he fedeth himself with other mens meate. But a wyse and well nurtoured man wyll bewarre therof. Beggynge is swete in the mouth of the vnshamefast, but in his bely there burneth a fyre.

The XLI. Chapter.

O Death, how bytter is the remembraunce of the, to a man that seketh rest and comforte in his substaunce and riches, vnto the man that hath nothinge to vexe him, and that hath prosperite in all thinges, yee vnto him that yet is able to receaue meate: O death, how acceptable and good is thy iudgment vnto the nedefull, and vnto him whose strength fayleth, & that is now in his last age, and that in all thinges is full of care and fearfulnes: vnto him also that is in dispayre, and hath no hope ner pacience: Be not thow afrayed of death: remembre them ỹ haue bene before the: and ỹ come after ỹ: this is the iudgmēt of ỹ LORDE ouer all flesh. And why wolde ye thou be agaīst this pleasure of ỹ Hiest: Whether it be ten, an hundreth, or a thousande yeares: death axeth not how longe one haue lyued.

B The children of the vngodly are abhominable children, and so are they that kepe company with the vngodly. The inheretaunce 5.40.c of vngodly children shall come to naught, and their posterite shal haue perpetuall shame and confucion. The children complayne of an vngodly father: and why: for his sake they are rebuked and despysed. Wo be vnto you (O ye vngodly) which haue forsake the lawe of ỹ hyest God: Yf ye be borne, ye shal be borne to cursynge: yf ye dye, ỹ curse shal be youre porcion.

All that is of ỹ earth, shal turne to earth 40.b agayne: so go the vngodly also out of ỹ curse into destruccion. The sorow of men is in their body: but ỹ name of the vngodly shal be put out, for it is nothinge worth. Labour to get the a good name, for that shall contynue surer by the, then a thousande greate treasures of golde. A good life hath a nõbre of dayes, but a good name endureth euer.

My children, kepe wyßdome in peace: for C wißdome that is hyd and a treasure that is 20.d not sene, what profit is in thē both? A man that hydeth his fooliſhnes, is better then a man that hydeth his wyßdome. Therfore be ye turned at my wordes: for it is not good, in all thinges and allwaie to be ashamed. True faith must proue and measure it.

Be ashamed of whordome before father and mother: Be ashamed of lesynge before the prynce and men of auctorite: Of synne, before the iudge and ruler: Of offence, before the congregacion and people: Of vnrighteousnes, before a companyon and frēde: Of theft, before ỹ neghbours. As for the trueth of God and his couenaunt, be not ashamed 41.b therof.

Be ashamed to lye with thyne elbowes vpon the bred: Be ashamed to loke vpō harlottes: Be ashamed to turne awaye thy face from thy frende: Be ashamed to take & not to geue: Be ashamed also to loke vpon anothers mans wyfe, and to make many tryflinge wordes with hir mayden, or to stonde by hir bedsyde. Be ashamed to vpbrade thy frēde: and whan thou geuest eny thinge, cast him not in the teth wit hall.

The XLII. Chapter.

A Yhearse not a thinge twyse, and disclose not the wordes, that thou hast herde in secrete. Be shamefast & well manered in dede, so shall euery man fauoure the. Of these thinges be not thou ashamed, and accepte no personne to offende. Namely, of these thinges be not ashamed: Of the lawe of God, of the couenaunt, of iudgmēt: to brynge the vngodly from his vngodlines vnto righteousnes, and to make him a good man: to deale faithfully wt neghbō & companyon: to distribute the heretage vnto ỹ frendes: to be diligent to kepe true measure and weight: to be content, whether thou getteſt moch or litle: to deale truly wt temporall goodes in byenge and sellynge: to brynge vp children with diligence: to correcke an euell seruaunt: to kepe that thine is frō an euell wife: to set a lock where many handes are: what thou delyuereſt and geueſt out to be kepte, to tell it, and to weye it: to wryte vp all the outgeuynge and receaunynge: to ensourme ỹ vnlerned and vnwyse: Of the aged, that are iudged of the yonge. Yf thou be diligēt in these thinges, truly thou shalt be lerned and wyse and accepted of all men.

B The daughter maketh ỹ father to watch secretly: and the carefulnes that he hath for her, taketh awaye his slepe: yee in the youth, leſt she shulde ouergrowe him: And whan she hath an hußbande, leſt she shulde be hated: leſt she shulde be defyled or rauyshed in hir virginyte, or gotten with childe in hir fathers house: Or (whan she commeth to the man) leſt she behaue herself not right, or cō contynue vnfrutefull. Yf thy daughter be Eccli.26.b wanton, kepe her strately, leſt she cause thine enemies laugh the to scorne, & the whole cite to geue ỹ an euell reporte, and so & thou be fayne to heare thy shame of euery man, and be confounded before all ỹ people. Beholde not Eccli.25.c euery bodies bewtye, & haue not moch dwellynge amonge wemen. For like as the worme Gen.3.b and moth commeth out of clothinge, so doth wickednes come of wemen.

It is better to be with an euell man, then C wt a frendly wife ỹ putteth one to shame and rebuke. I wyl remembre the workes of the LORDE, and declare the thinge ỹ I haue sene. In ỹ wordes of ỹ LORDE are his workes. The Sōne ouerloketh all thinges wt his shine, & all his workes are full of ỹ clearnes therof. Hath not the LORDE brought to passe, that his sayntes shulde tell out all his wōderous workes, which the allmighty LORDE hath stablyshed? All thinges endure in his glory. He seketh out the grounde of the depe and the hert, and he knoweth all their ymagination & wyßdome. For ỹ LORDE knoweth all D scyence, and he loketh in to ỹ token of the tyme. He declareth the thinges ỹ are past and for to come, & discloseth thinges that are se- Iob.24.a crete. No thought maye escape him, nether Esa.29.c

maye eny worde be hyd from him. He hath garnyshed the hye excellent workes of his wyßdome, and he is frō euerlastinge to euerlastinge. Vnto him maye nothinge be added nether can he be mynished, he hath no nede also of eny councell. O how amiable are all his workes, & as a sparke to loke vpon: They lyue all, and endure for euer: and whan so euer nede is, they are all obedient vnto him. They are all dubble, one agaynst another: he Deut.32.a hath made nothinge that hath faute or blemysh. He hath stablyshed the goodes of euerychone: and who maye be satisfied with his glory, whan he seith it?

The XLIII. Chapter.

A Psal.8.a The glory of the heyth, is the fayre and cleare firmament, the bewtye of the heauen in his glorious clearnes. The sonne whan it appeareth, declareth the daye in ỳ goinge out of it, a marueloꝰ worke of the Hyest. At noone it burneth ỳ earth, and who maye abyde for the heate therof: Who so kepeth an ouen whan it is hote, thre tymes more doth the Sonne burne vpon ỳ mountaynes, whan it bretheth out the fyrie beames and shyneth: with the brightnes of it, it blyndeth the eyes. Greate is the LORDE that made it, and in his commaundement he causeth it to renne haistely.

Gen.1.b The Moone also is in all, and at conuenient season it sheweth the tymes, and is a Exo.12.a token of the tyme. The token of the solempne feast is taken of the Moone, a light that mynisheth and increaseth againe. The Moneth is called after the Moone, it groweth wonderously in hir chaunginge.

B The armye of heauen also is in the heith, in the firmament of heauen it geueth a cleare and glorious shyne. This is the clearnes of the starres, the bewtifull apparell of heauen, the apparell that the LORDE lighteneth in the heyth. In his holy worke they continue in their ordre, and not one of them fayleth in his watch. Loke vpon ỳ rayne bowe,
Gen.9.b and prayse him that made it: very bewtifull is it in his shyne. He compaseth the heauen abonte with his clearnes & glory, the handes of the Hyest haue bēded it. Thorow his commaundement he maketh the snowe to fall, & the thonder of his iudgment to smyte hastely. Thorow his commaundement the treasures are opened, and the cloudes fle as the foules. In his power hath he strengthened the cloudes, and brokē the hayle stones.

The mountaynes melt at ỳ sight of him, the wynde bloweth accordinge to his wyll. The sounde of his thonder heateth ỳ earth, and so doth the stome of the northwynde whirle wynde also lighteth downe as a fethered foule, casteth out and spredeth the snow abrode: and as the gresshoppers that destroye all, so falleth it downe. The eie marueleth at ỳ bewtye of the whytenesse therof, and the hert is afraied at the raine of it. He powreth out the frost vpon earth, like salt, and whan it is frosen, it is as sharpe as the pryck of a thistle.

C Whan the colde northwynde bloweth, harde Christall commeth of the water. He lighteth downe vpon all the gatheringes together of water, and putteth on ỳ waters as a brest plate. He deuoureth the mountaynes, and burneth the wyldernesses: and loke what is grene, he putteth it out like fyre. The medycine of all these is, whan a clowde commeth hastely: and whan a dew commeth vpon the heate, it shalbe refreßshed agayne.

D (In his worde he stylleth the wynde, In his councell he setteth the depe, and (the LORDE) Jesus planted it. They that sayle ouer the see, tell of his parels and harmes: and whan we heare it with oure eares, we marueil therat. For there be straūge wonderous workes, dyuerse maner of nyce beestes and whall fishes. Thorow him are all thinges set in good ordre and perfourmed, & in his worde all thinges endure.

I speake moch, but I can not sufficiently attayne vnto it, for he himself onely is the perfeccion of all wordes. We shulde prayse the LORDE after all ō power, for he is greate in all his workes. The LORDE is to be feared yee very greate is he, and marueloꝰ is his power. Prayse the LORDE, and magnifie him as moch as ye maye, yet doth he farre farre exceade all prayse. O magnifie him with all youre power, and laboure earnestly, yet are ye in no wyse able sufficiently to prayse him. Who hath sene him, that he might tell vs? Who can magnifie him so greatly as he is? For there are hyd yet greater thinges then these be: as for vs, we haue sene but fewe of his workes. For the LORDE hath made all thinges, and gewen wyßdome to soch as feare God.

The XLIIII. Chapter.

A commendacion of the olde vertuous fathers.

LEt vs commende the noble famous men, and the generacion of oure forefathers. Many great glorious actes hath the LORDE done, and shewed his greate power euer sens ỹ begynnynge. The noble famous men raigned in their kyngdomes, and bare excellent rule. In their wyßdome and vnderstondinge, they followed the councell shewed in the prophecies. They led the folke thorow the councell and wyßdome of the scrybes of the people. Wyse sentences are founde in their instruccion. They sought the swetenes and melody of Musick, and brought forth the pleasaunt songes in scripture. They were riche also, & ende comforte and pacifie those that dwelt with them. All these were very noble and honorable men in their generacions, and were well reported of in their tymes. These haue left a name behynde them, so that their prayse shal allwaye be spokē of. Afterwarde there were some, whose remembraunce is gone. They came to naught and perished, as though they had neuer bene: and became as though they had neuer bene borne, yee & their children also with them.

Nevertheles these are louynge men, whose righteousnes shal neuer be forgotten, but contynue by their posterite. Their children are an holy good heretage: Their sede endured fast in ỹ couenaunt. For their sakes shal their childrē & sede contynue for euer, & their prayse shal neuer be put downe. Their bodies are buried in peace, but their name lyueth forevermore. The people can speake of their wyßdome, & the congregacion can talke of their prayse. Enoch walked right & accepta bly before the LORDE: therfore was he trāslated for an example of amendemēt to ỹ generacions. Noe was a stedfast & righteous man: & in the tyme of wrath he became a recōcylinge. Therfore was he left a remnaunt vnto the earth, whan the floude came. An euerlastinge couenaunt was made wt him, that all flesh shulde perisshe nomore with ỹ water.

Abraham was a greate father of many people, in glory was there none like vnto him. He kepte the lawe of the Hyest, & came in to a couenaunt with him. He set the couenaunt in his flesh, and whan he was tempted, he was founde faithfull. Therfore swore God vnto him with an oeth, that he wolde blesse all people in his sede, that he wolde multiplie and increase him as the dust of the earth, and to exalte his sede as the starres: yee and that his sede shulde haue ỹ possession and inheretaunce of the londe from see to see, and from the ryuer vnto ỹ borders of the londe.

With Isaac dyd he stablisshe ỹ same couenaūt, for Abrahā his fathers sake. Yee ỹ gracious blessynge and health of all men, and couenaunt dyd he stablysh wt Isaac, and made it to rest vpon the heade of Jacob. He knew him, in that he prospered him so well and richely, and gaue him an heretage, and sundered his porcion by it self, and parted it amonge the twolue trybes. Mercifull men brought he ogt of him, which founde fauo' before all flesh. Gen. 26.a Gen. 28.c 29.30. Iosu. 18.19

The XLV. Chapter.

MOses beloued of God and mē, whose remembraunce is in hye prayse: him hath the LORDE made like in the glory of the sayntes, and magnified him so that the enemies stode in awe of him, thorow his wordes he dyd greate wonders. He made him greate in the sight of kynges, gaue him commaundement before his people, and shewed him his glorious power. He stablysshed him with faithfulnes and mekenes, and chose him out of all men. For he herde his voyce, and led him in the darcke cloude, and there he gaue him the commaundementes, yee the lawe of life and wyßdome, that he might teach Jacob the couenaunt, and Israel his lawes. A Exo.11.a Act.7.c Num.12.a Exo.19.20

He chose Aaron his brother also out of ỹ trybe of Leui, exalted him, & made him soch like. An euerlastinge couenaunt made he wt him, and gaue him the prestlhode in the people. He made him glorious in bewtifull araye, and clothed him with the garment of honoure. He put perfecte ioye vpō him, and gyrded him with strength. He deckte him with syde clothes and a tunycle, with an ouerbody cote also and gyrdle. Rounde aboute made he him belles of golde, and that many: that whan he wente in, the sounde might be herde, that they might make a noyse in the Sanctuary, and gene the people warnynge. The holy garment was wrought & broderd with golde, yalow sylke and purple. And in the brestlappe there was a goodly worke, wherin was fastened light and perfectnesse. B Exo.4.c Exo.28.a Exo.28.f Exo.28.e C

Vpon ỹ same also there was a worke fastened and set with costly precious stones, all bounde with golde: and this he brought in his mynistracion. The stones also were fastened for a remembraunce, after the twolue trybes of Israel. Vpon his mytre there was a plate of pure golde, a grauen ymage of holynes, a famous and noble worke, garnished, and pleasaunt to loke vpon. Before him were there sene no soch fayre ornamētes, and these it behoued hi allwaye to vse: There might none other put them on, but onely his children and his childers children perpetually. Daylie performed he his burntoffe Leui.8.a ringes two tymes. Moses fylled his handes, and anoynted him wt holy oyle.

D This was now confirmed him with an euerlastinge couenaunt, and to his sede, as ye dayes of heauē: namely, that his childrē shulde allwaye mynistre before him, and performe the office of the presthode, and wysh the people good in his name. Before all men lyinge chose he him, that he shulde offre before the LORDE, and make odours for a swete sauoure and remembraūce, that he shulde reconcyle the people of the LORDE with Deu.17.c and 21.a Mal.2.a him agayne. He gaue him auctorite also in his commaundementes and in ye couenaūt, that he shulde teach Jacob the statutes and testimonies, and to enfourme Israel in his lawe.

E Therfore there stode vp certayne agaynst him, and had envye at him in the wyldernes: namely, they that were of Dathan & Abirams syde, and the furious congregaciō of Chore. This the LORDE sawe, and it displeased him, and in his wrothfull indignacion were they consumed. A greate wonder Num.16.a did he vpon them, and consumed them with Num.17.b the fyre. Besydes this, he made Aaron yet more honorable and glorious. He gaue him an heretage, and parted the first frutes vnto Exo.25.f him. Vnto him specially he appoynted the Leui.24.b bred forsustenaunce (for the prestes ate of ye offerynges of the LORDE) this gaue he vnto
Deut.12.b and 18.a him & his sede. Els had he no heretage ner Ezc.44.d porcion in ye londe and with the people. For the LORDE himself is his porcion and enheritaunce.

F The thirde noble and excellent mā is phineas the sonne of Eleazer, which pleased the Num.25.c God of Israel, because he had ye zele & feare of the LORDE. For whan the people were turned back, he put himself forth right soone, & that with a good wyll, to pacifie the wrath of the LORDE towarde Israel. Therfore was there a couenaūt of peace made with him, ye he shulde be the principall amonge the righteous and the people, that he and his posterite shulde haue the office of the presthode for euer (Like as there was made a couenaūt with Dauid of the trybe of Juda, that frō amonge his sonnes onely there shulde be a kynge: And that Aaron also & his sede shulde be the heretage, to geue vs wysdome in ō hert, to iudge his people in righteousnes: that his goodes shulde not come in to forgetfulnes, and that their honoure might endure for euer.

The XLVI. Chapter.

MAnly & stronge in battaill was Jesus ye sonne of Nave, which in stede of Moses ye prophet was geuen to be captayne of the people (which according vnto his name was a greate sauoure vnto the electe of God) to punysh the enemies, that rose vp agaynst Israel, ye Israel might optayne their inheritaunce. O how greate, noble and excellent was he, whan he lift vp his hande, and drew out his swerde agaynst the cities? Who stode so manly before him? For the LORDE himself brought in the enemies. Stode not the Sonne styll at his commaundemēt, and one daye was as longe as two? He called vpon the Hyest & most mighty, whā ye enemies preassed vpon him on euery syde: and the LORDE herde him with the hayle stones. They smote ye Heithenish people mightely, & in fallinge downe they slew all ye aduersaries, so that the Heithē knewe his hoost, and all his defence, that the LORDE himself fought agaynst them, for he folowed vpon the mighty men of them.

In the tyme of Moses also he and Caleb the sonne of Jephune, dyd a good worke, which stode agaynst the enemies, withelde the people from synne, and stylled ye wicked murmurynge. And of sixe hundreth thousande people of fote, they two were preserued, whan they were brought in to the heretage, namely, a londe that floweth with mylke & hony. The LORDE gaue strength also vnto Caleb, which remayned with him vnto his age: so that he wente vp in to the hye places of the londe, and his sede conquered the same for an heretage: that all the childrē of Israel might se, how good a thinge it is, to be obedient vnto the LORDE. And the iudges or rulers (euery one after his name) whose herte wente not a whoringe, ner departed from ye LORDE, and that forsake not the LORDE vnfaithfully, whose remembraūce hath a good reporte: Yee their bones flouish out of their place, and their name shal neuer be chaūged.

Samuel the prophet beloued of the LORDE, ordeyned a kinge, and anoynted the princes ouer the people. In the lawe of the LORDE ruled he, and iudged the congregacion: the LORDE had respecte vnto Jacob. The prophet was founde diligent in his faithfulnes: yee in his faithfulnes was the faithfulnes of the vision knowne. He called vpon ye LORDE the mightie, whā the enemies preassed vpon him on euery syde, what tyme as ye offred the suckynge lambes. And the LORDE thondred from heauen, and mayde his voyce to be herde wt a greate noyse. He discomfited the prynces of Tyre, & all the rulers of the Philistynes. Before his last ende he made protestacion in the sight of the LORDE & his anoynted, that he toke nether substaunce ner good of eny man, no not so moch as a shue: & no man might accuse him. After this he tolde, that his ende was at honde, and shewed the kynge also his ende and death: & from y earth lift he vp his voyce in the prophecie, y the vngodly people shulde perisshe.

The XLVII. Chapter.

AFterwarde in the tyme of kynge Dauid, there rose vp a prophet called Nathan: For like as the fat is taken awaye from the offrynge, so was Dauid chosen out of the childrē of Israel. He toke his pastyme wt the lyons as wt kyddes, and with beares like as with lambes. Slew he not a giaunte whan he was yet but yonge, & toke awaye the rebuke from his people: what tyme as he toke the stone in his hande, & smote downe proude Goliath wt the slynge? For he called vpon the hyest LORDE, which gaue him strength in his right hande, so that he ouerthrew the mightie giaunte in the battayll, that he might set vp the horne of his people agayne.

Thus brought he him to worshipe aboue all prynces, and made him to haue a good reporte in the prayse of the LORDE, y he shulde weere a crowne of glory. For he destroied the enemies on euery syde, roted out the Philistynes his aduersaries, & brake their horne in sunder, like as it is brokē yet this daye. In all his workes he praysed y hyest & holiest, & ascribed the honoure vnto him. With his whole hert dyd he prayse and loue him that made him. He set syngers also before the aulter, and in their tune he made swete songes. He ordeyned to kepe the holy daies worshipfully, and that the solempne feastes thorow the whole yeare shulde be honorably holdē, with prayesinge the name of the LORDE, & with synginge by tymes in the mornynge in the Sanctuary.

The LORDE toke awaye his synnes, and exalted his horne for euer. He gaue him y couenaunt of the kyngdome, and the trone of worshipe in Israel. After him there rose vp the wyse sonne called Salomon, and for his sake he drone y enemies awaie farre of. This Salomon reigned with peace in his tyme (for God gaue him rest from his enemies on euery syde, that he might buylde him an house in his name, & prepare the Sanctuary for euer) like as he was well instructe in his youth & fylled with wysdome and vnderstōdinge, as it were with a water floude. He couered and fylled the whole londe with similitudes and wyse prudent sentences.

His name wente abrode in the Iles, because of his peace he was beloued. All londes marueled at his songes, prouerbes, symlitudes, and at his peace, and at the name of y LORDE God, which is called the God of Israel. He gathered golde as tynne, & he had as moch syluer as leade. He was moued in vnordinate loue towarde wemen, and was ouercome in affeccion. He stayned his honō and worshipe, yee his posterite defyled he also, in bringinge the wrath of the LORDE vpon his children, and sorowe after his foresō y his kyngdome was deuyded, & Ephraim became an vnfaithfull & an vnconstant kingdome. Neuertheles God forsoke not his mercy, nether was he vtterly destroyed because of his workes, y he shulde leaue him no posterite.

As for y sede y came vpon him (which he loued) he brought it not vtterly to naught, but gaue yet a remnaunt vnto Jacob, and a rote vnto Dauid out of him. Thus rested Salomon with his fathers, and out of his sede he left behynde him a very foolishnes of the people, and soch one as had no vnderstōdinge: namely, Roboā which turned awaye the people thorow his councell, and Jeroboam y sonne of Nabat, which caused Israel to synne, and shewed Ephraim the waye of vngodlynes: In so moch that their synnes & mysdedes had the vpper hande so sore, that at the last they were dryuen out of the londe for the same: Yee he sought out & brought vp all wickednes, tyll the vengeaunce came vpon them.

The XLVIII. Chapter.

THen stode vp Elias the prophet as a fyre, and his worde brent like a cresshett. He brought an hōger vpon thē and in his zele he made them few in nombre. (For they might not awaye wt the commaūdementes of the LORDE.) Thorow the worde of the LORDE he shut the heauen, and thre tymes brought he the fyre downe. Thus became Elias honorable in his wonderous dedes. Who maye make his booste to be like him? One that was deed raysed he vp from death, & in the worde of y hyest he brought him out of the graue agayne. He cast downe kynges and destroyed them, and the honorable from their seate. Vpon the mount Syna he herde the punyshment, & vpon Horeb the iudgmēt of the vengeaunce. He prophecied recompensynge vnto kynges, and ordeyned Howbeit some of them dyd right, & some heaped vp vngodlynes.

Which Esay was greate & faithfull in his visions. In his tyme ỹ Sonne wēte backwarde, & he lengthened the kynges life. With a right sprete prophecied he, what shulde come to passe at the last: & to soch as were sorowfull in Sion he gaue consolacion, wherwhith they might cōforte them selues for euermore. He shewed thinges ỹ were for to come & secrete, or euer they came to passe.

The XLIX. Chapter.

A The remembraūce of Josias is like as 1.Re.22.a whan the Apotecary maketh many and 23. precious swete smellynge thinges to Pa.34.a gether. His remembraunce shalbe swete as hony in all mouthes, and as the playenge of Musick by the wyne. He was appoynted to turne the people agayne, & to take awaye all abhominacions of ỹ vngodly. He dyrected his hert vnto the LORDE, & in the tyme of the vngodly he set vp the worshipe of God agayne. All kynges (excepte David, Ezechias & Josias) cōmitted wickednes: for euen ỹ kynges of Juda also forsoke ỹ lawe of God. For they gaue their honne vnto other, their honō & worshipe also to a straunge people.

Therfore was the electe cite of the Sanc- B
tuary brent with fyre, and the stretes therof laye desolate & waist: for they intreated Jeremy euell, which nevertheles was a prophet ordeyned from his mothers wombe, that he might rote out, breake of, & destroye: & that he might buylde vp, & plante agayne. Ezechiel sawe the glory of the LORDE in a vision, which was shewed him vpon the cheret of the Cherubins. For he thought vpon the enemies in ỹ rayne, to do good vnto soch as had ordred their wayes a right. And the bones of the twolue propheres flourish from out of their place: for they gaue comforte consolacion vnto Jacob, and delyuered the faithfully. How shall we prayse Zorobabel, which was as a ringe in the right hande:

So was Jesus also the sonne of Josedech, these men in their tymes buylded the house, & set vp the Sanctuary of ỹ LORDE agayne, which was prepared for an euerlastinge worshipe. And Nehemias is allwaye to be cōmended, which set vp for vs the walles ỹ were broken downe, made the portes & barres agayne, and buylded oure houses of the new. But vpon earth is there no man exalted like Enoch, for he was taken vp from ỹ earth. And Joseph, which was lorde of his brethren, & the vpholder of his people: his bones were couered & kepte. Seth & Sem were in greate honoure amonge ỹ people: and so was Adam aboue all the beastes, whō he was created.

Symon the sonne of Onias the hye priest, which in his life set vp the house agayne, & in his dayes made fast the tēple. The heyth of ỹ temple also was founded of him, the dubble buyldinge, & the hye walles of the temple. In his dayes the welles of water flowed out, and were ex cedinge full as the see. He toke care for his people, & delyuered them from destruccion. He kepte his cite & made it stronge, that it shulde not be beseged. He dwelt in honoure and worshipe amonge his people, and enlarged the intraunce of the house and the court

He geneth light as the mornynge starre in the myddest of the cloudes, and as ỹ Moone whan it is full. He shyneth as the Sonne in the temple of God. He is as bright as ỹ rayne bowe in ỹ fayre cloudes, & floryssheth as the floures and roses in the sprynge of ỹ yeare, & as the lilies by the ryuers of water: Like as the braunches vpon the mount Libanus in tyme of Sommer: as a fyre & incẽse that is kyndled: Like as an whole ornament of pure golde, set with all maner of precious stones: and as an olyue tre that is frutefull: & as a Cypres tre which groweth vp an hye.

B Whan he put on the garment of honoure, & was clothed withall bewtye: whan he wente to the holy altare, to garnysh the couerynge of the Sanctuary: whan he toke ỹ portcions out of the prestes hande, he hymself stode by the herth of the altare, and his brethren rounde aboute in ordre. As the braunches of Cedre tre vpon the mount Libanus, so stode they rounde aboute him. And as the braunches of the olyue tre, so stode all ỹ sonnes of Aaron in their glory. And ỹ he might sufficiently perfourme his seruyce vpon the altare, & garnysh the offrynge of the hyest God, he stretched out his hande and toke of the drynkofferynge, & poured in of the wyne: so he poured vpon the botome of the aulter a good smell vnto the hyest prynce.

Then beganne ỹ sonnes of Aaron to synge, and to blowe with trompettes, & to make a greate noyse, for a remembraũce & prayse vnto the LORDE. Then were the people afrayed, & fell downe to the earth vpõ their faces, to worshipe the LORDE their God, & to geue thankes to Allmightie God. They synge goodly also with their voyces, so that there was a pleasaunt noyse in ỹ greate house of the LORDE. And the people in their prayer besought the LORDE the Hyest, that he wolde be mercyfull, tyll the honoure of ỹ LORDE were perfourmed. Thus ended they their mynistracion and seruyce.

C Then wente he downe, and stretched out his handes ouer the whole multitude of the people of Israel, that they shulde geue prayse & thankes out of their lippes vnto ỹ LORDE, and to reioyse in his name. He beganne yet once also to praye, that he might openly shewe the thankesgeuynge before the Hyest, namely thus: O geue prayse & thankes (ye all) vnto the LORDE oure God, which hath euer done noble and greate thinges: which hath increased oure dayes from ỹ mothers wombe, and dealt with vs accordinge to his mercy: that he wyl geue vs the ioyfulnes of hert, & peace for oure tymes in Israel. Which faithfully kepeth his mercy for vs euermore, & all waye delyuereth vs in due season.

There be two maner of people, that I abhoure fro my hert: as for the thirde, whom I hate, it is no people: They that syt vpon the mountayne of Samaria, the Philistynes, & the foolish people that dwell in Sichimis. D

I Jesus the sonne of Sirac Eleazarus of Jerusalem, haue tokened vp these informacions and documẽtes of wysdome and vnderstãdinge in this boke, and poured out the wysdome out of my hert. Blessed is he that exercyseth him self therin: and who so taketh soch to hert, shal be wyse. Yf he do these thinges, he shal be stronge in all. For the light of the LORDE ledeth him.

The LI. Chapter.

A prayer of Jesus the sonne of Sirac.

I Thanke the O LORDE and kynge, A and praise the O God my Sauioure.
I wil yelde prayse vnto ỹ name: for thou art my defender and helper, & hast preserued my body from destruccion, from ỹ snare of traytorous tõges, and from the lippes that are occupied with leyes. Thou hast bene my helper, from soch as stode vp agaynst me, and hast delyuered me after the multitude of thy mercy, and for thy holy names sake. Thou hast delyuered me from the roaringe of them, that prepared them selues to deuoure me, out of ỹ handes of soch as sought after my life: from the multitude of them ỹ troubled me, & wente aboute to set fyre vpon me on euery syde, so ỹ I am not brent in the myddest of the fyre: From the depe of hell, from an vncleane tõge, from lyenge wordes, from the wicked kynge, and from an vnrighteous tonge. My soule shal prayse ỹ LORDE vnto death, for my life drew nye vnto hell.

They cõpased me rounde aboute on euery B syde, & there was no mã to helpe me. I loked aboute me, yf there were eny man that wolde socoure me: but there was none. Then thought I vpon thy mercy O LORDE, and vpon thy actes that thou hast done euer of olde: namely, ỹ thou delyuerest soch as putt their trust in the, and ryddest them out of ỹ handes of the Heithen. Thus lift I vp my prayer from the earth, and prayed for delyueraunce from death. I called vpon the LORDE my father, that he wolde not leaue me thus out helpe, in the daye of my trouble & in the tyme of the proude. I prayed thy name continually, yeldinge honoure and thãkes vnto it: and so my prayer was herde. Thou savedest me from destruccion, and delyveredest me frō ẏ vnrighteous tyme. Therfore wil I aknowlege and praise the, and magnifie ẏ name of the LORDE.

C Whā I was yet but yonge, or ever I wēte astraye, I desyred wyßdome openly in my prayer. I came therfore before the temple, & sought her vnto the last. Then florished she vnto me, as a grape that is soone rype. My hert reioysed in her, then wente my fote the right waye, yee from youth vp sought I after her: I bowed downe myne eare and receaved her. I founde me moch wyßdome, and prospered greatly in her. Therfore wyll I ascrybe the glory vnto him, that geveth me wyßdome: for I am advysed to do therafter. I will be gelous to cleve vnto the thinge ẏ is good, so shal I not be cōfounded. My soule hath wrestled with her, and I have bene diligent to be occupied in her. I lift vp myne handes an hye, then was my soule lightened thorow wißdome, that I knowleged my foolishnes. I ordred my soule after her, she & I were one hert from the begynninge, and I founde her in clennesse. And therfore shal I not be forsaken.

D My hert longed after her, and I gat a good treasure. Thorow her ẏ LORDE hath geven me a new tonge, wherwith I wil praise him. O come vnto me ye vnlerned, & dwell in ẏ house of wyßdome: withdraw we not oure selves from her, but talke & comon of these thinges, for youre soules are very thirstie. I Esa.55.a opened my mouth, and spake: O come & bye wyßdome without money, bowe downe youre neck vnder hir yock, and youre soule shall receave wyßdome. She is harde at hande, & is content to be founde. Beholde with youre eyes, how that I have had but litle labour, and yet have founde moch rest. O receave wyßdome, and ye shall have plenteousnes of sylver and golde in possession. Let youre mynde reioyse in his mercy, & be not ashamed of his prayse. Wyrke his worke by tymes, & he shal geve you youre reward in due tyme. Eccli.6.c

The ende of Ecclesiasticus, other wyse called Jesus the sonne of Syrac.

The prayer of Azarias and the songe of ẏ thre children after Theodocios translacion: which wordes are wryten in ẏ thirde chapter of Daniel after the olde text in Latyn.

AND they walked in the myddest of the flamme, prayseynge God and magnifienge ẏ LORDE. Azarias stode vp, and prayde on this maner, Even in the myddest of the fyre opened he his mouth, & saide: Blessed be thou (LORDE God of ō fathers) right worthy to be prayesed and honoured is ẏ name of thine for evermore: for thou art righteous in all ẏ thinges ẏ thou hast done to vs: Yee faithfull are all ẏ workes, ẏ wayes are right, & ẏ iudgmētes true. In all ẏ thinges ẏ thou hast brought vpon vs, & vpon the holy cite of ō fathers (euen Jerusalem) thou hast executed true iudgment: Yee accordinge to right and equyte hast thou brought these thinges vpon vs, because of oure synnes.

For why? we have offended, & done wickedly, departynge from the: In all thinges have we trespaced, & not obeyed thy cōmandementes, ner kepte thē, nether done as thou hast bydden vs, ẏ we might prospere. Wherfore, all ẏ thou hast brought vpon vs, & every thinge ẏ thou hast done to vs, thou hast done them in true iudgment: As in delyveringe vs in to the hondes of oure enemies, amōge vngodly & wicked abhominacions, & to an vnrighteous kinge, yee ẏ most frowarde vpō earth. And now we maye not open ō mouthes, we are become a shame & reprofe vnto ẏ servauntes, & to thē ẏ worshipe the.

Nett for thy names sake (we beseke the) geve vs not vp for ever, breake not thy covenaunt, & take not awaye thy mercy from vs, for thy beloved Abrahams sake, for thy servaunt Jsaacs sake, & for thy holy Jsraele sake: to whom thou hast spoken & promysed, ẏ thou woldest multiply their sede as ẏ starres of heaven, & as the londe ẏ lieth vpon ẏ shore. For we (o LORDE) are become lesse then eny people, & be kepte vnder this daye in all the worlde, because of oure synnes: So that now we have nether prynce, duke, prophet, burntofferynge, sacrifice, oblacīō, incense, Sanctuary before the.

Neuertheleſſe, in a contrite herte and an humble ſprete let vs be receaued, ỹ we maie opteyne thy mercy. Like as in the burntoffe rynge of rammes & bullockes, and like as in thouſandes of fat lambes: ſo let o offrynge be in thy ſighte this daye, ỹ it maye pleaſe ỹ, for there is no cõfucion vnto them, ỹ put the retruſt in the. And now we folowe the with all o herte, we feare the, & ſeke thy face. Put vs not to ſhame, but deale w vs after thy lo uynge kyndneſſe, & acordinge to the multitu de of thy mercies. Delyuer vs by thy mira cles (o LORDE) & get thy name an honoure: that all they which do thy ſeruauntes euell, maye be confounded. Let them be aſhamed thorow thy Allmighrie power, and let their ſtrength be broken: that they maye knowe, how that thou only art the LORDE God, & hono worthy thorow out all the worlde.

And the kynges ſeruaũtes ỹ put them in, ceaſſed not to make the ouen hote with wyl de fyre, drye ſtrawe, pitch & fagottes: ſo that the flamme went out of the ouen vpon a xlix. cubites: yee it toke awaye, & brent vp tho ſe Caldees, ỹ it gat holde vpon be ſyde the ouen. But the angel of the LORDE came downe in to the ouen to Aſarias and his fe lowes, & ſmote ỹ flamme of the fyre out of the ouen, & made the myddeſt of the ouen, as it had bene a coole wynde blowinge: ſo that the fyre nether touched them, greued them, ner dyd them hurte. Then theſe thre (as out of one mouth) prayſed, honoured, and bleſſed God in the fornace, ſayenge:

Bleſſed be thou, o LORDE God of oure fathers: for thou art prayſe & honoure wor thy, yee & to be magnified for euermore. Bleſ ſed be ỹ holy name of thy glory, for it is wor thy to be prayſed, and magnified in all worl des. Bleſſed be thou in the holy temple of ỹ glory, for aboue all thinges thou art to be prayſed, yee & more then worthy to be magni fied for euer. O ye holy and humble men of herte, speake ye good of the LORDE: prayse ye him, & set him vp for euer.

O Ananias, Asarias and Misael, speake ye good of the LORDE: prayse ye him, and set hī vp for euer. Which hath delyuered vs from ỹ hell, kepte vs from ỹ honde of death, rydde vs from the myddest of the burnynge flamme, and saued vs euē in the myddest of ỹ fyre. O geue thākes therfore vnto ỹ LORDE: for he is kynde harted, and his mercy endureth for euer. O all ye deuoute men, speake good of the LORDE, euen the God of all godes: O prayse him, and geue him thankes, for his mercy endureth worlde without ende.

The story of Susanna which is the XIII. chapter of Daniel after the Laryn.

THere dwelt a man in Babilō, called Joachim: ỹ toke a wife, whose name was Susanna, (ỹ doughter of Helchias) a very fayre woman, & soch one as feared God. Hir father & hir mother also were godly people, & taught their doughter accordinge to ỹ lawe of Moses. Now Joachim (hir hußbonde) was a greate rich man, & had a fayre orchard ioyninge vnto his house. And to him resorted the Jewes comenly, because he was a man of reputacion amonge them. The same yeare were there made two iudges, soch as the LORDE speaketh of: All the wickednesse of Babilon cōmeth from ỹ elders (ỹ is) from ỹ iudges, which seme to rule the people. These came offt to Joachims house, & all soch as had eny thinge to do in the lawe, came thither vnto them.

Now when the people came a gayne after noone, Susanna wente in to hir hußbondes orcharde, to walke. The elders seynge this, that she went in daylie & walked: they burned for lust to her, yee they were allmost out of their wittes, & cast downe their eyes, that they shulde not se heauē, ner remembre ỹ God is a righteous iudge. For they were both wounded vth the loue of her, neither durst one shewe another his grefe. And for shame, they durst not tell her their inordynate lust, ỹ they wolde fayne haue had to do vth her. Yet they layed wayte for her earnestly from daye to daye, that they might (at the leest) haue a sight of her. And the one sayde to ỹ other: Vp, let vs go home, for it is dyner tyme. So they wente their waye from her.

When they returned a gayne, they came together, enquiringe out ỹ matter betwixt them selues: yee the one tolde ỹ other of his wicked lust. Thē apoynted they a tyme, whē they might take Susanna alone.

It happened also ỹ they spyed out a conueniēt tyme, when she wente forth to walke (as hir maner was) & no body with her, but two maydēs, & thought to wash her silf in the garden, for it was an hote season: And there was not one person there, except the two elders, ỹ had hyd them selues, to behold her. So she sayde to hir maydens: go fetme oyle & sope, & shut the orcharde dore, ỹ I maye wash me. And they dyd as she bad them, & shut the orcharde dore, & went out them selues at a backe dore, to fet the thinges ỹ she had cōmaunded: but Susanna knewe not, ỹ ỹ elders laie there hyd within. Now when the maydens were gone forth, ỹ two elders gat them vp, & ranne vpon her, sayenge: now, the orcharde dores are shut, that no man can se vs: we haue a lust vnto the, therfore consent vnto vs, and lye with vs.

If thou wilt not, we shall bringe a testimoniall a gaynst the: that there was a yonge felowe with the, and that thou hast sent awaye thy maydens from the for the same cause. Susanna sighed, and sayde: Alas, I am in trouble on euery syde. Though I folowe youre mynde, it wyll be my death: and yf I consent not vnto you, I cannot escape youre hondes. Wel, it is better for me, to fall in to youre hondes without the dede doinge, then to synne in the sight of the LORDE. And with that, she cried out with a loude voyce: the elders also cried out a gaynst her.

Then ranne there one to the orcharde dore, & smote it open. Now when the seruauntes of the house herde ỹ crie in ỹ orchard, they russhed in at the backe dore, to se what the matter was. So when the elders tolde them, the seruauntes were greatly ashamed, for why, there was neuer soch a reporte made of Susanna. On the morow after came the people to Joachim hir houßbonde, and ỳ two elders came also, full of myscheuous ymaginacions agaynst Susanna, to bringe her vnto death, & spake thus before the people: Sende for Susanna ỳ daughter of Helchias, Joachims wife. And immediatly they sent for her. So she came wt her father & mother, hir children & all her kynrede. Now Susanna was a tender person, & maruelous fayre of face. Therfore the wicked men cõmaunded to take of the clothes from her face (for she was couered) ỳ at the leest, they might so be satisfied in hir beutie. Then hir frẽdes, yee & all they ỳ knewe her, begãne to wepe.

These two elders stode vp in the myddest of the people, & layed their hondes vpon ỳ heade of Susanna: which wepte, and loked vp towarde heauen, for hir herte had a sure trust in the LORDE. And the elders sayde: As we were walkinge in the orcharde alone, this woman came in wt hir two maydes: whom she sent awaye from her, & sparred ỳ orcharde dores. With that, a yonge felowe (which there was hyd) came vnto her, & laye wt her. As for vs, we stode in a corner of the orcharde. And whẽ we sawe this wickednes, we rãne to her: & perceaued, ỳ they had medled together. But we coude not holde him, for he was stronger then we: thus he opened ỳ dore, & gat him awaye. Now whẽ we had takẽ this womã, we axed her, what yõge felow this was: but she wolde not tell vs. This is ỳ matter, & we be witnesses of ỳ same.

The comon sorte beleued them, as those ỳ were the elders & iudges of the people, & so they condemned her to death. Susanna cried out wt a loude voyce, & sayde: O euerlastinge God, thou sercher of secretes, thou ỳ knowest all thinges afore they come to passe: thou wotest, ỳ they haue borne false wytnes agaynst me: & beholde, I must dye, whereas I neuer dyd eny soch thinges, as these men haue maliciously inuented agaynst me. And ỳ LORDE herde hir voyce. For whẽ she was led forth to death, ỳ LORDE raised vp ỳ spirite of a yõge childe, whose name was Daniel, which cried wt a loude voice: I am clene frõ this bloude. Thẽ all ỳ people turned thẽ towarde him, & saide: What meane these wordes, ỳ thou hast spokẽ? Daniel stode in ỳ myddest of thẽ, & sayde: Are ye soch fooles (O ye childrẽ of Israel) ỳ ye cãnot discerne? Ye haue here condẽned a daughter of Israel vnto death, and knowe not the trueth wherfore: Go syt on iudgment agayne, for they haue spoken false witnesse agaynst her.

Wherfore the people turned agayne in all the haist. And the elders (that is, the principall heades) sayde vnto him: come sit downe here amonge vs, and shewe vs this matter, seynge God hath geuen the as greate honoure, as an elder. And Daniel sayde vnto them: Put these two asyde one from another and then shal I heare them. When they were put a sunder one from another, he called one of them, and sayde vnto him: O thou olde canckerde carle, that hast vsed thy wickednesse so longe: thine vngracious dedes which thou hast done afore, are now come to light. For thou hast geuen false iudgmentes, thou hast oppressed the innocent, and letten the giltie go fre, where as yet the LORDE saieth: The innocent and righteous se thou slaye not. Wel than, yf thou hast sene her, tel me, vnder what tre sawest thou them talkynge together? He answered: Vnder a Molbery tre. And Daniel sayde: very wel, Now thou leist euen vpon thine heade. Lo the messaunger of the LORDE hath receaued the sentence of him, to cut ỳ in two.

Then put he him asyde, and called for the other, and sayde vnto him: O thou sede of Canaan, but not of Juda: Fayrnesse hath disceaued the, and lust hath subuerted thine herte. Thus dealte ye afore with the daughters of Israel, and they (for feare) consented vnto you: but the daughter of Juda wolde not abyde youre wickednesse. Now tell me than, vnder what tre dideste thou take them speakinge together? He answered: vnder a pomgranate tre. Then sayde Daniel vnto him: very wel, now thou leyst also euen vpõ thine heade. The messaunger of the LORDE stondeth waytinge with the swerde, to cut the in two, and to slaye you both.

With that, all the whole multitude gaue a greate shoute, and praysed God, which allwaye delyuereth them ỳ put their trust in him. And they came vpon the two elders, (whom Daniel had conuicte with their owne mouth: that they had geuen false witnesse) and dealte with them, even likewyse as they wolde haue done with their neghboure: Yee they dyd accordinge to the lawe of Moses, and put them to death. Thus the innocent bloude was saued the same daye.

The story of Bel, which is the xiiij. Chapter of Daniel after the Latin.

A THere was at Babilon an ymage, called Bel: and there were spent vpon him euery daye, xij. cakes, xl. shepe, and sixe greate pottes of wine. Him dyd the kynge worshipe himself, and wente daylie to hono him: but Daniel worshiped his owne God. And the kynge sayde vnto him: Why dost not thou worshipe Bel? he answered and sayde: Because I maye not worshipe thinges, that be made wt hondes, but the lyuynge God, which made heauen and earth, and hath power vpon all flesh. The kynge sayde vnto him: thinkest thou not, ỳ Bel is a lyuynge God? Or seist thou not, how moch he eateth and drynketh euery daye? Daniel smyled, and sayde: O kynge, disceaue not thyself: This is but made of claye within, and of metall without, nether eateth he euer eny thinge.

B Then the kynge was wroth, and called for his prestes, and sayde vnto them: Yf ye tell me not who this is, that eateth vp these expenses, ye shal dye: But yf ye can certifie me, that Bel eateth them, then Daniel shall dye, for he hath spoken blasphemy agaynst Bel. And Daniel sayde vnto the kynge: let it so be, accordinge as thou hast sayde. The prestes of Bel were lxx. besyde their wyues and children. And the kynge wente with Daniel in to the temple of Bel. So Bels prestes sayde: Lo, we wil go out, & set thou ỳ meate there (O kynge) & poure in the wyne: then shutt the dore fast, and seale it with thine owne signet: and tomorow when thou commest in, yf thou fyndest not, that Bel hath eaten vp all, we wil suffre death: or els daniel, that hath lyed vpon vs. The prestes thought them sel nes sure ynough, for vnder ỳ altare they had made a preuy intraunce, & there were they in euer, and ate vp what there was.

So when they were gone forth, the kynge set meates before Bel. Now Daniel had cõmaunded his seruauntes to bringe ashes, and these he sifted thorow out all the temple, that the kynge might se. Then went they out, & sparre the dore, sealinge it with ỳ kynges signet, and so departed. In ỳ night came the prestes with their wyues and children (as they were wonte to do) and ate and dronke vp all. In the mornynge betymes at the breake of the daye, the kynge arose, & Daniel with him. And the kynge sayde: Daniel, are the seales whole yet? He answered: Yea (o kynge) they be whole. Now as soone as he had opened the dore, the kinge loked vnto ỳ altare, and cried with a loude voyce: Great art thou o Bel, and with the is no disceate. Then laughed Daniel, and helde the kynge, that he shulde not go in, and sayde: Behold the pauement, marcke well, whose footesteppes are these? The kynge sayde: I se the footesteppes of men, women and children.

Ther fore the kynge was angrie, and toke ỳ the prestes, with their wyues and children, & they shewed him ỳ preuy dores, where they came in, & ate vp soch thinges as were vpon ỳ altare. For the which cause ỳ kynge slewe them, & delyuered Bel in to Daniels power, which destroyed him and his temple.

And in that same place there was a greate dragon, which they of Babilon worshipped. And ỳ kynge sayde vnto Daniel: sayest thou, yt this is but a god of metall also: he liueth, he eateth & drinketh: so ỳ thou canst not saye, that he is no lyuinge God, therfore worshipe him. Daniel sayde vnto ỳ kinge: I worshipe the LORDE my God, he is ỳ truely lyuynge God: as for this, he is not the God of life. But gene me leaue (o kynge) & I shal destroye this dragon without swearde or staff. The kynge sayde: I gene ỳ leaue. Then Daniel toke pitch, fatte and hairie woll, and did seyth them together, and made lompes ther of: this he put in ỳ Dragõs mouth, and so ỳ dragon barst in sonder: and Daniel sayde: lo, there is he whom ye worshipped.

When they of Babylon herde that, they toke greate indignacion, and gathered them togeather agaynst the kynge, sayenge: The kynge is become a Jewe also, he hath destroyed Bel, he hath slayne ỳ Dragon, and put the prestes to death. So they came to ỳ kynge, & sayde: let vs haue Daniel, or els we wil destroye the and thine house.

Now whan ỳ kynge sawe, that they russhed in so sore vpon him, & that necessite constrained him, he deliuered Daniel vnto them: which cast him in to the lyons denne, where he was sixe dayes. In the denne there were seuen lyons, and they had geuen them euery daye two bodies and two shepe: which then were not geue them, that they might deuoure Daniel.

There was in Jewry a prophet called Abacuc, which had made potage, and broken bred in a depe platter, and was goinge into the felde, for to bringe it to ỳ mowers. But the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto Abacuc: go cary the meate that thou hast in to Babilon, vnto Daniel, which is in ỳ lyons denne. And Abacuc sayde: LORDE, I neuer sawe Babilon: and as for the denne, I knowe it not. Then the angel of the LORDE toke him by the toppe, and bare him by the hayre of the heade, and (thorow a mightie wynde) set him in Babilon vpon the denne. And Abacuc cried, sayenge: O Daniel thou seruaunt of God, haue, take the breakfast, ỳ God hath sent ỳ. And Daniel saide: O God, hast thou thought vpon me: wel, thou neuer forsakest them that loue the. So Daniel arose, & ate: and the angel of the LORDE set Abacuc in his owne place agayne immediatly.

Upon the seuenth daye, the kynge wente to bewepe Daniel: and whan he came to the denne, he loked in: and beholde, Daniel sat in the myddest of the lyons. Then cried ỳ kynge with a loude voyce, sayenge: Greate art thou, o LORDE God of Daniel: & he drewe him out of the denne. As for those that were ỳ cause of his destruccio, he dyd cast thē into the denne, and they were deuoured in a moment before his face.

After this, wrote the kynge vnto all people, kynredes and tunges, that dwelt in all countrees, sayenge: peace be multiplied with you. My commaundement is, in all the dominyon of my realme: that men feare and stonde in awe of Daniels God, for he is the lyuynge God, which endureth euer: his kyngdome abydeth vncorrupte, and his power is euerlastinge. It is he that can delyuer and saue: he doth wonders and marueloues workes in heauen and in earth, for he hath saued Daniel from the power of the Lyons.

Chap. XVI. The faithfulnes of Symō & his sonnes. Ptolomy slayeth them disceatfully, and betrayeth the londe.

The first Chapter.

AFter that Alexander the sonne of Philippe, kynge of Macedonia wente forth of the londe of Cethim, and slewe Darius kynge of the Persiās and Meedes: It happened, that he toke greate warres in honde, wanne very many stronge cities, and slew many kinges of ẏ earth: goinge thorow to ẏ endes of the worlde, and gettinge many spoyles of the people: In so moch, ẏ the worlde stode in greate awe of him, & therfore was udit. 1.b he proude in his herte. Now whē he had gathered a mightie strōge hoost, & subdued ẏ lōdes and people with their prynces, so that they became tributaries vnto hī: he fell sick. And whē he perceaued that he must nedes die, he called for his noble estates (which had bene brought vp with him of childre) & parpan. 7.a ted his kyngdome amonge them, whyle he nds. b was yet alyue. So Alexāder raygned xij. yeare, and then dyed.

After his death fell the kyngdome vnto his prynces, and they optayned it euery one in his rowme, and caused them selues to be crowned as kynges: and so dyd their childrē after them many yeares, & moch wickednesse increaced in the worlde. Out of these came ẏ vngracious rote, noble Antiochus ẏ sonne .Mac. 8.a of Antiochus the kynge (which had bene a pledge at Rome) & he raigned in ẏ Cxxxvij. yeare of the raigne of the Grekes.

BIn those dayes wēte there out of Jsrael wicked men, which moued moch people wꝺ deut. 7.a their coūcel, sayēge: Let vs go & make a udic. 2.a couenaunt with the Heithen, ẏ are rounde aboute vs: for sence we departed from them, ere. 44.c we haue had moch sorow. So this deuyce pleased them well, and certayne of ẏ people toke vpon thē for to go vnto ẏ kynge, which gaue them licence to do after the ordinaūce of the Heithen. Then set they vp an open sole (at Jerusalem) of the lawes of the Heithē, and were nomore circumcised: but forsoke ẏ holy Testamente, and ioyned them selues to ẏ Heithē, & were cleane solde to do myschefe.

So when Antiochus began to be mighty in his kyngdome, he wente aboute to optayne ẏ londe of Egipte also, that he might haue the dominion of two realmes. Upon this entred he in to Egipte with a stronge hoost, with charettes, elephantes, horsmen & a greate nombre of shippes, and began to warre agaynst Ptolomy the kynge of Egipte. But Ptolomy was afrayed of him, and fled: and many of his people were wounded to death. Thus Antiochus wāne many strōge cities, and toke awaye great good out of the londe of Egipte.

And after that Antiochus had smytten Egipte, he turned agayne in the Cxliij. yeare & wente toward Jsrael, and came vp to Jerusalem with a mightie people: and entred proudly into ẏ Sanctuary, and toke awaye the golden altare, the candilsticke and all ẏ ornamētes therof: the table of the shewbred the pouringe vessel, the chargers, the golden spones, the vale, the crownes and golden apparel of the temple, and brake downe all. He toke also the syluer and golde, the precious Jewels, and the secrete treasures that he fōde. And when he had taken awaye all together, caused a greate murthur of men, and so fulfilled his malicious pryde, he departed in to his owne londe.

Thus there arose greate heuinesse and misery in all the londe of Jsrael. The prynces and the elders of the people mourned, the yōge men and the maydens were defyled, and the fayre beutye of women was chaunged: the brydegrome and the bryde toke them to mournynge: the londe and those that dwelt therin, was moued: for all the house of Jacob was brought to confucion.

After two yeares the kynge sent his chefe treasurer vnto the cities of Juda, which came to Jerusalem with a greate multitude of people, speakinge peaceable wordes vnto the, but all was disceate: for when they had geuen him credence, he fell sodenly vpon the cite, and smote it sore, and destroyed moch people of Israel. And when he had spoyled the cite, he set fyre on it, castinge downe houses and walles on euery syde. The women & their children toke they captiue, and led awaye their catell. Then buylded they the castel of Dauid with a greate and thicke wall, and with mightie towres, & made it a stronge holde for them. Besyde all this they sett wicked people and vngodly men to kepe it, stoared it with weapens and vytales: gathered the goodes of Jerusalem, and layed the vp there: thus became it a theuysh castell.

And this was done to laye waite for the people that wente in to the Sanctuary, and for the cruell destruccion of Israel. Thus they shed innocent bloude on euery syde of ỹ Sanctuary, and defyled it: In so moch that the citesyns were fayne to departe, and the cite became an habitacion of straungers, beynge desolate of hir owne sede, for hir owne natyues were fayne to leaue her. Hir Sanctuary was clene waisted, hir holy dayes were turned in to mournynge, hir Sabbathes were had in derision, and hir hono' brought to naught. Loke how greate hir glory was afore, so greate was hir confucion, and hir ioye turned in to sorow.

Antiochus also the kynge sent out a commission vnto all his kyngdome, that all the people shulde be one. Then they left euery man his lawe, and all the heithen agreed to the cõmaundement of kynge Antiochus: Yee many of the Israelites consented there vnto, offerynge vnto Idols, and defylinge the Sabbath. So the kynge Antiochus sent his messaungers with his commission vnto Jerusalem, and to all ỹ cities of Juda: that they shulde folowe ỹ lawes of the heithẽ, and forbad ether burntofferynge, meatofferynge or peaceofferynge to be made in the temple of God, & that there shulde no Sabbath ner hye feast daye be kepte: but commaunded, that the Sanctuary and the holy people of Israel shulde be defyled.

He commaunded also that there shulde be set vp other altares, temples and Idols: to offre vp swynes flesh and other vnclene beastes: that men shulde leaue their children vncircumcised, to defyle their soules with all maner of vnclennesse & abhominacions: that they might so forget the lawe, and chaũge all the holy ordinaunces of God: and that who so euer wolde not do accordynge to the commaundement of kynge Antiochus, shulde suffre death. In like maner commaunded he thorow out all his realme, and sett rulers ouer the people, for to compell them to do these thynges, commaundinge the cities of Juda to do sacrifice vnto Idols.

Then wente the people vnto the heithen by heapes, forsoke the lawe of the LORDE, and committed moch euell in the londe: yee and chaced out the secrete Israelites, which had hyd them selues in corners and preuy places. The xv. daye of the moneth Casleu, in the Cxlv. yeare, set kynge Antiochus an abhominable Idol of desolacion vpon the altare of God, and they buylded altares thorow out all the cities of Juda on euery syde, before the dores of the houses, and in the stretes: where they brent incense, and dyd sacrifyce. And as for the bokes of the lawe of God, they brent them in the fyre, and rente them in peces. What so euer he was that had a boke of the Testament of the LORDE founde by hym, yee who so euer endeuored himself to kepe the lawe of the LORDE, the kynges commaundement was, ỹ they shulde put him to death. And thorow his auctorite they executed these thinges euery moneth, vpon the people of Israel that were founde in the cities.

The fyue and twentye daye of the moneth, what tyme as they dyd sacrifice vpon the altare (which stode in the steade of the altare of the LORDE) accordinge to the commaundement of kynge Antiochus, they put certayne women to death, which had caused their children to be circumcised: Not only that, but they hanged vp the children by the neckes thorow out all their howses, and slewe the circumcisers of them.

Yet were there many of the people of Israel, which determed in them selues, that they wolde not eate vncleane thinges: but chose rather to suffre death, then to be defyled with vncleane meates. So because they wolde not breake the blessed lawe of God, they were cruelly slayne. And this greate ty ranny increased very sore vpon the people of Israel.

The II. Chapter.

B ned very sore.

Then came the men thither which were sent of kynge Antiochus, to compell soch as were fled in to the cite of Modin, for to do sa crifice and to burne incense vnto Idols, and to forsake the lawe of God. So, many of the people of Israel consented and enclyned vnto them, but Matathias and his sonnes remayned stedfast. Then spake the commissioners of kynge Antiochus, & sayde vnto Ma tathias: Thou art a noble man, of hye reputacion and greate in this cite, hauinge fayre children and brethren. Come thou therfore first, and fulfill the kynges commaundemēt, like as all the heithen haue done, yee and ỳ men of Juda, and soch as remayne at Jeru salem: so shalt thou and thy children be in ỳ kynges fauoure, and enriched with golde, syluer and greate rewardes.

Matathias answered, and spake with a loude voyce: Though all nacions obeye the kynge Antiochus, and fall awaie euery man frō kepynge ỳ lawe of their fathers: though they consente to his commaundementes, yet wil I & my sonnes and my brethren, not fall from the lawe oure fathers. God forbyd we shulde: that were not good for vs, that we shulde forsake the lawe and ordinaunces of God, and to agre vnto the commaundement of kynge Antiochus. Therfore we will do no soch sacrifice, nether breake the statutes of ō lawe, to go another waye. And whē he had spoken these wordes, there came one of the Jewes, which openly in the sighe of all, dyd sacrifice vnto the Idols vpon the aulter in the cite of Modin, accordinge to the kynges commaundement.

When Matathias sawe this, it grened him at the herte, so that his raynes shoke withall, and his wrath kindled for very za-le of the lawe. With that he gaue a skippe forth, and kylled the Jew beside the aulter.
Yee and slewe ỳ kynges commissioner, that cōpelled him to do sacrifice, & destroyed the aulter at the same time: soch a zele had he vn to the lawe of God, like as Phinees dyd vnto Zambri the sonne of Salomi. And Matathias cried with a loude voyce thorow ỳ cy-te, sayenge: Who so is feruent in the lawe, & wil kepe ỳ couenaunt, let him folowe me. So he and his sonnes fled in to the mountaynes and left all that euer they had in ỳ cite. Many other godly men also departed in to the wylderneſſe with their children, their wyues and their catell, and remayned there: for the tyranny increaced sō sore vpon them.

Now when the kynges seruauntes and the hooſt, which was at Jerusalem in the cite of Dauid herde, that certayne mē had broken the kynges commaundement and were gone their waye to the wylderneſſe into secrete places, and that there were many departed after them: they folowed vpon them to fight agaynst them in the Sabbath daye, and sayde: Wyll ye yet rebell? Get you hens & do the commaundement of kynge Anio-chus, and ye shall lyue. They answered: We wil not go forth, nether wil we do the kynges cōmaundement, to defyle ỳ Sabbath daye.
Then beganne they to fight agaynst them neuertheleſſe they gaue them none other an-swere, nether cast they one stone at them, ne made fast their preuy places, but sayde: We wil dye all in oure innocency, heaven & earth shal testifie with vs, that ye put vs to death wrongeously. Thus they fought agaynst them vpon the Sabbath, & slewe both men and catell, their wyues and their children, to the nombre of a thousande people.

When Matathias and his frendes herde this, they mourned for them right sore, and sayde one to another: Nō so be that we all do as oure brethrē haue done, and fight ner for oure lyues & for oure lawes agaynst the hea

then: then shall they the sooner rote vs out of the earth. So they cõcluded amonge thẽ selues at the same tyme, sayenge: What so euer he be that cõmeth to make battayll w vs vpon the Sabbath daye, we wyll fight agaynst him, & not dye all, as o brethren ỹ were murthured so haynously. Vpõ this came the Synagoge of the Jewes vnto thẽ: stronge men of Jsrael, all soch as were feruent in the lawe. And all they that were fled for persecucion, came to helpe them, and to stonde by them: In so moch that they gathered an hoost of men, and slewe the wicked doers in their gelousy, and the vngodly men in their wrath. Some of the wicked fled vnto the Heithen, and escaped.

Thus Matathias and his frendes wente aboute, and destroyed the aulters, and circumcided the children, that had not yet receaued circumcision: as many as they founde within ỹ coostes of Jsrael: and followed mightely vpon the children of pryde, and this acte prospered in their hondes: In so moch, that they kepte the lawe agaynst the power of the Gentiles and the kynges, and gaue not ouer their dominion vnto wicked doers.

§ After this when the tyme drew on fast, that Matathias shulde dye, he sayde vnto his sonnes: Now is pryde and persecucion increased, now is the tyme of destruccion and wrathfull displeasure: Wherfore (o my sonnes) be ye feruent in the lawe, and ioperde youre lyues for the Testament of the fathers: call to remembraunce what actes our fathers dyd in their tyme, so shall ye receaue greate honoure and an euerlastinge name.

Remembre Abraham, was not he founde faithfull in tentacion, and it was reckened vnto him for righteousnesse? Joseph in tyme of his trouble kepte the commaundement, and was made a lorde of Egipte. phinees oure father was so feruent for the honoure of God, that he optayned the couenaũt of an euerlastinge presthode. Josue for fulfillinge the worde of God, was made the captayne of Jsrael. Caleb bare recorde before the cõgregacion, and receaued an heretage. Dauid also in his mercifull kyndnesse, optayned the trone of an euerlastinge kyngdome. Elias beynge gelous and feruent in the lawe, was taken vp in to heauẽ. Hananias, Asarias and Misael remayned stedfast in faith, and were delyuered out of the fyre. In like maner Daniel beynge vngiltie, was saued from the mouth of the Lyons.

And thus ye maye considre thorow out all ages sens the worlde begamne, that who so euer put their trust in God, were not ouer come. Feare not ye then the wordes of an vngodly man, for his glory is but donge and wormes: to daye is he set vp, and to morow is he gone: for he is turned in to earth, and his memoriall is come to naught. Wherfore (o my sonnes) take good hertes vnto you, and quyte youre selues like men in the lawe: for yf ye do the thinges that are commaunded you in the lawe of the LORDE youre God, ye shal optaine greate honoure therin.

And beholde, Jknowe that youre brother Symon is a man of wyßdome: se that ye geue eare vnto him allwaye, he shall be a father vnto you. As for Judas Machabeus, he hath euer bene mightie and ströge from his youth vp: let him be youre captayne, and ordre the battayll of ỹ people: Thus shall ye bringe vnto you all those that fauoure the lawe, and se that ye auenge the wronge of youre people, and recompence the Heithen agayne, and applie youre selues whole to the commaundement of the lawe. So he gaue them his blessinge, and was layed by his fathers: and dyed in the Clvj, yeare at Modin, where his sonnes buried him in his fathers sepulcre, & all Jsrael made greate lamentacion for him.

The III. Chapter.

Then stode vp Judas Machabeus in his fathers steade, and all his brethrẽ helped him: and so dyd all they that helde with his father, and fought with cherefulnesse for Jsrael. So Judas gat his people greate honoure: He put on a brest plate as a giaunte, and arayed him self with his harnesse, and defended the hoost with his swearde. In his actes he was like a lyon, & as a lyons whelpe roaringe at his praye. He was an enemie to the wicked, and hũted them out: and brent vp those, that vexed his people: So that his enemies fled for feare of him, and all the workers of vngodlynes were put to trouble: soch lucke and prosperite was in his honde. This greued dyuerse kynges, but Jacob was greatly reioysed thorow his actes, and he gat him self a greate name for euer.

He wente thorow the cities of Juda, destroyenge the vngodly out of them, turnynge awaye the wrath from Jsrael, and receauynge soch as were oppressed: and the fame of him wente vnto the vttemost parte of ỹ earth. Then Appollonius (a prynce of Syria) gathered a mightie greate hooſt of the heithen & out of Samaria, to fight agaynſt Iſrael. Which when Judas perceaued, he wente forth to mete him, fought with him, ſlewe him, and a greate multitude with him: the remnaunte fled, and he toke their ſubſtaunce. Judas alſo toke Appollonius owne ſwearde, and fought wt it all his life longe.

B Now when Seron (another prynce of Syria) herde ſaye, that Judas had gathered vnto him the congregacion and church of the faithfull, he ſayde: I will get me a name and a prayſe thorow out the realme: for I will go fight with Judas and them that are with him, as many as haue deſpiſed the kynges commaundement. So he made him ready, and there wente with him a greate mightie hooſt of the vngodly, to ſtonde by him, and to be auenged of the childrē of Iſrael. And when they came nye vnto Bethoron, Judas wente forth agaynſt them with a ſmall company. And when his people ſawe ſoch a greate hooſt before thē, they ſayde vnto Judas: How are we able (beynge ſo fewe) to fight agaynſt ſo greate a multitude and ſo ſtronge: ſeinge we be ſo weery, and haue faſted all this daye?

Re.14.a But Judas ſayde: It is a ſmall matter for many to be ouercome with fewe: Nether is no difference to the God of heauen, to delyuer by a greate multitude or by a ſmall par.25.b company: for the victory of the battell ſtondeth not in the multitude of the hooſt, but

C the ſtrength commeth from heauen. Behold, they come agaynſt vs with a preſumptuous and proude multitude: to deſtroye vs, oure wyues and oure childrē, and to robbe vs. But we will fight for oure lyues and for oure lawes, and the LORDE himſelf ſhall deſtroye thē before oure face: therfore be not ye afrayed of them.

As ſoone as he had ſpoken theſe wordes, he leapte ſodenly vpon thē. Thus was Seron ſmytten, and his hooſt put to flight. And Judas folowed vpon them beyonde Bethoron vnto the playne felde: where there were ſlayne eight hundreth men of them, and the reſidue fled in to the londe of the Philiſtynes. Then all the heithen on every ſyde were afrayed for Judas and his brethren: ſo that the rumoure of him came vnto the kynges eares, for all the Gentiles conde tell of the warres of Judas.

D So whan kynge Antiochus herde theſe tidinges, he was angrie in his mynde: wherfore he ſente forth and gathered an hooſt of his whole realme, very ſtronge armies: and opened his treaſury, and gaue his hooſt a yeares wagies in honde, commaundynge them to be ready at all tymes.

Neuertheleſſe when he ſawe, that there was not moneye ynough in his treaſuries, and that thorow the diſcorde and perſecucion, which he made in ye londe (to put downe ye lawes that had bene of olde tyme) his cuſtomes and tributes of the londe were minißhed: he feared that he was not able for to beare the coſtes and charges eny lenger, ner to haue ſoch giftes, to geue ſo liberally as he dyd afore, more then the kynges that were before him.

Wherfore he was heuy in his mynde, and thought to go in to Perſides, for to take tributes of ye londe, and ſo to gather moch moneye. So he left Lyſias (a noble man of the kynges blonde) to ouerſee the kynges buſynneſſes, from the water Euphrates vnto the borders of Egipte: and to kepe well his ſonne Antiochus, till he came agayne.

Moreouer, he gaue him half of his hooſt and elephantes, committed vnto him euerythinge of his mynde, concernynge thoſe which dwelt in Juda, and Jeruſalem: that he ſhulde ſende out an army agaynſt them, to deſtroye and to rote out the power of Iſrael and the remnaunt of Jeruſalem: to put out their memoriall from that place, to ſet ſtraungers for to inhabit all their quarters, and to parte their londe amōge them. Thus the kynge toke the other parte of the hooſt, and departed from Antioch (a cite of his realme) ouer the water of Euphrates, in the hundreth and xlvij. yeare, and wente thorow the hye countrees.

And Lyſias choſe vnto him Ptolomy the ſonne of Dorimimus, Nycanor and Gorgias mightie men, & the kynges frendes. Theſe he ſent with xl. thouſande fote men and vij. thouſande horſmen, for to go in to ye londe of Juda, and to deſtroye it, as the kyng commaunded. So they wente forth with all their power, and came to Emmaus in to the playne felde. When the marchaūtes herde the rumoure of them, they and their seruauntes toke very moch siluer and golde, for to bye the children of Israel to be their bondemen. There came vnto them also yet moo men of warre on euery syde, out of Syria & the from the Palestynes.

f Now when Judas and his brethrē sawe that trouble increased, and that the hooste drewe nye vnto their borders: considerynge ỹ kynges wordes which he commaunded vnto the people: namely, that they shulde vtterly waist and destroye them: They sayde one to another: Let vs redresse the decaye of oure people, let vs fight for oure folke and for oure Sanctuary. Then the congregacion were soone ready gathered to fight, to praie and to make supplicacion vnto God for mercy and grace.

d As for Jerusalem, it laye voyde, and was as it had bene a wylderneſſe. There wente no man in nor out at it, and the Sanctuary was troden downe. The aleauntes kepte the castell, there was the habitacion of the heithen. The myrth of Jacob was taken awaye, the pype & the harpe was gone from amonge them.

The Israelites gathered them together, and came to Maspha before Jerusalem: for in Maspha was the place where they prayed afore tyme. So they fasted that daye, and put sackclothes vpō them, cast aßshes vpon their heades, rente their clothes, and layde forth the bokes of the lawe (wherout ỹ heithen sought the lickneſſe of their ymages) and brought the prestes ornamentes, the firstlinges and the Tythes. They set there also the abstreyners (which had fulfilled their dayes) before God, and cried with a loude voyce towarde heauen, sayenge: what shal we do with these? and whither shall we carry them awaye?

G Forthy Sanctuary is troden downe and defyled, thy prestes are come to heyneſſe and dishonoure: and beholde, the heithen are come together for to destroye vs. Thou knowest what thinges they ymagyn againſt vs. How maye we stonde before them, except thou (o God) be oure helpe?

They blewe out the trompettes also with a loude voyce. Then Judas ordened captaynes ouer the people: ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten. But as for soch as buylded them houses, maried wyues, planted them vynyardes, and those that were fearfull: he commaunded them euery man to go home, acordinge to ỹ lawe. So the hooste remoued, and pitched vpon the South syde of Emmaus.

Deu. 20 Iudic. 7

And Judas sayde: Arme youre selues, be stronge (o my children) make you ready agaynst tomorow in the mornynge, that ye maye fight with these people, which are agreed together to destroye vs & oure Sanctuary. Better is it for vs to dye in battayll, then to se oure people and oure Sanctuary in soch a miserable case. Nevertheleſſe, as ỹ will is in heauen, so be it.

The IIII. Chapter.

A Ioseph. ubi supr

Then toke Gorgias fyue thousande men of fote, and a thousande of the best horsmen: and remoued by night, to come nye where ỹ Jewes hooste laye, and so to slaye them sodenly. Now the men that kepte the castell, were the cōueyers of them. Then arose Judas to smyte the chefe and pryncipall of the kinges hooste at Emmaus, for the army was not yet come together. In the meane season came Gorgias by night in to Judas tentes: & when he founde no man there, he sought them in the mountaynes, and thought they had bene fled awaye because of him. But whē it was daie, Judas shewed him self in ỹ felde with thre thousande men only, which had nether harneſſe ner swerdes to their myndes.

But on the other syde, they sawe that the heithen were mightie and wel harneſſed, and their horsmen aboute them, and all these wel experte in fettes of warre. Then sayde Judas to ỹ men that were with him: Feare not ye the multitude of them, be not afrayed of their violente runnynge: remembre how oure fathers were delyuered in the reed see, when Pharao threatned them with a greate hooste. Euen so let vs also crie now towarde heauen: and the LORDE shall haue mercy vpon vs, and remembre the couenaunt of oure fathers, yee and destroye this hoost before oure face this daye: And all Heithen shal knowe, that it is God himself, which delyvereth and saveth Israel.

Then the Heithen lift vp their eyes: and when they sawe that they were commynge agaynst them, they wente out of their tentes in to the battayll: and they that were wt Judas, blewe vp the trompettes. So they Mac.8.d buckled together, and the Heithen were discomfited, and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hynmost of them were slayne. For they folowed vpon them vnto Assaremoth, and in to the feldes of Idumea towarde Azot and Jamnia: so that there were slayne of them vpon a thre thousande men. So Judas turned agayne with his hoost, and sayde vnto the people: Be not gredy of ỹ spoyles, we have yet a battayll to fight: for Gorgias wt his hoost are here by vs in the mountaynes, but stonde ye fast agaynst oure enemies, and ouercome them: then maye ye safely take the spoyles.

C As Judas was speakynge these wordes, there apeared one parte of them vpon the mount. But when Gorgias sawe that they of his partie were fled, and the tentes brent vp (for by the smoke they might vnderstonde what was done) they perceavynge this, were very sore afrayed: and when they sawe also that Judas and his hoost were in ỹ felde ready to stryke battayll, they fled everychone in to the londe of the Heithen.

So Judas turned agayne to spoyle the tentes, where they gat moch golde and sylver, precious stones, purple wt greate riches. Thus they wente home, and sunge a psalme udit. 13.c of thankesgevynge and praysed God in heaven: for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for ever: And so Israel had a greate victory in that daye.

Now all the Heithen that escaped, came and tolde Lysias every thinge as it happened. Wherfore Lysias was sore afrayed and greved in his mynde, because Israel had not gotte soch myssfortune as he wolde they
Mac. 3.e shulde, nether as the kynge commaunded. The nexte yeare folowinge, gathered Lysias thre score thousande chosen men of fote, and fyve thousande horsmen, to fight agaynst them.

D So they came in to Jewry, and pitched their tentes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynst them with ten thousande men. And when he sawe so greate mightie an hoost, he made his prayer and sayde: Blessed be thou (o savioure of Israel) which did
Re.7.g beft destroye the violent power of the giaunte, in the honde of thy servaunt David, and gavest the hoost of the Heithē in to the honde of Jonathas (the sonne of Saul) and of his weapen bearer. 1.Re

Put this hoost now in to the honde of ỹ people of Israel, and let them be confounded in their multitude and horsmen. Make them afrayed, wt discomforth the boldnes of their strength, ỹ they maye be moved thorow their destruccion. Caste them downe thorow the swearde of thy lovers, then shal all they that knowe thy name, prayse the with thankesgevynge.

So they stroke the batell, and there were slayne of Lysias hoost, fyve thousande men. Then Lysias seynge the discomfetynge of his men, and the manlynesse of the Jewes, how they were ready, ether to lyve or to dye like men: he wente vnto Antioche and chose out men of warre: that when they were gathered together, they might come agayne in to Jewry. Then sayde Judas and his brethren: beholde, oure enemies are discomfited: Let vs now go vp, to clēse and to repayre the Sanctuary.

Vpon this, all the hoost gathered them g together, and wente vp vnto mount Sion. a
Now when they sawe the Sanctuary laied waist, the aulter defyled, the dores brent vp, the shrubbes growinge in the courtes, like as in a wod or vpon mountaynes, yee and that the prestes Celles were broken downe: They rente their clothes, made greate lamentacion, caste aßshes vpon their heades, fell downe flat to the grounde, made a greate noyse with the trompettes, and cried towarde heauen.

Then Judas apoynted certayne men to fight agaynst those which were in the castel, till they had clensed the Sanctuary. So he chose prestes ỹ were vndefyled, soch as had pleasure in the lawe of God: and they clensed the Sanctuary, wt bare out the defyled stones in to an vncleane place. And for so moch as the aulter of burnofferynges was vnhalowed, he toke aduysement, what he might do withall: so he thought it was best to destroye it (lest it shulde happen to do them eny shame) for the Heithen had defyled it, & therfore they brake it downe. As for the stones, they layed them vp vpon the mountayne by the house in a conuenient place: till there came a prophet to shewe, what shulde be done with them.

So they toke whole stones acordinge to the lawe, and buylded a new aulter soch one as was before, and made vp the Sanctuary within and without, and halowed the courtes. They made new ornamentes, & brought ỹ candilsticke, the aulter of incense, and the table into the temple. The incense layed they vpon the aulter, & lighted the lampes which were vpon the candilsticke, that they might burne in the temple. They set the shewbred vpon the table, and hanged vp the vale, and set vp ỹ temple, as it was afore. And vpon the xxv. daye of the ix. moneth (which is called the moneth of Caslew) in the C. xlviij. yeare: they rose vp by tymes in the mornynge for to do sacrifice (acordinge to the lawe) vpon the new burntoffrynge aulter, that they had made: after the tyme and season that ỹ Heithen had defyled it. The same daye was it set vp agayne, with songes pipes, harpes and cymbales.

And all the people fell vpon their faces, worshippynge and thankynge the God of heaven, which had geuen them the victory. So they kepte the dedicacion of the aulter viij. dayes, offerynge burntsacrifices and thankofferinges with gladnesse. They deckt the temple also with crownes and shyldes of golde, and halowed the portes and celles, and hanged dores vpon them. Thus was there very greate gladnes amonge the people, because the blasphemy of the Heithē was put awaye.

So Judas and his brethren with the whole cōgregacion of Israel, ordened, that the tyme of the dedicacion of ỹ aulter shulde be kepte in his season from yeare to yeare, by the space of viij. dayes, from the xxv. daye of the moneth Caslew: yee and that with myrth and gladnesse.

And at the same tyme buylded they vp ỹ mount Sion with hye walles and stronge towres rounde aboute: lest ỹ Gentiles shulde come and treade it downe, as they dyd afore. Therfore Judas set men of warre in it, to kepe it: and made it stronge, for to defende Bethsura: that the people might haue a refuge agaynst the Edomites.

The V. Chapter.

A It happened also that when ỹ Heithen rounde aboute herde, how that the aulter and the Sanctuary were set vp in their olde estate: it displeased them very sore, wherfore they thought to destroye the generacion of Jacob that was amonge them: Insomoch that they beganne to slaye and to persecute certayne of ỹ people. Then Judas fought against the children of Esau in Idumea, and agaynst those which were at Arabathane (for they dwelt rounde aboute ỹ Israelites) where he slewe & spoyled a greate multitude of thē. He thought also vpon the malice and vnfaithfulnes of the children of Bean, how they were a snare and stoppe vnto ỹ people, and how they layed waite for them in the hie waye: wherfore he shut them vp in to towers, and came vnto them, condemned them, and brent vp their towres, with all that were in them.

Afterwarde wente he agaynst the children of Ammon, wherof he founde a mighty power and a greate multitude of people, with Tymothy their captayne. So he stroke many battayls with them, which were distroyed before him. And when he had slayne them, he wanne Gazer the cite, with the townes belonginge therto, and so turned agayne in to Jewry. The Heithen also in Galaad gathered them together, agaynst the Israelites that were in their quarters, to slaye them: but they fled to the castel of Datheman, and sent letters vnto Judas and his brethren, sayenge: The Heithen are gathered agaynst vs on euery syde, to destroye vs, and now they make thē for to come and laye sege to ỹ castel, whervnto we are fled, & Timothy is the captayne of their hooste: come therfore, and delyuer vs out of their hondes: for there is a greate multitude of vs slayne all ready. Yee and oure brethren that were at Tubin, are slayne and destroyed (welnye a thousande men) and their wyues, their children and their goodes haue the enemies led awaye captyue.

Whyle these letters were yet a readinge, beholde, there came other messangers from Galilee, with rente clothes: which tolde euen the same tydinges, and sayde, that they of Ptolomais, of Tirus and of Sidon were gathered agaynst them, and that all Galilee was fylled with enemies to destroye Israel. When Judas and ỹ people herde this, they came together (a greate congregacion) to deuyse, what they might do for their brethren, that were in trouble and beseged of their enemies. And Judas sayde vnto Symon his brother: chose ye out certayne men, and go delyuer thy brethren in Galilee: As forme and my brother Jonathas, we wyl go in to Galaadithim. So he left Josephus ye sonne of Zachary, and Asarias, to be captaynes of the people and to kepe the remnaunt of the hoost in Jewry, & commaunded them, sayenge: Take the ouersight of this people, and se that ye make no warre agaynst the heithen, vntill the tyme that we come agayne. And vnto Simon he gaue three thousande men for to go into Galilee, but Judas himself had eight thousande in to Galaadithim.

C Then wente Symon in to Galilee, and stroke dyuerse batels wt the heithen: whom he discomfited, and folowed vpon them vnto the porte of Ptolomais. And there were slayne of the heithen allmost iij. thousande men. So he toke the spoyles of them, and caried awaye the Israelites (that were in Galilee and Arbatis) with their wyues, their children and all that they had, and brought them in to Jewry with greate gladnesse. Judas Machabeus also and his brother Jonathas, wente ouer Jordane, and trauayled iij. dayes iourney in the wylderneesse: Where the Nebuthees met them, and receaued them louyngly, and tolde thē euery thinge that had happened vnto their brethren in Galaadithim, and how that many of them were beseged in Barasa, Bosor, Alimis, Casphor, Mageth and Carnaim (all these are stronge walled and mightie greate cities) and ye they were kepte in other cities of Galaad also: and tomorow they are apoynted to bringe their hoost vnto these cities, to take them and to wynne them in one daye.

So Judas and his hoost turned in all the haist in the wilderneesse towarde Bosor, and wanne the cite, slewe all the males with the swearde, toke all their goodes, and set fyre vpon the cite. And in the night they toke their iourneye from thence, and came to the castell. And by tymes in the mornynge when they loked vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearynge laders and other instrumētes of warre, to take the castell and to ouercome them.

When Judas sawe that the battayll beganne, and that the noyse therof wente vp and range in to the heauen, and that there was so greate a crie in the cite: he sayde vnto his hoost: fight this daye for youre brethren. And so came behynde their enemies in thre companies, and blewe vp the trompettes, and cried in their prayer to God.

But as soone as Tymothis hoost perceaued that Machabeus was there, they fled from him, and ye other slewe them downe right sore: so that there were kylled of them that same daye, allmost eighte thousande men. Then departed Judas vnto Maspha, layed sege vnto it and wanne it, slewe all the males in it, spoyled it, and set fyre vpon it. From thence wente he and toke Casbon, Mageth, Bosor and the other cities in Galaad.

hoost, which pitched their tentes before Raphon beyonde the water. Judas sente to spye the hoost, and they brought him worde agayne, sayenge: All the heithen that be rounde aboute vs, are gathered vnto him, and the hoost is very greate: Yee they have hyred the Arabians to helpe them, & haue pitched their tentes beyonde the water, and are redy to come and fight agaynst the. So Judas wente on to mete them.

And Timothy sayde vnto the captaynes of his hoost: when Judas and his hoost come nye the ryuer: yf he go ouer first, we shall not be able to withstonde him: for why, he wil be to stronge for vs. But yf he darre not come ouer, so that he pitch his tente beyonde the water: then will we go ouer, for we shalbe stronge ynough agaynst him. Now as soone as Judas came to the ryuer, he appoynted certayne scrybes of the people, and commaunded them, sayenge: se that ye leaue none behynde vpon this syde of ye ryuer, but let euery man come to the battayll. So he wente first ouer vnto them, and his people after him.

And all the heithen were discomfited before him, and let their weapens fall, and ranne in to the temple that was at Carnaim. Which cite Judas wanne, and brent the temple with all ye were in it: So was Carnaim subdued, and might not withstode Judas. Then Judas gathered all the Israelites that were in Galaadithim, from ye least vnto the most, with their wyues and their children (a very greate hoost) for to come in to the londe of Juda.

So they came vnto Ephron, which was E a mightie, greate and stronge cite, and laye in their waye. For they coude not go by it, neither of the right honde ner of the left, but must go thorow it. Neuertheleesse they that were in the cite, wolde not let them go thorow, but walled vp the portes with stones.

And Judas sent vnto thē with peaceable wordes, sayenge: Let vs passe thorow youre londe, that we maye go in to oure owne cōtre: there shal no body do you harme, we wil but only go thorow. But they wolde not let them in.

Wherfore Judas commaunded a proclamacion to be made thorow out the hoost, that every man shulde kepe his ordre: and so they dyd their best like valeaunt men.

And Judas beseged the cite all that daie and all that nighte, and so wanne it: where they slewe as many as were males, and destroyed the cite, and spoyled it, and wēte thorow all the cite ouer them that were slayne. Then wente they ouer Jordane in to the playne felde before Bethsan. And Judas helped those forwarde that came behynde, and gaue the people good exortacion all ỳ waye thorow, till they were come in to the londe of Juda. Thus they wente vp vnto the mount Sion, where they offred with myrth and thankesgeuynge: because there were none of them slayne, but came home agayne peaceably.

Now what tyme as Judas and Jonathas were in the londe of Galaad, and Symon their brother in Galilee before Ptolomais: Then Josephus the sonne of Zachary and Asarias the captaynes, hearinge of the actes that were done and of the battels that were stroken, sayde: Let vs get vs a name also, and go fight agaynst the Heithen that are rounde aboute vs.

¶ So they gaue their hoost a commaundement, and wente towarde Jamnia. Then came Gorgias and his men out of the cite, to fight agaynst them: Josephus also and Asarias were chased vnto ỳ borders of Jewry, & there were slayne ỳ daye of ỳ people of Israel ij. M. men: so ỳ there was a greate misery amōge ỳ people, & all because they were not obediēt vnto Judas & his brethren, but thought they shulde quyte them selues manfully. Neuertheles they came not of the sede of these men, by whom Israel was helped. But the men that were with Judas, were greatly commended in the sight of all Israel and all Heithen, where so euer their name was herde vpō, and the people came vnto them byddinge them welcome.

After this wente Judas forth with his brethren, and sought agaynst the children of Esau, in the londe ỳ lieth towarde the south where he wanne the cite of Hebron and the townes that lye beside it: and as for the walles and towres rounde aboute it, he brent them vp. Then remoued he to go in to the lōde of the Philistines, and wente thorow Samaria. At the same tyme were there many prestes slaine in ỳ battayll, which wilfully & without advysement wente out for to fight to get them honoure. And when Judas came to Azot in the Philistynes londe, he brake downe their altares, brent the ymages of their Jdols, spoyled the cities, and came agayne in to the londe of Juda. Deut. 7.

The VI. Chapter.

NOw when kynge Antiochus trauayled thorow the hye countrees, he herde that Elymas in Persia was a noble and plenteous cite in siluer and golde, & that there was in it a very rich temple: where as were clothes, cote armoures and shyldes of golde, which Alexander the sonne of Philippe kynge of Macedonia had left behynde him. Wherfore he wente aboute to take the cite and to spoyle it, but he was not able: for ỳ citisēs were warned of it, & foughte with him. And so he fled, and departed with greate heuynesse, & came agayne in to Babilon. Moreouer there came one which brought him tidinges in Perside, ỳ his hoostes which were in the londe of Juda, were driuen awaye, and how that Lisias wente forth first with a greate power, and was driuen awaye of the Jewes: how they had wonne the victory, and gotten greate goodes out of the hoostes that perysshed: how they had broken downe the abhominacion, which he set vp vpon the altare at Jerusalem, and fenced the Sanctuary with hye walles, like as it was afore: yee and Bethsura his cite also. A Iosephus cap. 13. l. 12. anti. 2. Ma. 9. 1. Mac. 3. and. 4. 1. Mac. 1.

So it chaunced, that when the kinge had herde these wordes, he was afrayed and greued very sore. Wherfore he layed him downe vpon his bed, and fell sicke for very sorowe and all because it had not happened as he had deuysed. And there continued he longe, 25 for his grefe was euer more and more, so ỳ he sawe he must nedes dye. Therfore he sent for his frendes, & sayde vnto them: ỳ slepe is gone from mine eyes, for ỳ very sorowe & veracio of herte ỳ I haue. For when I considre in my mynde ỳ greate aduersite ỳ I am come vnto and the floudes of heuynesse which I am in, where as afore tyme I was so mery, and so greatly set by (by reason of my power) Again, cõsideringe ỳ euell ỳ I haue done at Ierusalē, from whence I toke all ỳ riches of golde and syluer ỳ were in it, & sent to fetch awaye the inhabitours of Iewry without eny reason why: I knowe, ỳ these troubles are come vpon me for the same cause. And beholde, I must dye with greate sorow in a straūge londe.

Then called he for one Philippe a frende of his, whom he made ruler of all his realme and gaue him the crowne, his robe and his ryng: that he shulde take his sonne Antiochus vnto him and bringe him vp, till he might raigne himself. So the kynge Antiochus dyed there, in the Cxlix. yeare. When Lysias knewe that the kynge was deed, he ordened Antiochus his sonne (whom he had brought vp) to raigne in his fathers steade) and called him Eupator. Now they that were in the castel (at Ierusalem) kepte in the Iewes rounde aboute the Sāctuary, and sought euer styll to do them harme, for the strengthenynge of the heithen.

Mac. 9 b. c. d. e

Iosephus api. 14 cr. 12 Mac. 5. d

Wherfore Iudas thought to destroye them, and called all the people together, ỳ they might laye sege vnto them. So they came together in the Cl. yeare, and besieged the layenge forth their ordinaunce and instrumentes of warre. Then certayne of them ỳ were besieged wente forth (vnto whom some vngodly men of Israel ioyned thē selues also) and wente vnto the kynge, sayēge: How longe wil it be, or thou punysh and avenge oure brethren? We haue bene euer mynded to do thy father seruyce, to walke in his statutes, and to obeye his commaundementes: Therfore oure people fell from vs, and where so euer they founde eny of vs, they slewe them: and they haue not only medled with vs, but with all oure countrees: and beholde, this daye are they beseginge the castell at Ierusalem, and haue made vp the stronge holde in Bethsura: And yf thou doest not prevente them right soone, they wil do more then these, and thou shalt not be able to ouercome them.

Ma. 4. g

When the kynge herde this, he was very angrie, and called all his frendes, the captaynes of his fote men and of all his horse men together. He hyred men of warre also out of other realmes and out of the Iles of the see, which came vnto him. And the nombre of his hooste was an hundreth thousande fote men, and twenty thousande horsme, & xxxij. Elephantes wel exercised to battayll. These came thorow Idumea vnto Bethsura, and besieged it a longe season, and made dyuerse instrumentes of warre agaynst it. But the Iewes came out and brent them, and fought like men. Then departed Iudas from the castell at Ierusalem, and remoued ỳ hooste towarde Bethzacarā ouer agaynst the kynges armye.

Ma. 13. a

So the kynge arose before the daye, and brought the power of his hooste in to ỳ waie to Bethzacaran, where the hooste made them to the battayll, blowynge the trompettes. And to prouoke the Elephantes for to fight, they shewed them the sappe of red grapes and molberies. And deuyded the Elephantes amonge the hooste: so that by euery Elephante there stode a M. men wel harnessed, and helmettes of stele vpon their heades: Nee vnto euery one of the Elephantes also, were ordened v. C. horsmen of the best, which waited of the Elephante, goinge where so euer he wente, and departed not from him. Euery Elephant was couered wt a stōge tower of wod, where vpon were xxij. valeaunt men wt weapens to fight, & within it was a man of Inde to rule the beest.

As for the remnaunt of the horsmen, he set them vpon both the sydes in two parres with trompettes, to prouoke the hooste, and to stere vp soch as were slowe in the armye. And when the Sonne shone vpon their sydes of golde and stele, the mountaynes glistered agayne at them, & were as bright as the cresset shettes of fyre. The kynges hooste also was deuyded, one parte vpon the hie mountaynes, the other lowe beneth: so they went on, takynge good hede, and kepinge their ordre. And all they that dwelt in the londe, were afrayed at the noyse of their hooste, when the multitude wente forth, and when the the weapens smote together, for the hooste was both greate & mightie. Iudas also and his hooste entred in to the battayll, and slewe vj. C. men of the kynges armye.

Now when Eleasar the sonne of Saura dyd se one of ỳ Elephantes decked wt the kynges badge, and was a more goodly beest the the other: he thought ỳ kinge shulde be vpō him, and ioperde himself to delyuer his people, and to get him a perpetuall name.

Wherfore he ranne with a corage vnto the Elephante in the myddest of the hoost, smytinge them downe of both the sydes, and slewe many aboute him. So wente he vo the Elephantes sete, and gat him vnder him, and slewe him: then fell the Elephante downe vpon him, and there he dyed. Judas also and his men seinge the power of the kinge and the mightie violence of his hoost, departed from them. And the kynges armye wente vp agaynst them towarde Jerusalem, and pitched their tentes in Jewry besyde mount Sion. Moreouer the kynge toke trues with them that were in Bethsura.

But when they came out of the cite (because they had no vytales within, and the londe laye vntylled) the kynge toke Bethsura, and set men to kepe it, & turned his hoost to the place of the Sanctuary, and layed sege to it a greate whyle. Where he made all maner ordinaunce: handbowes, fyrie dartes, rackettes to cast stones, scorpions to shute arowes, and slynges. The Jewes also made ordinaunce agaynst theirs, and fought a longe season.

But in the cite there were no vytayles, for it was the seuenth yeare of the warres, and those Heithen that remayned in Jewry had eaten vp all their stoare. And in the Sanctuary were few men lefte, for the hunger came so vpon them, that they were scatered abrode euery man to his owne place.

So when Lysias herde, that Philippe (whom Antiochus the kynge whyle he was yet lyuinge, had ordened to bringe vp Antiochus his sonne, that he might be kynge) was come agayne out of Persia and Media with the kynges hoost, and thought to optayne the kyngdome: he gat him to the kynge in all the haist and to the captaynes of the hoost, and sayde: we decrease daylie, and oure vytales are but small: Agayne, the place that we laye sege vnto, is very stronge, and it were oure parte to se for the realme. Let vs agre with these men and take trues with them, and with all their people, and graunte them to lyue after their lawe, as they dyd afore. For they be greued and do all these thinges agaynst vs, because we haue despysed their lawe. So the kynge and the prynces were content, and sent vnto them to make peace, and they receaued it. Now whē the kynge and the prynces had made an oath vnto them, they came out of the castel, and the kynge wēte vp to mount Sion. But when he sawe that ỳ place was wel fenced, he brake the ooth that he had made, and commaunded to destroye the wall rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the haist, and returned vnto Antioche, where he founde Philippe hauynge dominion of the cite. So he fought agaynst him, and toke the cite agayne in to his hondes.

The VII. Chapter.

A 2.Ma.14.a

IN the cl.j. yeare came Demetrius ỳ sonne of Seleucus from ỳ cite of Rome wt a small company of men, vnto a cite of the see coast, and there he bare rule. And it chaunced, that when he came to Antioch the cite of his progenitours, his hoost toke Antiochus and Lysias, to bringe them vnto him. But when it was tolde him, he sayde: let me not se their faces. So the hoost put them to death. Now when Demetrius was set vpon the trone of his kyngdome, there came vnto him wicked and vngodly men of Jsrael: whose captayne was Alcimus, that wolde haue bene made hye preest. These men accused the people of Jsrael vnto the kynge, sayenge: Judas and his brethren haue slayne thy frendes, and dryuen vs out of oure owne londe. Wherfore sende now some man (to whom thou geuest credence) that he maye go and se all the destruccion, which he hath done vnto vs and to the kynges londe, and let him be punished with all his fredes and fauourers.

Then the kynge chose Bachides a frende of his, which was a man of greate power in the realme (beyonde the greate water) and faithfull vnto the kynge: and sent him to se the destruccion that Judas had done. And as for that wicked Alcimus, he made him hye preest, and commaunded him to be auenged of the children of Jsrael. So they stode vp, and came with a greate hoost in to ỳ londe of Juda, sendinge messāgers to Judas & his brethrē, & speakinge vnto them wt peaceable wordes: but vnder disceate. Therfore Judas & his people beleued not their saiēge, for they sawe ỳ they were come wt a greate hoost. 1. Mac. 1.

After this came ỳ scribes together vnto Alcimus & Bachides, trustinge the best vnto them. And first, ỳ Assideans requyred peace of them, sayenge: Alcimus ỳ preest is come of the sede of Aarō, how can he disceaue vs? So they gaue them louīge wordes, & swore vnto them, and sayde: we wil do you no harme, nether youre frendes: and they beleued them. But the very same daye toke they lxx. men of them, & slewe thē accordinge to ỳ wordes ỳ are writtē: They haue cast ỳ flesh of ỳ sanctes, & shed their blonde roūde aboute Jerusalē, & there was nomā ỳ wolde bury thē. Psal. 78.

C So there came a greate feare and drede amonge the people, sayenge: there is nether treuth nor righteousnesse in them, for they haue brokē the appoyntment and ooth that they made. And Bachides remoued his hooste from Jerusalem, and pitched his tente at Bethzecha: where he sent forth, and toke many of them that had forsaken him: he slewe many of the people also, and cast them in to a greate pytt. Then committed he the londe vnto Alcimus, and left men of warre with him to helpe him, and Bachides himself wente vnto the kynge. And thus Alcimus defended his hie presthode, and all soch as vexed Israel, resorted vnto him: In so moch that they optayned the lōde of Juda, and dyd moch euell vnto the Israelites.

Now when Judas sawe all the myscheefe that Alcimus and his company had done (yee more then the Heithē them selues) vnto the Israelites: he wente forth rounde aboute all the borders of Jewry, and punyshed those vnfaithfull rennagates, so that they came no more out in to the countre. So whē Alcimus sawe, that Judas and his people had gotten the vpperhande, and that he was not able to abyde them: he wente agayne to the kynge, and sayde all the worst of them that he coude. Then the kynge sent Nicanor, one of his chefe prynces (which bare euell wyl vnto Israel) and commaunded him, that he shulde vtterly destroye the people.

D So Nicanor came to Jerusalem with 2.Ma. 15.a a greate hooste, and sent vnto Judas and his brethren with frendly wordes (but vnder disceate) sayenge: there shal be no warre betwixte me and you: I wil come with a few men, to se how ye do, with frenshipe. Vpon this he came vnto Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably: but the enemies were appoynted to take Judas by violence. Neuertheles it was tolde Judas, ỹ he came vnto him but vnder disceate: wherfore he gat him awaie from him, and wolde se his face nomore. When Nicanor perceaued ỹ his counsell was bewrayed, he wente out to fight agaynst Judas, besyde Capharsalama: Where there were slayne of Nicanors hooste, v.M. men: the residue fled vnto the castell of Dauid.

After this came Nicanor vp vnto moūt Sion; and the prestes with the elders of the people wente forth to sālute him peaceably, & to shewe him ỹ burnt sacrifices ỹ were offered for the kynge. But he laughed thē to scorne, mocked thē, defyled their offeringes, and spake disdanedly, yee and swore in his wroth, sayenge: Yf Judas and his hooste be not delyuered now in to my hondes, as soone as euer I come agayne (and sayne well) I shal burne vp this house. With that, went he out in a greate anger. Then the prestes came in, and stode before the aulter of the temple, wepinge & sayenge: For so moch as thou (o LORDE) hast chosen this house, that thy name might be called vpon therin, and it shulde be an house of prayer and petition vnto thy people: Be auenged of this mā & this hooste, and let them be slayne with ỹ swerde: remembre the blasphemies of them, & suffre them not to continue eny longer.

When Nicanor was gone from Jerusalem, he pitched his tente at Bethoron, and there an hooste met hī out of Syria. And Judas came to Adarsa with iij.M.mē, & made his prayer vnto God, sayenge: O LORDE, because the messaungers of kynge Senacherib blasphemed the, the angel wente forth, and slewe an Clxxxv. thousande of them: Euen so destroye thou this hooste before vs today, that other people maye knowe, how that he hath blasphemed thy Sanctuary: and punysh him, accordinge to his maliciousnesse.

And so the hoostes stroke the felde, the thirtente daye of the moneth Adar: and Nicanors hooste was discomfited, and he himself was first slayne in the battayll. When Nicanors men of warre sawe that he was kylled, they cast awaye their weapens and fled: but the Jewes folowed vpon them an whole dayes iourney, from Adazer vnto Gazara, blowinge with the trompettes, and makinge tokens after them. So the Jewes came forth of all the townes there aboute, and blewe out their hornes vpon them, and turned agaynst them: Thus were they all slayne, and not one of them left.

Then they toke their substaunce for a pray, and smote of Nicanors heade & his right honde (which he helde vp so proudly) and brought it with them, and hāged it vp afore Jerusalem. Wherfore the people were exceadingly reioysed, and passed ouer that daye in greate gladnesse. And Judas ordened, that ỳ same daye (namely the xiij. daye of ỳ moneth Adar) shulde be kepte in myrth euery yeare. Thus the londe of Juda was in rest a litle whyle.

The VIII. Chapter.

IVdas herde also the fame of the Romaynes, that they were mightie and valeaunt men, agreable to all thinges that are requyred of them, & make peace with all men, which come vnto them, and how they were doughty men of strength. Besydes that, it was tolde him of their battayls & noble actes which they dyd in Galacia, how they had conquered them and brought them vnder tribute: and what greate thinges they had done in Spayne, how that with their wysdome and sober behaoure they had wonne the Mynes of syluer and golde that are there, and optayned all the londe, with other places farre from thē: how they had discomfited and slayne downe the kynges that came vpon them from the vttemost parte of the earth, and how other people geue them tribute euery yeare: how they had slayne and ouercome Philippe and Perses kynge of Cethim and other mo (in battayll,) which had brought their ordinaunce agaynst them: how they discomfited greate Antiochus kynge of Asia (that wolde nedes fight w̄ them) hauynge an hundreth and xx. Elephantes, with horsmen, charettes, and a very greate hoost: how they toke him self alyue, and ordened him (with soch as shulde raigne after him) to paye thē a greate trybute, yee and to fynde thē good sureties and plege: Besydes all this, how they had take from him India, Media and Lydia (his best londes) and geuen them to kynge Eumenus. Agayne, how they perceauynge ỳ the Grekes were cōmynge to vexe them: sent against thē a captaine of an hoost which gaue thē battayll, slewe many of thē, led awaye ther wyues and children captyue, spoyled thē, toke possession of their londe, destroyed their stronge holdes, and subdued thē to be their bonde men vnto this daye: Moreouer, how ỳ as for other kyngdomes & Iles, which somtyme withstode thē, they destroyed them, and brought them vnder their dominion: But helped euer their owne frendes and those ỳ were confederate with them, & conquered kyngdomes both farre & nye: & ỳ who so euer herde of their renowne, was afrayed of them: for whom they wolde helpe to their kyngdomes, those raigned: & whō it lyked not them to raigne, they put him downe: And how they were come to greate preeminence: hauynge no kynge amonge thē, nether eny man clothed in purple, to be magnified therethorow: but had ordened thē selues a perlament, where in there sat iij. C. and xx. Senatours daylie vpon the councell, to dispatch euer the busynesse of the people, and to kepe good ordre: And how ỳ euery yeare they chose a Mayre, to haue the gouernaunce of all their londe: to whom euery man was obedient, and ỳ there was nether euell will ner discencion amonge them. B

Then Judas chose Eupolemus the sonne of Jhon the sonne of Jacob, & Jason the sonne of Eleazar, & sent thē vnto Rome for to make frenshipe & a bonde of loue w̄ them: ỳ they might take frō them the bondage of ỳ Grekes, for ỳ Jewes sawe ỳ the Grekes wolde subdue the kyngdome of Israel. So they wēte vnto Rome (a very greate iourney) & came in to ỳ Perlamēt, & saide: Judas Machabeus w̄ his brethrē & the people of ỳ Jewes hath sent vs vnto you, to make a bonde of frendshipe & peace w̄ you, & ye to note vs as yō louers & frendes. And ỳ matter pleased ỳ Romaines right well, wherfore it was writtē vp: of ỳ which ỳ Romaynes made a writinge in tables of Latō & sent it to Jerusalē: ỳ they might haue by thē a memoriall of ỳ same peace & bōde of frēdshipe, after this maner: God saue ỳ Romaines & ỳ people of the Jewes both by see & by lōde, & kepe ỳ swearde & enemy frō thē for euermore. Yf there come first eny warre vpō ỳ Romaynes or eny of their frēdes thorow out all their dominyō ỳ people of ỳ Jewes shal helpe thē (as ỳ tyme requireth) & ỳ w̄ all their hertes. Also they shal nether geue nor sēde vnto their enemies victales, weapēs, money ner shippes: but fur- C fil this charge at the Romaynes pleasure, & take nothinge from them therfore. Againe yf the people of the Jewes happē first to haue warre, the Romaynes shal stonde by thē with a good wil, accordinge as the tyme wil suffre: Nether shal they geue vnto the Jewes enemies, vytales, weapens, money ner shippes. Thus are the Romaynes content to do, & shal fulfill their charge without eny disceate.

Accordinge to these articles, the Romaynes made the bonde with the Jewes. Now after these articles (sayde they) yf eny of the parties wyll put to them, or take eny thinge from them: they shal do it with the consente of both: and what so euer they adde then vnto them or take from them, it shall stonde fast. And as touchinge the euell that Demetrius hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue wrytten vnto him, sayenge: Wherfore layest thou thy heuy yocke vpon the Jewes oure frendes and louers? Yf they make eny complaynte of the agayne vnto vs, we shall defende them, and fight with the by see and by londe.

The IX. Chapter.

A 1. Mac. 7. f Iose. ca. 17 libro 12.

IN ỳ meane season when Demetrius herde that Nicanor & his hoost was slayne in the felde, he proceded further to sende Bachides and Alcimus againe in to Jewry, and those that were in the right wynge of his hoost, with them. So they wēte forth by the waye that ledeth vnto Galgala, and pitched their tentes before Mesaloth which is in Arbellis, and wanne the cite, and slewe moch people. In ỳ first moneth of the cliij. yeare, they brought their hoost to Jerusalem, and rose vp and came to Berea, with xx. M. fote men, and ij. M. horsmen.

Now Judas had pitched his tente at Laisa, with thre thousande chosen men. And when they sawe the multitude of the other army ỳ it was so greate, they were sore afrayed, & many conveyed them selues out of the hoost, In so moch ỳ there abode no mo of them but viij. C. men. When Judas sawe that his hoost fayled him, and that he must nedes fight: it brake his herte, ỳ he had no tyme to gather them together: wherfore the man was in extreme trouble. Neuertheles he sayde vnto them, ỳ remayned with him: Vp, let vs go agaynst oure enemies, peraduanture we shal be able to fight with them. But they wolde haue stopped him, sayenge: we shall not be able, therfore let vs now saue oure lyues, and turne agayne to ō brethren, and then wil we fight agaynst thē, for we are here but fewe. And Judas sayde: God forbyd, that we shulde fle from them. Wherfore yf oure tyme be come, let vs dye manfully for oure brethren, and let vs not stayne oure honoure. Then the hoost remoued out of the tentes, & stode agaynst them. The horsmen were deuyded in two partes: the slynge casters and the archers went before the hoost, and all the mightie men were formest in the felde. Bachides himself was in the right wynge of the batell, & the hoost drewe nye in two partes, and blewe the trompettes. They of Judas syde blewe ỳ trompettes also, & the earth shoke at the noyse of the hoostes, and they stroke a felde from the morow till night. And when Judas sawe ỳ Bachides hoost was strongest of the right syde, he toke with him all the hardy me, and brake the right wynge of their ordre, and followed vpon them vnto the mount Azor.

Now when they which were of the left wynge, sawe that the right side was discomfited, they persecuted Judas and them that were wt him. Then was there a sore battayl, for many were slayne and wounded of both the parties, Judas also himself was tylled, and the remnaunt fled. So Jonathas and Symō toke Judas their brother, and buried him in his fathers sepulcre in the cite of Modin. And all the people of Israel made greate lamentacion for him, and mourned longe, sayenge: Alas, that this worthy shulde be slayne, which delyuered ỳ people of Israel. As for other thinges pertayninge to ỳ battayls of Judas, the nobles actes that he did and of his worthynesse: they are not writē, for they were very many.

And after the death of Judas, wicked me came vp in all the coastes of Israel, and there arose all soch as worke vngodlynesse. In these dayes was there a greate derth in the londe, and all the countre gaue ouer them selues & theirs vnto Bachides. So Bachides chose wicked men, and made them lordes in the londe. These sought out and made search for Judas frendes, and brought them vnto Bachides: which auenged himself vpon thē with greate despite. And there came so greate trouble in Israel, as was not sens the time that no prophet was sene there.

Then came all Judas frendes together, and sayde vnto Jonathas: For so moch as thy brother Judas is dead, there is none like him to go forth agaynst ō enemies, agayns Bachides, and soch as are aduersaries vnto oure people. Wherfore this daye we chose the for him, to be oure prynce and captayn to ordre oure batell. And Jonathas toke the gouernaunce vpon him at the same tyme, and ruled in steade of his brother Judas. When Bachides gat knowlege therof, he sought for to slaye him: But Jonathas and Symon his brother, perceauynge that, fled into ỹ wildernesse of Thecua with all their company, and pitched their tētes by the water pole of Asphar.

Which when Bachides vnderstode, he came ouer Jordane with all his hooste vpon ỹ Sabbath daye. Now had Jonathas sent his brother Jhon (a captayne of the people) to praye his frendes the Nabuthites, ỹ they wolde lende them their ordinaunce, for they had moch. So the children of Jambry came out of Madaba, & toke Jhon & all ỹ he had, & wente their waye withall. Then came worde vnto Jonathas & Symon his brother, ỹ the children of Jambri made a greate mariage, & brought ỹ bryde from Madaba with greate pompe: for she was doughter to one of the noblest princes of Canaan. Wherfore they remembred the blonde of Jhon their brother, and wente vp, and hyd them selues vnder the shadowe of the mountayne.

So they lift vp their eyes, and loked: and beholde, there was moch a doo, & greate repaye: for the brydegrome came forth, & his frēdes and his brethren met them with tympanys, instrumentes of musick, and many weapēs. Then Jonathas and they that were with him, rose out of their stoutinge places agaynst them, and slewe many of them. As for the remnaunt, they fled in to ỹ mountaynes, and they toke all their substaunce. Thus the mariage was turned to mournynge, and ỹ noyse of their melody into lamentacion. And so when they had auenged the blonde of their brother, they turned agayne vnto Jordane.

Bachides hearinge this, came vnto ỹ very border of Jordane with a greate power vpon the Sabbath daye. And Jonathas sayde to his company: let vs get vp, & fyght agaynst oure enemies: for it stondeth not with vs to daye, as in tymes past: Beholde, ỹ enemies are in oure waye, ỹ water of Jordane vpon the one syde of vs, with banckes, stones and woddes of ỹ other syde, so ỹ there is no place for vs to departe vnto. Wherfore crie now vnto heauen, that ye maye be delyuered from the power of youre enemies. So they stroke the batell. And Jonathas stretched out his honde to smyte Bachides, but he fled bacwarde. Then Jonathas and they ỹ were with him leapte into Jordane, & swymmed ouer Jordane vnto him, & there were slayne of Bachides syde that daye, a thousande men.

Therfore Bachides w̄ his hooste turned againe to Jerusalem, & buylte vp ỹ castels & stronge holdes that were in Jewry, Jericho, Emaus, Bethoron, Bethel, Thānata, Phara & Thopo, w̄ hye walles, w̄ portes & with lockes: & set men to kepe them, ỹ they might vse their malice vpon Israel. He walled vp Bethsura, Gazara & the castell at Jerusalē also, & prouyded them w̄ men & vytales: he toke also the chefest mens sonnes in the countre for pledges, and put them in the castel at Jerusalem to be kepte.

Afterwarde in the C.liij. yeare in the seconde moneth, Alcimus cōmaunded, that ỹ walles of the ymmost Sanctuary shulde be destroyed, & the buyldinges of ỹ prophetes also. And when he beganne to destroye thē, ỹ thinges ỹ he wēte aboute, were hyndered: for he was smytten w̄ a palsey, & his mouth shutt, so ỹ he coude nomore speake ner commaunde eny of his house cōcerninge his busynesse. Thus dyed Alcimus in greate misery at the same tyme. And whē Bachides sawe ỹ Alcimus was deed, he turned agayne to ỹ kynge, & so the londe was in rest ij. yeares. Then all the vngodly men helde a councell, sayenge: Beholde, Jonathas and his cōpany are at ease, & dwell without care. Wherfore let vs brynge Bachides hither, & he shall take them all in one night.

So they wēte & gaue Bachides this councell, which arose to comē w̄ a greate hooste, & sent letters priuely to his aduherentes which were in Jewry, to take Jonathas & those ỹ were with him: but they might not, for the other had gotten knowlege of their deuyce. And Jonathas toke L. men of the countre (which were the ryngleders of them) & slewe them. Then Jonathas and Symon w̄ their cōpany departed vnto the cite Bethbessen, which lieth in the wylderneſſe, and repayred the decaye therof, & made it stronge. When Bachides knewe this, he gathered all his hooste, and sent worde to them that were of Jewry. Thē came he and layed sege to Bethbessen, and fought agaynst it a longe season, and made instrumentes of warre. Now Jonathas lefte his brother Symon in the cite, and wente forth himself in to the countre, and came with a certayne nombre, and slewe Odares and his brethren and the children of Phaseron in their tentes: so ỹ he beganne to be stronge, & to increase in power.

As for Symon and his company, they wente out of the cite, and bret vp the instrumetes of warre, and fought agaynst Bachides, and discōfited him. And Bachides was sore vexed, because his councell and trauayle was in vayne. Wherfore he was wroth at ỳ wicked men (that gaue him councell to come in to their londe) and slew many of them. Then purposed he with his company to go awaye in to his owne countre: whereof whē Jonathas had knowlege, he sent embassitours vnto him, for to make peace with him, & ỳ he shulde deliuer him his presoners againe. To the which Bachides cōsented gladly, and dyd acordinge to his desyre: yee and made an ooth, that he shulde neuer do him harme all the dayes of his life. So he restored vnto him all the presoners that he had taken out of the londe of Juda, and thē turned and wente his waye in to his owne londe, nether proceded he eny further to come vnto ỳ borders of Juda. Thus Jsrael had no more warre. And Jonathas dwelt at Machmas, and beganne there to gouerne the people, and destroyed the vngodly men out of Jsrael.

The X. Chapter.

A Josephus lib. 13. cap. 2. 3.

IN the C. lx. yeare came Alexander ỳ sonne of noble Antiochus, and toke Ptolomais, whose citisens receaued him, and there he raigned. When Demetrius herde therof, he gathered an exceadinge greate hooste, and wēte forth agaynst him to fighte. Wherfore Demetrius sent letters vnto Jonathas with louynge wordes, and prayseth him greatly. For he sayde: we wyll first make peace with him, before he bynde him selfe with Alexander agaynst vs: els he shall remembre the euell that we haue done against him, his brother & his people. And so he gaue Jonathas leue to gather an hooste, to make weapens, and to be confederate wt him, and commaunded the pledges that were in the castell, to be delyuered vnto him.

Mac. 9. c

Then came Jonathas to Jerusalem, and red the letters in the audience of all the people, and of them that were in ỳ castell. Wherfore were they sore afrayed, because they herde, that the kynge had geue him licence to gather an hooste. Thus were the pledges delyuered vnto Jonathas, which restored them to their elders. Jonathas also dwelt at Jerusalem, and begāne to buylde vp and to repayre the cite: commaundinge the worke men, to wall it, and the mount Sion rounde aboute with fre stone, to be a stronge holde, and so they dyd. As for the heithen that were in ỳ castels which Bachides had made vp, they fled: so that euery man left the place, and wēte in to his owne countre. Only at Bethsura remayned certayne of the Jewes, which had forsaken the lawe and cōmaundementes of God, for Bethsura was their refuge.

Now when kynge Alexander herde of ỳ promises ỳ Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, and when it was tolde him of ỳ battels and noble actes, which he and his brethren had done, and of the greate trauayles that they had taken: he sayde: where shal we fynde soch a man: wel, we will make him our frende, & be confederate with him. Vpon this he wrote a lettre vnto him, wt these wordes: kinge Alexāder saluteth his brother Jonathas. We haue herde of the, ỳ thou art a valeaunt man, & mete to be o frende: wherfore this daye we ordene the to be the hye preest of thy people, and to be called the kynges frende. (Vpon this, he sente him a purple clothinge & a crowne of golde) ỳ thou mayst considre what is for oure profit, & kepe frendshipe towarde vs.

So in the vij. moneth of the C. lx. yeare vpon the solempne feast daye of the tabernacles, Jonathas put the holy rayment vpon him. Then gathered he an hooste, & made many weapēs. Which when Demetrius herde, he was maruelous sory, & sayde: Alas, what haue we done, ỳ Alexander hath preuented vs in gettinge the frendshipe of the Jewes, for his owne defence? Yet wil I wryte louingly vnto them also, yee & promise them dignities & rewardes, ỳ they maye be of my syde. Wherupon he wrote vnto thē these wordes. Kinge Demetrius sendeth gretinge vnto ỳ people of the Jewes. Where as ye haue kepte yo couenaunt towarde vs, & cōtinued in o frendshipe, not enclyninge to oure enemies we were glad, when we herde therof. Wherfore remayne still & be faithfull to vs: & we shal wel recōpense you for the thinges, ỳ ye haue done on o partie: we shall release you of many charges, and geue you rewardes.

And now I discharge you & all ỹ Jewes from tributes, I forgeue you the customes of sale, and release you of the crowne taxes, of the thirde parte of sede, and half of the frute of trees, which is myne owne dewty. These I leaue for you, from this daye forth: so that they shall not be taken of the londe of Juda ner of the thre cities which are added ther vnto out of Samaria and Galilee, from this daye forth for euermore. Jerusalē also with all thinges belōginge therto, shal be holy and fre, yee ỹ tithes & tributes shal pertayne vnto it. As for the power of ỹ castell which is at Jerusalem, I remytte & geue it vnto the hye preist, that he maye set in it soch men, as he shall chose to kepe it. I frely delyuer all the Jewes that are presoners thorow out all my realme: so that euery one of them shalbe fre from payenge eny tribute, yee euen of their catell.

All the solēpne feastes, Sabbathes, Newmones, the dayes appoynted, the thre daies before and after the feast shall be fre for all the Jewes in my realme: so that in them no man shal haue power to do eny thinge, or to moue eny busynesse agaynst eny of them in eny maner of cause. There shal xxx. M. also of the Jewes be written vp in the kynges hooste, and haue their wages payed, as all other men of warre of the kynges shulde haue: and of them shalbe ordened certayne, to kepe the kynges stronge holdes: yee and some of them shalbe set ouer the kynges busynesse, that they maye faithfully deale with the same. The Jewes also shal haue princes of their owne, & walke in their owne lawes, as the kynge hath commaunded in the londe of Juda.

And the thre cities that are fallen vnto Jewry from the countre of Samaria and Galilee: shalbe taken as Jewry, and be vnder one: nether be subiecte to eny straunge lorde, but to the hye preist. As for Ptolomais and the londe pertayninge therto, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Jerusalem, for the necessary expēces of the holy thinges. Moreouer, I will geue euery yeare xv. M. Sycles of syluer out of ỹ kynges checker (which pertayneth vnto me) to the worke of the temple: yee & loke what remayneth (which they ỹ had oure matters in honde in tymes past, haue not payed) that same shal they geue vnto them also. And besydes all this, the v. M. sycles which they toke yearly of the rētes of the Sanctuary, shal belonge vnto the prestes that do seruyce.

Item, who so euer they be that flie vnto the temple at Jerusalem or within the liberties therof, where as they are fallen in to the kynges daunger for eny maner of busynes, they shall be pardoned, and all the goodes that they haue in my realme, shalbe fre. For the buyldinge also & repayringe of the worke of the Sanctuary, expenses shalbe geuen out of the kynges Checker: Yee and for the makinge of the walles rounde aboute Jerusalem, for the breakinge downe of the olde, and for the settinge vp of the stronge holdes in Jewry, shal ỹ costes and charges be geuen out of the kynges Checker.

But when Jonathas and the people herde these wordes, they gaue no credence vnto them, nether receaued them: for they remembred the greate wickednesse that he had done vnto Jsrael, and how sore he had vexed them. Wherfore they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prynce that had dealte frendly with them, and so they stode by him allwaye. Thē gathered kynge Alexāder a greate hooste, and brought his armye agaynst Demetrius. So ỹ two kynges stroke battayll together, but Demetrius hooste fled, and Alexander folowed after and fell vpon them. A mightie sore felde was it, continuynge till the Sonne wente downe, and Demetrius was slayne the same daye. 1.Mac.7.b Iosephus ca.5.lib.13

And Alexander sente embassitours vnto Ptolomy the kynge of Egipte with these wordes, sayenge: For so moch as I am come agayne to my realme, and am set in the trone of my progenitours, and haue gotten the dominion, ouercome Demetrius, conquered the londe, and striken a felde with him, so that we haue discomfited both him and his hooste, and syt in the trone of his kyngdome: Let vs now make frendshipe together, geue me thy daughter to wife: so shall I be thy sonne in lawe, and both geue the rewardes, and hir greate dignite. Ptolomy the kynge gaue answere, sayenge: Happy be the daye wherin thou art come agayne to the londe of thy progenitours, and set in the trone of their kyngdome. And now will I fulfill thy writynge: but mete me at Ptolomais, ỹ we maye se one another, and that I maye mary my doughter vnto the acordinge to thy desyre. So Ptolomy wēte out of Egipte with his doughter Cleopatra, & came vnto Ptolomais in ỹ Clxij. yeare: where kynge Alexāder met him, & he gaue Alexander his doughter Cleopatra, and maried them at Ptolomais with greate worshipe, like as the maner of kynges is to be.

Then wrote kynge Alexander vnto Jonathas, that he shulde come and mete him. So he wente honorably vnto Ptolomais, & there he met the two kinges, and gaue them greate presentes of golde and syluer, & found fauoure in their sight. And there came together agaynst Jonathas certayne wicked men and vngracious personnes of Israel, makynge complayntes of him, but the kynge regarded them not. As for Jonathas, the kynge commaunded to take of his garmentes, and to clothe him in purple: and so they dyd. Then the kynge appoynted him to syt by him, and sayde vnto his prynces: Go with him in to the myddest of the cite, and make a proclamacion, that no man complayne agaynst him of eny matter, and that no man trouble him for eny maner of cause.

So it happened that when his accusers sawe the worshipe which was proclamed of him, & þ he was clothed in purple: they fled euerychone. And the kynge made moch of him, wrote him amonge his chefe frendes, made him a duke, and partaker of his dominion. Thus Jonathas wente agayne to Jerusalem with peace and gladnesse. In the Clxv. yeare came Demetrius the sonne of Demetrius from Creta in to his fathers londe: wherof when Alexander herde tell, he was right sory, and returned vnto Antioche. And Demetrius chose Appollonius (which had the gouernaunce of Celosyria) to be his captayne.

So he gathered a greate hooste and came vnto Jamnia, and sende worde vnto Jonathas the hye preest, sayenge: Darrest thou withstonde vs thy self alone? As for me, I am but laughed to scorne and shamed, because thou prouest thy strength agaynst vs in the mountaynes. Now therfore yf thou trustest in thyne owne strength, come downe to vs in to the playne felde, and there let vs proue oure strength together: thou shalt fynde, that I haue valeaunt men of warre with me: and shalt knowe who I am, & the other that stonde by me.

Which saye, that youre fote is not able to stonde before oure face, for thy fathers haue bene twyse chaced in to their owne londe. And now, how wylt thou be able to abyde so greate an hooste of horsmen and fotemen in the felde, where as is nether rocke, stone ner place to fle vnto?

When Jonathas herde the wordes of Appollonius, he was moued in his mynde: wherfore he chose x. thousande men and wente out of Jerusalem, and Symon his brother met him for to helpe him. And they pitched their tentes at Joppa, but the cite kepte him forth, for Joppa was an holde of Appollonius. Then Jonathas layed sege to it, and they that were in the cite, for very fere let him in: and so Jonathas wanne Joppa. Appollonius hearinge of this, toke thre thousande horsmen, with a greate hooste of fote, and wente as though he wolde go to Azotus, & came Immediatly in to the playne felde: because he had so many horsme, and put his trust in thē. So Jonathas folowed vpon him to Azotus, & there they stroke the battayll. Now had Appollonius lefte a M. horsmen behynde them pryuely in the tētes. And when Jonathas knewe that soch waite was layed behynde them, they wēte rounde aboute the enemies hooste, and shot dartes at the people from the mornynge to the euenynge. As for Jonathas people, they kepte their ordre as he had commaunded them, & the enemies horses were euer labouringe.

Then brought Symon forth his hooste, and set them agaynst the fote men. For the horsmē were weery allready. So he discomfited them, and they fled. And they that were scatred in the felde, gat them to Azotus, and came in to the temple of Dagon their Idol, þ they might there saue their lyues. But Jonathas set fyre vpon Azotus and all the cities rounde aboute it, & toke their goodes, and brēt vp the temple of Dagon with all them that were fled in to it.

Thus were slayne and brēt well nye viij. thousande men. So Jonathas remoued the hooste from thence, and brought them to Ascalon: where þ men of the cite came forth, and met him with greate worshipe. After this wente Jonathas and his hooste agayne to Jerusalem, with greate substaunce of good. And when kynge Alexander herde these thinges, he thought to do Jonathas more worshipe, & sent him a colar of golde, as the vse is to be geuen vnto soch as are of the kynges nexte bloude. He gaue him also þ cite of Accaron (with the londes belongynge therto) in possession.

Josephus ap. 6. lib. 13. Antiq.

1. Mac. 3. a

The XI. Chapter.

AND þ kynge of Egipte gathered an hooste, (like the sonde þ lieth vpon the see shore) and many shippes: and wente aboute thorow disceate to optayne þ kingdome of Alexāder, & to ioyne it vnto his owne realme. Vpon this he toke his iourney in to Syria, & was letten in to the cities, and mē came forth to mete him: for kinge Alexāder had cōmaunded them so to do, because he was his father in lawe. Now when Ptolomy entred in to eny cite, he lefte mē of warre to kepe it, and this he dyd thorow out all ỹ cities. And when he came to Azotus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon and Azotus that was brent vp, with the other thinges which were destroyed, the deed bodies cast abrode, and ỹ graues that they had made by the waye syde, for soch as were slayne in the felde: And tolde the kynge that Jonathas had done all these thinges, to the intēt they might get him euell will. But the kynge sayde not a worde therto.

And Jonathas met the kynge with great honō at Joppa, where they saluted one another, and toke their rest. So when Jonathas had gone with ỹ kynge, vnto the water that was called Eleutherus, he turned agayne to Jerusalem. Now Ptolomy had gotten the dominion of the cities vnto Selencia vpon the see coost, ymaginynge wicked councels agaynst Alexander, & sent embassitours vnto Demetrius, sayenge: Come, let vs make a bonde betwixte vs, so shall I gene the my doughter that Alexander hath, and thou shalt raigne in thy fathers kyngdome. I repente that I gaue Alexander my doughter, for he goeth aboute to slaye me. And thus he slaundred Alexander, because he wolde haue had his realme.

Thus he toke his doughter from him, gaue her vnto Demetrius, and forsoke Alexander, so that his malice was openly knowne. And Ptolomy came to Antioche, where he set two crownes vpon his owne heade: the crowne of Egipte and of Asia. In the meane season was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, for they that dwelt in those places, had rebelled agaynst him. But when Alexāder herde of this, he came to warre agaynst him. So kinge Ptolomy brought forth his hoost and met him with a mightie power, and chaced him awaye. Then fled Alexander in to Araby, there to be defended, and kynge Ptolomys honoure increased. And Zabdiel the Arabian smote of Alexanders heade, and sent it vnto Ptolomy: But the thirde daye after, died kynge Ptolomy himself: and they whom he had set in the stronge holdes, were slayne of those that were within ỹ cities. And Demetrius raigned in ỹ hundreth and seuen and sirtie yeare.

¶ At the same tyme gathered Jonathas them that were in Jewry to laye sege vnto the castell which was at Jerusalem, and so they made many instrumentes of warre agaynst it. Then wente there certaine vngodly persōnes (which hated their owne people) vnto kynge Demetrius, and tolde him, that Jonathas beseged ỹ castell. So when he herde it, he was angrie, and Immediatly came to Ptolomais, and wrote vnto Jonathas, that he shulde not laye sege to the castell, but come and speake with him in all the haist. Neuertheless when Jonathas herde this he commaunded to besege it. He chose also certayne of the elders and prestes of Israel, and put him self in the parell, and toke with him golde, syluer, clothinge and diuerse presentes: and wente to Ptolomais vnto the kynge, and founde him gracious.

And though certayne vngodly men of his owne people made complayntes vpon him, yet the kynge intreated him, like as his predecessours had done before: and promoted him in the sight of all his frendes, confirmed him in the hye presthode with all the worshipe ỹ he had afore, and made him his chefe frende. Jonathas also desyred the kynge that he wolde make Jewry free, with the thre head cities of Samaria and the londes pertayninge therto: vpon this dyd Jonathas promyse him thre C. talentes. Where vnto the kynge consented, and gaue Jonathas writinge of the same, conteyninge these wordes: kynge Demetrius sendeth gretinge vnto his brother Jonathas and to the people of ỹ Jewes. We sende you here a copy of the lettre which we dyd wryte vnto oure elder Lasthenus, concernynge you, that ye shulde knowe it. 1.Ma.10. 1.Ma.10.

Kynge Demetrius sendeth gretinge vnto Lasthenus his elder. For the faithfulnes that oure frendes the people of the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louynge kyndnesse which they beare towarde vs: we are determed to do them good. Wherfore we ordene all ỹ coostes of Jewry with the thre cities, Lyda and Ramatha (which are added vnto Jewry from Samaria) & all ỹ lōdes pertayninge there vnto, to be frely separated for soch as do sacrifice in Jerusalē: both concernynge the paymētes which the kynge toke yearly afore tyme, & ỹ frutes also of the earth & trees. As for other tithes & tributes ỹ belonged vnto vs, we discharge thē therof from this tyme forth. In like maner we graūte vnto thē all the customes of salt and crowne tares, which were brought vnto vs. And this fredome shal they haue firme & stedfast, frō this tyme forth for euermore. Therfore se ỹ ye make a copy of these o' lettres, and delyuer it vnto Jonathas: that it maye be kepte vpon ỹ holy mount in a cōuenient place.

E After this, when Demetrius the kynge sawe that his londe was in rest, and that no resistaunce was made him: he sent awaye all his hoost euery man to his owne place, excepte an armye of straungers, whom he brought from the Iles of the heithen, wherfore all his fathers hoost had euell wyll at MAC.11.e him. Now was there one Triphon (that had bene of Alexanders parte afore) which when he sawe that all the hoost murmured agaynst Demetrius: he went to Emalcuel the Arabian (that brought vp Antiochus the sonne of Alexander) and laye sore vpon him, to delyuer him this yonge Antiochus: that he might raigne in his fathers steade. He tolde him also what greate euell Demetrius had done, & how his mē of warre loued him not: & so remayned there a lōge season.

And Jonathas sent vnto kynge Demetrius, to dryue them out which were in the castell at Jerusalem and in the other refugies, for they dyd Israel greate harme. So Demetrius sent worde vnto Jonathas, sayenge: I wil not only do these thinges for the and thy people, but at tyme conueniēt I wil do both the & thy people greate worshipe. But now thou shalt do me a pleasure, yf thou wilt sende me men to helpe me: for all myne armye is F gone fro me. So Jonathas sent him iij. M. stronge men vnto Antioche, and they came vnto the kynge, wherfore the kynge was very glad at their commynge. But they that were of the cite (euen an Cxx. thousande mē) gathered them together, & wolde haue slayne the kynge, which fled in to his courte: & the citesyns kepte the stretes of the cite, and beganne to fight.

Then the kynge called for the Jewes helpe, which came vnto him all together, & went abrode thorow the cite, and slewe the same daye an C.M. men: set fyre vpon the cite, gat many spoyles in that daye, and delyuered ỹ kynge. So when the citesyns sawe that the Jewes had gotten their wyll of the cite, and they them selues dispoynted of their purpose: they made their supplicacion vnto the kynge, sayēge: Graunte vs peace, and let the Jewes ceasse from troublinge vs and the cite, and vpon this they cast awaye their weapens. Thus they made peace, and ỹ Jewes gat greate worshipe in the sight of the kynge, and in the sight of all that were in his realme, and were spoken of thorow out the kyngdome: and so they came agayne to Jerusalem with greate goodes.

G So the kynge Demetrius sat in the trone of his kyngdome, and had peace in his lōde Neuertheles he dyssembled in all that euer he spake, & with drewe him self from Jonathas, nether rewarded him accordinge to the benefites which he had done for him, but troubled him very sore. After this came Triphon agayne with yonge Antiochus, which raigned & was crowned kynge. Then there gathered vnto him all ỹ men of warre, whō Demetrius had put awaye: these sought agaynst Demetrius, which fled & turned his backe. So Triphon toke the Elephantes, & wanne Antioche. And yōge Antiochus wrote vnto Jonathas, sayenge: I confirme the in thy presthode, & make ỹ ruler of iiij. contrees, ỹ thou mayest be a frende of ỹ kinges.

Vpon this he sent him golden vessel to be serued in, and gaue him leue to drynke in golde, to be clothed in purple, and to weare a collar of golde. He made his brother Symon also captayne, from the coostes of Tyrus vnto the borders of Egipte. Then Jonathas toke his iourney, & wente thorow ỹ cities beyōde the water (of Jordane) and all the men of warre of Syria gathered thē vnto him for to helpe him. So he came vnto Ascalon, and they of the cite receaued him honorably: & from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they wolde not let him in: wherfore he layed sege vnto it, burnynge vp and spoylinge the places that were aboute the cite.

And the citesyns of Gaza submytted thē selues vnto Jonathas, which made peace with them, but toke of their sonnes to pledge, sent thē to Jerusalē, & wente thorow the countre vnto Damascus. Now when Jonathas herde that Demetrius princes were comen in to Cades (which is in Galilee) with a greate hoost, purposinge to put Demetrius out from medlinge in the realme: he came agaynst them, and left Symon his brother in the londe: which came to Bethsura, and layed sege to it a longe season, and discomfited them. So they desyred to haue peace of him, which he graunted them, & afterwards put them out from thence, toke the cite, and set mē to kepe it. And Jonathas with his hoost came to the water of Genesar, & by tymes in the mornynge gat them to the playne felde of Azor.

And beholde, the hoostes of the heithen met thē in the felde, & layed watch for thē in the mountaynes: so ỳ when Jonathas came agaynst thē, the other (which were layed to watch) rose out of their places, & fought, & they that were of Jonathas syde, fled euery man: & there was not one of thē lefte, except Matathias the sonne of Absalemus, and Judas the sonne of Calphi the captayne of the hoost. Thē Jonathas rente his clothes, layed earth vpō his heade, made his prayer, & turned againe to thē in ỳ felde: where they fought together, and he put them to flight. Now when his owne mē ỳ were fled, sawe this: they turned agayne vnto him, & helped him to folowe vpon all their enemies vnto their tentes at Cades. So there were slayne of the heithen the same daye, iij. M. men, & Jonathas turned agayne to Jerusalem.

The XII. Chapter.

A Jonathas seynge that ỳ tyme was mete for him, chose certaynemen and sent them vnto Rome for to stablisshe & renne the frendshipe wt thē. He sent lettres also vnto Sparta, and to other places in likemaner. So they wēte vnto Rome and entred in to ỳ councell, & sayde: Jonathas ỳ hye preest & the people of ỳ Jewes sent vs vnto you, for to renne ỳ olde frēdshipe & bonde of loue. Vpō this ỳ Romaynes gaue thē frē pasportes, ỳ mē shulde lede thē home in to ỳ lōde of Juda peaceably. And this is ỳ copy of the lettres that Jonathas wrote vnto the Sparcians:

Jonathas ỳ hye preest wt ỳ elders, prestes, & the other people of ỳ Jewes, sende gretinge vnto ỳ Sparciās their brethrē. There were lettres sente lōge agoo vnto Onias ỳ hye preest, from Arius which than raigned amonge you: that ye are oure brethren, as the writynge made therupon specifieth. And Onias intreated the embassitoure that was sent, honorably, and receaued ỳ lettres: wherin there was mencion made of the bonde of loue & frendshipe. But as for vs, we nede no soch writinges: for why, we haue the holy bokes of scripture in oure hondes to oure comforte. Neuertheless we had rather sende vnto you, for the renuynge of ỳ brotherhode and frendshipe: lest we shulde be straunge vnto you, for it is longe, sens ỳ tyme ỳ ye sent worde vnto vs. Wherfore in ỳ sacrifices ỳ we offre & other ceremonies vpon ỳ hye solempne dayes and other we allwaye remembre you without ceassynge (like as reason is, and as it becommeth vs to thynke vpon oure brethren) yee and are right glad of youre prosperous honoure.

And though we haue had greate troubles and warres, so that the kynges aboute vs haue foughten agaynst vs: yet wolde we not be greuous vnto you ner to other of oure louers and frendes in these warres. For we haue had helpe frō heauē, so that we are delyuered, and oure enemies subdued. Wherfore we chose Numenius the sonne of Antiochus and Antipater the sonne of Jason, and sente them vnto the Romaynes, for to renue the olde bonde of frendshipe and loue with them. We commaunded them also to come vnto you, to salute you, and to delyuer you ō lettres, concerninge the renouacion of ō brotherhode. And now ye shal do right wel, to geue vs an answere there vnto.

C And this is the copy of the writynge, which Arius the kynge of Sparta sente vnto Onias: Arius kinge of the Sparcians sendeth gretynge vnto Onias the hye preest. It is founde in writynge, that the Sparcians and Jewes are brethren, and come of the generacion of Abraham. And now for so moch as this is come to oure knowlege, ye shal do wel, to wryte vnto vs of youre prosperite. As for vs, we haue wrytten ō mynde vnto you: Oure catell and goodes are yours and yours, ours. These thinges haue we cōmaunded to be shewed vnto you.

When Jonathas herde, that Demetrius prices were come forth to fight against him with a greater hoost thē afore, he wente frō Jerusalem, & met thē in the lōde of Hemath, for he gaue them not space to come in to his owne countre. And he sent spyes vnto their tentes, which came agayne and tolde him, that they were appoynted to come vpō him in the night season. Wherfore when the Sōne was gone downe, Jonathas cōmaunded his men to watch all ỳ night, & to be ready wt weapens for to fight: and set watchmen rounde aboute the hoost. But when the D aduersaries herde that Jonathas was redy wt his men to the battayll, they feared & were afrayed in their hertes, & kyndled fyres in their tentes, brake vp, and gat them awaye. Neuertheles Jonathas and his company knewe it not till the morninge, for they sawe the fyres burnynge.

Then Jonathas folowed vpon thē, but he might not ouertake them, for they were gone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed vnto ỳ Arabiãs (which were called Zabadei) slewe them, & toke their goodes. He proceded furthur also, and came vnto Damascus, & wente thorow all that countre. But Simon his brother toke his iourney and came to Ascalon and to the nexte stronge holdes: departinge vnto Joppa, and wanne it. For he herde, that they wolde stonde of Demetrius partie: wherfore he sent mẽ of warre in the cite, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne, & called the elders of the people together: and deuysed with thẽ for to buylde vp the stroge holdes in Jewry, and the walles of Jerusalem, to set vp an hye wall betwixte the castell and ỳ cite, for to separate it from the cite, that it might be alone, and that men shulde nether bye nor sell in it.

Vpõ this they came together for to buylde vp the cite: and for moch as the wall vpõ the broke of the west syde (called Caphetheta) was fallen downe, they repayred it. And Symon set vp Adiada in Sephela, and made it stronge, settinge portes & lockes vpõ it.

E Now when Triphon purposed to raigne in Asia. to be crowned, and to slaye the kynge Antiochus: he was afrayed that Jonathas wolde not suffre him, but fight against him. Wherfore he wente aboute to take Jonathas, and to kyll him.

Ma. ii. c Josephus api. 19. bro. 13.

So he departed, and came vnto Bethsan. Then wente Jonathas forth against him to the battayll with fourtye thousande chosen men, and came vnto Bethsan also. But whẽ Triphon sawe that Jonathas came with so greae an hoost to destroye him, he was afrayed: and therfore he receaued him honorably, commended him vnto all his frendes, gaue him rewardes, and commaunded his men of warre to be as obediẽt vnto him as to himself.

And saide vnto Jonathas: why hast thou caused this people to take soch trauayle, seynge there is no warre betwixte vs? Therfore send them home agayne, & chose certaine mẽ to waite vpon the, & come thou wt me to Ptolomais: for I wil geue it the, wt the other stronge holdes, men of warre and their officers. As for me, I must departe, this is only ỳ cause of my cõmynge. Jonathas beleued him, & dyd as he sayde, puttinge awaye his hoost, which wente in to ỳ londe of Juda. He kept but iij. M. by him, wherof he sente ij. M. into Galilee, & one M. wente with himself.

Now as soone as Jonathas entred into Ptolomais, the citesyns sparred the gates of the cite, and toke him, and slewe all them with the swerde, that came in with him. Then sent Triphon an hoost of fote mẽ and horsmen into Galilee and into the greate playne felde, to destroye all Jonathas company. But when they knew that Jonathas was taken, and all they slayne that wayted vpon him: they toke councell together, and came forth ready to the battayll. So when they which folowed vpon them, sawe, that it was a matter of life, they turned backe agayne. As for the other, they wente in to ỳ londe of Juda peaceably, & bewayled Jonathas, & them that were with him right sore. And Israel made greate lamentacion. Thẽ all the heithen ỳ were rounde about them, sought to destroye thẽ. For they sayde: now haue they no captayne, nor eny man to helpe them. Therfore let vs ouercome them, and rote out their name from amonge men.

The XIII. Chapter.

NOw whan Symon herde that Triphon gathered a greate hoost, to come in to ỳ londe of Juda, and to destroye it: and sawe ỳ the people was in greate fearfulnesse and care: he came vp to Jerusalem, and gathered the people together, & gaue thẽ exortacion, sayenge: Ye knowe what greate battayls I and my brethren & my fathers house haue stryken for the lawe & the Sãctuary, and what maner of troubles we haue sene: thorow occasion wherof, all my brethren are slayne for Israels sake, and I am left alone. And now let not me spare myne owne life in eny maner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethren: but wil auenge my people and the Sanctuary, oure children and oure wyues: for all the heithen are gathered together, to destroye vs of very malice.

At these wordes the hartes of the people were kyndled together, so that they cried with a loude voyce, sayenge: Thou shalt be ỏ captayne in steade of Judas & Jonathas thy brethren, ordre thou oure batell, & what soeuer thou commaundest vs, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, makinge haist to fynish all the walles of Jerusalem, which he made stronge rounde aboute. ℣ Then sent he Jonathas the sonne of Absalonus wt a fresh hoost vnto Joppa, which droue them out ẏ were in the castell, and remayned there him self. Triphon also remoued from Ptolomais with a greate armye, to come in to the londe of Juda, and Jonathas with him in warde. And Simon pitched his tentes at Addus before the playne felde.

But when Triphon knewe that Symon stode vp in steade of his brother Jonathas, and that he wolde warre agaynst him: he sent messaungers vnto him, sayenge: Where as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for money that he is owynge in the kynges accompte, concernynge the busynesse ẏ he had in honde. Wherfore sende now an C. talētes of syluer and his two sonnes for suertie, that when he is lettē forth he shal not forsake vs: and we shal sende him agayne. Neuertheless Symon knewe, that he dyssembled in his wordes: yet commaunded he the money & children to be delyuered vnto him: lest he shulde be the greater enemye agaynst ẏ people of Jsrael, and saye: because he sent him not the money and the children, therfore is Jonathas deed.

C So Symon sent him the children and an hundreth talentes, but he dyssembled, & wolde not let Jonathas go. Afterwarde came Triphon in to the londe, to destroye it, and wente rounde aboute by the waye, ẏ ledeth vnto Ador. But where so euer they wente, thither wente Symon and his hoost also. Now they that were in the castell, sent messaungers vnto Triphon, that he shulde make haist to come by the wylderneesse, and to sende them vytales: And Triphon made ready all his horsmen to come that same night. Neuertheless it was a very greate snowe, so that he came not in Galaad ithim. And whē he drewe nye Baschama, he slewe Jonathas and his sonnes there, and then turned for to go home in to his owne londe.

Thē sente Symon for to fet his brothers deed coarse, and buried it in Modin his fathers cite. So all Jsrael bewayled him with greate lamentacion, and mourned for him very longe. And Symon made vpon the sepulcre of his father and his brethrē a buyldynge hye to loke vnto of fre stone behynde and before: and set vp seuen pylers, one agaynst another (for his father, his mother and foure brethren) and set greate pilers rounde aboute, with armes vpon them for a perpetuall memory, and carued shippes besyde the armes: ẏ they might be sene of mē saylinge in the see. This sepulcre which he made at Modin, stondeth yet vnto this daye.

D Now as Triphō wente forth to walke wt ẏ yōge kynge Antiochus, he slewe him trayterously, and raigned in his steade, crowned himself kynge of Asia, and dyd moch euell in the londe. Symon also buylte vp the castels in Jewry, makynge them stronge with hye towres, greate walles, portes and lockes, and layed vp vytales in the stronge holdes. And Symon chose certayne men, and sente them to kynge Demetrius: to desyre him, ẏ he wolde discharge the londe from all bondage, for Triphon had spoyled it very sore. Where vpon Demetrius the kynge answered him, & wrote vnto him after this maner: Josephus capite 10. libro 13

Demetrius ẏ kīge sendeth gretinge vnto Symon the hye prest his frende, with the elders and people of the Jewes. The golden crowne and precious stone ẏ ye sente vnto vs, haue we receaued: and are ready to make a sted fast peace with you, yee and to wryte vnto oure officers, for to release you, concernynge the thinges wherin we made you fre: and the appoyntment ẏ we make with you, shalbe firme and stable. The stronge holdes which ye haue buylded, shal be youre owne. As for eny ouersight or fawte committed vnto this daye, we forgeue it, and the crowne tax that ye ought vs also. And where as was eny other tribute in Jerusalem, it shal now be no tribute: and loke who are mete amonge you to be in oure courte, let them be written vp, that there maye be peace betwixte vs.

E Thus the yock of the heithen was taken from Jsrael, in the hundreth and seuentie yeare. And the peple of the Jewes beganne to write in their lettres and actes on this maner: In ẏ first yeare of Symon the hye prest, and prynce of the Jewes. 1. Macha. 14. d

In those dayes wente Symon vnto Gaza, and beseged it rounde aboute, where he set vp ordinaunce of warre. And wanne a towre, which he toke. So they that gat in to the towre leapte in to the cite, which was in a greate feare: In so moch that the people of the cite rente their clothes, and clymmed vp vpon the walles with their wyues and children, besekynge Symon to be at one with them, sayenge:

O rewarde vs not after ō wickednes, but be gracious vnto vs, and we shal do ỳ seruyce.

S Then Symon for very pite, wolde fight no more agaynst them, but put them out of the cite, and caused the houses (wherin the ymages were) to be clensed: and so entred the cite with psalmes of prayse, geuinge thankes vnto the LORDE. So when he had cast all abhominacions out of the cite, he set soch men in it as kepte the lawe of God, and made the cite stronge, and builded a dwellinge place for himself.

Now when they in the castell at Jerusalem were kepte so stately, that they coude not come forth ner in to countre, and might nether bye ner sell: they were very hungrie, and many of them famished to death: In so moch that they besought Symon to be at one with them, which he graunted them. So he put them out from thence, and clensed the castell from fylthynesse. And vpon the xxiij. daye of the seconde moneth in the Clxxj. yeare they entred in to it with thankesgeuynge and braunches of palme trees, with harpes, crowdes, cymbals, and lutes, synginge psalmes and songes of prayse vnto God, for that the greate enemy of Israel was ouercome.

And Symon ordened that the same daye shulde be kepte euery yeare in gladnesse, and made stronge the hyll of the temple that was besyde the castell, where he dwelt himself with his company. Symon also perceauynge that Jhon his sonne was a mightie man of armes, made him captayne of all the hoostes, and caused him to dwell at Gaza.

The XIIII. Chapter.

A IN the Clxxij. yeare gathered kynge Demetrius his hoost, and departed vnto Media, to gett him helpe for to fight agaynst Triphon. Now when Arsaces the kynge of Persia and Media herde, that Demetrius was entred within his borders: he sente one of his prynces to take him alyue, and to bringe him vnto him. So he wente and slewe Demetrius hoost, toke himselfe, brought him to Arsaces, which kepte him in warde. And all the londe of Juda was in rest, so longe as Symon lyued: for he sought the wealth of his people, therfore were they glad to haue him for their ruler, and to do him worshipe allwaye.

Symon wanne the cite of Joppa also for an hauen towne, and made it an intraunce in to the Iles of the see. He enlarged the borders of his people, and cõquered them more londe: He gathered vp many of their people that were presoners: he had the dominacion of Gaza, Bethsura and the castell, which he clensed from fylthines, and there was no man that resisted him: So that euery man tylled his grounde in peace, the londe of Juda and the trees gaue their frute and encreace. The B elders sat all in iudgment, and toke their deuyce for the wealth of the londe: the yonge men put on worshipe and harnesse vpon them. He prouyded vytayles for the cities, and made goodly stronge holdes of them: so that the fame of his worshipe was spoken of vnto the ende of ỳ worlde. For he made peace thorow out the londe, and Israel was full of myrth and ioye.

Euery mã sat vnder his vyne & fyge trees and there was no man to fraye them awaye. There was none in ỳ londe to fight agaynst them, for then the kinges were ouercome. He helped those that were in aduersite amonge his people, he was diligent to se ỳ lawe kepte: as for soch as were vngodly and wicked he toke thẽ awaye. He set vp ỳ Sanctuary, & encreased the holy vessels of the temple.

When ỳ Romaynes and Sparcians had gotten worde, ỳ Jonathas was deed, they were right sory. But when they herde ỳ Symon his brother was made hye prest in his steade, and how he had wonne the londe a gayne vb the cities in it: they wrote vnto him in tables of laton, to renue the frendshipe & bonde of loue, which they had made of new with Judas & Jonathas his brethrẽ. Which writinges were red before the congregacion at Jerusalem.

And this is the copy of the lettres, that the Sparcians sent: The Senatours and cites yns of Sparta sende gretinge vnto Simõ ỳ greate prest vb the elders, prestes, & ỳ other people of the Jewes their brethrẽ: Whẽ ỳ embassitours that were sente vnto ỏ people, certified vs of youre worshipe, honoure and prosperous wealth: we were glad of their cõminge, and haue written the earande which they spake before the councell of the people namely, that Numenius the sonne of Antiochus, and Antipater the sonne of Jason the Jewes embassitours are come vnto vs, for to renue the olde frendshipe with vs. Vpon this the people consented, that the men shulde be honorably intreated, and that the copy of their earande shulde be written in the speciall bokes of the people, for a perpetuall memory vnto the Sparcians: yee and that we shulde sende a copy of the same vnto Symon the greate prest.

D After this dyd Symon sende Numenius vnto Rome, with a golden shylde of a thousande pounde weight, to confirme the frendshipe with them: which when the Romaynes vnderstode, they saide: what thākes shalle we recompence agayne vnto Symon & his children? For he hath stablished his brethrē, and ouercome the enemies of Israel. Wherfore they graūted him to be fre. And all this wrote the Jewes in tables of laton, and naled it vnto the pilers vpon the mount Sion. The copy of the writinge is this:

The xviij. daye of ỹ moneth Elul in the Clxxij. yeare in the thirde yeare of Symon the hye preist, in the greate congregacion of ỹ prestes, rulers of the people, and elders of the countre at Asaramel, were these wordes openly declared:

E For so moch as there was moch warre in oure londe, therfore Symon ỹ sonne of Mathias (come of the children of Jareb) and his brethren, put them selues in parell, and resisted the enemies of their people: that their Sanctuary and lawe might be mantryned, and dyd their people greate worshipe. Jonathas in like maner, after that he had gouerned his people and bene their hye preist: dyed, and lyeth buried besyde his elders.

After that wolde their enemies haue trodden their holy thinges vnder fote, destroyed their londe, and vtterly waisted their Sanctuary. Then Symon withstode them, and fought for his people, spent moch of his owne money, weapened the valeaunt men of his people, gaue them wages, made stronge ỹ cities of Juda, with Bethsura that lieth vpon the borders of Jewry, (where the ordinaunce of their enemies laye somtyme) & set Jewes there for to kepe it.

F He made fast Joppa also, which lieth vpon the see, and Gaza that bordreth vpon Azotus, (where the enemies dwelt afore) and there he set Jewes to kepe it: and what soeuer was mete for the subduynge of the aduersaries, that layed he therin. Now whē the people sawe the noble actes of Symon. and what worshipe he purposed to do for them, his godly behauoure, and faithfulnesse which he kepte vnto them, & how he sought by all waies ỹ wealth of his people, because he dyd all this, therfore they chose him to be their prynce & hye preist. And in his tyme they prospered wel by him, so ỹ the heithē were take out of their londe: & they also which were in the cite of Dauid at Jerusalē in the castell (where they wente out and defiled all thinges that were about the Sanctuary, and did greate harme vnto clenlynes) and Symon put men of the Jewes in it, for the defence of the londe and the cite, and set vp the walles of Jerusalem.

G And kynge Demetrius confirmed him in his hye presthode, made him his frende, and dyd him greate worshipe. For he herde that the Romayns called ỹ Jewes their frendes, louers and brethren: how honorably they receaued Symons embassitours: how ỹ Jewes and prestes consented that he shulde be their prynce and hye preist perpetually (till God rayse vp the true prophet) and that he shulde be their captayne, to care for the Sanctuary, and to set officers vpon the workes therof, ouer the londe, ouer the weapens, ouer the houses of defence, to make prouysion for the holy thynges, and to be obeyed of euery man, and all the writynges of ỹ londe to be made in his name: that he shulde be clothed in purple and golde, and that it shulde be lawfull for none of the people nor prestes to breake eny of these thynges, to withstonde his wordes, ner to call eny congregacion in the londe without him: that he shulde be clothed in purple, and weere a colar of golde: And yf there were eny which disobeyed or brake this ordinaunce, that he shulde be punyshed.

So all the people consented to alowe Symon, and to do acordynge to these wordes. Symon also himself toke it vpon him, and was contente to be the hye preist, the captayne and prynce of the Jewes and prestes, and to goueme them all. And they commaunded to make this writinge in tables of laton, and to fasten it vnto the compasse of the Sanctuary in an open place: and to laye vp a copy of the same in the treasury, that Symon and his posterite might haue it.

The XV. Chapter.

NOwe, kynge Antiochus the sonne of Demetrius sente lettres from the Iles of the see, vnto Symon the hye preist and prynce of the Jewes, and to all the people, conteyninge these wordes: Antiochus the kynge sendeth gretinge vnto Symon the hye preist and to the people of the Jewes. For so moch as certayne wicked men haue gotten the kyngdome of oure progenitours, I am purposed to chalenge the realme agayne, and to restore it to the olde estate. A

Wherfore I haue gathered a greate hoost and made shyppes of warre: that I maye go thorow the countre, and be auenged of them which haue destroyed oure londe, and wasted many cities in my realme. And therfore now I make the fre also from all the tributes, wherof all kynges my progenitours haue discharged the, and from other customes (wher from they haue released the) what so euer they be: Nee I geue the leaue to smyte money of thine owne within thy londe. As for Jerusalem, I wil that it be holy and fre: and all the weapens and houses of defence which thou hast buylded and kepest in thine

B hondes, shal be thine. Wheras eny thinge is or shal be owynge vnto the kynge, I forgeue it the, from this tyme forth for euermore. And when we haue optayned oure kyngdome, we shal do the, thy people and the temple greate worshipe: so that youre honoure shal be knowne thorow out ỹ whole worlde.

In the Clxxiiij. yeare wente Antiochus into his fathers londe, and all the men of warre came together vnto him, so that fewe were left with Triphon. So the kynge Antiochus folowed vpon him, but he fled vnto Dora, which lieth by the see syde: for he sawe ỹ there was myschefe commynge vnto him, and that his hooste had forsaken him. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora wt an hūdreth & twentye thousande men of armes vpon fote, and eight thousande horsmen. So he compased the cite rounde aboute, and ỹ shippes came by the see. Thus they vexed the cite by londe and by water, in so moch that they suffred no man to go in nor out.

In the meane season came Numenius (& 1.Ma.14.d they that had bene with him) from the cite of Rome, hauynge lettres written vnto the C kynges and prouyncies, wherin were conteyned these wordes: Lucius the Mayre of Rome sendeth gretinge vnto Ptolomy the kynge. The embassitours of the Jewes oure frēdes beinge sent from Symon the hye preste and from the people of the Jewes, came vnto vs, for to renue the olde frendshipe and bonde of loue, and brought a shylde of golde weyenge a thousande pounde, which we were contente to receaue of them. Wherfore we thought it good to wryte vnto the kynges & prouincies, to do them no harme, nor to take parte agaynst thē, their cities ner countrees nether to mayntene their enemies agaynst them. Yf there be eny wicked personnes therfore fled from their countre vnto you, delyuer them vnto Symon the hye preste, ỹ he maye punysh them acordinge to their owne lawe.

The same wordes wrote the Romaynes also vnto Demetrius the kynge, to Attalus, Araba, Arsaces and to all regions: and Lampsanes, to them of Sparta, Delo, Mindo, Sycon, Caria, Samos, Pamphilia, Lycia, Halicarnassum, and to ỹ Rhodes: to Jasela, Cos, Side, Arado, Gortyna, Gnydum, to Cypres and to Cyren. And of euery lettre they sent a copy to Symon the hye preste and to the people of the Jewes. So Antiochus the kynge brought his hoste vnto Dora the seconde tyme, to take it: where he made diuerse ordinaunce of warre, and kepte Triphon in, ỹ he shulde not come forth. Then Symon sent Antiochus two thousande chosen mē to helpe him with golde, syluer and other plenteous gyftes. Nevertheless he wolde not receaue them, but brake all ỹ couenaunt which he made to Symon afore, & withdrewe himself frō him.

He sent Athenobius also a frende of his vnto Symon, for to reason with him, & speake: Ye witholde fro me Joppa and Gaza, & the castell that is at Jerusalē, which are cities of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed, and done greate euell in the londe, haue vsynge the dominaciō in many other places of my kyngdome. Wherfore delyuer now ỹ cities which ye haue takē, wt ỹ tributes of ỹ places ỹ ye haue rule vpon without the borders of Jewry: Or els geue me fyue hūdreth talentes of syluer, yee and for the harme that ye haue done in the cities and for the tributes of the same, other fyue hundreth talentes. Yf no, we shal come and fight agaynst you.

So Athenobius the kynges frende came to Jerusalē, and when he sawe ỹ greate worshipe and honoure of Symō in golde, syluer and so greate plenty of ornamentes: he marueled, and tolde Symon as the kynge commaunded him. Then answered Symon and saide vnto him: As for vs, we haue nether taken other mēs londe, ner witholdē them, but only oure fathers heretage, which oure enemies had vnrighteously in possession a certayne tyme. This heretage of oure fathers haue we chalenged in processe of tyme. And where as thou cōplayneste concernynge Joppa and Gaza, they dyd greate harme to ỹ people and in ỹ londe, yet wyll we geue an C. talentes for them.

Nevertheles Athenobius answered him not one worde, but turned agayne wrothfully vnto ỹ kynge, and tolde him all these wordes, and the greate dignite of Symon with all that he had sene, and the kinge was very angrie. In the meane tyme fled Triphon by shippe vnto Orthosaida. Then the kynge made Cendebeus captayne of the see coost, gaue him an hoost of fote men and horsmen, comaundinge him to remoue ẏ hoost towar de Jewry, & to buylde vp the cite of Cedron, to make vp ẏ portes, & to warre agaynst ẏ people of the Jewes. As for the kynge him self, he folowed vpon Triphon. So Cendebe us came vnto Jamnia, & beganne to vexe ẏ people, to treade downe Jewry, to take the people presoners, to slaye thē & to buylde vp Cedron: where he set horsmē & other men of warre, that they might come forth and go thorow the stretes of Jewry, like as the kyn ge had commaunded him.

The XVI. Chapter.

Then came Jhon vp from Gaza, and tolde Symon his father, what Cen debeus had done amonge their peo ple. Vpon this called Symon two of his el dest sonnes, Judas & Jhon, and sayde vnto them: I and my brethren & my fathers hou se, haue euer from oure youth vp vnto this daye, foughten agaynst the enemies of Is rael, & God gaue vs good fortune to delyuer Israel oft tymes. And now for so moch as I am olde, be ye in steade of me & my brother, to go forth & fight for oure people, & the hel pe of God be wt you. So he chose xx. M. figh tingemen of the countre, with horsmen also, which wente forth agaynst Cendebeus and rested at Modin.

In the morynge they arose, & wēte in to ẏ playne felde: and beholde, a mightie grea te hoost came agaynst thē, both of fote men & horsmen. Now was there a water broke betwixte them, & Jhon remoued the hoost towarde them. And when he sawe that the people was afrayed to go ouer ẏ water bro ke, he wente ouer first him self: and the men seynge this, folowed him.

Then Jhon set his horsmen & fote men in ordre, the one by the other, for their enemies horsmen were very many. But when they blewe vp the prestes trompettes, Cendebeus fled wt his hoost, wherof many were slayne, and the remnaunt gat them to their stronge holde. Judas also Jhōs brother whas wou ded at ẏ same tyme. And Jhon folowed still vpon ẏ enemies, till he came to Cedrō which he buylded. The enemies fled also vnto the towres ẏ were in ẏ feldes of Azotus, & thos se dyd Jhon burne vp. Thus there were slay ne ij. M. men of them, & Jhon turned agayn ne peaceably in to Jewry. 1.Mac

And in the felde of Jericho was Ptolo my the sonne of Abobus made captayne: which because he had abundaunce of syluer & golde, (for he had maried the doughter of Symon the hye prest) waxed proude in his mynde, & thought to conquere the lōde, yma geninge falsed agaynst Symō & his sonnes, to destroye thē. Now as Symon was goyn ge aboute thorow the cities, ẏ were in ẏ cou tre of Jewry, and carynge for them: he came downe to Jericho, with Matathias & Ju das his sonnes, in the Clxxvij. yeare, in ẏ xj. moneth called Sabat. Then Ptolomy ẏ son ne of Abobus receaued them (but wt disceate) in to a stronge house of his called Doch, which he had buylded, where he made them a bancket.

So when Symon & his sonnes were mery & had dronken well, Ptolomy stode vp wt his men (whō he had hyd there) & toke their wea pens, entred in to the banckethouse, & slewe Symon wt his two sonnes, & certayne of his seruantes. Soch greate vnfaithfulnesse dyd Ptolomy in Israel, and recōpensed euell for good. Then wrote this Ptolomy ẏ same vn to kynge Antiochus, requyringe him that he shulde sende him an hoost to helpe him: & so shulde he delyuer him the londe, wt the cities & tributes of the same. He sent other men al so vnto Gaza, for to take Jhon: & wrote vnto the captaynes to come to him, & he shulde geue them syluer, golde and rewardes. And to Jerusalem he sent other, to take it and the Sanctuary.

Thē ranne there one before, & tolde Jhon in Gaza, that his father & his brethren were slayne, and how that Ptolomy had sent to slaie him also. Whē Jhon herde this, he was sore abasshed, and layed hōdes of them that were come to destroye him, and slewe them: for he knowe, that they wente aboute to kyll him.

As for other thinges concernynge Jhon: of his warres, of his noble actes (wherin he behaued him self manfully) of the buyld inge of walles which he made, and other of his dedes: They are written in the croni-cles of his presthode, from the tyme forth ỹ he was made hye preest after his father.

The first Chapter.

THe brethrē of ỹ Jewes which be at Jerusalem & in the londe of Jewry, wish vnto those brethrē of ỹ Jewes that are throw out Egipte: good fortune, health and peace.

God the LORDE be gracious vnto you, & thynke vpon his couenaunt ỹ he made w Abraham, Isaac & Jacob his faithfull seruauntes: and geue you all soch an herte, that ye maye loue and serue him, yee and perfourme his wyll with an whole herte and a wyllinge mynde: He opē youre hertes in his lawe and in his commaundementes, sende you peace: heare youre prayers, be at one with you, and neuer forsake you in tyme of trouble. This is heare oure prayer for you.

What tyme as Demetrius raigned, in the Clxix. yeare, we Jewes wrote vnto you in ỹ trouble and violence that came vpon vs. In those yeares after that Jason departed out of the holy londe and kyngdome, they brent vp the portes, and shed innocent bloude. Then made we oure prayer vnto ỹ LORDE, and were herde: we offred, and lighted the candels, settinge forth cakes and bred. And now come ye vnto the feast of tabernacles in the moneth Casleu.

In the Clxxviij. yeare ỹ people ỹ was at Jerusalem and in Jewry, the councell and Judas him self, sent this wholsome salutaciō vnto Aristobolus kynge Ptolomys master, which came of the generacion of the anoynted prestes: and to the Jewes that were in Egipte: In so moch as God hath delyuered vs from greate parels, we thanke him hylie, In that we resisted so mightie a kynge. And why? he brought men out of Persis by heapes, to fight agaynst vs and the holy cite. For as he was in Persis (namely, ỹ captayne w the greate hoost) he perished in the temple of Naneas, beynge disceaued throw the deuyce of Naneas prestes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelt there, Antiochus & his frēdes came thither, to receaue moch moneye for a dowry. So whē Naneas prestes had layed forth ỹ moneye, he entred with a small company in to the compasse of the temple, and so they shut the temple.

Now when Antiochus entred by openynge the preuy intraunce of the temple, ỹ prestes stoned ỹ captayne to death, hewed the in peces that were with him, smote of their heades, and threwe them out. In all thinges God be praysed, which hath delyuered the wicked in to oure hondes.

Where as we now are purposed to kepe the purificacion of the temple vpon ỳ xxv. daye of the moneth Casleu, we thought necessary to certifie you therof: that ye also might kepe the tabernacles feast daye, & the daye of the fyre, which was geuen vs when Nehemias offred, after that he had set vp ỳ temple & the aulter. For what tyme as ỏ fathers were led awaye vnto Persis, ỳ prestes (which then sought the honꝰ of God) to ke ỳ fyre priuely from ỳ aulter, & hyd it in a valley, where as was a depe drye pyt: & ther in they kepte it, because the place was vnknowne to euery man. Now after many yeares when it pleased God, ỳ Nehemias shulde be sent from the kynge of Persia: he sent the childers children of those prestes (which had hyd the fyre) to seke it. And as they tolde vs, they founde no fyre, but thicke water.

Thē cōmaunded he them to drawe it vp, & to bringe it him, & ỳ offerynges withall. Now when ỳ sacrifices were layed on & ordred, the prest Nehemias commaunded to sprenkle them & the wod wᵗʰ the water. Whē this was done, & the tyme come ỳ the Sonne shone, which afore was hyd in the cloude: there was a greate fyre kyndled, In so moch ỳ euery man marueled. Now all the prestes prayed, whyle the sacrifice was a makynge. Jonathas prayed first, and ỳ other gaue answere.

And Nehemias prayer was after this maner: O LORDE God maker of all thinges, thou fearfull & stronge, thou righteous & mercifull, thou ỳ art onely a gracious kynge, onely lyberall, onely iust, Allmightie and euerlastinge, thou ỳ delyuerest Israel from all trouble, thou ỳ hast chosen the fathers & halowed them: receaue the offeringe for the whole people of Israel, preserue thine owne porcion, & halowe it. Gather those together, ỳ are scatred abrode from vs: delyuer them ỳ are vnder the Heithēs bondage, loke vpon them which are despysed & abhoured, ỳ the heithen maie knowe & se, how ỳ thou art ỏ God: Punyshe them ỳ oppresse, and proudly put vs to dishonoure. Set ỳ people agayne in thy holy place, like as Moses hath spokē.

And the prestes songe psalmes of thankesgeuynge, so lōge as the sacrifice endured. Now when the sacrifice was brent, Nehemias commaunded the greate stones to be sprenkled wᵗʰ the resydue of the water. Which when it was done, there was kyndled a flamme of thē also: but it was consumed thorow the light, ỳ shyned from the aulter. So whē this matter was knowne, it was tolde the kynge of Persia, that in the place where the prestes (which were led awaye) had hyd fyre, there apeared water in steade of fyre, & that Nehemias & his company had purified the sacrifices withall. Then the kynge considerynge & ponderynge ỳ matter diligently, made him a temple, to proue the thinge ỳ was done. And whē he founde it so in dede, he gaue the prestes many giftes & dyuerse rewardes: yee he toke them wᵗʰ his owne hōde, & gaue thē. And Nehemias called the same place Nephthar, which is as moch to saye as a clensynge: but many men call it Nephi.

The II. Chapter.

IT is founde also in the writinges of Jeremy the prophet, ỳ he commaunded them which were caried awaye, to take fyre, as it is sayde afore. He cōmaunded them also, ỳ they shulde not forget the lawe & cōmaundementes of the LORDE, & ỳ they shulde not erre in their myndes, whē they se ymages of syluer & golde wᵗʰ their ornamentes. These & soch other thinges commaunded he them, & exorted them, that they shulde not lett the lawe of God go out of their hertes. A 2. Mac.1. Iere 29.b Baruc.6.

It is wrytten also, how the prophet (at ỳ commaundement of God) charged them, to take the tabernacle & the arke wᵗʰ them: & he wente forth vnto the mountaine, where Moses clymmed vp, & sawe ỳ heretage of God. And when Jeremy came there, he founde an open caue, wherin he layed the tabernacle, ỳ arke & the aulter of incense, & so stopped the hole. There came certayne men together also folowinge him, to marck the place, but they coude not fynde it. Which when Jeremy perceaued, he reproued thē, sayenge: As for that place, it shalbe vnknowne, vntill ỳ tyme that God gather his people together againe, & receaue thē vnto mercy. Then shal God shewe them these thinges, & the maiesty of the LORDE shall appeare, & the cloude also, like as it was shewed vnto Moses: & like as when Salomon desyred ỳ the place might be sanctified, & it was shewed him. Deu.34. B Exo.13.d 3.Re.8.b

For he beynge a wyse man, handled honorably & wysely: offerynge vnto God in ỳ halowinge of the temple, when it was fynisshed. And like as when Moses prayed vnto the LORDE, the fyre came downe from heauen, & consumed the burntofferinge: Euen so prayed Salomon also, & the fyre came downe from heauen, & cōsumed the burntofferinge. And Moses sayde: because the synofferynge was not eaten, therfore it is cōsumed. In like maner Salomon kepte the dedicacion Leui.9.d 2.Par.7.a

(or halowynge) eight dayes.

C Some reade: *Nehemias. In ỹ Annotacions & wrytynges of *Jeremy, were these thinges put also: & how he made a lybrary, & how he gathered out of all countrees the bokes of the prophetes, of Dauid, the epistles of the kynges, and of the presentes. Euen so Judas also, loke what he lerned by experiẽce of warre, & soch thinges as hath happened vnto vs, he gathered thẽ all together, & so we haue them by vs. Yf ye now desyre to haue the same, sende some body to fetch them vnto you. Where as we thẽ are aboute to celebrate the purificacion, we haue written vnto you. Therfore ye shall do well, yf ye kepe the same dayes. We hope also, that the God (which delyuered his people, & gaue them all ỹ heretage, kyngdome, ecut.30.a presthode & Sanctuary ỹ he promised them in the lawe) shal shortly haue mercy vpõ vs, & gather vs together from vnder the heauẽ in to his holy place: for he hath saued vs frõ greate parels, & hath clensed the place.

D As concernynge Judas Machabeus & his brethren, the purificacion of the greate temple, the dedicacion of the aulter, yee & of the warres ỹ cõcerne noble Antiochus and Mac.6.a Eupator his sonne, of the shyninges ỹ came downe from heaven vpon those, which manfully defended the Jewes. (For though they were but fewe, yet defended they the whole londe, drone awaye ỹ enemies hoost, recouered agayne the temple, ỹ was spoken of thorow out all the worlde, delyuered the cite, doynge their best ỹ the lawe of the LORDE which was put downe, might ẽ all tranquilite be restored agayne vnto the LORDE, ỹ was so mercifull vnto thẽ.) As touchinge Jason also of Cyren, we haue vnder takẽ cõpendiously to bryngein to one boke, the thinges ỹ were cõprehended of him in fyue. For we cõsideringe the multitude of the bokes, and how harde it shulde be for them ỹ wolde medle with stories and actes (and that be cause of so dyuerse matters) haue vnder taken so to comprehende the stories: that soch as are disposed to reade, might haue pleasure and pastyme therin: and that they which are diligent in soch thinges, might the better thinke vpon them: yee and that who so euer red them, might haue profit therby.

E Nevertheless we oure selues that haue medled with this matter for the shortenynge of it, haue taken no small labour, but greate diligence, watchynges and trauayle. Like as they that make a feast, wolde fayne do other men pleasure: Euen so we also (for many mens sakes) are very wel content to take the labour, where as we may sholdely comprehẽde, the thynges that other men haue truly wrytten.

For he ỹ buyldeth an house a new, must prouyde for many thynges to ỹ whole buyldinge: but he that paynteth it afterwarde, seketh but only what is comly, mete and conuenient to garnysh it withall. Euen so do we also in like maner. And why? for that begynneth to wryte a story for the first, must with his vnderstondinge gather the matter together, set his wordes in order, and diligently seke out euery parte: But he that afterwarde wyll shorten it, vseth few wordes, and toucheth not the matter at the largiest. Let this be sufficient for a prologe, now wyll we begynne to shewe the matter: for it is but a foolish thinge to make a longe prologe, and to be shorte in the story it self.

The III. Chapter.

WHat tyme as the holy cite was inhabited in all peace and wealth, & when the lawes were yet very well kepte. (For so was it ordened by Onias the hye preest and other godly men, that were enmies to wickednesse:) It came therto, that euen the kynges and prynces thẽ selues dyd the place greate worshipe, and garnyshed ỹ temple with greate giftes: In so moch that Seleucus kynge of Asia of his owne rentes, bare all the costes belonginge to the seruyce of the offerynges. Then Symon of the trybe of Ben Jamin, a ruler of the temple, laboured to worke some myschefe in the cite: but the hye preest resisted him.

Nevertheless when he might not ouercome Onias, he gat him to Appolonius the sonne of Thersa (which thẽ was chefe leder in Celosyria and Phenices) and tolde him, ỹ the treasury in Jerusalem was full of immerable money, and how that the comons goodes (which belonged not vnto the offringes) were exceadinge greate also: yee and how it were possible, that all these might come vnder the kynges power.

Now when Appollonius had shewed the kynge of the moneye, as it was tolde him: ỹ kinge called for Heliodorus his stewarde, and sent him with a commaundement, to bryngе him the sayde money. Immediatly Heliodorus toke his iourney, but vnder a coloure, as though he wolde go thorow Celosyria and Phenices to vyset the cities, but his purpose was to fulfill the kynges pleasure. So when he came to Jerusalem, and was louyngly receaued of the hye preest in to the cite: he tolde what was determed con-nynge the moneye, and shewed the cause of his commynge: he axed also, yf it were so in dede. Then the hye preest tolde him, that there was soch money layed vp for the vpholdinge of weddowes and fatherlesse childrē, and how that a certayne of it belonged vnto Hyrcanus Tobias a nobleman: and that of all the moneye (which that wicked Symon had bewrayed) there were iiij. hundreth talentes of syluer, and ij. hundreth of golde: yee & that it were vnpossible for those mens meanynge to be disceaued, that had layed vp their moneye in the place and temple (which is had in worshipe thorow the whole worlde) for the mayntenaunce and honoure of ỹ same. Whervnto Heliodorus answered, ỹ the kynge had commaunded him in eny wyse, to brynge him the moneye.

C So at the daye appoynted, Heliodorus entred into the temple to ordre this matter. But there was no small feare thorow out the whole cite. The prestes fell downe before the aulter in their vestimentes, and called vnto heauen vpon him, which had made a lawe concernynge stuffe geuen to kepe, that they shulde be safely preserued, for soch as cōmitte them vnto kepynge. Then who so had loked the hye preest in the face, it wolde haue grened his herte: for his countenaunce and the chaunginge of his coloure, declared the inwarde sorowe of his mynde. The mā was all in heynesse, and his body in feare: wherby they that loked vpon him, might perceaue the grefe of his herte. The other people also came out of their houses by heapes vnto the comon prayer, because the place was like to come in to confucion. The women came together thorow the stretes, with hayrie cloches about their brestes.

d The virgins also that were kepte in, ranne to Onias, some to the walles, other some loked out at the wyndowes: yee they all held vp their hondes towarde heauē, & prayed. A miserable thinge was it, to loke vpon the comon people, & the hye preest beynge in soch trouble. But they besought Almightie God, that the goodes which were committed vnto thē, might be kepte whole, for those that had delinered them vnto their kepynge. Nevertheles the thinge that Heliodorus was determed to do, that perfourmed he in the same place, he him self personally beynge about the treasury with his men of warre. But the spirite of Allmightie God shewed him self openly, so that all they which presumed to abeye Heliodorus, fell thorow ỹ power of God in to a greate fearfulnesse & drede. For there apeared vnto them an horse, with a terrible man sytting vpon him, decked in goodly araye, and the horse smote at Heliodorus with his fore fete. Now he that sat vpon ỹ horse, had harnesse of golde vpon him. 2 Ma. 10. and 11. b

Moreouer there apeared ij. fayre and bewtifull yonge men in goodly araye, which stode by him, scourged him of both the sydes, & gaue him many stripes without ceassinge. With that, fell Heliodorus sodenly vnto the grounde. So they toke him vp (beynge compased aboute with greate darcknesse) and bare him out vpō a beare. Thus he that came with so many runners and men of warre into ỹ sayde treasury, was borne out, where as no man might helpe him: and so the power of God was manifest and knowne. He laye still domme also by the power of God, destitute of all hope and life. And they praysed the LORDE, that he had shewed his power vpon his place and temple, which a litle afore was full of feare & trouble: and that thorow the reuelacion of the Allmightie LORDE it was fylled with ioye and gladnesse. 2. Mac. 3. c

Thē certaine of Heliodorus frēdes prayed Onias, that in all haist he wolde call vpon God, to graunte him his life, which was geuynge vp the goost. So the hye preest considered the matter, and lest the kynge shulde suspecte that the Jewes had done Heliodorus some euell: he offred an healthofferynge for him. Now whē ỹ hye preest had opteyned his peticion, the same yonge mē in the same clothinge apeared, & stode besyde Heliodorus, sayenge: Thanke Onias ỹ hye preest, for for his sake hath ỹ LORDE graunted the ỹ life: therfore seynge ỹ God hath scourged ỹ, geue him prayse & thankes, and shewe euery man his might & power. And whē they had spoken these wordes, they apeared nomore. Act. 27. c

So Heliodorus offred vnto God, made greate vowes vnto him which had graūted him his life, thāked Onias, toke his hoost, & wēte againe to ỹ kinge. Thē testified he vnto euery mā, of ỹ greate workes of God, ỹ he had sene wt his eyes. And whē the kynge axed Heliodorus who were mete to be sent yet once agayne to Jerusalem, he sayde: Yf thou hast eny enemy or aduersary vnto thy realme, sende him thither, & thou shalt haue him punished, yf he escape wt his life: for in ỹ place (no doute) there is a speciall power & workinge of God. For he ỹ dwelleth in heauē, vysiteth & defendeth ỹ place: & all ỹ come to do it harme, he punysheth & plageth thē. This is now ỹ matter cōcerninge Heliodorus, & ỹ kepinge of ỹ treasury at Jerusalē.

The iiij. Chapter.

A .Ma.5.a THis Symon now (of whom we spake afore) beynge a bewrayer of the money and of his owne naturall countre, reported the worst of Onias: as though he had moued Heliodorus vnto this, and as though he had bene a brynger vp of euell. Thus was he not ashamed to call him an enemie of ỹ realme, that was so faithfull an ouerseer & defender of the cite & of his people: yee & so feruent in the lawe of God. But when the malice of Symon increased so farre, ỹ thorow his frendes there were certayne manslaughters cõmitted: Onias considered the parell ỹ might come thorow this strife, and how that Appollonius (namely the chefe lorde in Celosyria and Phenices) was all set vpon tyranny, and Symons malice increased the same: He gat him to the kynge, not as an accuser of the citesyns, but as one that by him self intended the comon wealth of the whole multitude. For he sawe it was not possible to lyue in peace, nether Symon to leaue of from his foolishnesse, excepte the kynge dyd loke therto.

B But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus (which is called the noble) toke ỹ kyngdome: Jason the brother of Onias laboured to be hye prest: For he came vnto the kynge, and promised him thre hundreth & lx. talentes of syluer, & of the other rētes lxxx. talentes. Besydes this he promised him yet an C. & L, yf he might haue ỹ scole of ỹ children, and that he might call them of Jerusalem Antiochians. Which when the kynge had graunted, & he had gotten the superiorite: he begāne immediatly to drawe his kinsmen to the custome of the heithen, put downe the thinges, that the Jewes had set vp of loue, by Jhon the father of Eupolemius (which was sent embassitoure vnto Rome, for to make the bonde of frendshipe and loue.) He put downe all the Jawes & Lyberties of the Jewes, and set vp wicked statutes. He durst make a fightinge scole vnder ỹ castell, and set fayre yonge men to lerne the maners of whores and brodels.

C This was now the begynnynge of the heithenish & straunge cõuersacion, brought in thorow the vngracious and vnherde wickednesse of Jason (which shulde not be called a prest, but an vngodly personne.) In so moch, that the prestes were now nomore occupide aboute the seruyce of the aulter, but despysed the temple, regarded not the offrynges: yee gaue their diligēce to lerne to fight, to wrestle, to leape, to daunce, & to put at ỹ stone: not settynge by ỹ hons of ỹ fathers, but liked ỹ glory of the Grekes best of all: for the which they strous perlously, and were redy to folowe their statutes, yee their lust was in all thinges to be like thē, which afore were their enemies & destroyers. Howbeit to do wickedly agaynst ỹ lawe of God, shal not escape vnpunyshed: but of this we shal speake here after.

D What tyme as the Olympiades were played at Tyrus (the kynge him self beinge presente) this vngracious Jason sent wicked men, bearinge from them of Jerusalem (which now were called Antiochians) iij. C. drachmas of syluer for an offeryng to Hercules. These had they that caried them, desyred vnder soch a fashiō, as though they shulde not haue bene offred, but bestowed to other vses. Nevertheles he that sent them, sent them to the intent that they shulde be offred vnto Hercules. But because of those that were present, they were geuen as to the makynge of shippes. And Appollonius the sonne of Nestens was sent in to Egipte, because of the noble men of kynge Ptolomy Philometor. Now when Antiochus perceaued ỹ he was put out from medlinge in the realme, he sought his owne profit, departed from thence, came to Joppa, & then to Jerusalem: where he was honorably receaued of Jason & the cite, & was brought in w̄ torche light and with greate prayse: and so he turned his hoost vnto Phenices.

After iij. yeare Jason sent Menelaus (the fore sayde Symons brother) to beare the money vnto ỹ kynge, & to bringe him answere of other necessary matters. But he (when he was praysed of ỹ kynge for magnifienge of his power) turned ỹ hye prestlode vnto him self, layenge vp iij. C. talētes of syluer for Jason. So whē he had gotten cōmaundemēts from ỹ kynge, he came, hauinge nothinge ỹ becōmeth a prest, but bearinge ỹ stomack of a cruell tyraunte, & the wrath of a wylde bute beest. Then Jason (which had disceaued his owne brother) seynge ỹ he him self was begyled also, was fayne to flie in to ỹ lōde of ỹ Ammonites, & Menelaus gat ỹ dominiō. But as for ỹ moneye ỹ he had promised vnto the kynge, he dyd nothinge therin, wher Sostratus the ruler of ỹ castell requyred it of him. (For Sostratus was the man, ỹ pu thered ỹ customes) wherfore they were both called before the kynge. Thus was Menelaus put out of ỹ prestlode, & Lysimachus his brother came in his steade. Sostratus also was made lorde of the Cyprians.

G It happened in ỳ meane seaſon, ỳ ỳ Tharſians ⁊ Mallocians made inſurrecīō, becauſe they were geuen for a preſent vnto ỳ kynge Antiochus concubyne. Then came ỳ kinge in all ỳ haiſt, to ſtill them agayne and to paſſie the matter, leauynge Andronicus there to be his debyte, as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus ſuppoſinge that he had gotten a right conuenient tyme, ſtole certayne veſſels of golde out of the temple, and gaue thē to Andronicus for a preſent: and ſome he ſolde at Tyrus and in the cities therby.

Which when Onias knewe of a ſuertye, he reproued him: but he kepte him in a ſanctuary beſyde Daphnis, that lyeth by Antioche. Wherfore Menelaus gat him to Andronicus, and prayed him that he wolde ſlaye Onias. So when he came to Onias, he counceled him craftely to come out of the ſanctuary, geuynge him his honde with an ooth (how be it he ſuſpecte him) and thē he ſlewe Onias, without eny regarde of righteouſneſſe. For the which cauſe not only the Jewes, but other nacions alſo toke indignacion, and were diſpleaſed for the vnrighteous death of ſo godly a man.

G And when the kynge was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes and certaine of the Grekes wente vnto him, complayninge for the vnrighteous death of Onias. Yee Antiochus himſelf alſo was ſory in his mynde for Onias, ſo ỳ it pitied him, and he wepte, remembringe his ſoberneſſe and manerly behauoure. Wherfore he was ſo kyndled in his mynde, ỳ he cōmaunded Andronicus to be ſtriped out of his purple clothinge, ⁊ ſo to be led thorow out all the cite, yee and ỳ vngracious man to be ſlayne in ỳ ſame place, where he committed his wickednes vpon Onias. Thus ỳ LORDE rewarded him his punyſhment, as he had deſerued. Now when Lyſimachus had done many wycked dedes in ỳ temple thorow the councell of Menelaus, and the voyce came abrode: the multitude gathered thē together agayn̄ſt Liſimachus, for he had caried out now moch golde.

So when the people aroſe and were full of diſpleaſure, Liſimachus armed iij. M. vnthriftes to defende him: a certayne tyraunte beynge their captayne, which was growen both in age ⁊ woodneſſe. But when the people vnderſtode the purpoſe of Lyſimachus, ſome gat ſtones, ſome good ſtronge clubbes, ⁊ ſome caſt aßſhes vpon Liſimachus. Thus there were many of thē wounded, ſome beynge ſlayne, ⁊ all the other chaced awaye. But as for ỳ wicked churchrobber himſelf, they kylled him beſyde the treaſury. Of theſe matters therfore there was kepte a courte agayn̄ſt Menelaus.

Now when ỳ kinge came to Tyrus, they made a cōplaynte vnto him of Menelaus, concerninge this buſyneſſe, ⁊ ỳ embaſſitours were thre. But Menelaus wente ⁊ promiſed Ptolomy to geue him moch money, yf he wolde perſuade the kynge. So Ptolomy wēte to the kinge in to a courte (where as he was ſet to coole him) ⁊ brughte him out of ỳ mynde In ſo moch ỳ he diſcharged Menelaus frō ỳ accuſacions, ỳ not withſtondinge was cauſe of all myſchefe: and thoſe poore men (which yf they had tolde their cauſe, yee before the Scythians, they ſhulde haue be iudged inno cēt) thē he cōdēned to death. Thus were they ſoone punyſhed, which folowed vpō ỳ matter for ỳ cite, for ỳ people, ⁊ for ỳ holy veſſell. Wherfore they of Tyrus toke indignacion, ⁊ buried thē honorably. And ſo thorow ỳ couetouſneſſe of them that were in power, Menelaus remayned ſtill in authorite, increaſinge in malyce, to the hurte of the citeſyns.

The V. Chapter.

AT ỳ ſame tyme Antiochus made him ready to go againe in to Egipte. Thē were there ſene at Jeruſalem (xl. dayes lōge) horſmē runninge to and fro in the ayre, which had rayment of golde, ⁊ ſpeares. There were ſene alſo whole hooſtes of mē weapened, ⁊ horſes runnynge in an ordre, how they came together, how they helde forth their ſhildes, how ỳ harneſſed men drew out their ſwordes, ⁊ ſhot their dartes. The ſhyne of ỳ goldē weapēs was ſene, ⁊ of all maner of armure. Wherfore euery mā prayed, ỳ thoſe tokens might turne to good. Now whē there was gone forth a falſe rumō, as though Antiochus had bene deed: Jaſon toke a M. mē, ⁊ came ſodēly vpō ỳ cite. The citeſyns rāne vnto ỳ walles, at ỳ laſt was ỳ cite taken, and Menelaus fled in to the caſtell.

As for Jaſon, he ſpared not his owne citeſyns in the ſlaughter, nether conſidered he what greate euell it were, to deſtroye ỳ proſperite of his owne kynſmen: but dyd as one that had gotten the victory of his enemies, and not of his frendes. For all this gatt he not the ſuperiorite, but at the laſt receaued confucion for his malice, and fled agayne like a vagabunde in to the londe of the Ammonites. Fynally (for a reward of his wickedneſſe) he was accuſed before Aretha the kynge of the Arabians: In ſo moch that he was fayne to fle from cite to cite, beynge deſpyſed of euery man as a forſaker of the lawes, and an abhominable personne. And at ỳ last (as an open enemy of his owne naturall countre and of the citesyns,) he was dryuen in to Egipte.

Thus he ỳ afore put many out of their owne natyue londe, perysshed from home him self. He wente to Lacedemon, thinkinge there to haue gotten socoure by reason of kynrede. And he that afore had casten many one out vnburied, was throwen out him self, no man mournynge for him, ner puttinge him in his graue: so that he nether enioyed ỳ buriall of a straunger, nether was he partaker of his fathers sepulcre.

C Now when this was done the kinge suspecte, ỳ the Jewes wolde haue fallen from him: wherfore he came in a greate displeasure out of Egipte, & toke the cite by violence. Mac. 1.c He comaunded his men of warre also, that they shulde kyll & not spare, but slaye downe soch as ỳ stode them, or clymmed vp vpō ỳ houses. Thus was there a greate slaughter of yonge men, olde men, women, children and virgins. In iij. dayes were there slayne lxxx.M, fourty thousande put in preson, & no lesse solde. Yet was he not cōtent ỳ this, but durst go in to the most holy temple (Menelaus that traytoure to ỳ lawes & to his owne naturall countre, beynge his gyde) & with his wicked hondes toke ỳ holy vessell, which other kynges & cities had geuen thither for ỳ garnishinge & honō of ỳ place: thē toke he in his hōdes vnworthely, & defyled them.

D So madd was Antiochus, that he considered not, how that God was a litle wroth for the synnes of them that dwelt in the cite, for the which soch confucion came vpon dit.5.d that place. And why? yf it had not happened them to haue bene lapped in many synnes, this Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had sodenly bene punished, and shot out Ma.3.d for his presumpciō: like as Heliodorus was, whom Seleucus the kynge sente to robbe ỳ treasury. Nevertheles God hath not chosen the people for the places sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therfore is the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but afterwarde shall it enioye the wealth of them. And like as it is now forsaken in the wrath of allmighty God, so when the greate God is reconcyled, it shal be set vp in hye worshipe agayne.

So when Antiochus had taken a M. and E viij.C. talentes out of the temple, he gat him to Antioche in all the haist, thinkinge in his pryde, that he might make mē sale vpon the drye londe, and to go vpon ỳ see, soch an hye mynde had he. He lefte debites there to vexe the people: At Jerusalem left he Philippe a Phrigian, in maners more cruell thē himself ỳ set him there: At Garisim he left Andronicus & Menelaus, which were more greuous to the citisyns then other. Now as he was thus set in malyce agaynst ỳ Jewes, he sent 1.Mac. Appollonius an hated prynce, wh xxij.M. cō maundinge him to slaye all those ỳ were of perfecte age, and to sell the womē, maydes & children. When he came now to Jerusalem, he fained peace, & kepte him still vntill ỳ Sabbath daye. And then he cōmaunded his men to take them to their weapens (for ỳ Jewes kepte holy daye) and so he slewe all them ỳ were gone forth to the open playe, runninge here and there thorow the cite with his men wapened, and murthured a greate nembre. But Judas Machabeus which was the tenth, fled in to the wylderneese, led his life there with his company amonge the wylde beestes and vpon the mountaynes: dwellinge there and eatinge grasse, lest they shulde be partakers of the fylthynesse. 1.Mac.

The VI. Chapter.

I NOt longe after this, sent the kynge a messaunger of Antioche, for to compell ỳ Jewes to altre ỳ ordinaunces of ỳ fathers & the lawe of God, to defyle the temple ỳ was at Jerusalem, & to call it the tēple of Jupiter Olimpius: & ỳ they shulde be in Gazarim, as those which dwell at ỳ place of Jupiter the harberous. This wicked sedicīō of ỳ vngodly was heuy vpon all ỳ people: For ỳ temple was full of volyptuousnes bebbinge & bollinge of ỳ heithē, of ribaudes & harlottes together. The womē wente in to ỳ holy place, & bare in that was not lawfull. The aulter also was full of vnlawfull thinges, which ỳ lawe forbyddeth to laye vpō it. The Sabbathes were not kepte, the other solempne feastes of ỳ londe were not regarded To be plaine, there durst no mā be a knowne that he was a Jewe.

In the daye of the kynges byrth they were compelled per force to offre: & when ỳ feast of Bachus was kepte, they were cõstrayned to were garlandes of yven, and so to go a-boute for the honoure of Bachus.

Moreover thorow the councell of Ptolomy, there wente out a commaundement in ỳ nerte cities of the heithen, ỳ they shulde intreate the Jewes in like maner: namely, to cõpell thẽ for to do sacrifice after ỳ lawes of ỳ Gentiles: and who so wolde not, to put them to death. A piteous thinge was it to se. There were ij. women accused to haue circumcided their sonnes, whom when they had led rounde aboute the cite (the babes hanginge at their brestes) they cast them downe headlinges ouer the walles. Some ỳ were crepte into dennes and had kepte the Sabbath, were accused vnto Philippe, and brent in the fyre: because that for the feare of God they kepte the commaũdement so stiffly, and wolde not defende them selues.

Now I beseke all those which reade this boke, that they refuse it not for these falles of aduersite: & iudge the thinges (ỳ are happened) for no destruccion, but for a chastenynge of ỏ people. And why: Whẽ God suffreth not synners longe to folowe their owne mynde, but shortly punysheth them, it is a tokẽ of his greate louynge kyndnes. For this grace haue we of God more then other people, ỳ he suffreth not vs longe to synne vnpunyshed like other nacions, that when the daye of iudgment commeth, he maye punysh thẽ in the fulnes of their synnes. Yf we synne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdraweth his mercy frõ vs: & though he punysheth aduersite, yeth doth he neuer forsake his people. But let this that we haue spokẽ now wt few wordes, be for a warninge & exortaciõ of ỳ heithẽ. Now wil we come to the declaringe of the matter. Eleazar one of ỳ principall scribes, an aged mã & of a welfauored coũtenaũce, was cõstrained to gape wt opẽ mouth & to eate swynes flesh. But he desyringe rather to dye gloriously thẽ to liue wt shame, offred himself willigly to ỳ martirdome. Now whẽ he sawe ỳ he must nedes go to it, he toke it paciẽtly: for he was at a poynte wt himself, ỳ he wolde consente to no vnlaufull thynge for eny pleasure of life. They ỳ stode by beyng moued wt pyte (but not a right) for ỳ olde frendshipe of the man, toke him aside priuely and prayed him ỳ he wolde let soch flesh be brought him as were laufull to eate, & thẽ to make a coũtenaũce as though he had eaten of ỳ flesh of ỳ sacrifice like as the kynge commaunded, for so he might be delyuered from death: & so for the olde frendshipe of ỳ man, they shewed him this kindnes. But he beganne to considre his discrete and honorable age, his noble and worshipfull stocke, and how ỳ frõ his youth vp he had bene of an honest and good conuersacion, yee & how constantly he had kepte ỳ ordinaunces and lawes commaũded by God, wherfore he gaue them this answere, and sayde:

Yet had I rather first be layed in my graue. For it becommeth not myne age (sayde he) in eny wyse to dyssemble, wherby many yonge persõnes might thinke, that Eleazar beinge lxxx. yeare olde and ten, were now gone to a straunge lyfe: and so thorow myne ypocrisy (for a litle tyme of a transitory life) they might be disceaued: by this meanes also shulde I defyle myne age, & make it abhominable. For though I were now delyuered from the tormentes of men, yet shulde I not escape the honde of allmightie God, nether alyue ner deed. Wherfore I will dye manfully, & do as it becommeth myne age: Wherby I maie peraduenture leaue an exãple of stedfastnesse for soch as be yonge, yf I wt a ready mynde & manfully dye an honest death, for the most worthy and holy lawes. 1. Tess. 5. c Amos. 3. a

When he had sayde these wordes, immediatly he was drawen to the tormẽte. Now they that led him and were mylde a litle afore, beganne to take displeasure, because of the wordes ỳ he sayde: for they thought he had spokẽ them of an hye mynde. But whẽ he was in his martirdome, he mourned and sayde: Thou (O LORDE) which hast the holy knowlege, knowest openly: that where as I might be delyuered frõ death, I suffre these sore paynes of my body: but in my mynde I am wel contente to suffre them, because I feare the. Thus this man dyed, leauynge ỳ memoriall of his death for an example, not only vnto yonge men, but vnto all ỳ people, to be stedfast and manly.

The VII. Chapter.

It happened also that there were vij brethren (with their mother) taken, & compelled by the kynge agaynst the lawe, to eate swynes flesh: namely wt scourges and lethren whippes. And one of them which was ỳ chefe, sayde: What sekest thou, and what requyrest thou of vs? As for vs, we are ready rather to suffre death, then to offende the lawes of God and the fathers. Then was the kynge angrie, and bad heate cauldrons and brasen pottes. Which when they were made hote, immediatly Luk. 11. a he commaunded ye tonge of him that spake first, to be cut out, to pull the strynne ouer his heade, to payre of the edges of his handes and fete: yee and that in the sight of his mother and the other of his brethren. Now when he was cleane marred, he commaunded a fyre to be made, & so (whyle there was eny breath in him) to be fryed in the caudron. In the which when he had bene longe payned, the other brethen with their mother exorted him to dye manfully, sayenge: The LORDE God shal regarde the treuth, and comforte vs, like as Moses testifieth and declareth Deut. 32. e in his songe, sayenge: and he wyl haue compassion on his seruauntes.

B So whē the first was deed after this maner, they brought the seconde to haue him in derision, pulled the strynne with the hayre ouer his heade, and axed him, yf he wolde eate swynes flesh, or he were payned in ye other membres also thorow out his body. But he answered boldly, and sayde: I will not do it. And so was he tormented like as ye first. And whē he was enē at ye geuinge vp of ye goost, he sayde: Thou most vngracious personne putteste vs now to death, but the kynge of ye worlde shall rayse vs vp (which dye for his lawes) in ye resurreccion of euerlastinge life.

After him, was the thirde had in derision: and when he was requyred, he putt out his tonge, and that right soone, holdinge forth his hondes manfully, and spake with a stedfast faith: These haue I of heauē, but now for the lawe of God I despyse them: for my trust is, that I shall receaue them of him agayne. In so moch that the kynge and they which were with him, marueled at the yonge mans boldnesse, that he nothinge regarded the paynes.

C Now when he was deed also, they vexed the fourth with tormentes in like maner. So when he was now at his death, he sayde: It is better that we beynge put to death of mē, haue oure hope and trust in God, for he shal Ioh. 5. c rayse vs vp agayne. As for the, thou shalt haue no resurreccion to life.

And when they had spoken to the fifth, they tormēted him. Then loked he vnto ye kinge, & sayde: Thou hast power amōge mē (for thou art a mortall man also ye self) to do what thou wilt, but thinke not, ye God hath forsaken o' generacion. Abyde the, tary styll a whyle, & thou shalt se the greate power of God, how he wil punysh the & thy sede.

After him they brought the sixte, which beynge at the poynte of death, sayde: Be not disceaued (o kynge) for this we suffre for oure owne sakes, because we haue offended oure God, & therfore marvelous thinges are shewed vpon vs. But thinke not thou (which takest in honde to stryue agaynst God) that thou shalt escape vnpunyshed.

This excellent mother (worthy to be well D reported of, and had in remembraunce) sawe hir seuen sonnes dye in one daye, and suffred it paciētly, because of the hope that she had in God: Yee she exorted euery one of them in especiall, and that boldly and stedfastly, with parfite wysdome, makynge vp hir wymysh thought with a manly stomacke, and sayde vnto them: I can not tell how ye came in my wombe, for I nether gaue you breth ner soule, no ner life. It is not I ye ioyned ye mēbres of yo' bodies together, but ye maker of ye worlde, which fashioned ye byrth of mā, & begāne all thinges. Euen he also of his owne mercy shall geue you breath and life agayne, like as ye now regarde not youre owne selues for his lawes sake.

Now thought Antiochus that she had despysed him, therfore he let her go with hir reprowes, and beganne to exorte the yongest sonne (which yet was left) not only wt wordes but swore vnto him wt an ooth, ye he shulde make him a rich & welthy man (yf he wolde forsake ye lawes of his fathers) yee and ye he shulde geue him, what so euer were necessary for him. But whē the yonge man wolde not E be moued, for all these thinges, he called his mother, & counceled her to saue hir sonnes life. And when he had exorted her with many wordes, she promised him, that she shulde speake vnto hir sonne. So she turned her vnto him (laughinge ye cruell tyraunte to scorne) & spake wt a boylde voyce: O my sonne, haue pite vpon me, ye bare ye .ix. monethes in my wombe, that gaue the sucke, norished the and brought the vp vnto this age. I beseke the (my sonne) loke vpon heauen and earth and all that is therin, and considre, that God made them and mans generacion of naught: so shalt thou not feare this hangman, but suffre death stedfastly, like as thy brethren haue done: that I maye receaue the agayne in the same mercy with thy brethren.

Whyle she was yet speakynge these wordes, the yonge man sayde: Whom loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wil not obeye the kynges commaundement, but the lawe that Lat. Deu. God gaue vs by Moses. As for the that ymagineste all myscheefe agaynst the Jewes, thou shalt not escape the honde of God: for we suffre these thinges, because of oure synnes.

I And though God be angrie with vs a little whyle (for ỏ chastenynge & reformacion,) yet shal he be at one agayne wt his seruauntes. But thou, (O shamefull & most abhominable personne,) pryde not thy self thorow vayne hope, in beynge so malicious vpon ỳ seruauntes of God: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgmẽt of the God, which is all mighty, & seyth all thinges. My brethren ỳ haue suffred a litle payne, are now vnder the couenaunt of euerlastinge life: but thorow the iudgment of God, thou shalt be punyshed righteously for thy pryde.

As for me (like as my brethrẽ haue done) I offre my soule & my body for ỳ lawes of ỏ fathers, callinge vpon God, ỳ he will soone be mercifull vnto ỏ people: yee & wt payne & punyshment to make the graunde, ỳ he only is God. In me now & in my brethrẽ ỳ wrath of allmighty God is at an ende, which righteously is fallẽ vpon all ỏ people. Then ỳ kynge beynge kyndled in anger, was more cruell vpon him then vpon all ỳ other, & toke indig-nacio, ỳ he was so lightly regarded. So this yonge mã dyed vndefiled, & put his trust stil in ỳ LORDE. Last of all after ỳ sonnes, was ỳ mother put to death also. Let this now be ynough spoken, concernynge ỳ offringes, & extreme cruelnesse. The VIII. Chapter.

A Then Judas Machabeus and they ỳ were wt him, wẽte prively in to ỳ townes, called their kinsfolkes & fren-des together, toke vnto them all soch as contynued yet in the faith & lawe of ỳ Jewes, and brought forth vj. M. men. So they called vpon the LORDE, ỳ he wolde haue an eye vnto his people, which was trodde downe of every mã: to be gracious vnto ỳ tẽple, ỳ was defyled of the vngodly: to haue cõpas-sion vpon ỳ destruccion of the cite, (which was shortly like to be laied waist) to heare ỳ voyce of ỳ blonde ỳ cried vnto him: to remẽ-bre ỳ most vnrighteous deathes of yonge innocent children, the blasphemies also done vnto his name, & to punysh thẽ. Now whẽ B Machabeus had gathered this multitude together, he was to mightie for the Heithen (for ỳ wrath of ỳ LORDE was turned in to mercy) he fell vpon the townes & cities vna-wares, brent them, toke the most cõmodious places, & slewe many of the enemies. But specially he made soch chases by night, in so much that his manlynesse was spoken of every where.

D So when Philippe sawe that the man increased by litle and litle, and that the matter prospered with him for the most parte: he wrote vnto Ptolomy (which was a captay-ne in Celosiria & Phenices) helpe him in ỳ kinges busynes. Thẽ sent he Nicanor Patrocli 1.Mac.3.e (a speciall frende of his) in all ỳ haist, & gaue him of ỳ comon sorte of the Heithen no lesse then xx. M. harnessed men, to rote out ỳ whole generacion of the Jewes, havinge to helpe him one Gorgias a man of warre, which in matters concernynge battayls had greate experience. Nicanor ordened also the tributs (which the Romaynes shulde haue had) to be geuen vnto the kynge, out of the captiuy-te of the Jewes, namely ij. M. talentes. And immediatly he sent to ỳ cities of ỳ see coost, requyringe thẽ for to bye Jewes to be their seruauntes & bonde men, promisynge to sell them lxxx. and ten for one talente: but he considered not the wrath of allmighty God, ỳ was to come vpon him.

When Judas knewe of this, he tolde the C Jewes ỳ were wt him, of Nicanors cõmyn-ge. Now were there some of them fearfull, not trustinge vnto the righteousnes of God and fled their waye. But the other ỳ remaynned, came together & besoughte the LORDE, to delyuer thẽ frõ ỳ wicked Nicanor, which had solde thẽ or ever he came nye them: and though he wolde not do it for their sakes, yet for the couenaunt that he made wt their fathers, & because they called vpon his holy & glorious name. And so Machabeus called 1.Mac.3.b his men together, namely aboute vi. M. exor-tinge them not to agree vnto their enemies, nether to be afrayed for ỳ multitude of their Deut.20.a aduersaries cõmynge agaynst them vnright- 2.Pa.20.c eously: but to fight manly, considerynge ỳ reprofe that they had done to the holy places without cause, how they had despysed and oppressed the cite, yee and destroyed ỳ lawes of the fathers. For they (sayde he) trust in Ier.17.b their weapens and boldnesse, but oure con- Psal.19.b fidence is in the allmighty LORDE, which in the twincklinge of an eye maye both de-stroye them that come agaynst vs, and all the worlde.

He exorted them also to call to remẽbra- D ce the helpe, that God shewed vnto their fathers: as whẽ there perished an C. & lxxv M 4.Reg.19.g of Sennacheribs people: And of ỳ battaill ỳ Esa.37.f
they had in Babilõ agaynst ỳ Galacians: 1.Mac.7.e how ỳ all the Macedonias ỳ came to helpe thẽ, stode in feare: & how they beynge but only vj. M. slewe an C. & xx. M. thorow ỳ help ỳ was geuen them from heauen, wherby they also had receaued many benefites.

Thorow these wordes ỳ mẽ toke good her-tes vnto thẽ, ready to dye for the lawe & the coũtre. So he set vpon euery cõpany a captayne, one of his owne brethren: Simon, Joseph and Jonathas: geuynge ech one xv. C. men. He caused Esdras also to reade the holy boke vnto them, and to geue them a token of the helpe of God.

Then he himself beinge captaine in ỳ fore front of the battayll, buckled with Nicanor And God was there helpe, in so moch that they slewe aboue ix. M. mẽ & compelled ỳ more parte of Nicanors hoost to flẽ, they were so wounded and feable. Thus they toke the money from those that came to bye thẽ, and folowed vpon them on euery syde. But whẽ the tyme came vpon them, they returned, for it was the Sabbath, and therfore they folowed nomore vpon them. So they toke their weapens and spoyles & kepte the Sabbath, geuynge thankes vnto the LORDE, which had deliuered them that daye, and shewed them his mercy. After the Sabbath they distributed the spoyles to the sicke, to ỳ fatherlesse, and to wyddowes, and the residue had they them selues with theirs. Whẽ this was done, and they all had made a generall prayer: they besought the mercifull LORDE to be at one with his seruauntes.

Of those also that were with Timotheus and Bachides, which fought agaynst them, they slewe xx. M. wanne hye and stronge holdes, and deuided moo spoyles: euer geuynge an equall porcion vnto ỳ sicke, to ỳ fatherles to wyddowes & to aged persons. And when they had diligently gathered their weapẽs together, they layed them all in conuenient places, & the remnaunt of ỳ spoyles brought they to Jerusalem. They slewe Philarches that wicked personne, which was with Timotheus, and had vexed many Jewes. And when they helde the thankesgeuyng at Jerusalem for the victory, they brent those that had set fyre on the portes of the temple: namely Calisthenes, which was fled in to an house: and so they gat a worthy rewarde for their wickednesse. As for that most vngracious Nicanor, which had brought a thousande marchaũtes, to bye the Jewes, he was thorow ỳ helpe of the LORDE brought downe, euen of them whom he regarded not: in so moch that he put of his glorious raymẽt, fled by see, and came alone to Antioche to greate shame & dishonõ, which he gat thorow the destruccion of his hoost. Thus he ỳ promysed the Romaynes to paye thẽ their tribute, when he toke Jerusalem: beganne now to saye planely, that God was ỳ defender of the Jewes, & therfore not possible to wounde them, because they folowed ỳ lawes which God had made.

The IX. Chapter.

AT the same tyme came Antiochus agayne with dishonoure out of Persis. For when he came to Persepolis, and vndertoke to robbe the temple and to subdue the cite, the people ranne together and defended them selues, in so moch ỳ he and his were fayne to fle with shame. And so after that flight, it happened, that Antiochus came agayne with dishonoure. But when he came to Egbathana, he gat knowlege what was happened vnto Nicanor & Timotheus. Now as he was auaunceinge himself in his wrath, he thought he was able to auenge the iniury that was done to them, vpon the Jewes: and therfore commaunded to make ready his charet, haistinge on his iourney without ceassinge: the iudgmẽt of God prouokynge him, because he had spoke so proudly, that he wolde come to Jerusalem, and make it a graue of the Jewes. But the LORDE God of Israel, that seith all thinges, smote him with an invisible plage, which no man coude heale.

For as soone as he had spoken these wordes, there came vpon him an horrible payne of his bowels, & a sore grefe of the tharmes. And ỳ was but right: for he had martired other mens bowels with dyuerse and straige tormentes, how be it he wolde in no wyse ceasse from his malice. Nee he was yet the prouder, and more malicious agaynst the Jewes: But whyle he was commaundinge to make haist in the matter, it happened ỳ he fell downe violently from the charet, so ỳ it brussed his body, & dyd him great payne.

And so he that thought he mighte commaunde ỳ floudes of the see (so proude was he beyonde the condicio of man) and to weye the hye mountaynes in a payre of scoales, was now brought downe to the grounde, & caried vpon an horßlytter, knowlegynge ỳ manyfest power of God vpon him: so that ỹ wicked body of his was full of wormes, which in his payne fell quyck out of his flesh: In so moch ỹ his hoost was greued with the smell and stynck of him. Thus he that a litle afore thought he might reach to the starres of heauen, him might no man now abyde ner beare, for the vehemence of stynck.

C Therfore he beynge brought from his greate pryde, begāne for to come to ỹ knowlege of him self: for the punyshment of God warned him, & his payne increased euer more & more. And when he him self might not abyde his owne stynck, he sayde these wordes: It is reason to be obedient vnto God, & that a man desyre not to be like vnto him. This wicked personne prayed also vnto the LORDE, of whom he shulde haue optained no mercy. And as for the cite that he came vnto so haistely, to bringe it downe to the grounde, & to make it a graue for deed men: now he desyreth to delyuer it fre. And as tou chinge ỹ Jewes, whom he had iudged not worthy to be buried, but wolde haue cast thē out for to be deuoured of the foules and wyld beastes, sayenge, that he wolde haue destroyed both olde and yonge: Now he promiseth, to make thē like ỹ citesyns of Athens. And where as he had spoyled the holy temple afore, now he maketh promyse to garnish it with greate giftes, to increase the holy ornamētes, and of his owne rentes to bear the costes and charges belonginge to the offrynges: yee and that he wolde also become a Jewe him self, to go thorow euery place of the worlde, and to preach the power of God.

D But when his paynes wolde not ceasse, (for the righteous iudgmet of God was come vpon him) out of a very despayre he wrote vnto the Jewes a lettre of intercessiō, cōteyninge these wordes: The kynge and pryncē Antiochus wysheth vnto the vertuous citesyns of the Jewes, moch health and good prosperite.

If ye and youre children fare well, and yf all thinges go after youre mynde: we geue greate thankes. In my sickneſſe also do I remembre you louyngly: for as I came out of Persia, and was taken with sore disease, I thought it necessary to care for the comon wealth. Nether despare I in my self, but haue a good hope to escape this sicknes.

But considerynge that my father led an hoost some tyme in ỹ hyer places, & shewed who shulde raigne after him, that (yf there happened eny cōtrouersy, or eny harde thinge were declared,) they in the londe might knowe their chefe lorde, ỹ there shulde be no insurreccion: Agayne, when I ponder by my E self, how that all ỹ mightie men and neghbours rounde aboute, are layēge waite, and loke but for opportunyte to do harme: I haue ordened that my sonne Antiochus shall raigne after me, whom I oft commended to many of you, when I was in the hyer kyngdomes, and haue wrytten vnto him as it foloweth hereafter. Therfore I praye you and requyre you, to remembre the benefites that I haue done vnto you generally and in especiall. For I hope that he shall be of sober & louynge behauoure, and yf he folowe my deuyce, he shal be indifferent vnto you.

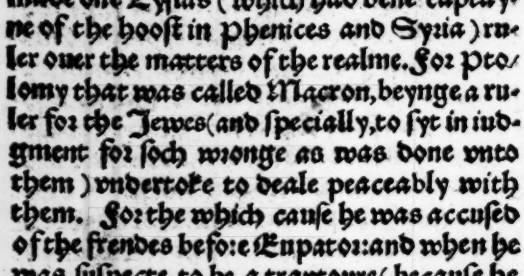
Thus that murthurer and blasphemer of Dan. 6 God was sore smytē: and like as he had intreated other men, so he dyed a myserable death in a straunge countre vpon a mountayne. And his body dyd Philippe (that wēte with him) cary awaye: which fearynge the sonne of Antiochus, wente in to Egipte to Ptolomy Philometor.

The X. Chapter.

MAchabeus now & his company (thorow the helpe of the LORDE) wanne the temple and the cite agayne, destroyed the aulters and chapels that the Heithē had buylded thorow the stretes: clensed the temple, made another aulter of bricke stone, and after ij. yeares they offered sacrifices, set forth the incense, the lightes and shewe bred. When that was done, they fell downe flat vpon the grounde, and besought the LORDE, that they might come nomore into soch trouble: but yf they synned eny more agaynst him, he him self to chasten them with mercy, and not to come in the hondes of those aleauntes and blasphemous men. A 1.Mac.4. Exo.30.

Now vpon the same daye that ỹ straungers poluted the temple, it happened that on the very same daye it was clensed agayne: namely, the xxiij. daye of the moneth called Casleu. They kepte viij. dayes in gladneſſe, like as in the feast of the tabernacles: remembringe that not longe afore, they held the feast of ỹ tabernacles vpon the mountaynes and in dennes like beastes. And to ỹ same token they bare grene bowes, braunches and palmes before him that had geuen them good fortune to clense his place. They agreed also together, and made a statute, ỹ euery yeare those dayes shulde be solemply kepte of all the people of the Jewes. 1.Mac.4. B

How Antiochus then (that was called the noble) dyed, it is sufficiently tolde. Now will we speake of Nicanor the sonne of that wicked Antiochus, how it happened with him: and so with few wordes to comprehende the aduersite that chaunsed in ỳ warres. When he had taken in the kyngdome, he made one Lysias (which had bene captayne of the hoost in Phenices and Syria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolomy that was called Macron, beynge a ruler for the Jewes (and specially, to syt in iudgment for soch wronge as was done vnto them) vndertoke to deale peaceably with them. For the which cause he was accused of the frendes before Eupator: and when he was suspecte to be a traytoure (because he had left Cypers, that Philometor had committed vnto him: and because he departed from noble Antiochus, that he was come vnto) he poysoned himself, and dyed.



Now when Gorgias was gouernoure of ehe same places, he toke straungers and vndertoke oft tymes to warre with ỳ Jewes. Moreuer the Idumeans that helde the strōge holdes, receaued those that were dryuen from Jerusalem, and toke in honde to warre also. But they that were with Machabeus, Mac.7.a besought and prayed vnto the LORDE, that he wolde be their helper: and so they fell in to the stronge holdes of the Idumeans, & wanne many places by strength: Soch as came agaynst them they slew, and kylled no lesse (of all together) then twentye thousande. Neuertheless some (no lesse then nyne thousande) were fled in to two stronge towres, hauynge all maner of ordinaunce to withstonde them.

Then Machabeus leauynge Symon, Josephus, Zachaus and those that were with them, (which were very many) wente to besege thē, and to fight where most nede was. Now they that were with Symon beynge led with couetousnesse, were intreated for money, thorow certayne of those that laye in the towers: toke lxx. M. drachmas, & let some of them escape: But when it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called ỳ captaynes of the people together, accusynge those persones, that they had solde the brethren for money, and let their enemies go. So he slewe those traytours, & immediatly wente in honde with the ij. towers. And when they had ordred them selues manly with their weapens & hondes, they slewe in ỳ two castels mo thē twētie thousande.

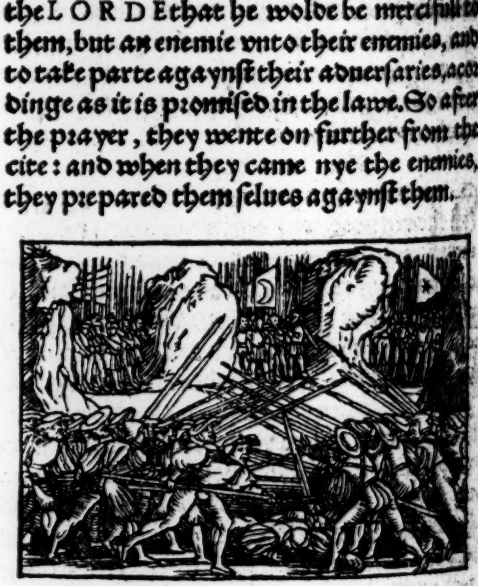
Now Timotheus whom the Jewes had ouercome afore, gathered a multitude of straunge people, brought an hoost also of horsmen of the Asians, to wynne Jewry by strength. But when he drewe nye, Machabeus and they that were wt him fell to their prayer, sprencled aßshes vpon their heades, beynge gyrded wt hayrie cloth aboute their loines, fel downe before ỳ aulter, & besoughte the LORDE that he wolde be mercifull to them, but an enemie vnto their enemies, and to take parte agaynst their aduersaries, according as it is promised in the lawe. So after the prayer, they wente on further from the cite: and when they came nye the enemies, they prepared them selues agaynst them.



And by tymes in the mournynge at ỳ breke of the daye, both the hoostes buckled together. The one parte had the LORDE for their refuge, which is the geuer of prosperite, strēgth and victory. The other had a mā lystomack, which is a captayne of warre.

The battayll now beynge greate, there apeared vnto the enemies from heauen v. men, vpon horsback with brydels of golde, ledinge the Jewes, and two of them hauynge Machabeus betwixte them, ỹ kepte him safe on euery syde wt their weapēs, but shot dartes and lightenynges vpon the enemies. where thorow they were confounded with blyndnesse and so sore afrayed, that they fell downe. There were slayne of fote men twen tythousande and fyue hundreth, and sixe hūdreth horsmen. As for Timotheus him self, he fled vnto Gazar a very strōge holde, wherin Cereas was captayne. But Machabeus and his company layed sege to it cherfully iiij. dayes. Now they that were within, trustinge to the strength of the place, cursed & banned exceadingly, and made greate crakynge with wicked wordes. Neuertheless vpon the fifth daye in the mornynge, xx. yonge men of Machabeus cōpany, beynge set on fyre in their myndes because of the blasphemy: came manfully vnto the wall, and with bolde stomackes they and their other companyons clymmed vp vpon the towres, vndertakynge to set fyre vpon the portes, & to burne those blasphemous personnes quycke. Two dayes were they destroyenge the castell, which when they founde Timotheus (that was crepte in to a corner) they kylled him, and slewe Cereas his brother in like maner with Appollophanes. When this was done, they sunge Psalmes, with prayses and thankesgeuynges vnto the LORDE, which had done so greate thinges for Jsrael, & geuen them the victory.

The XI. Chapter.

NOt longe after this, Lysias the kynges steward̄e and a kynsman of his, (which had the gouernaunce of his matters,) toke sore displeasure for the thinges that had happened: and when he had gathered lxxx. M. men of fote with all the hoost of the horsmen, he came agaynst the Jewes, thinkynge to wynne the cite, to make it an habitacion for the heithen, and the temple wolde he haue to be an house of lucre, like as the other goddes houses of the heithē are, & to sell ỹ prestes office euery yere: Not considerynge the power of God, but was wylde in his mynde, trustinge in ỹ multitude of fote mē, in thousandes of horsmē, and in his lxxx. Elephantes.

So he came in to Jewry & then to Bethsura (a castell of defence lyenge in a narow place, v. furlonges from Jerusalē) and wanne it. Now when Machabeus and his company knew that the stronge holdes were taken, they fell to their prayers with wepynge and teares before the LORDE: and all the people in like maner besought him, that he wolde sende a good angell to delyuer Jsrael. Machabeus him self was the first that made him ready to the battayll, exortynge the other that were with him, to ioperde them selues and to helpe their brethrē. And when they were goyenge forth of Jerusalem toge ther with a ready and wyllynge mynde, there apeared before thē vpon horsbacke a mā in whyte clothinge with harnesse of golde, shakinge his speare. Then they praysed ỹ LORDE all together, which had shewed them mercy, and were confor̄ted in their myndes: in so moch that they were ready, not only to fight with men, but with ỹ most cruell beestes, yee and to runne thorow walles of yron.

2.Mac.3.d

Thus they wente on wyllingly hauynge an helper from heauē, and the LORDE mercifull vnto them. They fell mightely vpon their enemies like lyons, brought downe xj. M. fote men, xvj. C. horsmen, put all ỹ other to flight, many of them beynge wounded, and some gat awaye naked. Yee Lysias him self was fayne to fle shamefully, and so to escape. Neuertheless̄e the man was not without vnderstondinge, but considered by him self that his power was myn̄shed, and pondred how ỹ Jewes beynge defended by the helpe of Allmighty God, were not able to be ouercome: wherfore he sent them worde, and promised, that he wolde consente to all thinges which were reasonable, and to make the kynge their frēde. To the which prayer of Lysias Machabeus agreed, sekynge in all thinges the comon wealth: and what so euer Machabeus wrote vnto Lysias cōcernynge the Jewes, the kynge graunted it. For there were lettres writtē vnto ỹ Jewes from Lysias contrynynge these wordes:

Lysias sendeth gretinge to the people of the Jewes. Jhon and Absalon which were sent from you, delyuered me wrytinges, and requyred me to fulfill the thinges concernynge their earande. Therfore loke what might be graunted, J certified ỳ kynge therof: and what so euer was conuenient, J agreed therto. Yf ye now wyll be faithfull in the matters, J shal endeuer my self hereafter also to do you good. As concernynge other thinges by euery article therof: J haue committed them to youre messaungers, and to those whom J sent vnto you, to comon with you of the same, fare ye well. In the hũdreth and xlviij. yeare, the xxiiij. daye of the moneth Dioscorinthius.

Now the kynges lettre conteyned these wordes: Kynge Antiochus sendeth gretinge vnto his brother Lysias. For so moch as oure father is now deed, oure wyll is, that they which are in oure realme, lyue without eny insurreccion, and euery man to be diligent in his owne matters. We vnderstonde also, that the Jewes wolde not consent to oure father, for to be brought vnto the custome of the Gentiles, but stiffly to kepe their owne statutes: for the which cause they requyre of vs also, to let them remayne still by their owne lawes. 2.Ma.9.b

Wherfore oure minde is, that this people shalbe in rest: we haue concluded and determed also, to restore them their temple agayne: that they maye lyue accordinge to the vse & custome of their forefathers. Thou shalt do vs a pleasure therfore, yf thou sende vnto them & agre with them: that when they are certified of oure mynde, they maye be of good chere, and loke to their owne wealth.

And this was the lettre, that the kynge wrote vnto the Jewes: Kynge Antiochus sendeth gretinge vnto the councell and the other people of the Jewes. Yf ye fare well, we haue oure desyre: as for vs, we are in good health. Menelaus came and tolde vs, how ỳ youre desyre was to come downe to youre people, which are with vs.

Wherfore those that wyll come, we geue them fre lyberte, vnto the xxx. daye of the moneth of Apryll, that they maye vse ỳ meates of the Jewes and their owne lawes, like as afore: and none of them by eny maner of wayes to haue harme, for thinges done in ignorance. Menelaus whom we haue sent vnto you, shal comon with you at large, fare ye well. In the Cxlviij. yeare, the xv. daye of the moneth of Apryll.

The Romaynes also sent a lettre, conteynynge these wordes: Quintus Memmius & Titus Manlius embassatours of the Romaynes, sende gretinge vnto the people of the Jewes. Loke what Lysias the kynges kynsman hath graunted you, we graunte you the same also. But as concernynge the thinges which he referred vnto the kynge, sende hither some with spede: and pondre the matter diligẽtly amonge youre selues, that we maye cast ỳ best to youre profite, for we must departe now vnto Antioche. And therfore wryte shortly agayne, that we maye knowe youre mynde. Fare well. In the hundreth xlviij. yeare, ỳ xv. daye of the moneth of Apryll.

The XII. Chapter.

When these couenauntes were made, Lysias wente vnto the kynge, and ỳ Jewes tylled their grounde. But Timotheus, Appollonius the sonne of Gemei, Jerome and Demophon ỳ proude, Nicanor ỳ captayne of Cypers, and they that laye in those places: wolde not let them lyue in rest and peace. They of Joppa also dyd euen soch a shamefull dede: They prayed ỳ Jewes that dwelt amõge them, to go with their wyues and children into the shippes which they had prepared, & dyd with them, as though they had ought them no euell wyll. For so moch then as there was gone forth a generall proclamaciõ throw ỳ citie because of peace, they consented therto, and suspecte nothinge: but when they were gone forth into the depe, they drowned no lesse then ij.C. of them.

Whẽ Judas knew of this cruelte shewed vnto his people, he commaunded those that were with him to make them ready, exortinge them to call vpon God the righteous iudge: wẽte forth agaynst those murthurers of his brethrẽ, set fyre in ỳ hauen by night, brent vp ỳ shippes, and those that escaped from the fyre, he slewe with the swerde. And when he had done this, he departed as though he wolde come agayne, and rose on all them of Joppa. But when he had geuen worde that the Jamnites were mynded to do in like maner vnto ỳ Jewes which dwelt amonge them, he came vpon the Jamnites by night, and set fyre in the hauen with the shippes: so that the light of the fyre was sene at Jerusalem, vpon a ij.C. & xl. furlonges.

Now when they were gone from thence ix. furlonges, in their iourney towarde Timotheus: v. thousande men of fote and v. hundreth horsmen of the Arabians fought with him. So when the batell was earneſt, and proſpered with Judas thorow the helpe of God: ỹ reſidue of the Arabians beyng ouercome, beſought Judas to be at one with them, and promiſed to geue him certayne paſtures, & to do him good in other thinges. Judas thynkynge that they ſhulde in dede be profitable concernynge many thynges, promiſed them peace: wherupon they ſhoke hondes, and ſo they departed to their tentes. Judas wente alſo vnto a cite, which was very faſt kepte w̄ brydges, fenſed rounde aboute with walles, & dyuerſe kyndes of people dwellinge therin, called Caſpin.

C They that were within it, put ſoch truſt in the ſtrength of the walles, & in their ſtoare of vytales: that they were the ſlacker in their doynges, curſinge and reuylinge Judas with blaſphemies, and ſpeakynge ſoch wordes as it becommeth not. But Machabeus callynge vpon the greate prynce of ỹ worlde (which without eny battayll rammes or ordinaunce of warre, dyd caſt downe the walles of Jericho, in the tyme of Joſue) fell manfully vpon the walles, toke the cite, and (thorow the helpe of the LORDE) made an exceadinge greate ſlaughter: In ſo moch that a lake of ij. furlōges brode which laye therby, ſemed to flowe with the blonde of the ſlayne.

Then departed they from thence vij. C. and L. furlonges, and came to Taraca vnto ỹ Jewes that are called Tubianei. But as for Timotheus, they coude not get him there: for (not one matter diſpatched,) he was departed from thence, and had lefte certayne men in a very ſtronge holde. But Doſitheus and Soſipater which were captaynes with Machabeus, ſlewe thoſe ỹ Timotheus had lefte in the houſe of defence, euen x. M. men. And Machabeus prepared him with ỹ vj. M. men ỹ were aboute him, ſet them in ordre by companies, and wente forth agaynſt Timotheus, which had with him an C. and xx. M. men of fote, ij. M. and v. C. horſme.

When Timotheus had knowlege of Judas commynge, he ſent the women, children and the other baggage vnto a caſtell called Carnion. (For it coude not be wonne, & was harde to come vnto, the wayes of the ſame places were ſo narow) and when Judas cōpany came firſt in ſight, the enemies were ſmytten with feare, thorow the preſence of God, which ſeyth all thinges: In ſo moch ỹ they fleynge one here, another there, were rather diſcomfited of their owne people, & woūded w̄ the ſtrokes of their owne ſwerdes. Judas alſo was very earneſt in folowinge vpon them and punyſhinge thoſe vngodly, and ſlewe xxx. M. men of them. Timotheus alſo himſelf fell in to the hondes of Doſitheus & Soſipater, whom he beſought with many prayers, to let him go with his life: because he had many of the Jewes fathers and brethren in preſon, which (yf they put him to death) might be diſapoynted. So when he had promiſed faithfully to delyuer them agayne acordinge to the condicion made, they let him go without harme, for the health of ỹ brethren. And when Judas had ſlayne xxv. M, he wente from Carnion. D Judit. 7. f. 1. Re. 14. 2. Pa. 20.

Now after ỹ he had chaſed awaye and ſlayne his enemies, he remoued the hooſt towarde Ephron a ſtrōge cite, wherin dwelt many dyuerſe people of the heithen, and ỹ ſtronge yonge men kepte the walles, defendinge thē mightely. In this cite was moch ordinaunce, and prouyſion of dartes. But when Judas and his company had called vpon Allmighty God, (which w̄ his power breaketh the ſtrength of the enemies) they wanne the cite, and ſlew xxv. M. of them ỹ were within. From thence wente they to the cite of the Scythians, which lieth vj. C. furlonges from Jeruſalem. But when ỹ Jewes which were in the cite teſtifiſed, that the cite ſyns dealte louyngly with them, yee and intreated them kyndly in ỹ tyme of their aduerſite, Judas and his company gaue them E 1. Mac. 5.

him (which made them his people, and euer defended his owne porcion with euydent tokens) that he wolde preserue them still. So at the commaundement of the captayne, they remoued from thence, and came to a towne called Dessasan. And Symon Judas brother fell in honde with Nicanor, but thorow the sodane commynge of the enemies, he was afrayed.

Nevertheles Nicanor hearinge the manlynes of them that were with Judas, and ȳ bolde stomackes that they had to fight for their naturall countre, durst not proue the matter with bloudsheddinge. Wherfore he sent Possidonius, Theodocius ⁊ Mathias before, to geue and to take peace. So when they had taken longe advysement there vpon, and the captayne shewed it vnto the multitude: they were agreed in one mynde, to haue peace. And they appoynted a daye to syt vpon these matters quyetly amonge them selues, ȳ stoles also were brought and set forth. Nevertheless Judas cōmaunded certaine men of armes to waite in conuenīēt places, lest there shulde sodenly arise eny euell thorow the enemies. And so they commoned reasonably together.

D Nicanor, whyle he abode at Jerusalem, ordred himself not vnreasonably, but sent awaye the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euer with his hert, and fauoured him. He prayed him also to take a wyfe, and to brynge forth children. So he maried, lyued in rest, and they led a comon life. But Alcimus perceaunynge the loue that was betwixte them, and how they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, and tolde him that Nicanor had taken straunge matters in honde, and ordened Judas (an enemy of the realme) to be the kynges successoure. Then the kinge was sore displeased, and thorow the wicked accusations which Alcimus made of Nicanor, he was so prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nicanor, sayenge: that he was very angrie for the frendshipe and agrement, which he had made with Machabeus. Nevertheles he commaunded him in all the haist, that he shulde take Machabeus presoner, and sende him to Antioche.

E Which lettres when Nicanor had sene, he was at his wittes ende, and sore greued, that he shulde breake the thinges, wherin they had agreed: specially, seynge Machabeus was the man, that never dyd him harme. But because he might not withstonde the kynge, he sought oportunite to fulfil his commaundement. Notwithstondinge when Machabeus sawe that Nicanor beganne to be churlish vnto him, and that he intreated him more rughly then he was wonte, he perceaued that soch vnkyndnes came not of good, and therfore he gathered a few of his men, and withdrewe himself frō Nicanor. Which when he knewe that Machabeus had manfully prevented him, he came in to the greate and most holy temple and commaunded the prestes (which were doynge their vsuall offeringes) to delyuer him the man. And when they sware that they coude not tell, where the mā was whō he sought, he stretched out his honde, and made an ooth, sayenge: Yf ye wyll not delyuer me Judas captyue, I shall remoue this temple of God in to the playne felde, I shal breake downe the aulter, and consecrate this tēple vnto Bachus. After these wordes he departed.

Then the prestes lift vp their hondes towarde heauen, and besought him that was euer the defender of their people, sayenge: Thou o LORDE of all, which hast nede of nothinge, woldest that the temple of thy habitacion shulde be amonge vs. Therfore now (o most holy LORDE) kepe this house euer vndefyled, which lately was clensed. Now was there accused vnto Nicanor, one Razis an Alderman of Jerusalem, a louer of the whole cite, and a man of good reporte which for the kynde hert that he bare vnto the people, was called a father of ȳ Jewes. This man oft tymes (when the Jewes were mynded to kepe them selues vndefyled) defended and delyuered them, beynge contentstedfastly to spende his body and his life for his people.

So Nicanor wyllinge to declare the hate, that he bare to the Jewes, sent fyue hundreth men to take him: for he thought, yf he gat him, he shulde brynge the Jewes in greate decaye. Now when the people began to ruß she in at his house, to breake the doores, and to set fyre on it: he beynge now taken, wolde have defended himself with his sworde: chosinge rather to dye manfully, then to yelde himselfe to those wicked doers: and because of his noble stocke, he had rather haue bene put to extreme cruelte.

Notwithstondynge what tyme as he myssed of his stroke for haist, and the multitude fell in violently betwixte the doores: he tāne boldly to ȳ wall, ⁊ cast himself downe manfully amonge the heape of them, which gaue soone place to his fall, so that he fell vpon his bely. Neuertheleſſe whyle there was yet breath within him, he was kyndled in his mynde: and whyle his blonde guſhed out exceadingly (for he was very ſore wounded) he ranne thorow the myddeſt of ỹ people, and gat him to the toppe of a rocke. So when his blonde was now gone, he toke out his owne bowels with both his hondes, and threw them vpon the people: callinge vpon the LORDE of life and ſpirite, to rewarde him this agayne, and ſo he dyed.

The XV. Chapter.

NOw when Nicanor knewe that Judas was in the countre of Samaria, he thought with all his power to ſtrike a felde with him vpon a Sabbath daye. Neuertheleſſe the Jewes that were compelled to go with him, ſayed: O do not ſo cruelly and vnkyndly, but halowe ỹ Sabbath daye, and worſhipe him that ſeyth all thinges. For all this, yet ſayed the vngracious perſonne: Is there a mightie one in heauen, that commaunded the Sabbath daye to be kepte? And when they ſayde: yee the lyuynge God, the mightie LORDE in heauen commaunded the ſeuenth daye to be kepte, he ſayde: And I am mightie vpon earth, to commaunde them for to arme them ſelues, and to perfourme the kynges buſyneſſe. Notwithſtondinge he might not haue his purpoſe.

Nicanor had deuyſed with greate pryde to ouercome Judas, and to brynge awaye ỹ victory. But Machabeus had euer a faſt conſidence and a parfecte hope in God that he wolde helpe him, and exorted his people, not to be afrayed at the commynge of the heithen: but allwaye to remembre the helpe that had bene ſhewed vnto them from heauen, yee and to be ſure now alſo, ỹ Allmightie God wolde geue them the victory. He ſpake vnto them out of the lawe and prophetes, puttinge them in remembraunce of the battayls, that they had ſtriken afore, & made them to be of a good corage.

So when their hartes were plucte vp, he ſhewed them alſo the diſceatfulneſſe of the heithen, and how they wolde kepe no couenaunt ner ooth. Thus he weapened thē not with the armoure of ſhylde and ſpeare, but with wholſome wordes and exortacions. He ſhewed them a dreame alſo, wherthorow he made them all glad, which was this: He thought that he ſawe Onias (which had bene hye preſt, a vertuous & louynge man, ſad, and of honeſt converſacion, well ſpoken, and one that had bene exerciſed in godlynes frō a childe) holdinge vp his hōdes towarde heauen, and prayenge for his people. After this C there apeared vnto him another mā, which was aged, honorable and glorious. And Onias ſayde: This is a louer of the brethren, and of the people of Iſrael. This is he that prayeth moch for the people, and for all the holy cite: Jeremy the prophet of God. He thought alſo ỹ Jeremy helde out his right hōde, and gaue him (namely vnto Judas) a ſwearde of golde, ſayenge: Take this holy ſwearde, a giſte from God, wherwith thou ſhalt ſmyte downe the enemies of the people of Iſrael.

And ſo they were wel conforted thorow the wordes of Judas, and toke corage vnto thē, ſo that the yonge men were determed in their myndes to fight, & to byde ſtyfly at it: In ſo moch that in the thinges which they toke in honde, their boldneſſe ſhewed the ſame, becauſe the holy cite and the temple were in parell: for the which they toke more care, then for their wyues, children, brethrē and kynſfolkes. Agayne, they that were in the cite, were moſt carefull for thoſe which were to fight. Now when they were all in a hope that the iudgment of the matter was at hōde, and the enemies drew nye, the hooſt beynge ſet in araye, the Elephantes and horſmē euery one ſtondinge in his place: Machabeus conſidered the commynge of the multitude, the ordinaunce of dyuerſe weapens, D the cruelneſſe of the beeſtes, and helde vp his hondes towarde heauen, callinge vpon the LORDE that doth wonders, which geueth not the victory after the multitude of weapens and power of the hooſt (but to them that pleaſe him) accordinge to his owne will. Therfore in his prayer he ſayde theſe wordes: 2.Pa.14. Iudic.7.

O LORDE, thou that diddeſt ſende thine angell in the tyme of Ezechias kynge of Juda, and in the hooſt of Sennacherib ſlewreſt an hundreth and fyue and foure ſcore thouſande: ſende now alſo thy good angell before vs (o LORDE of heauens) in the fearfulneſſe and drede of thy mightie arme, that they which come agaynſt thy holy people to blaſpheme them, maye be afrayed. And ſo he made an ende of his wordes. Then Nicanor and they that were with him, drew nye with ſhawmes and ſonges: but Judas and his company with prayer and callinge vpon God. 4.Reg. 19.g Eſa.37.f 1.Mac.7. 2.Ma.8.

With their hondes they smote, but with their hertes they prayed vnto the LORDE, and slewe no lesse then xxxv. M. mē: For thorow the present helpe of God they were gloriously conforted.

Now when they left of, and were turninge agayne with ioye, they vnderstode that Nicanor himself was slayne with the other. Then they gave a greate shoute and a crie, prayseinge the allmighty LORDE with a loude voyce. And Judas (which was euer ready to spende his body and life for his citesyns) commaunded to smyte of Nicanors heade, with his arme and honde, and to be brought to Jerusalem. When he came there, he called all the people, and the prestes at the aulter with those that were in ỹ castell, and shewed them Nicanors heade, and his wicked honde, which he had presumptuously holden vp agaynst the temple of God. He caused ỹ tonge also of that vngodly Nicanor to be cut in litle peces, and to be cast to the foules, and the cruell mans honde to be hanged vp before the temple.

So euery man gaue thankes vnto ỹ LORDE, saienge: blessed be he, that hath kept his place vndefyled.

As for Nicanors heade, he hanged it vp vpō the hye castell, for an euydent and playne token of the helpe of God. And so they agreed all together, to kepe that daye holy, namely ỹ xiij. daye of ỹ moneth Adar, which in ỹ Syriās lāguage is called ỹ nexte daye before Mardochens daye. Thus was Nicanor slayne, and from that tyme forth the Jewes had the cite in possession: And here wil I nowe make an ende.

The gospel of S. Mathew.

The first Chapter.

THis is the boke of the generacion of Jesus Christ ye sonne of Dauid, the sonne of Abraham. Abrahā begat Isaac: Isaac begat Jacob: Jacob begat Judas & his brethrē: Judas begat Phares & Zarā of Thamar: Phares begat Hesrom: Hesrom begat Aram: Aram begat Amnadab: Aminadab begat Naasson: Naasson begat Salmon: Salmon begat Boos of Rahab: Boos begat Obed of Ruth: Obed begat Jesse: Jesse begat Dauid the kynge:

Dauid the kynge begat Salomon, of her that was the wyfe of Vry: Salomon begat Roboam: Roboam begat Abia: Abia begat Asa: Asa begat Josaphat: Josaphat begat Joram: Joram begat Osias: Osias begat Joatham: Joatham begat Achas: Achas begat Ezechias: Ezechias begat Manasses: Manasses begat Amon: Amon begat Josias: Josias begat Jechonias and his brethren aboute the tyme of the captiuyte of Babylon.

And after the captiuyte of Babylon, Jechonias begat Salathiel: Salathiel begat Zorobabel: Zorobabel begat Abiud: Abiud begat Eliachim: Eliachim begat Azor: Azor begat Sadoc: Sadoc begat Achin: Achin begat Eliud: Eliud begat Eleasar: Eleasar begat Matthan: Matthan begat Jacob: Jacob begat Joseph the hußbande of Mary, of whō was borne that Jesus, which is called Christ.

All the generacions from Abrahā to Dauid are fourtene generacions: From Dauid vnto the captiuite of Babylon, are fourtene generacions. From the captiuite of Babylon vnto Christ, are also fourtene generacions.

The byrth of Christ was on thys wyse: When his mother Mary was maried to Joseph * before they came together, she was foūde with chylde by ye holy goost, But Joseph her hußbande was a perfect man, and wolde not bringe her to shame, but was mynded to put her awaie secretely. Nevertheles whyle he thus thought, beholde, the angell of the LORDE appered vnto him in a dreame, saynge: Joseph thou sonne of Dauid, fear not to take vnto the Mary thy wyfe. For that which is cōceaued in her, is of ye holy goost. She shall bringe forth a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Jesus. For he shall saue his people from their synnes.

All this was done, ye the thinge might be fulfilled, which was spoken of the LORDE by the Prophet, saynge: Beholde, a mayde shall be with chylde, and shall bringe forth a sonne, and they shall call his name Emanuel, which is by interpretacion, God wt vs.

Now whan Joseph awoke out of slepe he did as the angell of ye LORDE bade hym, and toke his wyfe vnto hym, and knewe her not, tyll she had brought forth hir fyrst borne sonne, and called his name Jesus.

The II. Chapter.

WHen Jesus was borne at Bethlem in Jury, in the tyme of Herode the kynge, Beholde, there came wyse men from the east to Jerusalē, saynge: Where is the new borne kynge of the Jues? We haue sene his starre in the east, and are come to worship him.

When Herode ye kynge had herde thys, he was troubled, & all Jerusalē with hym, and he gathered all the hye Priestes and Scribes of ye people, & axed of them, where Christ shulde be borne. And they sayde vnto hym: at Bethleem in Jury. For thus it is mich.5.a written by the prophet: And thou Bethleem in the londe of Jury, art not the leest ohan.7.d among the princes of Juda. For out of ỹ shall come vnto me the captayne, that shall gouerne my people Israel.

B Then Herod preuely called the wyse men, and dyligently enquyred of them, what tyme the starre appered, and sent them to Bethleem, sainge: Go, and searche dyligently for the chylde. And when ye haue founde hym, bringe me worde agayne, that I maye come and worshippe hym also.

When they had heard the kynge, they departed: and lo, the starre which they sawe in the east, went before them, tyll it came, and stode ouer the place where the chylde was.
When they sawe the starre, they were maruelously glad: and went into the house, and found the chylde with Mary his mother, Psal.71.b and kneled downe and worshipped hym, & ope-Isa.60.a ned ther treasures, and offred vnto hym gyftes: gold, franckynsence and myrre. And after they were warned of God in a dreame, that they shuld not go ageine to Herod, they returned into their awne countre another waye.

C When they were departed: beholde, the angell of the LORDE appered to Joseph in xo.4.d a dreame, sayinge: aryse, and take the chylde and his mother, and flye into Egypte, and abyde there tyll I bringe the worde. For Herod wyl seke the chylde to destroye hym. Thē he arose, and toke the chylde and his mother by night, and departed into Egypte, and was there vnto ỹ deeth of Herod, that the thinge might be fulfylled which was spokē ozeę.11.a of the LORDE, by the prophet, which say-Iu.24.b eth: out of Egypte haue I called my sonne.

Then Herod perceauynge ỹ he was disceaued of the wyse men, was excedynge wroth, and sent forth, and slue all the chyldren that were in Bethleem, and in all the coastes there of, as many as were two yere olde and vnder, accordynge to the tyme which he had diligently searched out of the wyse men.

rre.31.c Then was ỹ fulfilled which was spoken by ỹ prophet Jeremy sayinge: On ỹ hilles was a voyce herde, greate mournynge, we-pynge, & lamentacion: Rachel wepynge for her chyldren, and wolde not be conforted, because they were not.

D When Herode was deed: beholde, an angell of the LORDE appered in a dreame to Joseph in Egypte, sayinge: arise and take the chylde and his mother, & go into ỹ londe of Israel. For they are deed, which sought the chyldes life. And he arose vp, and toke ỹ chylde and his mother, & came into the lon-de of Israel. But whē he herde that Ar-chelaus did raygne in Jury, in ỹ rowme of his father Herode, he was afrayde to go thither. Notwithstondinge after he was warned of God in a dreame, he turned asyde into the parties of Galile, and went and dwelt Luc.ii.b in a cite called Nazareth, to fulfill ỹ which was spoken by the prophetes: he shalbe called a Nazarite.

The III. Chapter.

IN those dayes Jhon the Baptyst came and preached in the wildernes of Jury, sayinge: Amēde youre selues, the kyngdome of heuen is at honde. This is Mat.iii.b he, of whom it is spokē by ỹ prophet Esay, Iohan.i.b which sayeth: The voyce of a cryer in ỹ wyl-Esa.40.a dernes, prepare the LORDES waye, and make his pathes straight.

This Jhon had his garment of camels
4.b heer, and a lethrē gerdell aboute his loynes.
Mar.i.b Hys meate was locustes and wylde hony.
Then went out to hym Jerusalem, and all Jury, and all the region rounde aboute Jordan, and were baptised of him in Jordan, cō fessynge their synnes.

Luc.iii.b Now when he sawe many of the phari-ses and of ỹ Saduces come to hys baptim, he sayde vnto them: ye generacio of vipers, who hath certified you, that ye shal escape ỹ vengeaunce to come? Bewarre, bringe forth due frutes of pennaunce. Thinke not now, to saye in your selues, we haue Abraham to oure father. For I saye vnto you, that God is able of these stones to rayse vp chyldren vnto Abraham. Euen now is the axe put vnto ỹ Mat.iii.b rote of the trees: therfore euery tre which Luc.iii.b bringeth not forth good frute, shalbe hewē downe, and cast into the fyre.

I baptise you with water to repentaun-
B ce: but he that cōmeth after me, is myghtier
Mat.iii.b thē I, whose shues I am not worthy to bea-Luc.iii.b re. He shall baptise you with ỹ holy goost & Iohan.i.b with fyre: which hath also his fan in his hond, and will pourge his floore, and gadre the wheet into his garner, & will burne ỹ chaffe Luc.iii.b with vnquencheable fyre.

Then came Jesus from Galile to Jordan,
Mat.iii.b vnto Jhon, to be baptised of hym. But Jhō Iohan.i.b forbade hym, sayinge: I haue nede to be baptysed of the: and commest thou to me? Jesus answered & sayd vnto hym: Let it be so Mat.iii.b now. For thus it becommeth vs to fulfyll all Luc.iii.b righteousnes. Then he suffred hym. And Je-Iohan.i.b sus assone as he was baptised, came straight out of the water. And lo, heuē was opē ouer hym: and Jhon sawe the spirite of God descende lyke a doue, and lyght vpon hym. And lo, there came a voyce frō heuē sayng: Thys ys that my beloued sonne, in whom is my delyte.

The iiij. Chapter.

Then was Jesus ledd awaye of the spirite in to wildernes, to be tempted of the deuyll. And when he had fasted fourtye dayes and fourtye nightes, he was afterward an hungred. And the tēpter came to him and sayde: yf thou be the sonne of God, commaunde, that these stones be made bread. He answered & sayde: yt is wrytte: Man shall not lyue by bred onlye, but by euery worde that proceadeth out of the mouth of God.

Then the deuyll toke hym vp into the holy cite, and set hym on a pynacle of the temple, and sayde vnto hym: yf thou be ỹ sonne of God, cast thy sylfe downe. For it is wrytten: he shall geue his angels charge ouer the and with their handes they shal holde the vp, that thou dashe not thy fote agaynst a stone. And Jesus sayde vnto hym: it ys wryten also: Thou shalt not tempte thy LORDE God.

Agayne, the deuyll toke hym vp and led hym into an excedynge hye mountayne, and shewed hym all the kyngdomes of the worlde, and all the glorie of them, and sayde vnto hym: all these wil I geue the, yf thou wilt fall downe and worshipp me. Then sayde Jesus vnto hym: Auoyde Satā. For it ys wrytte: thou shalt worshyp the LORDE thy God and hym onely shalt thou serue.

Then the deuell left hym, and beholde, the angels came and ministred vnto hym.

When Jesus had herde that Jhon was taken, he departed into Galile and left Nazareth, and went and dwelt in Capernaum, which is a cite apon the see, in the coostes of zabulon and Neptalim, ỹ the thinge might be fulfilled whiche was spoken by Esay the Prophet, sayinge: The londe of zabulon and Neptalim, the waye of the see beyonde Jordan, and Galile of the Gentyls, the people which sat in darknes, sawe a greate lyght, & to them which sat in the region & shadowe of deeth, lyght is begōne to shyne.

From that tyme forth beganne Jesus to preach, and to saye: Amende youre selues, ỹ kingdome of heauen is at honde.

As Jesus walked by the see of Galile, he sawe two brethren: Simon which was called Peter, & Andrew his brother, castynge a net into ỹ see, for they were fisshers, and he sayde vnto them: folowe me, & I will make you fisshers of mē. And they straight waye lefte their nettes, and folowed hym. Ier. 16.c Eze. 47.

And whan he wēt forth from thence, he sawe other two brethren, James the sonne of zebede, and Jhon his brother, in the ship with zebede their father, mendynge their nettes, and called them. And they without tarynge lefte ỹ shyp and their father, and folowed hym. Mat. 19.d Luc. 5.b

And Jesus went aboute all Galile, teachyng in their synagoges, and preachynge the gospel of the kyngdome, and healed all maner of sikenes, & all maner dyseases amonge the people. And his fame spred abrode through out all Siria. And they brought vnto hym all sick people, that were taken with diuers diseases and gripinges, and thē ỹ were possessed with deuils, & those which were lunatyke, and those that had the palsie: & he healed thē. And ther folowed hym a greate nombre of people, from Galile, & from the ten cities, and from Jerusalem, and from the regions that lye beyonde Jordan. Marc. 1.c Marc. 3 Luc. 6.b

The V. Chapter.

When he sawe the people, he went vp into a mountayne: and when he was set, his disciples came to hym, and he opened his mouth, and taught them, sayinge: Blessed are the poore in spirite: for theirs is the kyngdome of heuē. Blessed are they that mourne: for they shalbe cōforted. Blessed are the meke: for they shall inheret the erth. Blessed are they which honger & thyrst for rightewesnes: for they shal be filled. Blessed are the mercifull: for they shall obteyne mercy. Blessed are the pure in herte: for they shall se God. Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shalbe called the chyldren of God. Blessed are they which suffre persecucion for rightwesnes sake: for theirs is the kyngdome of heuen. Blessed are ye when men reuyle you, and persecute you, and falsly saye all manner of yuell sayinges against you for my sake. Reioyce and be glad, for greate is youre rewarde in heuē. Luc. 6.c Esa. 61.a and 66. Iere. 31.d 1. Pet. 4.d 1. Pe. 2.c and 3.c Act. 5.c

For so persecuted they the Prophetes which were before youre dayes.

Ye are ỹ salt of the earth, but and yf the salt haue lost his saltnes, what can be salted therwith? It is thence forth good for nothynge, but to be cast out, and to be trodden vnder fote of men. Ye are the light of the worlde. A cite that is set on an hill, can not be hid: nether do men lyght a candell, and Marc. 9.c Luc. 14.c Marc. 4.b Luc 8.b and 11.c put it vnder a bußhell, but on a candelstick, and it lighteth all that are in the house. Let ath.6.a Pet.2.b youre light so shyne before men, that they maye se youre good workes, and glorify youre father which is in heauen.

Thinke not, that I am come to destroye the lawe, or the prophetes: no, I am not

The VI. Chapter.

TAke hede to youre almes, that ye geue it not in the syght of men, to the intent that ye wolde be sene of them: or els, ye get no rewarde of youre father which is in heauen. When soeuer therfore thou geuest thine almes, thou shalt not make a trompet to be blowen before the, as the ypocrites do in the synagoges and in the stretes, for to be prayesed of mē. Verely I saye vnto you: they haue their rewarde. But whē thou doest almes, let not thy lefte hande knowe, what thy righte hande doth, that thine almes maye be secrete: and thy father which seith in secrete, shall rewarde the openly.

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as ỳ ypocrytes are. For they loue to stode and praye in the synagoges, and in the corners of the stretes, to be sene of men. Verely I saie vnto you: they haue their rewarde. But when thou prayest, entre in to thy chamber, and shut thy dore to the, & praye to thy father which is in secrete: and thy father which seith in secrete, shall rewarde the openly.

And when ye praye, bable not moch, as ỳ hethen do: for they thinke that they shal be herde, for their moch bablynges sake. Be not ye lyke them therfore. For youre father knoweth where of ye haue nede, before ye axe of him. After thys maner therfore shall ye praye:

O oure father which art in heauen, halowed be thy name. Thy kyngdome come. Thy wyll be fulfilled vpon earth as it is in heauen. Geue vs this daye oure dayly bred. And forgeue vs oure dettes, as we also forgeue oure detters. And lede vs not in to tēptacion: but delyuer vs from euell. For thyne is the kyngdome, and the power, and the glorye for euer. Amen. For yf ye forgeue other men their treaspases, youre heauenly father shall also forgeue you. But and ye wyll not forgeue mē their trespases, no more shall youre father forgeue you youre trespases.

Moreouer when ye fast, be not sad as ỳ ypocrytes are. For they disfigure their faces, that they myght be sene of men to fast. Verely I saye vnto you: they haue their rewarde. But thou, whē thou fastest, annoynte thyne heed, and wash thy face, that it appeare not vnto men, that thou fastest: but vnto thy father which is in secrete: and thy father which seyth in secrete, shal rewarde the openly.

Se that ye gather you not treasure vpon the earth, where rust and mothes corrupte, and where theues breake through and steale. But gather you treasure together in heauen, where nether rust nor mothes corrupte, and where theues nether breake vp nor yet steale. For where youre treasure is, there is youre herte also.

The eye is the light of the body. Yf thyne eye then be syngle, all thy body shalbe full of light: But and yf thyne eye be wycked, all thy body shalbe full of darckenes: Wherfore yf the light that is in the, be darckenes, how greate then shall that darckenes be?

No mā can serue two masters. For ether he shall hate the one and loue the other: or els he shall leane to the one, and despise the other: Ye can not serue God and mammon. Luc.16.b
Therfore I saye vnto you: be not ye carefull for your lyfe, what ye shall eate, or what ye shall drinke: nor yet for youre body, what ye shal put on. Is not the lyfe more worth thē meate, and the body more of value then rayment? Beholde the foules of ỳ ayer: for they sowe not, nether reepe, nor yet cary in to the barnes: and yet youre heauēly father fedeth thē. Are ye not moch better thē they? Luc.12.c Psal.54.c 1.Pet.5.a

Which of you (though he toke thought therfore) coulde put one cubit vnto his stature? why care ye then for rayment? Consider the lylies of the felde, how they growe. They laboure not, nether spynne. And yet for all that I saye vnto you, that euen Salomon in all his royalte was not arayed lyke vnto one of these. Wherfore yf God so cloth the grasse, which is to daye in the felde, and to morowe shalbe cast in to the fornace: shal he not moch more do the same vnto you, o ye of lytle fayth? D

Therfore take no thought, sayinge: what shall we eate, or what shall we drinke? or where with shall we be clothed? After all soch thynges do the heithen seke. For youre heauenly father knoweth, that ye haue nede of all these thynges. Seke ye fyrst the kyngdome of heauen and the righte eousnes therof, so shal all these thynges be ministred vnto you. 3.Reg.3

Care not then for the morow, for the morow shall care for it self: Euery daye hath ynough of his owne trauayll.

The VII. Chapter.

Iudge not, that ye be not iudged: For as ye iudge, so shal ye be iudged. And with what measure ye meete, with the same shall it be measured to you agayne. Why seist thou a moate in thy brothers eye, and perceaueest not the beame ỳ is ỳ thine awne eye? Or why sayest thou to ỳ brother: holde, I wil plucke the moate out of thyne eye, and beholde, a beame is in thyne awne eye. Ypocryte, fyrst cast out the beame out of thyne awne eye, and then shalt thou se clearly, to plucke out the moate out of thy brothers eye. A Luc.6.d Rom.2. Marc.4. Prou.18.

Geue not that which is holy, to dogges: nether cast ye youre pearles before swyne, lest they treade them vnder their fete, & the other turne agayne and all to rente you.

Axe, and it shalbe geuen you: Seke, and ye shall fynde: knocke, and it shalbe opened vnto you. For whosoever axeth, receaueth: and he that seketh, fyndeth: and to hym ỳ knocketh, it shal opened. Ys there eny man amonge you, which yf his sonne axed hym bred, wolde offer him a stone? Or yf he axed fysshe, wolde he proffer hym a serpent? yf ye then which are euell, can geue youre chyldren good gyftes: how moche more shall youre father which is in heauen, geue good thynges to them that axe hym?

Therfore what soeuer ye wolde that me̅ shulde do to you, euē so do ye to them. This ys the lawe and the Prophetes.

Enter in at the strayte gate: for wyde is the gate, and broade is the waye, that leadeth to destruccion: & many there be, which go in therat. But strayte is the gate, and narowe ys the waye, which leadeth vnto lyfe, and fewe there be that fynde it.

Beware of false Prophetes, which come to you in shepes clothinge, but inwardly they are rauenynge wolues. Ye shall knowe them by their frutes. Do men gather grapes of thornes? or figges of thistles? Euen so euery good tree bryngeth forth good frute. But a corrupte tree, bryngeth forth euyl frute. A good tree can not bryng forth bad frute: nether can a rotten tre bringe forth good frute. Euery tre that bryngeth not forth good frute, shalbe hewen downe, and cast into the fyre. Wherfore by their frutes ye shall knowe them.

Not all they that saye vnto me, LORDE LORDE, shall enter in to the kyngdome of heauen: but he that doth the will of my father which ys in heauen.

Many shall saye to me in that daye: LORDE, LORDE: haue we not prophecied in thy name? Haue we not cast out deuyls in thy name? Haue we not done many greate dedes in thy name? And then will I knowlege vnto them: I neuer knewe you, Departe fro me, ye workers of iniquite.

Whosoeuer therfore heareth of me these sayinges, and doeth the same, I wyll lyke̅ hym vnto a wyse man, which buylt hys house vpon a rocke: Now whan abundaunce of rayne descended, and the wyndes blewe and bet vpon that same house, it fel not, because it was grounded on the rocke. And who soeuer heareth of me these sayinges, & doth the̅ not, shalbe lycened vnto a folysh mā, which buylt his house apon the sonde: Now whan abūdaunce of rayne descēded, & the wyndes blewe, & bet vpon ỳ house, it fell, and great was the fall of it.

And it came to passe, that when Jesus had ended these sayinges, the people were astonnyed at hys doctryne. For he taught them as one hauynge power, and not as the Scribes.

The VIII. Chapter.

When he was come downe from the mountayne, moch people followed him. And lo, there came a leper, and worsheped him, sayinge: LORDE, yf thou wylt, thou canst make me cleane. And Jesus put forth hys honde, & touched him, sayinge: I wyl, be thou cleane: & immediatly his leprosie was clensed. And Jesus sayde vnto hym: See thou tell no mā, but go and shew thy selfe to the preste, and offer the gyfte that Moses cōmaunded, in witnes to them.

When Jesus was entred into Capernaum, there came vnto him a Captayne, & besought hym, sayinge: Syr, my seruaunt lyeth sicke at home of the palsye, and ys greuously payned. Jesus sayd vnto hym: I wil come & heale him. The Captayne answered and sayde: Syr, I am not worthy, that thou shuldest come vnder my rofe, but speake the worde only, and my seruaunt shalbe healed. For I my selfe also am a mā subiect to ỳ auctorite of another, & haue sowdiers vnder me. Yet whā I saye to one: go, he goeth, and to another: come, he commeth: & to my seruaunt: do this, he doeth it. When Jesus hearde that, he marueled, and sayde to them that folowed hym: Verely I say vnto you: I haue not founde so greate fayth: no not ī Israel. But I say vnto you: Many shall come from the east and west, and shall rest with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kyngdome of heauen: and the chyldren of the kyngdome shalbe cast out into vtter darcknes: there shalbe wepinge & gnaßhing of teth. And Jesus sayd vnto ỳ Captayne: go thy waye, and as thou beleuest, so be it vnto the. And his seruaunt was healed the same houre.

And Jesus went in to Peters house, and sawe hys wyues mother lyinge sicke of a feuer: so he touched her hande, and the feuer left hir: and she arose, and ministred vnto them.

When the euen was come, they brought vnto him many that were possessed with deuyls. And he cast out ỹ spirites with a worde, & healed all that were sicke, that ỹ thinge might be fulfilled, which was spoken by Esay the Prophet, sayinge: He toke on him oure infirmities, and bare oure sicknesses.

Whē Jesus sawe moch people about him, he commaunded to go ouer the water. And there came a scribe and sayde vnto hym: master, I wyll folowe the, whyther so euer thou goest. And Jesus sayde vnto him: the foxes haue holes, and the byrdes of the ayer haue nestes, but ỹ sonne of mā hath not wherevpon to rest his heede. Another that was one of his disciples, sayde vnto hym: Syr, geue me leue fyrst, to go & burye my father. But Jesus sayde vnto him: folowe thou me, and let the deed burie their deed.

And he entred in to a shyppe, & his disciples folowed him. And beholde, there arose a greate tempest in the see, in so moch that the shippe was couered with wawes, & he was a slepe. And his disciples came vnto him, and awoke hym, sayinge: LORDE, saue vs, we perishe. And he sayde vnto them: why are ye fearfull, o ye of lytell faithe? Then he arose, and rebuked the wyndes and the see, & there folowed a greate calme. And the men marueyled and sayde: what mā is this, that both wyndes and see obey hym?

And when he was come to ỹ other syde, into the countre of the Gergesites, there met him two possessed of deuyls, which came out of the graues, and were out of measure fearce, so that no man myght go by that waye. And beholde, they cryed out sayinge: Oh Jesu thou sonne of God, what haue we to do with the? Art thou come hyther to tormēt vs, before the tyme be come? And there was a good waye off from them a greate heerd of swyne fedinge. Then the deuyles besought him, sayinge: yf thou cast vs out, suffre vs to go oure waye into the heerd of swyne. And he sayde vnto them: go youre wayes. Then went they out, and departed in to the heerd of swyne. And beholde, ỹ whoale heerd of swyne was caryed with violēce headlinge in to the see, and perished in the water. Thē the heerdmen fled and wente their ways in to the cyte, and tolde euery thinge, & what had fortuned vnto the possessed of the deuyls. And beholde, all the cyte came out and met Jesus. And when they sawe hym, they besought hym, for to departe out of their costes.

The ix. Chapter.

Then entred he in to a shipp, and passed ouer and came in to his awne cite. And lo, they brought vnto him a man sicke of ỹ palsie, lyinge in his bed. And when Jesus sawe the faith of thē, he sayde to the sicke of ỹ palsie: my sonne, be of good cheare, thy sinnes are forgeuē the. And beholde, certeyne of the scribes sayde in them selues: this man blaspheme th. But when Jesus sawe their thoughtes, he sayde: wherfore thinke ye euill in youre hertes? Whether ys it easier to saye: thy synnes be forgeuē ỹ, or to saie: arise and walke? But that ye maye knowe, that the sonne of man hath power to forgeue sinnes in earth, thē sayde he vnto the sicke of ỹ palsye: arise, take vp thy bed, and go home. And he arose and wente home. When ỹ people sawe it, they marueyled, & glorified God, which had geuē soch power vnto men.

And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he sawe a man syt a receyuinge of custome, named Mathew, & sayde vnto him: folowe me. And he arose, and folowed him. And it came to passe as he sat at meate in the house: beholde, many publicans and synners came and sat downe also with Jesus and hys disciples.

When the Pharises sawe that, they sayde to hys disciples: why eateth youre master with publicans and synners? When Jesus herde that, he sayde vnto them: The whole nede not ỹ phisicio, but they that are sicke. Go and learne, what that meaneth: I haue pleasure in mercy, and not in offerynge. For I am not come to call the righteous, but ỹ synners to repentaunce,

Then came the disciples of Jhon to hym sayinge: why do we & ỹ Pharises fast so oft: and thy disciples fast not? And Jesus sayde vnto thē: Can the weddynge chyldrē mourne as lōge as the bridegrome is with them? The tyme will come, when the bridegrome shalbe taken from them, and thē shall they fast. No man peceth an olde garment with a pece of newe clothe. For then taketh he awaye the pece agayne from the garment, & the rent ys made greater. Nether do men put new wyne in to olde vessels, for then the vessels breake, and the wyne runneth out, & ỹ vessels perysshe. But they poure newe wyne in to newe vessels, and so are both saued together,

Whyle he thus spake vnto them, beholde there came a certayne ruler, and worshipped him, sayinge: My doughter is euē now deceased, but come and lay ỹ honde on her,

The.x. Chapter.

A Mar.3.b ND he called his xii. disciples vnto
Luc.6.b hym, & gaue them power ouer vncle 9.a.10.a ane spretes, to cast them out, & to hea-le all maner of sicknesses, and all maner of deseases.

The names of the xii. Apostels are these?
The fyrst, Simon called Peter: & Andrew his brother. James the sonne of Zebede, and Jhon his brother. Philip and Bartlemew.
Thomas, and Mathew the Publican. James the sonne of Alphe, and Lebbeus other wyse called Taddeus. Simõ of Cane, and Judas Jscarioth, which also betrayed hym.

These twolue sent Jesus, and commaunded them, sayinge: Gõ not in to the wayes ỹ leade to the Heithen, and in to the cities of the Samaritãs enter ye not. But go rather to the lost shepe of the house of Jsrael. Gõ and preach, sayinge: The kyngdome of hea-is at hande. Heale the sicke, clense the lepers rayse the deed, cast out the deuils. Frely ye haue receaued, frely geue againe. Posses not golde, nor siluer, nor brasse yn youre gerdels, nor yet scrip towardes your iorney: neither two cotes, nether shues, nor yet a staffe. For the workman is worthy of his meate. Into what soeuer cite or towne ye shall come, enquyre in it, who is mete for you, and there a-byde, tyll ye go thence.

And whẽ ye come in to an house, salute ỹ same. And yf the house be mete for you, yo peace shal come vpõ it. But yf it be not mete for you, yo peace shal turne to you againe.

And yf no man wil receaue you, ner heare youre preachinge, departe out of that house or that cite, and shake the dust of youre fete. Truly I saye vnto you: it shall be easyer for ỹ londe of Sodoma and Gomorra in ỹ daye of iudgment, then for that cite.

Beholde, I sende you forth as shepe amõ ge wolues. Be ye therfore wyse as serpentes, and innocent as doues. Beware of men, for they shall deliuer you vp to the coũsels, and shal scourge you in their synagoges. And ye shall be brought before princes and kynges for my sake, in witnes to them and to the gentyls.

But when they delyuer you vp, take no thought how or what ye shall speake, for ỹ shalbe geuen you, euen in that same houre, what ye shall saye. For it is not ye that spea ke, but the spirete of your father which spea keth in you.

The brother shall delyuer the brother to deeth, and the father the sonne. And the chil dren shall aryse agaynst their fathers & mo thers, & shall helpe them to deeth: & ye shall be hated of all men for my names sake. But he ỹ endureth to the ende, shalbe saued.

When they persecute you in one cite, flye in to another. I tell you for a treuth, ye shall not fynysshe all the cities of Jsrael, tyll the sonne of man come. The disciple is not abo ue the master, nether the seruaunt aboue the LORDE. It is ynough for the disciple, to be as his master, and the seruaunt as his LOR DE. Yf they haue called the good mā of the house Beelzebub, how moch more shal they call them of his housholde? Feare them not therfore.

There is nothinge hyd, that shal not be openly shewed: and nothinge secrete, that shall not be knowne. What I tell you in darcknes, that speake ye in light: and what ye heare in the eare, that preach ye vpon the house toppes.

And feare ye not them that kyll the body, and be not able to kyll the soule. But rather feare hi, which is able to destroye both soule and body in to hell. Are not two spa-rowes solde for a farthinge? Yet doth the-renone of thē light vpon the groūde with-oute youre father. And now are all ẏ hayres of youre heade tolde. Feare ye not therfore:
ye are of more value then many sparowes.

Therfore whosoeuer knowlegeth me before mē, him wil I knowlege also before my father which is in heauen. But who soeuer denyeth me before mē, him wil I also denie before my father which is in heauen.

Thynke not that I am come to sende peace vpon earth. I came not to sende peace, but a swerde. For I am come to set a mā at variaunce ageynst his father, and the doughter ageynst hir mother, & the dough-ter in lawe ageynst her mother in lawe:
and a mans foes shalbe they of his owne housholde.

Who so loueth father and mother more then me, is not mete for me: and he that lo-ueth sonne or doughter more then me, is not mete for me. And he ẏ taketh not his crosse and foloweth me, is not mete for me. Who so fyndeth his life, shal lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake, shal fynde it.

He that receaueth you, receaueth me: & who so receaueth me, receaueth him ẏ sent me. He that receaueth a prophet in the na-

The XI. Chapter.

AND it came to passe, whā Jesus had made an ende of cōmaundinge his twolue disciples, he departed thence, to teach and to preach in their cities. A

Whan Jhon beinge in preson herde of the workes of Chust, he sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto him: Art thou he ẏ shal come, or shal we loke for another? Jesus answered and sayde vnto thē: Go youre waye and tell Jhon agayne, what ye se and heare. The blynde se, and the lame go: the le pers are clensed, and ẏ deaf heare: the dead aryse ageyne, and the gospell is preached to the poore: and blessed is he, that is not offen ded at me. Luc.7.b Esa.35.a Esa.61.a

Whan they went their waye, Jesus be-ganne to speake vnto the people, concernyn-ge Jhon: What are ye gone out for to se in the wyldernes? Wolde ye se a rede shaken with the wynde? Or what are ye gone out for to se? Wolde ye se a man clothed in soft rayment? Beholde, they that weare soft clothinge, are in kinges houses, But what are ye gone out for to se? A prophet? Yee I saye vnto you, and more thē a prophet. For this is he, of whō it is written: Beholde, I sende my messaūger before thy face, which shal prepare thy waye before the. Luc.7.c B Mal.3.a Marc.1.a

Verely I saye vnto you: Amonge ẏ chil dren of wemen arose there not a greater then Jhon the baptist. Not withstondin-ge he that is * lesse in the kyngdome of heauen, is greater then he. From the tyme of Jhon baptist hither to, ẏ kyngdome of hea uen suffreth violence, and the violent plucke it vnto them. For all the prophetes and the lawe prophecied vnto Jhon. But where vnto shal I lickē this gene-racion? It is like vnto childrē which syt in the market, and call vnto their felowes, & saye: we haue pyped vnto you, and ye wolde not daunse: We haue morned vnto you, & ye wolde not wepe. For Jhon came nether eatinge nor drynkinge, & they saye: he hath the deuyll. The sonne of man came eatinge and drynkinge, & they saye: lo what a glut-ton and wyne bebber this mā is, and a com panyon of publicans & synners? And wis-dome is iustified of hir children. Luc.7.d

All thinges are geuen ouer vnto me of my father: and no man knoweth the sonne, but the father: nether knoweth eny man the father, saue the sonne, and he to whom the sonne wil open it. The XII. Chapter.

A Marc.2.c Luc.6.a Deut.23.d AT the same tyme wēte Jesus thorow the corne vpon the Sabbath, and his disciples were hongrie, and beganne to plucke of the eares of the corne, and to eate. When ỳ pharises sawe that, they sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy disciples do that, which is not laufull to do vpon the Sabbath. He sayde vnto them: haue ye not red what Dauid did, whan he was hongrie, & they also ỳ were with him: How he entred in to the house of God, & ate the shew breds which were not laufull for him to eate, nether for thē ỳ were with him, but onely for the prestes? Or haue ye not red in the lawe how that the prestes in the temple breake the Sabbath, and yet are blameles? But I saye vnto you: ỳ here is one greater then the temple. But yf ye wyst what this were (I haue pleasure in mercy, and not in offerinye) ye wolde not haue condemned innocentes: For the sonne of man is LORDE euen ouer the Sabbath.

Ose.6.b Mat.9.b

B Marc.3.a Luc.6.a And he departed thence, and wente in to their synagoge: and beholde, there was a mā which had his hāde dryed vp. And they axed him, sayenge: Is it laufull to heale, vpon the Sabbath: because they might accuse him. But he sayde vnto them: Which of you is it, yf he had a shepe fallē in to a pytte vpon the Sabbath, that wolde not take him, and lift him out? And how moch is a man better then a shepe? Therfore it is laufull to do good vpon the Sabbath. Then sayde he to the mā: Stretch forth thine hande. And he stretched it forth: and it was whole agayne like vnto the other.

Then went the pharises out, and helde a councell agaynst him, how they might destroye him. But whā Jesus knew therof, he departed thence, & moch people folowed him: and he healed them all, and charged them, ỳ they shulde not make him knowne: that the thinge might be fulfylled, which was spoken by Esay the prophet, which sayeth: Beholde, this is my seruaunt, whom I haue chosen: and my beloued, in whom my soule delyteth. I wil put my spirite vpon hi, and he shal shewe iudgment vnto the Heithē. He shal not stryue, ner crye, nether shal eny man heare his voyce in the stretes. A brosed rede shal he not breake, and flax that beginneth to burne shal he not quench, tyll he sende forth iudgment vnto victory. And in his name shal the Heithen trust.

Then was there brought vnto him one possessed (of a deuell) the which was blynde and domme, and he healed him: in so moch ỳ ỳ blynde and domme both spake and sawe. And all the people were amased, and sayde: Is not this the sonne of Dauid? But whan the pharises herde that, they sayde: He dryueth the deuyls out none other wyse, but thorow Beelzebub the chefe of the deuyls. Nevertheles Jesus knew their thoughtes, and sayde vnto them: Euery kyngdome deuyded within it self, shalbe desolate: and ery cite or house deuyded in it self, maye not contynue. So yf one Sathan cast out another, thē is he at variaunce within him self: how maye then his kyngdome endure? But yf I cast out deuils thorow Beelzebub, thorow whom do youre childrē cast them out? Therfore shal they be youre iudges. But yf I cast out the deuyls by the spirite of God then is the kyngdome of God come vpon you. Or how cā a man entre in to a stronge mans house, and violently take awaye his goodes, excepte he first bynde the stronge mā, & thē spoyle his house? He that is not with me, is agaynst me: & he ỳ gathereth not with me, scatereth abrode. Therfore I saye vnto you: All synne and blasphemy shalbe forgeuen vnto men, but the blasphemy agaynst the spirite shal not be forgeuen vnto men. And whosoeuer speaketh a worde agaynst the sonne of man, it shalbe forgeuē him. But whosoeuer speaketh agaynst the holy goost it shal not be forgeuen him, nether in this worlde, ner in the worlde to come.

Either make the tre good and his frute good also, or els make the tre euel and his frute euel also. For the tre is knowne by the frute. O ye generacion of vypers, how can ye speake good, whan ye youre selues are euell? For of the abundace of the hert the mouth speaketh. A good man out of the good treasure of his hert, bringeth forth good thinges: and an euel man out of his euell treasure, bringeth forth euell thinges. But I saye vnto you, that of euery idell worde that men haue spoken, they shal geue accomptes at the daye of iudgmēt. Out of thy wordes thou shalt be iustified, and out of thy wordes thou shalt be condemned.

Then answered certayne of the scrybes and pharises, and sayde: Master, we wolde fayne se a token of the. And he answered and sayde vnto them: This euell and aduouterous generacion seketh a token: and there shal no token be geuen them, but the token of the prophete Jonas. For as Jonas was thre dayes and thre nightes in the Whalles bely, so shal the sonne of man be thre dayes and thre nightes in the hert of the earth. The men of Ninyue shal ryse in the last iudgment with this generacion, and shal condemne it: for they dyd penaunce acordinge to the preachinge of Jonas. And beholde, here is one greater then Jonas. The quene of the south shal arise in the last iudgmēt with this generacion, and shal condēne it: for she came from the vttemost partes of the earth, to heare the wysdome of Salomon: And lo, here is one greater then Salomon.

Whan the vncleane spirite is gone out of man, he walketh thorow dry places, seking rest, and fyndeth none. Then saieth he: I wil turne agayne in to my house, from whence I were out. And whan he cōmeth, he fyndeth it empt, ye, swepte and garnyshed. Then goeth he his waye, and taketh vnto him seuen other spirites worse then him self: and whan they are entred in, they dwell there: And the ende of that man is worse then the begynnynge. Euen so shal it go with this euell generacion.

Whyle he yet talked vnto the people, beholde, his mother and his brethren stode without desyringe to speake with him. Then sayde one vnto him: Beholde, thy mother and thy brethren stonde without, and wolde speake with the. Neuertheles he answered and sayde vnto him that tolde him: Who is my mother? and who are my brethren? And he stretched forth his hande ouer his disciples, and sayde: Beholde my mother and my brethren. For who soeuer doth the wyll of my father which is in heauē, the same is my brother, sister and mother. Iohā. 15.

The XIII. Chapter.

A The same daye went Jesus out of the house, and sat by the see syde, and moch people resorted vnto him: so that he went in to a shippe and satt him downe, and all the people stode vpon the shore. And he spake many thinges vnto them in symilitudes, sayenge: Beholde, The sower went forth to sowe: and as he sowed, some fell by the waye syde: Then came the foules, and ate it vp. Some fell vpon stony grounde, and anone it sprong vp, because it had no depth of earth. But whan the Sonne arose, it caught heate: and for so moch as it had no rote, it withred awaye. Some fell amonge the thornes, and the thornes grewe vp, and choked it. Some fell vpon good grounde, and gaue frute: some an hundreth folde, some sixtie folde, some thirtie folde. Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare. Marc. 4. Luc. 8. a

B And the disciples came vnto him, and sayde: Why speakest thou to them by parables? He answered and sayde vnto them: Vnto you it is geuen to knowe the mysterye of the kingdome of heauen, but vnto them it is not geuen. For whoso hath, vnto him shal be geuen, and he shal haue abundaunce. But who so hath not, from him shalbe taken awaye, euen that he hath. Therfore speake I vnto them by parables, for with seynge eyes they se not, and with hearinge eares they heare not, for they vnderstonde it not. And in them is fulfilled the prophecie of Esay, which sayeth: Ye shal heare in dede, and shal not vnderstonde: and with seinge eyes shal ye se, and not perceaue. For the hert of this people is waxed grosse, and their eares are thick of hearige, and their eyes haue they closed, lest they shulde once se with the eyes, and heare with the eares, and vnderstode with the hert, and turne, that I might heale them. Marc. 4. Luc. 8. b 1. Cor. 2. Mat. 25. c Marc. 4. Luc. 8. b and 19. c Esa. 6. b Marc. 4. Luc. 8. b Iohā. 12. c Act. 28. d Rom. 11.

But blessed are youre eyes, for they se: and youre eares, for they heare. Verely I saye vnto you: Many prophetes and righteous men haue desyred to se the thinges that ye se, and haue not sene them: and to heare the thinges that ye heare, and haue not herde them. Heare ye therfore the parable of the sower. Whan one heareth the worde of the kyngdome, and vnderstondeth it not, the euell man cōmeth, and plucketh it awaye that is sowne in his hert: and this is he that is sowne by the waye syde. But he that is sowne in the stonye grounde, is this: whan one heareth the worde, and anone with ioye receaueth it: neuertheles he hath no rote in him, but endureth for a season: when C Luc. 10. c 1. Pet. 1. b Marc. 4. 1 Luc. 8. b trouble & persecucion aryseth because of the worde, immediatly he his offended. As for him that is sowne amonge ỳ thornes, this is he: Whā one heareth the worde, & the carefulnes of this worlde, & the disceatfulnes of riches choke the worde, & so he becōmeth vnfrutefull. But he ỳ is sowne in the good grounde, is this: whan one heareth the worde, and vnderstondeth it, and bringeth forth frute: and some geueth an hūdreth folde, some sixtie folde, and some thirtie folde.

D Another parable put he forth vnto thē, Marc.4.c & sayde: The kyngdome of heauē is like vnto a man, ỳ sowed good sede in his felde. But whyle mē slepte, there came an enemye, and sowed tares amonge ỳ wheate, & went his waye. Now whā the blade was sprōge vp & brought forth frute, thē ỳ tares appeared also. Then came the seruaūtes to ỳ housholder, & sayde vnto him: Syr, sowdest not thou good sede in ỳ felde? Frō whēce thē hath it tares? He sayde vnto thē: that hath the enemye done. Thē sayde ỳ seruaūtes: wilt thou then ỳ we go & wede thē out? He sayde: Nay, lest whyle ye wede out ỳ tares, ye plucke vp the wheate also wt thē. Let thē both growe together tyll the harueste, and in tyme of harueste I wil saye vnto the reapers: Gather ỳ tares first, & bynde thē in sheeues to be brēt: but gather the wheate in to my barne.

Another parable put he forth vnto thē, and sayde: The kyngdome of heauen is like Marc. 4. c vnto a grane of mustarde sede, which a man Luc.13.b toke, and sowed it in his felde. Which is the leest amonge all sedes. But whan it is growne, it is the greatest amonge herbes, and is a tre: so that the brydes vnder the heauen come and dwell in the braunches of it.

E Another parable spake he vnto thē: The Luc.13.b kyngdome of heauē is like vnto leuē, which a woman toke, and myxte it amonge thre peckes of meele, tyll all was leuended.

All soch thinges spake Jesus vnto ỳ people by parables, & without parables spake he nothinge vnto thē: ỳ the thinge might be fulfilled, which was spokē by ỳ prophet, sayenge: I wil open my mouth in parables, Psal.77.a and wil speake out the secretes from the begynnynge of the worlde.

Then sent Jesus the people awaye, and came home. And his disciples came vnto hī, and sayde: Declare vnto us ỳ parable of ỳ tares of ỳ felde. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: He that soweth the good sede, is the sonne of man: the felde is the worlde: ỳ good sede are the childrē of the kyngdome: The tares are the children of wickednes: ỳ enemye that soweth thē, is the deuell: ỳ harueste is the ende of the worlde: ỳ reapers are ỳ angels. For like as ỳ tares are weded out, Apoc.14.d and brent in the fyre, euē so shal it go in ỳ ende of this worlde. The sonne of man shal sende forth his angels, & they shal gather out of his kingdome all thinges ỳ offende, & thē ỳ do iniquyte, & shal cast thē in to a fornace of fyre, there shalbe waylinge and gnaßhinge of teth. Thē shal the righteous shyne as Dan.12 Sapi.3 1.Cor.15 the Sonne, in the kyngdome of their father. Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare.

Agayne, the kingdome of heauen is like G vnto a treasure hyd in the felde, which a mā founde and hid it, and for ioye therof he wēte & solde all ỳ he had, and bought ỳ felde.

Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a marchaūt, ỳ sought good pearles: & Phil.4 whā he had founde a precious pearle, he wēte and solde all that he had, & bought it.

Agayne, ỳ kyngdome of heauē is like vnto a nett cast in to ỳ see, wherwith are take all maner of fyshes: & whā it is ful, mē drawe it out vnto ỳ shore, & sytt & gather ỳ good in to the vessels, but cast the bad awaye. So shal it be also in ỳ ende of ỳ worlde. The angels shal go out, & seuer the bad frō the righteous, & shal cast thē in to a fornace of fyre, there shalbe waylinge & gnaßhinge of teeth.

And Jesus sayde vnto them: Haue ye vn- G derstōde all these thinges? They sayde: Yee Marc. Luc. LORDE. Then sayde he vnto thē: Therfore euery scribe taught vnto ỳ kingdome of heauen, is like an houßholder, which bryngeth out of his treasure thinges new and olde.

And it came to passe whā Jesus had ended these parables, he departed thence, and came in to his owne coūtre, and taught thē in their synagoges: in so moch, that they were astonnyed and sayde: Whēce cōmeth soch wyßdome & power vnto him? Is not this Iohn the carpēters sonne? Is not his mother called Mary? and his brethrē James & Joses, and Symon and Jude? And are not all his sisters herewith us? Whence hath he thē all these thinges? And they were offended at him. But Jesus sayde vnto thē: A prophet Mar. Luc. Iohn is nowhere lesse sett by, thē at home & amonge his owne. And he dyd not many miracles there, because of their vnbeleue.

The XIIII. Chapter.

AT that tyme Herode ỳ Tetrarcha herde of ỳ fame of Jesu, & sayde vnto his seruaūtes: This is Jhō ỳ baptist. He is rysen agayne frō the deed, therfore are his dedes so mightie. For Herode had take Jhō Luc. bounde hī, & put him in preson for Herodias sake his brothers philips wife. For Jhon sayde vnto him: * It is not laufull for ỳ to Luc.

haue her. And fayne wolde he haue put him to death, but he feared the people, because they helde him for a prophet.

But whan Herode helde his byrth daye, the doughter of Herodias daunsed before thē, and that pleased Herode well, wherfore he promysed her with an ooth, ỹ he wolde geue her, what soeuer she wolde axe. And she (beynge instructe of hir mother afore) sayde: geue me Jhon baptistes heade in a platter. And the kynge was sory. Neuertheles for ỹ ooth sake, & thē ỹ sat with him at ỹ table, he cōmaunded it to be geuen her, and sent, & beheeded Jhon in the preson. And his heed B was brought in a platter, and geuen to the damsell, & she brought it vnto her mother. Then came his disciples, and toke his body, and buried it, and wente and tolde Jesus.

Whan Jesus herde ỹ, he departed thence by shippe in to a desert place alone. And whā the people herde therof, they folowed him on fote out of ỹ cities. And Jesus wēte forth, and sawe moch people, and had pytie vpon them, and healed their sicke. But at euen his disciples came vnto him, & saide: This is a deserte place, and ỹ night falleth on: let ỹ people departe from the, that they maye go in to the townes, and bye them vytayles. But Jesus sayde vnto them: They nede not go awaye, geue ye thē to eate. Thē saide they vnto him: We haue here but fyue C loaues and two fysshes. And he sayde: bringe thē hither. And he cōmaunded ỹ people to syt downe vpon the grasse, and toke ỹ fyue loaues and two fisshes, and loked vp towarde heauen, and gaue thankes, and brake and gaue the loaues vnto the disciples, and the disciples gaue them to the people. And they all ate, and were suffised. And they gathered vp of the broken meate that remayned ouer, twolue baskettes full. And they ỹ ate, were aboute a fyue thousande men, besyde wemen and children.

And straight waye Jesus made his disci ples to entre in to a shippe, & to go ouer before hī, tyll he had sent ỹ people awaye. And whan he had sent the people awaye, he wēte vp in to a mountayne alone, to make his prayer. And at euen he was there him self alone. And ỹ shippe was allready in ỹ myddest of the see, & was tost wt wawes, for the winde was cōtrary. But in ỹ fourth watch of ỹ night Jesus came vnto thē, walkinge vpon the see. And whan his disciples sawe him goinge vpon the see, they were afrayed, sayenge: It is some spryte, and cried out for feare. But straight waye Jesus spake vnto them, and sayde: Be of good cheare, it is I, be not afrayed.

Peter answered him, & saide: LORDE, yf it be thou, byd me come vnto the vpon ỹ wa- D ter. And he sayde: come on ỹ waye. And Peter stepte out of the shippe, & wēte vpon the water, to come vnto Jesus. But whan he sawe a mightie wynde, he was afrayed, & begāne to synke, & cried, sayenge: LORDE, helpe me. And imediatly Jesus stretched forth his hande, & caught him, & sayde vnto him: O thou of litle faith, wherfore douteste thou? And they wente in to the shippe, & the wynde ceased. Then they that were in ỹ shippe, came & fell downe before him, & sayde: Of a trueth thou art ỹ sonne of God. And they shipped ouer, & came in to the lōde of Genazereth. And whā ỹ mē of ỹ place had knowlege of hī, they sent out in to all that cōtre rounde aboute, & brought vnto him all that were sicke, & besought him, that they might but touch the hemme of his vesture onely: & as many as touched it, were made whole. Marc.6.

The XV. Chapter.

Then came vnto him the scribes and A pharises from Jerusalem, sayenge: Marc.7 Why do thy disciples transgresse ỹ tradicions of the elders? for they wash not their hōdes whan they eate bred. He answered & sayde vnto thē: Why do ye transgresse the cōmaundemēt of God, because of youre owne tradicōs? For God cōmaunded, sayēge: Honoure father & mother: & he ỹ curseth Exo.20. father & mother, shal dye the death. But ye Deu.5.b saye: Euery man shal saye to father or mo- and 27.c ther: The thīge ỹ I shulde helpe ỹ withal, Pro.28.c is geuē vnto God. By this is it come to passe, that no man honoureth his father or his mother eny more. And thus haue ye made the cōmaundement of God of none effecte, for youre owne tradicōs. Ye ypocrites, full well hath Esaye prophecied of you, & sayde: This people draweth nye vnto me wt their Esa.29.c mouth, & honoureth me wt their lippes, how Ezec.33. beit, their hert is farre from me. But in vayne do they serue me, whyle they teach soch doctrynes as are nothinge but the commaundementes of men.

And he called ỹ people to hī, & saide vnto B thē: Heare & vnderstōde: That which goeth in to the mouth, defyleth not the mā: but ỹ which cōmeth out of the mouth, defyleth ỹ

Then came his disciples, & sayde vn (mā. to him: knowest thou ỹ the pharises were offended, whan they herde this sayenge? He answered, and sayde: All plantes which my Act.5.e heauenly father hath not planted, shal be pluckte vp by ỳ rotes. Let thē go, they are ỳ blynde leaders of ỳ blynde. Whā one blinde leadeth another, they fall both ī ỳ diche.

Then answered Peter ꝛ sayde vnto him: Declare vnto us this parable. And Jesus sayde vnto thē: Are ye yet thē without vnderstondinge? Perceaue ye not, ỳ what soeuer goeth in at ỳ mouth, descēdeth downe into ỳ bely, ꝛ is cast out into the draught? But the thinge that proceadeth out of the mouth, cōmeth frō ỳ hert, ꝛ that defyleth ỳ mā. For out of ỳ hert come euell thoughtes murthur, breakynge of wedlocke, whordome theft, false witnesse, blasphemy. These are ỳ thinges that defyle a man. But to eate wt vnwaßhen hondes, defyleth not a man.

And Jesus wente out from thence, ꝛ departed into the coastes of Tyre of Sidon. And beholde, a womā of Canaan wēte out of ỳ same coastes, ꝛ cried after him, sayēge: O LORDE, thou sonne of David, haue mercy vpon me. My doughter is sore vexed wt a deuell. And he answered her neuer a worde. Thē came his disciples vnto him, ꝛ besought him, sayēge: Sēde her awaye, for she crieth after us. But he answered, ꝛ saide: I am not sent, but vnto the lost shepe of the house of Israel. Notwithstondinge she came ꝛ fell downe before him, ꝛ sayde: LORDE, helpe me. He answered ꝛ sayde: It is not good, to take the childrens bred, ꝛ to cast it vnto dogges. It is trueth LORDE (sayde she) Neuerthelesse the whelpes eate of the crommes, that fall frō their lordes table. Then answered Jesus ꝛ sayde vnto her: O womā, greate is ỳ faith be it vnto the, euē as thou desyrest. And hir doughter was made hole at ỳ same houre.

And Jesus departed thēce, and came nye vnto the see of Galile, and wente vp into a mountayne, and sat downe there. And there came vnto him moch people, hauinge with them, lame, blynde, dōme, crepell, and other many, and cast them downe at Jesus fete. And he healed thē, in so moch that the people wōdred, to se the dōme speake, the crepell whole, the halt to go, ꝛ the blynde to se. And they praysed the God of Israel.

And Jesus called his disciples vnto him, ꝛ sayde: I haue cōpassion vpon the people, for they haue cōtynued wt me now three dayes, ꝛ haue nothinge to eate, ꝛ I wil not let thē departe fastynge, lest they perishe in ỳ waye. And his disciples sayde vnto him: Whence shulde we get so moch bred in the wyldernes, that we might satißfie so moch people? And Jesus sayde vnto thē: How many loaues haue ye? They sayde: seuē, ꝛ a few litle fyshes. And he cōmaunded ỳ people to syt downe vpō the grounde, and toke ỳ seuē loaues, ꝛ the fyshes, ꝛ gaue thankes ꝛ brake thē, ꝛ gaue thē to his disciples, ꝛ ỳ disciples gaue thē vnto the people. And they all ate, ꝛ were suffised. And they toke vp of the brokē meate ỳ was left, seuen baßkettes full. And they ỳ ate, were foure thousande mē, besyde wemen and children. And whan he had sent awaye the people, he wente into a shippe, ꝛ came into the parties of Magdala.

The XVI. Chapter.

Then cāme the Pharises ꝛ Saduces vnto him, ꝛ tēpted him, requyringe him to shewe thē a tokē from heaue. But he answered, ꝛ sayde: At euē ye saye: It wil be fayre wedder, for ỳ ßky is reed. And in ỳ morninge, ye saye: It wil be foule wedder to daye, for the ßky is reed, ꝛ gloometh. O ye ypocrytes, ye can discerne the fashion of ỳ ßky: can ye not thē discerne the tokēs of these tymes also? This euell and aduoutrous generacīō seketh a tokē, ꝛ there shal no tokē be geuē thē, but the tokē of ỳ prophet Jonas. So he left thē, and departed.

And whā his disciples were come to the other syde of the water, they had forgotten to take bred wt them. Jesus sayde vnto thē: Take hede ꝛ bewarre of the leuē of ỳ Pharises ꝛ of the Saduces. Thē thought they in thē selues, sayēge: We haue takē no bred wt us. Whē Jesus perceaued ỳ, he sayde to thē: O ye of litle faith, why are ye combred (in yō mindes) because ye haue takē no bred wt you? Do ye not yet perceaue? Remembre ye not those fyue loaues, whē there were fyue thousande mē, and how many baßkettes toke ye vp? Nether ỳ seuē loaues whan there were foure thousande men, ꝛ how many baskettes toke ye vp? Why perceaue ye not then, ỳ I spake not to you of bred, whē I saide: bewarre of ỳ leuē of ỳ pharises ꝛ of ỳ Saduces? Thē vnderstode they, how ỳ he bad not thē bewarre of the leuē of bred, but of ỳ doctryne of the Pharises and of the Saduces.

Then came Jesus into the coastes of the cite Cesarea Philippi, ꝛ axed his disciples ꝛ saide: Whō do mē saie, ỳ ỳ sonne of mā is? They sayde: Some saye, ỳ thou art Jhō the baptist, Some ỳ thou art Elias, Some ỳ thou art Jeremy, or one of ỳ prophetes, ỳ he saide to thē: But whō saye ye ỳ I am? Thē answered Symō Peter and saide: Thou art Christ ỳ sonne of ỳ lyuinge God. And Jesus answered, ꝛ saide vnto hī: Blessed art thou Symō ỳ sonne of Jonas, for flesh ꝛ blonde hath not opened ỳ vnto the, but my father ỳ is in heaue. And I saie to ỳ: Thou art Peter, ꝛ vpō this rocke wil I builde my cōgregacion: and ỹ gates of hell shal not prevayle agaynst it. And the keyes of heauen wil I geue vnto the: What soeuer thou shalt bynde vpon earth, shalbe bounde also in heauen: & what soeuer thou shalt lowse vpon earth, shalbe lowsed also in heauē. Then charged he his disciples, that they shulde tell no mā that he was Jesus Christ.

From that tyme forth began Jesus to shew vnto his disciples, how that he must go vnto Jerusalē, and suffre many thinges of the elders, and of the hye prestes, and of the scrybes, and be put to death, and ryse againe the thirde daye. But Peter toke him aside, and began to rebuke him, sayenge: LORDE, fauoure thy self, let not this happen vnto the. Neuertheles he turned him aboute, & sayde vnto Peter: Auoyde fro me Sathā, thou hinderest me, for thou sauourest not ỹ thinges that be of God, but of men.

Then sayde Jesus vnto his disciples: Yf eny man wil folowe me, let him forsake him self, & take vp his crosse, and folowe me. For who so wil saue his life, shal lose it: but who so loseth his life for my sake, shal fynde it. What helpeth it a man though he wanne the whole worlde, and yet suffred harme in his soule? Or what can a man geue, to redeme his soule withall? For it wil come to passe, that the sonne of mā shal come in the glory of his father with his angels, and then shal he rewarde euery one acordinge to his dedes. Verely I saye vnto you: there stonde here some, which shal not taist of death, tyll they se ỹ sonne of mā come in his kingdome.

The XVII. Chapter.

AND after sixe dayes Jesus toke Peter James, and Jhon his brother, and brought them vp in to an hye mountayne out of the waye, and was transfigured before thē: & his face shone as ỹ Sonne, and his clothes were as white as the light. And beholde, there appeared vnto thē Moses and Elias talkinge with him. Then answered Peter, and sayde vnto Jesus: LORDE, here is good beynge for us. Yf thou wilt, let us make here thre tabernacles: one for the, one for Moses, and one for Elias. Whyle he yet spake, beholde, a bright cloude ouershadowed them: and lo, there came a voyce out of the cloude, saienge: This is my deare sonne, in whom I delyte, heare him. Whan ỹ disciples herde that, they fell vpon their faces, and were sore afrayed. But Jesus came and touched them, and sayde: Aryse, and be not afrayed. And whan they loked vp, they sawe no man, but Jesus onely.

And whā they came downe frō ỹ mountayne, Jesus charged them, and sayde: Tell no man of this vision, tyll the sonne of man be ryssen agayne from ỹ deed. And his disciples axed him, and sayde: Why saye the scrybes then, that Elias must first come? Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: Elias shall come first in dede, and bringe all thinges to rights agayne. But I saye vnto you: Elias is come all ready, & they knewe him not, but haue done vnto him what they wolde. Euē so shal also the sonne of man suffre of them. Then the disciples perceaued, that he spake vnto them of Jhon the baptist.

And whan they were come to the people, there came vnto him a certayne man, and kneled vnto him, and sayde: LORDE, haue mercy vpon my sonne, for he is lunatike, & sore vexed. He falleth oft tymes in to ỹ fyre, and oft in to ỹ water: and I brought him vnto thy disciples, and they coude not heale him. Jesus answered, and sayde: O thou faithles and froward generacion, how longe shal I be with you? how longe shal I suffre you? Bringe him hither to me. And Jesus rebuked him, and ỹ deuyll wēte out of him, and ỹ childe was healed, euen that same houre.

Then came the disciples vnto Jesus secretly, & sayde: Why coude not we cast him out? Jesus sayde vnto them: Because of your vnbeleue. For I saye verely vnto you: Yf ye haue faith as a grane of mustarde sede, ye maye saye vnto this mountayne: Remoue hence to yonder place, and he shal remoue, nether shal eny thinge be vnpossible vnto you. How beit this kinde goeth not out, but by prayer and fastynge.

Whyle they occupied in Galile, Jesus sayde vnto them: it wil come to passe, that the sonne of man shalbe delyuered in to the hondes of men, and they shal kyll him, and the thirde daye shal he aryse agayne. And they were very sory. Now whā they were come to Capernaum, they that receaued ỹ tribute money, came to Peter, and sayde: Doth youre master paye tribute? He sayed: yee. And when he was come home, Jesus preuented him, and sayde: What thinkest thou Symon? Of whom do the kynges of the earth take toll or tribute? Of their children, or of straungers? Then sayde Peter to him: Of straungers. Jesus sayde vnto him: Then are ỹ children fre. Neuertheles lest we offende them, go thy waye to the see, and cast thine angle, and take the fysh that first cōmeth vp, and whan thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt fynde a pece of twenty pens, take that, and geue it them for me and the.

The XVIII. Chapter.

A Marc. 9.d Luc. 9.c

AT the same tyme came the disciples vnto Jesus, and sayde: Who is the greatest in the kyngdome of heauen? And Jesus called a childe vnto him, and set him in the myddest amonge them, and sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: Excepte ye turne and become as children, ye shal not entre into the kyngdome of heauen. Whosoeuer therfore humbleth him self as this childe, ỳ same is the greatest in ỳ kyngdome of heauen. And who so receaueth soch a childe in my name, receaueth me. But who so offendeth one of these litle ones which beleue in me, it were better for him, that a mylstone were hanged aboute his neck, and he drowned in the depth of the see.

1.Pet.2.a

Marc. 9.c Luc.17.a

Wo vnto the worlde because of slaūders. Nee there must slaunders come: but wo vnto that man, by whom slaunder commeth.

Mat.5.d Marc. 9.c

But yf thy hande or thy fote offende the, cut him of, and cast him from the. It is better for ỳ to entre in vnto life lame or crepell, thē ỳ thou shuldest haue two hōdes or two fete, and be cast in to euerlastinge fyre. And yf thyne eye offende the, plucke it out, & cast it from the. Better it is for the to entre in vnto life with one eye, thē to haue two eyes, and to be cast in to hell fyre.

Deu.13.a

B Take hede, ỳ ye despyse not one of these litle ones. For I saye vnto you: their angels do alwaye beholde the face of my father which is in heauen: for the sonne of man is come to saue that which is lost. How thinke ye? Yf a man haue an hundreth shepe, and one of thē be gone astraye, doth not he leaue the nyentie and nyene in the mountaynes, and goeth, and seketh that one which is gone astraye? And yf it happen that he fynde it, verely I saye vnto you: he reioyseth more ouer it, then ouer the nyentie & nyene which wēte not astraye. Euen so is it not the will before youre father in heauen, that one of these litle ones shulde perisshe.

Luc.15.a

C Yf thy brother trespace agaynst the, go and tell him his faute betwene the and him alone. Yf he heare the, thou hast wōne thy brother. But yf he heare the not, then take yet with the one or two, that in the mouth of two or three wytnesses, euery matter maye be stablysshed. Yf he heare not them, tell it vnto the congregacion. Yf he heare not the cōgregacion, holde him as an Heithen and Publican. Verely I saye vnto you: what soeuer ye shal bynde vpon earth, shalbe bounde also in heauen: & what soeuer ye lowse vpon earth, shalbe lowsed also in heauē. Agayne, I saye vnto you: Yf two of you shal agree vpon earth (for what thinge soeuer it be ỳ they wolde desyre) they shal haue it of my father which is in heauē. For where two or three are gathered togetherī my name, there am I in the myddest amonge them.

Luc.11.b

Then came Peter vnto him, & sayde, LORDE, how oft shal I forgeue my brother, ỳ trespaceth agaynst me? Seuē tymes? Jesus sayde vnto hī: I saye not vnto ỳ seuē tymes, but seuētie tymes seuen tymes. Therfore is ỳ kingdome of heauē lickened vnto a kynge which wolde reken wt his seruaūtes. And whan he beganne to rekē, one was brought vnto him, which ought him ten thousande poūde. Now whā he had nothinge to paye his lorde cōmaunded him to be solde, & his wife & his childrē, & all ỳ he had, & payment to be made. Then the seruaunt fell downe, & besought him, sayenge: Syr, haue pacīēce wt me, and I wil paye the all. Then had the lorde pytie on that seruaunt, & discharged him, and forgaue him the dett.

Mat.18.c Nimb. Marc. Luc.17.a

D And the same seruaunt wēte out, & founde one of his felowes, which ought him an hū dreth pens, and layed hande vpon him, and toke him by the throte, and sayde: paye me that thou owest. Thē his felowe fell downe, and besought him, sayenge: haue pacīēce wt me, and I wil paye the all. Neuertheles, he wolde not, but wente and cast him into preson, tyll he shulde paye the dett. Whan his felowes sawe what was done, they were very sory, and came and tolde their lorde all that had happened. Then his lorde called for him, and sayde vnto him: O thou wicked seruaūt, I forgaue the all this dett, because thou praydest me: shuldest not thou then haue had compassion also vpon thy felowe, euen as I had pytie vpon the? And his lorde was wroth, and delyuered him vnto the iaylers, tyll he payed all that he ought. So shal my heauenly father do also vnto you, yf ye euery one of you frō youre hertes, forgeue not his brother his trespaces.

The XIX. Chapter.

AND it came to passe, whā Jesus had ended these sayenges, he gat him frō Galile, & came īto ỳ coastes of Jewry beyonde Jordane, & moch people folowed him, and he healed them there.

Then came vnto him the Pharises & tēpted him, & sayde vnto him: Is it lawfull for a man to put awaye his wife for eny maner of cause? He answered & sayde vnto thē: Haue ye yenot red, how ỹ he which made (man) at the begynnynge, made thē mā & womā, & sayde: For this cause shal a mā leave father & mother, & cleve vnto his wife, & they two shalbe one flesshe. Now are they not twayne then, but one flesh. Let not man therfore put a sunder, ỹ which God hath coupled togeather.

Then sayde they: Why dyd Moses then cōmaunde to geve a testimonyall of denorsement, & to put her awaye? He sayde vnto thē: Moses (because of ỹ hardnes of yō hertes) suffred you to put awaye youre wyues: B Nevertheles frō the begynnynge it hath not bene so. But I saye vnto you: Whosoever putteth awaye his wife (excepte it be for fornicacion) and marieth another, breaketh wedlocke. And who so marieth her ỹ is devorced, commytteth advoutrye.

Then sayde his disciples vnto him: Yf ỹ matter be so betwene mā and wife, thē is it not good to mary. But he sayde vnto them: All mē can not cōprehende ỹ sayenge, saue they to whō it is geuē. For there be some gelded, which are so borne from their mothers wombe: and there be some gelded, which are gelded of men: & there be some gelded, which have gelded thē selves for the kyngdome of heavens sake. He that can cōprehende it, let him comprehende it.

Then were brought vnto him yōge children, ỹ he shulde put his hondes vpon thē, & praye. And ỹ disciples rebuked them. But Jesus sayde: Suffre ỹ childrē, & forbyd thē not to come vnto me, for vnto soch belōgeth the kyngdome of heauen. And whā he had layed his hōdes vpō thē, he departed thēce.

C And beholde, one came vnto him, and sayde: Good master, what good shal I do, ỹ I maye have the euer lastinge life? He sayde vnto him: Why callest thou me good? there is none good, but God onely. Nevertheles yf thou wilt entre into life, kepe ỹ *cōmaundemētes. Thē sayde, he vnto him: Which? Jesus saide: Thou shalt not kyll: thou shalt not breake wedlocke: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt beare no false wytnes: Honoure father and mother: and thou shalt loue thy neghboure as thy self. Then sayde the yonge mā vnto him: All these have I kepte fro my youth vp: what lack I yet? Jesus sayde vnto him: Yf thou wilt be perfecte, go thy waye and sell that thou hast, & geue it vnto the poore, and thou shalt have a treasure in heaven, and come and folowe me. Whan ỹ yonge man herde ỹ worde, he wente awaye sory, for he had greate possessions.

Jesus sayde vnto his disciples: Verely I saie vnto you: it shalbe harde for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of heauē. Mare.10.c Luc.18.c

D And moreover I saye vnto you: It is easier for a Camell to go thorow the eye of a nedle, thē for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of heauen. Whan his disciples herde that, they were exceadingly amased, and sayde: Who can thē be saued? Neuertheles Jesus behelde them, and sayde vnto them: With men it is vnpossyble, but with God all thinges are possyble. Zach.8.a

Then answered Peter & sayde vnto him: Beholde, we have forsakē all, and folowed the: What shal we have therfore? Jesus sayde vnto thē: Verely I saye vnto you: that when the sonne of man shal sytt in the seate of his maiestye, ye which have folowed me in the new byrth, shal syt also vpon twolue seates, and iudge ỹ twolue trybes of Israel. And who so euer forsaketh houses or brethrē, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or londes, for my names sake, the same shal receave an hundreth folde, and inheret euerlastinge life. But many that be the first, shalbe the last: and the last shalbe the first. Marc.10.c Luc.18.c Mat.4.c Luc.21.b Sap.5.a Deu.33.b Mat.20.b Luc.13.c

The XX. Chapter.

A The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto an housholder, which wēte out early in the mornynge, to hyre labourers in to his vyniarde. And whā he had agreed with the labourers for a peny a daye, he sent thē in to his vynyarde. And aboute ỹ thirde houre he wente out, and sawe other stondinge ydle in the market place, and sayde vnto them: Go ye also in to my vynyarde, & what so euer is right, I wil geue it you. And they wēte their waye. Agayne, he wēte out aboute the sixte and nyenth houre, and dyd likewyse. And aboute the eleuenth houre he wēte out, and founde other stōdynge ydle, and sayde vnto them: Why stonde ye here all the daye ydle? They sayde vnto him: because no man hath hyred us. He saide vnto thē: Go ye also in to my vinyarde, and loke what is right, ye shal have it. Now whan euen was come, the lorde of the vynyarde sayde vnto his steward: Call the labourers, and geue them their hyre, begynnynge from the last vnto ỹ first. Then they that were hyred aboute the eleuenth houre, came and receaued euery man a peny. But whan the first B came, they supposed that they shulde receaue more: and they also receaued every man a peny. And whan they had receaued it, they murmured agaynst the housholder, and sayde: These last have wrought but one houre, and thou hast made thē equall vnto us, which have borne the burthen and heate of the daye. He answered and sayde vnto one of them: frende, I do ỹ no wronge: diddest not thou agree with me for a peny? Take that thine is, and go thy waye. I wil geue vnto this last also, like as vnto the. Or have I not power, to do as me listeth with myne owne? Is thine eye euell, because I am good? So the last shalbe the first, & the first the last. For many are called, but few are chosen.

Then came vnto him the mother of Zebedes childrē with hir sonnes, fell downe before him, and desyred a certayne thinge of hī. And he saide vnto her: What wilt thou? She sayde vnto him: Let these two sonnes of myne syt in thy kyngdome: the one vpon thy right honde, & the other vpon thy left honde. But Jesus answered, and sayde: Ye wote not what ye axe. Maye ye drynke the cuppe, that I shal drynke? & to be baptised with the baptyme, that I shalbe baptysed withall? They sayde vnto him: Yee that we maye. And he sayde vnto them: My cuppe truly shal ye drynke, & with the baptyme ỹ I shal be baptysed withall, shal ye be baptysed: Nevertheles to syt vpon my right honde & on my left, is not myne to geue, but vnto thē for whō it is prepared of my father.

Whan the ten herde that, they disdayned at the two brethren. But Jesus called them vnto him, and sayde: Ye knowe that ỹ prynces of the worlde have domynacion of the people, and the greatest * exercise power amonge thē. It shal not be so amonge you. But whoso euer wyl be greate amonge you, let him be youre mynister: & whosoeuer wyl be chefe, let him be youre seruaunt: Euen as the sonne of man came, not to be serued, but to do seruyce, and to geue his life to a redēpcion for many.

And when they departed from Jericho, moch people folowed him: and beholde, two blynde men sat by the waye syde: And when they herde that Jesus passed by, they cried & sayde. O LORDE, thou sonne Dauid, haue mercy vpon vs. But ỹ people rebuked the, that they shulde holde their peace. Never theles they cried the more, & sayde: O LORDE, thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercy vpon vs. And Jesus stode styll, and called them, and sayde: What wil ye, ỹ I shal do vnto you? They sayde vnto him: LORDE, that oure eyes maye be opened. And Jesus had compassion vpon them, and touched their eyes: & immediatly their eies receaued sighe. And they folowed him.

The XXI. Chapter.

NOw whan they drew nye vnto Jerusalem, and were come to Bethphage vnto mount Oliuete, Jesus sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Go in to the towne that lyeth before you, & anone ye shal fynde an Asse bounde, and hir foale with her: lowse them, and bringe thē vnto me. And yf eny man saye ought vnto you, saye ye: the LORDE hath nede of thē. And straight waye he wil let them go. But all this was done, that the thinge might be fulfylled, which was spoken by the prophet, sayenge: Tell the doughter of Sion: beholde, thy kynge commeth vnto ỹ meke, sytting vpon an Asse and a foale of ỹ Asse vsed to the yocke. The disciples wente, and dyd as Jesus commaunded them, and brought the Asse and the foale, & layed their clothes vpon them, and set him theron. But many of the people spred their garmentes in the waye: other cut downe braunches from the trees, and strawed them in the waye. As for the people that wente before and that came after, they cryed and sayde: Hosianna vnto the sonne of Dauid, Blessed be he that commeth in the name of the LORDE, Hosianna in the height.

And whan he was come into Jerusalem, all the cite was moued, and sayde: Who is this? And the people sayde: This is Jesus ỹ prophet of Nazareth out of Galile. And Jesus wente in to the tēple of God, and cast out all them that bought and solde in the tēple, and ouerthrew the tables of the money chaungers, and the seates of them that solde doues, and sayde vnto them: It is wrytē: My house shalbe called ỹ house of prayer, but ye have made it a denne of murthurers. But whan the hye prestes and the scribes sawe the wonders that he dyd, and the childrē crienge in the temple and sayenge: Hosianna vnto the sonne of Dauid, they disdayned, and sayde vnto him: Heareste thou what these saye: Jesus sayde vnto them: Yee, Haue ye neuer red: Out of the mouth of very babes and sucklinges thou hast ordeyned prayse: And he left them there, and went out of the cite vnto Bethania, and there abode ouer night.

But in the mornynge as he returned in to the cite, he hūgred. And in the waye he sawe a fygge tre, and came vnto it, and founde nothinge theron, but leaues onely, and sayde vnto it: Neuer frute growe on the from hence forth. And immediatly the fygge tre wythred awaye. And whan his disciples sawe that, they marueyled, and sayde. How is ỳ fygge tre wythred awaye so soone: Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: Verely I saye vnto you: Yf ye haue faith & doute not, ye shal not onely do this with the fygge tre, but yf ye shal saye vnto this mountayne: Avoyde, and cast thy self in to the see, it shal be done. And what soeuer ye axe in prayer, yf ye beleue, ye shal receaue it.

And when he was come in to the tēple, the chefe prestes and the elders of the people came vnto him (as he was teachinge) & sayde: By what auctorite doest thou these thinges: and who gaue the this auctorite: Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: I wil axe a worde of you also: which yf ye tell me, I in like wyse wyl tell you, by what auctorite I do these thinges. The baptime of Jhō, whēce was it: from heauē, or of men: Then thought they amōge them selues, and saide: Yf we saye it was from heauē, then shal he saye vnto us: Why dyd ye not then beleue him: But yf we saye it was of men, thē feare we the people: For euery mā helde Jhon for a prophet. And they answered Jesus, & sayde: We can not tell. Then sayde he vnto them: Nether tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thinges. But what thinke ye: A certayne man had two sonnes, and came to the first, and sayde: Go thy waye my sonne, & worke to daye in my vynyarde. He answered and sayde: I wil not, but afterwarde he repented, and wente. He came also vnto the seconde, and sayde like wyse. And he answered and saide: I wil syr. And wēte not. Whether of them twayne dyd the wil of the father: They sayde vnto him: the first. Jesus sayde vnto thē: Verely I saye vnto you: The publicans and harlottes shal come in to the kyngdome of God before you. For Jhon came vnto you, and taught you ỳ right waye and ye beleued him not: but the publicans & harlottes beleued hī. As for you, though ye sawe it, yet were ye not moued with repētaunce, that ye might afterwarde haue beleued him.

Heare another parable. There was a certayne houßholder which planted a vynyarde, and hedged it roūde aboute, and dygged a wyne presse in it, and built a tower, and let it out vnto hußbandmen, and wente in to a straunge countre. Now whā the tyme of the frute drew neare, he sent his seruaūtes to the hußbandmen, to receaue the frutes of it. Then the hußbandmen caught his seruauntes: one they bett, another they kylled, the thirde they stoned. Agayne, he sent other seruauntes, moo then the first, and they dyd vnto them in like maner. At the last he sent his owne sonne vnto them, and sayde: they wyl stōde in awe of my sonne. But whē the hußbandmē sawe the sonne, they sayde amonge thē selues: This is the Heyre, come, let us kyl hym, and take his inheritaūce vnto oure selues. And they caught him, and thrust him out of the vynyarde, & slew him. Now whē the lorde of the vynyarde commeth, what wyl he do vnto those hußbandmen: They sayde vnto him: He wyl cruelly destroye those euell personnes, & let out his vyniarde vnto other hußbādmen, which shal delyuer him the frute at tymes conuenyent.

Jesus sayde vnto thē: Dyd ye neuer rede in the scriptures: The same stone which the buylders refused, is become the heade stone in the corner: This was the LORDES doynge, & it is maruelous ī oure eyes Therfore I saie vnto you: The kingdome of God shalbe takē frō you, & shalbe geuē vnto the Heithē, which shal brynge forth ỳ frutes of it. And who so falleth vpō this stone, shalbe brokē in peces: & loke vpō whom it falleth, it shal grynde him to poulder. And when the hye prestes & pharises herde his parables, they perceaued, that he spake of them. And they wente aboute to take him, but they feared ỳ people, because they helde hī for a prophet.

The XXII. Chapter.

AND Jesus answered, and spake vnto thē agayne by parables, & sayde: The kingdome of heauen is like vnto a kynge, which maried his sonne. And sent forth his seruauntes, to call the gestes vnto the mariage, & they wolde not come. Agayne, he sent forth other seruauntes, and sayde: Tell the gestes: Beholde, I haue prepared my dynner, myne oxen and my fed catell are kylled, and all thinges are readye, come to the mariage. But they made light of it, and wente their wayes: one to his huß-bandrye, another to his marchaundise. As for the remnaũt, they toke his seruauntes, and intreated thẽ shamefully, and slew thẽ. When the kynge herde that, he was wroth, and sent forth his warryers, and destroyed those murtherers, and set fyre vpon their cite. Then sayde he vnto his seruauntes: The mariage in dede is prepared, but the gestes were not worthy. Go youre waye out therfore into ỹ hye wayes, and as many as ye fynde, byd them to the mariage. And the seruauntes wẽte out into the hye wayes, and gathered together as many as they coulde fynde, both good and bad, & the tables were all full. Then the kynge wẽte in, to se the gestes, and spyed there a man that had not on a weddynge garment, and sayde vnto him: Frende, how camest thou in hither, & hast not on a weddynge garment? And he was euen spechlesse. Then sayde the kynge vnto his seruauntes: Take and bynde him hande and fote, & cast him into ỹ vtter darcknes: there shal be waylinge and gnaßhinge of teth. For many be called, but few are chosẽ.

Then wente the Pharises, and toke counsell, how they might tangle him in his wordes, and sent vnto him their disciples with Herodes officers, and sayde: Master, we knowe that thou art true, and teachest the waye of God truly, and carest for no mã: for thou regardest not the outwarde appearaunce of mẽ. Tell us therfore, how thinkest thou? Is it laufull to geue tribute vnto the Emperoure, or not? Now whã Jesus perceaued their wickednes, he sayde: O ye ypocrites, why tẽpte ye me? Shewe me ỹ tribute money. And they toke hĩ a peny. And he sayde vnto thẽ: Whose is this ymage and superscription? They sayde vnto him: The Emperours. Then sayde he vnto them: Geue therfore vnto the Emperour, that which is the Emperours: and geue vnto God, that which is Gods. When they herde that, they marueyled, and left him, & wẽte their waye.

The same daye there came vnto him the Sadduces (which holde that there is no resurreccion) and axed him, and sayde: Master, Moses sayde: Yf a man dye, hauynge no children, his brother shal mary his wife, & rayse vp sede vnto his brother. Now were there with us seuẽ brethren. The first maried a wife, and dyed: & for somoch as he had no sede, he left his wife vnto his brother. Like wyse the secõde, and thirde vnto the seuẽth. Last of all the woman dyed also. Now in the resurreccion, whose wife shal she be of the seuen? For they all had her. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Ye erre, and vnderstõde not the scriptures, ner the power of God. In the resurreccion they shal nether mary, ner be maried, but are as the angels of God in heauen.

As touchinge the resurrecciõ of the dede, haue ye not red, what is spoken vnto you of God, which sayeth: I am the God of Abraham, and ỹ God of Jsaac, and the God of Jacob? Yet is not God a God of the dede, but of the lyuynge. And whan the people herde that, they were astonnyed at his doctryne.

When the Pharises herde, that he had stopped the mouth of the Saduces, they gathered them selues together. And one of them (a Scrybe) tẽpted him, and sayde: Master, which is the chefest commaundemẽt in the lawe? Jesus saide vnto him: Thou shalt loue the LORDE thy God with all thy hert, with all thy soule, and with all thy mynde: this is the pryncipall and greatest cõmaundement. As for the seconde, it is like vnto it: Thou shalt loue thy neghboure as thy self. In these two commaundementes hange all the lawe and the prophetes.

Now whyle the Pharises were gathered together, Jesus axed them, and sayde: What thinke ye of Christ? Whose sonne is he? They sayde vnto him: Dauids. He sayde vnto them: How then doth Dauid in spyrte call him LORDE, sayenge: The LORDE sayde vnto my LORDE: Syt thou on my right honde, tyll I make thine enemies thy fote stole. Yf Dauid now call him LORDE, how is he then his sonne? And no man coude answere him one worde, nether durst eny man axe him eny mo questiõs, frõ that daye forth.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Then spake Jesus vnto ỹ people and to his disciples, and sayde: The scribes & Pharises are set downe vpon Moses seate. Therfore what soeuer they bid you obserue, that obserue and do, but after their workes shal ye not do, for they sayer & do not. For they bynde heuy and intollerable burthens, and laye them vpon mens shulders: But they them selues wil not heaue at them with one of their fyngers. All their workes do they to be sene of men. They stabrode their *Philateries, and make large borders vpon their garmentes, and loue to syt vppermost at the table, and to haue the chefe seates in the synagoges, and loue to be saluted in the market, and to be called of mẽ Rabbi.

called Rabbi, for one is youre master, euen Christ, and all ye are brethren. And call no man father vpon earth, for one is youre father, which is in heauē. And ye shal not suffre youre selues to be called masters, for one is youre master, namely, Christ. He that is greatest amōge you, shalbe youre seruaunt. For who so exalteth him self, shal be brought lowe: and he that humbleth himself, shalbe exalted.

Wo vnto you Scrybes and pharises, ye ypocrytes, that shut vp the kyngdome of heauen before men: Ye come not in youre selues, nether suffre ye them to enter, that wold be in.

Wo vnto you Scrybes and pharises, ye ypocrytes, that deuoure wyddowes houses, and that vnder the culoure of prayēge longe prayers, therfore shal ye receaue ỹ greater damnacion.

Wo vnto you Scrybes and pharises, ye ypocrytes, which compasse see and lōde to make one proselyte: and whan he is become one, ye make of him a childe of hell, two folde more then ye youre selues are.

Wo vnto you blynde gydes, which saye: Who so euer sweareth by the temple, that is nothinge: but who so euer sweareth by the golde of the temple, he is giltie. Ye fooles and blynde, whether is greater: the golde, or the tēple that sanctifieth the golde: And who so euer sweareth by the altare, that is nothinge: but who so euer sweareth by the offeringe that is vpō it, he is giltye. Ye fooles and blynde, whether is greater: the offeringe, or the altare that sanctifieth the offeryngē: Therfore who so sweareth by the altare, sweareth by the same, and by all that is theron: and who so sweareth by the temple, sweareth by the same, and by him that dwelleth therin. And who so sweareth by heauen, sweareth by the seate of God, and by him that sytteth theron.

Wo vnto you scrybes and pharises, ye ypocrytes, which tythe Mynt, Anyse and Cummyn, and leaue the waightier matters of the lawe behynde: namely, iudgment, mercy, and fayth. These ought to haue bene done, and not to leaue the other behynde. O ye blynde gydes, which strayne out a gnat, but swalowe vp a Camell.

Wo vnto you scrybes and pharises, ye ypocrytes, which make cleane the vtter syde of the cuppe and platter, but within are ye full of robbery and excesse. Thou blynde pharise, clense first the in syde of the cuppe and platter, that the out syde maye be cleane also.

Wo vnto you scrybes and pharises, ye ypocrites, which be like vnto paynted Sepulcres, that appeare beutyfull outwarde, but within they are full of deed mens bones and all fylthines. Euen so are ye also: Outwarde ye appeare righteous vnto men, but within ye are full of ypocrisye and iniquyte.

Wo vnto you scrybes and pharises, ye ypocrites, which buylde the tombes of the prophetes, and garnysh the sepulcres of the righteous, and saye: Yf we had bene in oure fathers tyme, we wolde not haue bene partakers with them in the blonde of the prophetes. Therfore ye be wytnesses vnto youre selues, that ye are the children of them, which slew the prophetes. Go to, fulfyll ye also the measure of youre fathers. O ye serpentes, O ye generacion of vypers, how wyl ye escape the damnacion of hell?

Therfore beholde, I sende vnto you prophetes and wysemen, and scrybes, and some of them shal ye kyll and crucifye, and some of them shal ye scourge in youre synagoges, and persecute them from cite to cite: that vpon you maye come all the righteous blonde which hath bene shed vpon ỹ earth, from the blonde of righteous Abel, vnto ỹ blonde of Zachary ỹ sonne of Barachias, whom ye slew betwene the temple and the altare. Verely I saye vnto you: All these thinges shal light vpō this generacion. O Jerusalem Jerusalem, thou that slayest the prophetes, and stonest them that are sent vnto the: how oft wolde I haue gathered thy children together, euen as the henne gathereth hir chekens vnder hir wynges, and ye wolde not? Beholde, youre habitacion shalbe left vnto you desolate. For I saye vnto you: Ye shal not se me hence forth, tyll ye saye: Blessed be he, that commeth in the name of the LORDE.

The XXIIII. Chapter.

AND Jesus wente out and departed from the temple, and his disciples came vnto him, to shew him the buyldinge of the temple. But Jesus sayde vnto them: Se ye not all these thinges? Verely I saye vnto you: there shal not be left here one stone vpon another, ỹ shal not be cast downe. The XXV. Chapter.

THen shal the kyngdome of heauen be like vnto ten virgins, which toke their lãpes, and wente forth to mete the brydegome. But fyue of them were foolish, and fyue were wyse. The foolish toke their lãpes, nevertheles they toke none oyle with them. But the wyse toke oyle in their vessels with their lampes. Now whyle the brydegrome taried, they slombred all and slepte. But at mydnight there was a crye made: Beholde, the brydegrome commeth, go youre waye out for to mete him. Then all those virgins arose, and prepared their lampes. But the foolish sayde vnto the wyse: geue vs of youre oyle, for oure lãpes are gone out. Then answered the wyse, and sayde: Not so, lest there be not ynough for vs and you, but go rather vnto them that sell, and bye for youre selues. And whyle they wente to bye, the brydegrome came: and they that were readye, wente in with him vnto the mariage, and the gate was shut vp. At ỹ last came ỹ other virgins also, and sayde: LORDE LORDE, opẽ vnto vs. But he answered, and sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: I knowe you not. Watch ye therfore, for ye knowe nether the daye ner yet the houre, whan ỹ sonne of man shal come.

Like wyse as a certayne mã ready to take his iourney into a straunge countre, called his seruaũtes, and delyuered his goodes vnto thẽ. And vnto one he gaue fyue talentes, to another two, and to another one: vnto euery man after his abilyte, and straight waye departed. Then he that had receaued the fyue talentes, wente and occupied with the same, and wanne other fyue talentes. Likewyse he ỹ receaued two talentes, wãne other two also. But he that receaued ỹ one wente and dygged a pyt in the earth, and hyd his lordes money. After a longe season the lorde of those seruauntes came, and reckened with them. Then came he that had receaued fyue talentes, and brought other fyue talentes, and sayde: Syr, thou delyuerdst vnto me fyue talentes: Beholde, with them haue I wonne fyue talẽtes mo. Then sayde his lorde vnto hi: wel thou good & faithfull seruaunt, thou hast bene faithfull ouer litle, I wil set the ouer moch: entre thou in to the ioye of thy lorde. Thẽ came he also that had receaued two talentes, and sayde: Syr, thou delyuerdst vnto me two talentes: Beholde, I haue wonne two other talẽtes with thẽ. His lorde sayde vnto him: Wel thou good and faithfull seruaũt, thou hast bene faithfull ouer litle, I wil set the ouer moch: entre thou in to the ioye of thy lorde.

Then he that had receaued the one talẽt, came and sayde: Syr, I knew that thou art an hard man: thou reapest where thou hast not sowen, and gatherest where thou hast not strowed, and so I was afrayed, and wente and hyd thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast thine owne. But his lorde answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou euell and slouthfull seruaunt, knewest thou that I reape where I sowed not, and gather where I strawed not? Thou shuldest therfore haue had my money to the chaungers, and then at my commynge shulde I haue receaued myne owne with vauntage. Therfore take the talent frõ him, and geue it vnto him that hath ten talentes. For who so hath, to him shalbe geuen, and he shal haue abundaunce. But who so hath not, frõ him shalbe takẽ awaye euen that he hath. And cast the vnprofitable seruaunt into vtter darcknes: there shalbe waylinge and gnaßhinge of teth.

But whan the sonne of man shal come in his glory, and all holy angels with him, then shal he syt vpon the seate of his glory. And all people shalbe gathered before him: and he shal separate them one from another as a shepherde deuydeth the shepe from ỹ goates. And he shal set ỹ shepe on his right honde, and the goates on the lefte. Then shal the kynge saye vnto them that shalbe on his right honde: Come hither ye blessed of my father, inheret ye ỹ kingdome, which is prepared for you from the begynnynge of the worlde. For I was hongrie, and ye gaue me meate: I was thirstie, and ye gaue me drynke: I was harbourlesse, and ye lodged me: I was naked, & ye clothed me: I was sicke, and ye vysited me: I was in preson, and ye came vnto me.

Then shal the righteous answere him, & saye: LORDE, whẽ sawe we the hõgrie, and fed the? Or thirstie, and gaue the drynke? When sawe we the herbourlesse, and lodged the? Or naked, and clothed ỹ? Or whẽ sawe we ỹ sicke or in preson, and came vnto the? And the kynge shal answer and saye vnto them: Verely I saye vnto you: Loke what ye haue done vnto one of the least of these my brethren, the same haue ye done vnto me.

Then shal he saye also vnto them that shalbe on the left hande: Departe fro me ye cursed in to the euerlastinge fyre, which is prepared for the deuell and his angels. For I was hōgrie, and ye gaue me no meate: I was thirstye, and ye gaue me no drynke: I was herbourlesse, and ye lodged me not: I was naked, and ye clothed me not: I was sicke and in preson, and ye vysited me not.

Then shal they also answere hī, and saye: LORDE, when sawe we the hōgrie, or thyrstie, or herbourlesse, or naked, or sicke, or in preson, and haue not mynistred vnto the? Thē shal he answere them, and saye: Verely I saye vnto you: Loke what ye haue not done vnto one of the leest of these, the same haue ye not done vnto me. And these shal go in to euerlastinge payne, but the righteous in to euerlastinge life.

The XXVI. Chapter.

AND it came to passe whā Jesus had fynished all these wordes, he sayde vnto his disciples: Ye knowe, that after two dayes shalbe Easter, and the sonne of man shalbe delyuered to be crucified.

Then assembled together the hye prestes and the scrybes, and the elders of the people in to the palace of the hye prest which was called Caiphas, and helde a councell, how they might take Jesus by disceate, and kyll him. But they sayde: Not on the holy daye, lest there be an vproure in the people.

Now when Jesus was at Bethany in the house of Symon the leper, there came vnto hī a woman, which had a bore with precious oyntment, and poured it vpon his heade, as he sat at the table. Whan his disciples sawe that, they dißdayned, and sayde: Where to serueth this waist? This oyntmēt might haue bene wel solde, and geuē to the poore. Whē Jesus perceaued that, he sayde vnto them: Why trouble ye the woman? She hath wrought a good worke vpon me for ye haue allwaye the poore with you, but me shal ye not haue allwayes. Where as she hath poured this oyntmēt vpon my body, she dyd it to bury me. Verely I saye vnto you: where so euer this gospell shalbe preached thorow out all the worlde, there shal this also that she hath done, be tolde for a memoriall of her.

Then one of the twolue (called Judas Iscarioth) wente vnto the hye prestes, and sayde: What wil ye geue me, and I shal delyuer him vnto you? And they offred hī thirtie syluer pens. And from that tyme forth, he sought oportunyte to betraye him.

The first daye of swete bred came the disciples to Jesus, and sayde vnto him: Where wilt thou that we prepare for the, to eate the Easter lambe? He sayde: Go in to the cite to soch a man, and saye vnto him: The Master sendeth the worde: My tyme is at honde, I wil kepe myne Easter by the with my disciples. And the disciples dyd as Jesus had appoynted them, and made ready the Easter lambe.

And at euen he sat downe at the table with the twolue. And as they ate, he sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: One of you shal betraye me. And they were exceadinge sorowfull, and beganne euery one of them to saye vnto him: Syr, is it I? He answered and sayde: He that deppeth his honde with me in the dyßhe, the same shal betraye me. The sonne of man goeth forth, as it is wrytten of him: but wo vnto that man by whō the sonne of man shalbe betrayed: It had bene better for that mā, yf he had never bene borne. Thē Judas that betrayed him, answered and sayde: Master, is it I? He sayde vnto him Thou hast sayde.

And as they ate, Jesus toke the bred, gaue thankes, brake it, and gaue it to the disciples, and sayde: Take, eate, this is my body. And he toke the cuppe, and thanked, and gaue it thē, and sayde: Drynke ye all therof, this is my bloude of the new testament, that shalbe shed for many for the remission of synnes. I saye vnto you: I wil not drynke hence forth of this frute of the vyne tre, vntill that daye that I shal drynke it new with you in my fathers kyngdome.

And whan they had sayde grace, they wente forth vnto mount Oliuete. Then sayde Jesus vnto them. * This night shal ye all be offended in me. For it is wrytten: I wil smyte the shepherde, and the shepe of the flocke shalbe scatered abrode. But after that I ryse agayne, I wil go before you in to Galile. Peter answered and sayde vnto him: * Though all men shulde be offended in ȳ, yet wyl I neuer be offended. Jesus sayde vnto hī: Verely I saye vnto ȳ: This same night before ȳ cock crowe, shalt thou denie me thryse. Peter saide vnto him: And though I shulde dye with the, yet wil I not denye

the. Likewyse also sayde all the disciples.

Then came Jesus with them into a felde which is called Gethsemane, and sayde vnto the disciples: Syt ye here, whyle I go yonder & praye. And he toke with him Peter, and the two sonnes of Zebede, and beganne to were sorouefull and to be in an agonye. Then sayde Jesus vnto them: My soule is heuy euen vnto the death. Tary ye here, and watch with me. And he wente forth a litle, and fell flat vpon his face, and prayed sayenge: O my father, yf it be possible, let this cuppe passe fro me: neuertheles not as I wil but as thou wilt. And he came to his disciples, and founde thē a slepe, & sayde vnto Peter: What? coude ye not watch with me one houre? Watch & praye, that ye fall not in to temptacion. The spirite is wyllinge, but the flesh is weake.

Agayne, he wēte forth the seconde tyme and prayed, sayenge: O my father, yf this cuppe can not passe awaye fro me (excepte I drynke of it) thy will be fulfilled. And he came, and founde them a slepe agayne, and their eyes were heuy. And he left them, and wente forth agayne, and prayed the thirde tyme, sayenge the same wordes. Then came he to his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Slepe on now, and take youre rest. Beholde, the houre is come, ẏ the sonne of man shalbe delyuered in to the hondes of synners: Aryse, let us be goynge. Beholde, he is at hōde, that betrayeth me.

Whyle he yet spake, lo, Judas one of the twolne came, and with him a greate multitude with swerdes and staues, sent frō the hye prestes and elders of the people. And he that betrayed him, had geuen them a tokē, sayenge: Whom so euer I kysse, that same is he, laye hōdes vpō him. And forth withal he came to Jesus, and sayde: Hayle master, and kyssed him. And Jesus sayde vnto him: Frende, wher fore art thou come? Then came they, and layed hondes vpon Jesus, and toke him. And beholde, one of them that were with Jesus, stretched out his honde, and drue his swerde, and stroke a seruaunt of the hye prestes, & smote of his eare: Then sayde Jesus vnto him: Put vp ẏ swerde in to his place. For all that take the swerde, shal perish with the swerde. Or thinkest thou that I can not praye my father now, to sende me more then twolue legions of angels? But how thē shulde the scriptures be fulfylled? For thus must it be.

In the same houre sayde Jesus vnto the multitude: Ye are come out as it were to a murthurer with swerdes and staues for to take me. I sat daylie teachinge in the temple amonge you, and ye toke me not. But all this is done, that the scriptures of the prophetes might be fulfylled. Thē all the disciples left him, and fled. But they that toke Jesus, led him to Caiphas the hye prest, where the scrybes and the elders were gathered together. As for Peter, he folowed him a farre of vnto the hye prestes palace, & wente in, and sat with the seruauntes, that he might se the ende.

But the hye prestes and the elders, and the whole councell sought false wytnesse ageynst Jesus, that they might put him to death, and founde none. And though many false wytnesses stepte forth, yet founde they none. At the last there stepte forth two false wytnesses, & spake: He sayde: I can breake downe the temple of God, and buylde it agayne in thre dayes.

And the hye prest stode vp, and sayde vnto him: Answerest thou nothinge, vnto it, that these testifie agaynst the? Neuertheles Jesus helde his tonge. And the hye prest answered, and sayde vnto him: I charge the by ẏ lyuynge God, that thou tell us, yf thou be Christ the sonne of God. Jesus spake: Thou hast sayde it. Neuertheless I saye vnto you: From this tyme forth it shal come to passe, that ye shal se the sonne of man syttinge vpon the right hande of the power (of God) and commynge in the cloudes of the heauen.

Then the hye prest rente his clothes, and sayde: He hath blasphemed, what nede we eny mo wytnesses? Lo, now haue ye herde his blasphemy: What thinke ye? They answered, & sayde: He is gyltie of death. Then * spytted they in his face, & smote him with fistes. Some smote him vpon the face, and sayde: Prophecie vnto us thou Christ, who is it, that smote the?

As for Peter, he sat without in the palace. And there came vnto him a damsell, and sayde: And thou wast with Jesus of Galile also. Neuertheles he denyed before thē all, and sayde: I can not tell what thou sayest. But whan he wēte out at the dore, another damsell sawe him. and sayde vnto them that were there: This was also with Jesus of Nazareth. And he denyed agayne, and swore also: I knowe not the mā. And after a litle whyle, they that stode there, stepte forth, and sayde vnto Peter: Of a trueth thou art one of them also, for thy speach bewrayeth the. Then begāne he to curse and to sweare: I knowe not the man. And immediatly the cock crew. Then thought Peter vpon the wordes of Jesus, which sayde vnto him: before the cock crow, thou shalt denye me thryse. And he wente out, and wepte bytterly.

The XXVII. Chapter.

A Sal 2.a Marc.15.a Luc.23.a Joh.19.d Act.3.b

Vpon the morow, all the hye prestes and elders of the people helde a councell agaynst Jesus, that they might put him to death, and bounde him, and led him forth, and delyvered him vnto Pontius Pilate the debyte.

Re.17.d Act.1.c

When Judas which betrayed him, sawe this that he was condemned vnto death, it repented him, and brought agayne the thirtie syluer pens to the hye prestes and the elders, and sayde: I haue done euell, in that I haue betrayed innocēt bloude. They sayde: What haue we to do with ỹ? Se thou therto. And he cast the syluer pens in the tēple, and gat him awaye, and wente and hanged him self.

Jere.32.b Zach.11.c

So the hye prestes toke the syluer pens, and sayde: It is not laufull to put them into the Gods chest, for it is bloudmoney. Nevertheles they helde a councell, and bought with thē a potters felde, for to burye straūgers in. Wherfore the same felde is called the bloudfelde vnto this daye. Then was that fulfylled, which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet sayenge: And they toke thirtie syluer pens, the pryce of him that was solde, whom they bought of the children of Israell: and these they gaue for a potters felde, as the LORDE commaunded me.

B Marc.15.a Luc.23.a Joh.18.d

As for Jesus, he stode before the debyte, and the debyte axed him, and sayde: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? And Jesus sayde vnto him: Thou sayest it. And whā he was accused of the hye prestes and elders, he answered nothinge. Then sayde Pylate vnto him: Hearest thou not, how fore they accuse the? And he answered him not one worde: in so moch that the debyte marueled exceadingly.

Marc.15.a Luc.23.b Joh.18.e

At that feast, the debyte was wōte to delyuer a presoner fre vnto the people, whom they wolde. And at the same tyme he had a notable presoner called Barrabas. And whan they were gathered together, Pylate sayde vnto them: Whether wil ye, that I geue lowse vnto you? Barrabas, or Jesus which is called Christ? For he knewe well that they had delyvered him of envye. And whā he sat vpō the iudgmēt seate, his wife sent vnto him, sayenge: Haue thou nothinge to do with that righteous man, for I haue suffred many thinges this daye in a dreame because of him.

But the hye prestes and the elders persuaded the people, that they shulde axe Barrabas, and destroye Jesus. Then answered the debyte, and sayde vnto thē: Whether of these two wyl ye ỹ I geue lowse vnto you? They sayde: Barrabas: Pylate sayde vnto them: What shal I do then with Jesus, which is called Christ? They sayde all: let him be crucified. The debyte saide: What euell hath he done thē? Neuertheles they cried yet more and sayde, let him be crucified. So whan Pilate sawe, that he coude not helpe, but that there was a greater vproure, he toke water, and waßhed his handes before the people, and sayde: I am vngiltie of ỹ bloude of this righteous man. Se ye therto. Then answered all the people, and sayde: His bloude come vpon vs, and vpon oure children. Then gaue he Barrabas lowse vnto thē, but caused Jesus be scourged, and delyvered him to be crucified.

Then the debites soudyers toke Jesus in to the comon hall, and gathered the whole multitude ouer him, and stryped him out of his clothes, and put a purple robe vpō him, and plated a crowne of thorne, and set it vpon his heade, and a rede in his hāde, and kneled before him, and mocked him, and sayde: hayle kynge of the Jewes. And spytted vpon him, and toke ỹ rede, and smote him vpon the heade. And whā they had mocked hi, they toke the robe of him ageyne, and put his owne clothes vpon him, and led him forth, ỹ they might crucifie hi. And as they were goinge oūt, they founde a man of Cyren called Symon: him they compelled to beare his crosse. And when they came vnto the place called Golgatha (that is to saye by interpretacīō a place of deed mens sculles) they gaue him to drynke, veneger myrte wt gall. And whan he had tasted therof, he wolde not drynke.

So whan they had crucified him, they parted his garmētes, and cast lottes therfore: that the thinge might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the prophet: They have parted my garmētes amonge thē, and cast lottes vpon my vesture. And there they sat, and watched hi. And aboue ouer his heade, they put vp the cause of his death in wrytinge namely: This is the kynge of the Jewes.

Then were there two murthurers crucified with him, the one of the right hande, and the other on the left. They that wente by, reuyled him, and waggyd their heades and sayde: Thou that breakest downe the temple of God, and buyldest it in thre dayes, helpe thy self. Yf thou be the sonne of God, come downe from the crosse. The hye prestes also in like maner with the scrybes & elders, laughed him to scorne, and sayde: he hath helped other, and can not helpe himself: Yf he be the kynge of Israel, let him come downe now from the crosse, and we wil beleue him. He trusted in God, let him delyuer him now, yf he wil haue him. For he hath sayde: I am the sonne of God. The murtherers also that were crucified with him, cast the same in his tethe.

And from ỳ sixte houre there was darcknes ouer the whole earth vnto the nyenth houre. And aboute the nyenth houre, Jesus cried with a loude voyce, and sayde: Eli, Eli, Lamma asabthani: that is, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? But some of thē that stode there, when they herde ỳ sayde: He calleth Elias. And immediatly one of them ranne, and toke a spōge, and fylled it with veneger, and put it vpon a rede, and gaue him to dryncke. But ỳ other sayde: holde, let se whether Elias wyl come, and delyuer him. Jesus cried agayne with a loude voyce, and gaue vp the goost.

And beholde, the vale of the temple was rente in two peces, from aboue tyll beneth, and the earth quaked, and the stones rent, and the graues opened, and many bodies of the sayntes that slepte, arose, and wēte out of the graues after his resurreccion, and came in to the holy cite, and appeared vnto many.

But the captayne and they that were with him, and kepte Jesus, when they sawe the earthquake and the thinges that were done, they were sore afrayed, and sayde: Verely this was Gods sonne. And there were many wemen there lokynge to afarre of, which had folowed Jesus from Galile, and had mynistred vnto him: amonge whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joses, and the mother of the children of Zebede.

At euen there came a rich man of Arimathia, called Joseph, which was also a disciple of Jesus. He wēte vnto Pylate, and axed the body of Jesus. Then commaunded Pylate that the body shulde be geuē him. And Joseph toke the body, and wrapped it in a cleane lynnen cloth, and layed it in his owne new sepulcre, which he had hewen out in a rocke, and rolled a greate stone to the dore of the sepulcre, and wente his waye. And there was Mary Magdalene and ỳ other Mary, syttinge ouer agaynst the sepulcre. Marc. 15.

The nexte daye that foloweth the daye of preparynge, the hye prestes and pharises came together vnto Pylate, and saide: Syr, we haue called to remembraunce, that this deceauer sayde whyle he was yet alyue: * After thre dayes I wyl ryse agayne. Cōmaunde therfore that the sepulcre be kepte vnto the thirde daye, lest peraduenture his disciples come, and steale him awaye, and saye vnto the people: He is rysen from the deed, and so shal the last errour be worse thē the first. Pylate sayde vnto them: There haue ye watchmē, go youre waye, and kepe it as ye can. They wēte and kepte the sepulcre wt watchmen, and sealed the stone. * Mat. 16. 17. c. d. Marc. 9. Luc. 18. d.

The XXVIII. Chapter.

A Upon the euenynge of the Sabbath holy daye, which dawneth ỳ morow of the first daye of ỳ Sabbathes, came Mary Magdalene and ỳ other Mary, to se ỳ sepulcre. And beholde, there was made a greate earthquake: for the angell of the LORDE descended from heauen, and came and rolled backe ỳ stone from the dore, and sat vpon it. And his countenaunce was as ỳ lightenynge, and his clothinge whyte as snowe. But ỳ watchmē were troubled for feare of him, and became as though they were deed. Marc. 16. Luc. 24. Iohā. 20.

The angell answered, and sayde vnto ỳ women: Be not ye afrayed. I knowe that ye seke Jesus that was crucified. He is not here. He is rysen, as he sayde. Come, and se ỳ place, where the LORDE was layed, and go youre waye soone, and tell his disciples, that he is rysen from the deed. And beholde, he wyl go before you in to Galile, there shal ye se him. Lo, I haue tolde you. Marc. 16. Luc. 24.

And they departed from the graue in all the haist with feare and greate ioye, & ranne to bringe his disciples worde. And as they were goinge to tell his disciples, beholde, Jesus met them, and sayde: God spede you. And they wente vnto him, and helde his fete, and fell downe before him. Thē sayde Jesus vnto them: Be not afrayed: go youre waye and tell my brethren, that they go in to Galile, there shal they se me. B Mar. 16. Luc. 24. 1. Cor. 15. Act. 1. b

And whan they were gone, beholde, certayne of the watchmen came in to the cite, & tolde the hye prestes euery thinge that had happened. And they came together with the elders, and helde a councell, and gaue ỳ sowders money ynough, and sayde: Saye ye:

his disciples came by night, and stole him awaye, whyle we were a slepe. And yf this come to the debytes eares, we wyl stylle him, and bringe it so to passe, that ye shal be safe. And they toke the money, and dyd as they were taught. And this sayenge is noysed amonge the Jewes vnto this daye.

C

The eleuen disciples wente vnto Galile into a mountayne, where Jesus had appoynted them. And whan they sawe him, they fell downe before him: but some of them doubted. And Jesus came vnto them, talked with them, and sayde: Vnto me is geuē all power in heauen and in earth. Go ye youre waye ther fore, and teach all nacions, and baptyse them in the name of the father, and of the sonne, and of the holy goost: and teach them to kepe all thinges, what soeuer I haue commaunded you. And lo, I am with you euery daye vnto the ende of the worlde.

The gospell of S. Marke.

The first Chapter.

THis is the begynnynge of the gospell of Jesus Christ the sonne of God, as it is wrytte in the prophetes. Beholde, I sende my messauger before thy face, which shal prepare thy waye before the. The voyce of a cryer is in the wyldernes: Prepare the waye of the LORDE, make his pathes straight.

Jhon was in the wyldernes, and baptysed, and preached the baptyme of amendment, for the remyssion of synnes. And there wente out vnto him the whole londe of Jewry, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptysed of him in Jordan, and knowleged their synnes.

Jhon was clothed with Camels heer, and with a lethron gerdell aboute his loynes, and ate locustes and wylde hony, and preached, and sayde: There commeth one after me, which is stronger then I: before whom I am not worthy to stoupe downe, and to lowse vp ỹ lachet of his shue. I baptyse you with water, but he shal baptyse you with the holy goost.

And it happened at the same tyme, that Jesus came out of Galile from Nazareth, and was baptysed of Jhon in Jordan. And as soone as he was come out of the water, he sawe that the heauens opened, and the goost as a doue cõmynge downe vpon him. And there came a voyce from heauē: Thou art my deare sonne, in whom I delyte.

And immediatly the spriete droue him into the wyldernes: and he was in the wyldernes fourtye dayes, and was tempted of Sathan, and was with the wylde beestes. And the angels mynistred vnto him.

But after that Jhon was taken, Jesus came in to Galile, and preached the gospell of the kyngdome of God, and sayde: the tyme is fulfylled, and the kyngdome of God is at hande: Amende youre selues, and beleue the gospell. Mat.4.b Luc.4.b

So as he walked by the see of Galile, he sawe Symon and Andrew his brother, castinge their nettes in the see, for they were fyshers. And Jesus sayde vnto thē: Folowe me, and I wil make you fyshers of mē. And immediatly they left their nettes, and folowed him. Mat.4.c Luc.5.a Iere.16.c Ezr.47.b

And when he was gone a lytle further from thence, he sawe James the sonne of Zebede, and Jhon his brother, as they were in the shyppe mendynge their nettes. And anone he called them. And they left their father Zebede in the shyppe with the hyred seruauntes, and folowed him.

And they wente in to Capernaum, and immediatly vpon the Sabbathes, he entred in to the synagoge, and taught. And they were astonnyed at his doctryne: for he taught them as one hauynge power, and not as the Scrybes. Luc.4.d Iohā.2.b Mat.7.c

And in their synagoge there was a man possessed with a foule spriete, which cried and sayde: Oh what haue we to do with the, thou Jesus of Nazareth. Art thou come to destroye us? I knowe that thou art euen ỹ holy one of God. And Jesus reproued him, and sayde: holde thy tonge, and departe out of him. And the foule spriete tare him, and cried with a loude voyce, and departed out of him. And they were all astonnyed, in so moch that they axed one another amonge thē selues, & sayde: What is this? What new lernynge is this? For he cõmaundeth the foule spretes with power, and they are obedient vnto him. And immediatly the fame of him was noysed rounde aboute in the coastes and borders of Galile. C Luc.4.d

And forth with they wente out of the synagoge, and came in to the house of Symō and Andrew, wt James and Jhon. And Symons mother in lawe laye, & had the fevers, and anone they tolde him of her. And he came to her, and set her vp, and toke her by ỹ hande, and the feuer left her immediatly. And she mynistred vnto them. Mat.8.b Luc.4.d

At euen whan the Sonne was gone downe, they brought vnto him all that were sick and possessed, and the whole cite was gathered together at the dore, and Mat.8.b Luc.4.e

he healed many that were diseased with dyuerse sicknesses, and cast out many deuels, and suffred not the deuels to speake, because they knew him.

D And in the mornynge before daye, he arose, and wente out. And Jesus departed in to a deserte place, and prayed there. Peter also and they that were with him, folowed after him. And whan they had founde him, they sayde vnto him: Euery man seketh the. And he sayde vnto them: Let us go in to the next townes, that I maye preach there also, for therto am I come. And he preached i their synagoges, in all Galile, and droue out the deuyls.

Mat.8.a Luc.5.b And there came vnto him a leper, which besought him, and kneled before him, & sayde vnto him: Yf thou wilt, thou canst make me cleane. And it pitied Jesus, and he stretched forth his honde, and touched him, and sayde: I wyll, be thou cleane. And whā he had so spoken, immediatly the leprosy departed frō him, and he was clensed. And Jesus forbad him strately, and forth with sent him awaye, and sayde vnto him: Take hede, that thou saye nothinge to eny man, but go thy waye, and shew thy self vnto the prest, and offre for thy clensynge what Moses commaunded, for a wytnesse vnto them. But he whan he was departed, beganne to speake moch of it, and made the dede knowne: in so moch that Jesus coude no more go into the cite openly, but was without in deserte places, & they came vnto him frō all quarters.

Marc.7.d and 9.a

Leui.14.a

The II. Chapter.

A AND after certayne dayes he wente agayne vnto Capernaum, and it was noysed that he was in ỹ house. And immediatly there was gathered a greate multitude, in so moch that they had no rowme, no not without before the dore. And he spake the worde vnto thē. And there came vnto him certaine, which brought one sicke of the palsye borne of foure. And when they coude not come nye him for ỹ people, they vncouered ỹ rose of ỹ house where he was. And when they had made a hole, they let downe the bed (by coardes) wherin the sicke of ỹ palsy laye. But when Jesus sawe their faith, he sayde vnto the sicke of the palsye: My sonne, thy synnes are forgeuen the.

Mat.9.a Luc.5.c Iohā.5.a

Neuertheles there were certayne scrybes which sat there, & thought in their hertes: How speaketh this man soch blasphemy? Who can forgeue synnes, but onely God?

Esa.43.d

And immediatly Jesus knew in his sprete, that they thought so in thē selues, and saide vnto them: Why thynke ye soch thinges in youre hertes? Whether is easier to saye to the sicke of the palsye: Thy synnes are forgeuē the, or to saye: aryse, take vp thy bed and walke. But that ye maye knowe, that ỹ sonne of man hath power to forgeue synnes vpon earth, he sayde vnto the sicke of ỹ palsye: I saye vnto the, aryse, take vp thy bed, and go home. And immediatly he arose, toke his bed, and wente forth before them all: in so moch that they were all astonnied, and praysed God, and sayde: We neuer sawe soch.

And he wente forth agayne vnto the se, and all the people came vnto him, and he taught them. And as Jesus passed by, he sawe Leui the sonne of Alpheus syttinge at the receate of custome, and sayde vnto him: Folowe me. And he arose, and folowed him. And it came to passe as he sat at the table in his housē, there sat many publicans & synners at the table with Jesus and his disciples: For there were many ỹ folowed him. And whan the scrybes and pharises sawe that he ate with publicans & synners, they sayde vnto his disciples: Why doth he eate and drynck with ỹ publicans and synners? Whan Jesus herde that, he sayde vnto thē: The whole nede not ỹ Phisician, but they that are sycke. I am not come to call the righteous, but the synners to repētaunce.

And the disciples of Jhon and of ỹ pharises fasted. And there came certaine, which sayde vnto him: Why fast the disciples of Jhon, and of ỹ pharises, and thy disciples fast not? And Jesus sayde vnto them: How can the weddinge children fast, whyle the brydegrome is with them? So longe as ỹ brydegrome is with them, they can not fast. But the tyme wyl come, that the brydegrome shalbe taken from them, and then shal they fast.

No man soweth a pece of new cloth vnto an olde garment, for els he taketh awaye the new pece from the olde, and so is the rit worse. And no man putteh new wyne into olde vessels, els the new wyne breaketh the vessels, and the wyne is spylt, and ỹ vessels perishe: but new wyne must be put in to new vessels.

And it chaunsed that vpon ỹ Sabbath he wente thorow the corne feldes, and his disciples begāne to make a waye thorow, and to plucke the eares of ỹ corne. And the pharises sayde vnto him: Beholde, what thy disciples do, which is not lawfull vpō the Sabbath. And he sayde vnto thē: Have ye not red what Dauid dyd, whā he had nede, and was anhongred, both he and they that were wyth him: how he wente in to the house of God in the tyme of Abiathar the hye preest, and ate the shewbreds (which was lawfull for no man to eate, but for the prestes) and he gaue them vnto him, and to them that were with him? And he sayde vnto them: The Sabbath was made for mans sake, and not man for the Sabbathes sake. Therfore is the sonne of man LORDE euen ouer the Sabbath.

The III. Chapter.

AGayne he wente agayne also in to the synagoge, and there was there a mā that had a wythred hande. And they marked him, whether he wolde heale him on the Sabbath, that they might accuse him. And he sayde vnto ỹ mā with the wythred hāde: Steppe forth here. And he sayde vnto thē: Is it lawfull to do good on the Sabbath? Or is it lawfull to do euell? to saue life, or to kyll? But they helde their tonge. And he loked rounde aboute vpon them with wrath, and was sory for the harde hertes of thē, and sayde vnto the man: Stretch out thine hande. And he stretched it out. And his hande was made whole like as ỹ other.

And the Pharises wēte out, and straight waye they helde a councell with Herodes officers agaynst him, how they might destroye him. But Jesus departed awaye with his disciples vnto the see. And there folowed him moch people out of Galile, and frō Jewry, and from Jerusalē, and out of Idumea, and from beyonde Jordan, and they that dwelt aboute Tyre and Sydon, a great multitude which had herde of his noble actes, and came vnto him.

And he spake vnto his disciples ỹ they shulde kepe a shyppe for him because of the people, lest they shulde thrunge him: for he healed many of them, in so moch, that all they which were plaged, preased vpon him, that they might touch him. And whan the foule spretes sawe him, they fell downe before him, and cried, and sayde: Thou art the sonne of God. And he charged them strately, that they shulde not make him knowne.

And he wente vp in to a mountayne, and called vnto him whom he wolde, and they came vnto him. And he ordeyned ỹ twolue, that they shulde be with him, and that he might sende them out to preach, and that they might haue power to heale sicknesses, and to cast out deuyls. And vnto Symon he gaue the name Peter, and James the sonne of Zebede, and Jhon the brother of James, and gaue thē the name Bonarges, that is to saye, the children of thonder: and Andrew, and Philippe, and Bartylmew, and Mathew, and Thomas, and James ỹ sonne of Alpheus, and Taddeus, and Symon of Cana, and Judas Iscarioth which betrayed him.

And they came to house. Then assembled the people together agayne, in so moch that they had no leysure to eate. And when they that were aboute him herde of it, they wente out to holde him. For they sayde: He taketh to moch vpon him. But the scrybes that were come downe from Jerusalem, sayde: He hath Belzebub, and thorow the chefe deuell casteth he out deuyls. And he called them together, and spake vnto them in symilitudes:

Some reade: He will go out of his witt.

Mat.9.d and 12.c Luc.11.b

How can one Sathan dryue out another? And yf a realme be deuyded in it self, how can it endure? And yf a house be deuyded agaynst it self, it can not contynue. Yf Sathan now ryse agaynst him self, and be at variaunce with him self, he can not endure, but is at an ende. No man can entre in to a stronge mans house, and take awaye his goodes, excepte he first bynde the stronge man, and then spoyle his house.

Verely I saye vnto you: All synnes shalbe forgeuen the children of men, and the blasphemy also wherwith they blaspheme. But who so blaspheme th the holy goost, hath neuer forgeuenes, but is giltie of the euerlastinge iudgment. For they sayde: he hath an vncleane spрete.

Mat.12.c Luc.12.a 1.Ioh.5.c

And there came his mother and his brethrē, and stode without, and sente vnto him, and called him. And the people sat aboute him, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy mother and thy brethrē are after the without. And he answered, and sayde: Who is my mother and my brethren? And he loked rounde aboute him vpon his disciples, which sat rounde in compasse aboute him, and sayde: Beholde, my mother and my brethren. For who so euer doth the will of God the same is my brother, and my sister and my mother.

syde. And he preached longe vnto thē by parables, and sayde vnto thē in his doctryne: Herken to, beholde, there wente out a sower to sowe: & it happened whyle he was sowinge, that some fell by the waye syde. Then came the foules vnder the heauen, and ate it vp. Some fell vpon stonye grounde, where it had not moch earth: and anone it came vp, because it had not depe earth. Now whā the Sonne arose, it caught heate: and in so moch as it had no rote, it wythred awaye. And some fel amonge the thornes, & the thornes grew vp, and choked it, and it gaue no frute. And some fell vpon a good grounde, which gaue frute, that came vp and grew. And some bare thirtie folde, and some sixtie folde, and some an hundreth folde. And he sayde vnto them: Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare.

Mat.13.b Luc.8.b And whan he was alone, they that were aboute him w the twolue, axed him concernynge this parable. And he sayde vnto thē: Vnto you it is geuen, to knowe the mystery of the kyngdome of God: but vnto them that are without, all thinges happen by parables, that with seynge eyes they maye se, and not discerne: and that with hearinge eares they maye heare, and not vnderstōde, lest at eny tyme they turne, and their synnes be forgeuen them. And he sayde vnto them: Vnderstonde ye not this parable? how wyl ye then vnderstonde all other parables?

B Mat.13.c The sower soweth the worde. These be they that are by the waye syde: where the worde is sowne, and as soone as they haue herde it, immediatly commeth Sathā, and taketh awaye the worde that was sowen in their hertes. And likewyse are they that are sowen on the stonye grounde: which when they haue herde the worde, receaue it with ioye, and haue no rote in them: but endure for a tyme. When trouble and persecucion aryseth for ỹ wordes sake, immediatly they are offended. And these are they that are sowen amōge the thornes: which heare the worde, and ỹ carefulnes of this worlde, and the deceatfulnes of riches, and many other lustes entre in, and choke the worde, and so is it made vnfrutefull. And these are they ỹ are sowen vpō a good grounde: Which heare ỹ worde, and receaue it, and bringe forth frute: some thirtie folde, and some sixtie folde, and some an hundreth folde.

Mat.5.b Luc.8.b and 11.c And he sayde vnto thē: Is a candle lighted to be put vnder a busshell, or vnder a table? Is it not lighted, to be set vpon a candelsticke? For there is nothinge hyd, that shal not be openly shewed: and there is nothinge secrete, ỹ shal not be knowne. Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare. And he sayde vnto them: Take hede what ye heare. With what measure ye mete, with the same shal it be measured vnto you agayne. And vnto you that heare this, shal more be geuen. For who so hath, vnto him shal be geuen: and who so hath not, from him shalbe taken awaye, euen that he hath.

Mat.4.a Luc.8.a and 11.c

And he sayde: The kyngdome of God is after this maner, as when a man casteth sede vpon the londe, and slepeth, and stondeth vp night and daye, and the sede springeth vp, & groweth, he not knowinge of it. (For the earth bringeth forth frute of her selfe: first the grasse, afterwarde the eare, then the full wheate in the eare) But whan she hath brought forth the frute, he putteth to the syckell, because the harueste is come.

Mat.13.c Luc.13.b

And he sayde: Where vnto wyl we liken the kyngdome of God? Or by what similitude wyl we compare it? It is like a grayne of mustarde sede, which whā it is sowē vpō the londe, is the leest amonge all sedes of the earth. And whā it is sowen, it groweth vp, and is greater then all herbes, and getteth greate braunches, so ỹ the foules vnder the heauē maye dwell vnder ỹ shadowe therof.

Mat.13.c Luc.13.b

And by many soch parables he spake the worde vnto thē, there after as they might D heare it, & without parables spake he nothinge vnto them: but vnto his disciples he expounded all thinges priuately. And the same daye at euen he sayde vnto them: let us passe ouer. And they let the people go, and toke him as he was in the shippe, and there were mo shippes with him. And there arose a greate storme of wynde, and dasshed the wawes in to the shippe, so that the shippe was full. And he was behynde in the shippe and slepte vpon a pelowe. And they awoke him & sayde vnto him: Master, Carest thou not, that we perishe? And he arose, and rebuked ỹ wynde, and sayde vnto the see: Peace, and be styll, And the wynde was layed, & there folowed a greate calme. And he sayde vnto them: Why are ye so fearfull? how is it, that ye haue no faith? And they feared exceadingly, & sayde one to another: What is he this? For wynde and see are obedient vnto him.

Mat.8.a Luc.8.a

The V. Chapter.

AND they came ouer vnto the other syde of the see in to the countre of the Gaderenites. And whan he wēte out of the shippe, there met him a mā possessed of an vncleane spiete, which had his dwellinge in the graues. And no man coude bynde hym, no not with cheynes: for he was oft bounde with fetters & cheynes, and pluckte the cheynes in sunder, and brake the fetters in peces, and no man coude tame him. And he was allwaye both daye and night vpon the mountaynes and in the graues crienge, and beatinge him self with stones. But whan he sawe Jesus afarre of, he ranne, and fell downe before him, and cried loude, and sayde: What haue I to do with the O Jesus thou sonne of ỹ hyest God? I charge the by God, that thou torment me not. Nevertheles he sayde vnto him: Go out of the man thou foule spriete. And he axed him: What is thy name? And he answered and sayde: My name is Legion, for there be many of vs. And he prayed him instantly, that he wolde not sende them awaye out of that countre.

D And euen there in the mountaynes there was a greate heerd of swyne fedynge, and all the deuyls praied him, and sayde: Let vs departe in to the swyne. And anone Jesus gaue them leue. Then the foule sprietes went out, and intred in to the swyne. And the heerd of swyne, ranne heedlinges in to ỹ see with a storme. They were aboute a two thousande swyne, and were drowned in the see.

And the swyneherdes fled, and tolde it in the cite, and in the countre. And they went out for to se what had happened, and came to Jesus, and sawe hym which was possessed and had had ỹ legion, that he sat, and was clothed, and in his right mynde, and they were afrayed. And they that had sene it, tolde them what had happened to the possessed, and of the swyne.

And they beganne to praye him, that he wolde departe out of their coastes. And whan he came in to the shyppe, the possessed prayed him, that he might be with him.

Nevertheles Jesus wolde not suffre hi, but sayde vnto hi: Go ī to ỹ house & to thine awne, and tell thē how greate benefites the LORDE hath done for ỹ, and how he hath had mercy vpon the. And he wente his waye, and beganne to publish in the ten cities how greate benefites Jesus had done for him. And every man marueyled.

C And whan Jesus passed ouer agayne by shippe, there garhered moch people vnto him, and was by the see syde. And behold, there came one of the rulers of the synagoge, whose name was Jairus. And whan he sawe him, he fell downe at his fete, and besought him greatly, & sayde: My doughter is at the poynte (of death) let it be thy pleasure to come and laye thine honde vpon her, that she maye be whole and lyue. And he wente with him, and moch people followed him, and thronged him.

And there was a woman, which had had the bloudeyssue twolue yeares, and had suffred moch of many phisicians, and spent all that she had, and was not helped, but rather in worse case. Whan she herde of Jesus, she came behynde amonge the people, and touched his garment. For she sayde: Yf I maye but touch his clothes, I shal be whole. Mat. 9.c Luc. 8.c

And immediatly ỹ fountayne of hir bloude was dryed vp, and she felt in hir body, ỹ she was healed of the plage. D

And forth with Jesus felt in himself the power that was gone out of him, and turned him aboute amōge the people, and sayde: Who hath touched my clothes? And his disciples sayde vnto him: Thou seist that the people thrusteth the, and sayest: Who hath touched me? And he loked aboute to se her, that had done it.

As for the woman, she feared and trembled (for she knew, what was done in her) and came and fell downe before him, and tolde him the whole trueth. And he sayde vnto her: Doughter, thy faith hath made the whole: go thy waye in peace, & be whole of thy plage. Luc. 7.e

Whyle he yet spake, there came certayne from the ruler of the synagoges house, and sayde: Thy doughter is deed, why troublest thou the master eny more? But Jesus herde right soone the worde that was spoken, and sayde vnto the ruler of the synagoge: Be not thou afrayed, beleue onely. Mat. 9.c Luc. 8.f

And he suffred no mā to folowe him, but Peter and James and Jhon his brother. And he came in to the ruler of the synagoges house, and sawe the busynes, and them that wepte and wayled greatly: and he wente in, and sayde vnto them: Why make ye this a doo, and wepe? The mayde is not deed, but slepeth. Iohn. 11.b

And they laughed him to scorne. * And he droue them all out, and toke the father and mother of the mayde, and them that were with him, and wente in where the mayden laye. And he toke the mayde by the * 4. Re. 4.d

honde, and sayde vnto her: Thabitha Cumi (which is by interpretacion) Mayde, I saye vnto the: Aryse. * And immediatly the mayden arose, and walked. She was twolue yeare olde, and they were astonnyed out of measure. And he charged them strately, that no man shulde knowe of it, and sayde vnto them, that they shulde geue her to eate.

The VI. Chapter.

A Mat.13.a Luc.4.b

AND he departed thence, and came into his awne countre, and his disciples folowed him. And whā ỹ Sabbath came, he begāne to teach in their synagoge. And many that herde it, marueled at his lernynge, and sayde: From whēce hath he these thinges? And what wyßdome is this, ỹ is geuē him? and soch actes as are done by his handes? Is not this the Carpenter the sonne of Mary, and the brother of James and Joses, and of Jude and Symon? Are not his sisters here with vs also? And they were offended at him. But Jesus saide vnto thē: A prophet is nowhere lesse set by, thē in his awne countre, and at home amonge his awne. And he coude not shew one miracle there, but layed his handes vpon a few sicke, and healed them. And he marueyled at their vnbeleue.

Mat.13.g Luc.4.c Iohā.4.c

And he wente aboute in the townes on euery syde, and taught them. And called the twolue, and begāne to sende them two and two, and gaue them power ouer the vnclene spretes. And commaunded thē, that they shulde take nothinge with them towarde their iourney, saue onely a rodde: no scrippe, no bred, no money in the gerdell, but shulde be shod with sandales, and that they shulde not put on two cotes. And he sayde vnto them: Where so euer ye shal entre in to an house, there abyde, tyll ye go thence. And who so euer wyll not receaue you, ner heare you, departe out from thence, and shake of the dust from youre fete, for a wytnesse vnto them. I saye vnto you verely: It shal be easyer for Sodome and Gomorra in the

And they wēte forth, and preached, that men shulde amēde them selues, and they cast out many deuyls: and many that were sicke anoynted they with oyle, and healed thē.

Mat.14.a Luc.9.a

And it came to kynge Herods eares (for his name was now knowne) and he sayde: Jhon the baptist is rysen agayne from the deed, and therfore are his dedes so mightie. But some sayde: It is Elias. Some sayde: It is a prophet, or one of ỹ prophetes. But when Herode herde it, he sayde: It is Jhon whom I beheeded, he is rysen againe from the deed. This Herode had sent forth, and taken Jhon, and put him in preson, because of Herodias his brother Philippes wife, for he had maried her. Neuertheles Jhon sayde vnto Herode * It is not lawfull for the to haue ỹ brothers wife. But Herodias layed wayte for him, and wolde haue slayne him, and coude not. Notwithstōdinge Herode feared Jhō, for he knew that he was a iust and holy man: and he kepte him, and herkened vnto him in many thinges, and herde him gladly.

And there came a conuenient daye, that Herode on his byrth daye made a supper to the lordes, captaynes and chefe estates of Galile. Then the daughter of Herodias came in, and daunsed, and pleased Herode, and them that sat at the table. Then sayde the kynge vnto ỹ damsel: Aske of me what thou wilt, I wil geue it the. And he sware vnto her: What soeuer thou shalt aske of me, I wil geue it the, euen vnto ỹ one half of my kyngdome. She wente forth, and sayde vnto hir mother: what shal I aske? She sayde: Jhon baptistes heade. And immediatly she wēte in to the kynge with haist, and sayde: I will that thou geue me straight waye in a platter the heed of Jhon the baptist. Then the kynge was sory: Yet for the oothes sake and thē that sat at the table, he wolde not saye her nay.

And immediatly he sent the hangman, and commaunded his heade to be brought in. So he wēte, and heeded him in the preson, and brought his heade in a platter, and gaue it vnto the damsell, and the damsell gaue it vnto hir mother. And whan his disciples herde that, they came and toke his body, and layed it in a graue.

And the Apostles came together vnto Jesus, and tolde hī all, and what they had done and taught. And he sayde vnto them: Let vs go out of the waye in to the wyldernes, and rest a litle. For there were many comers and goers, and they had not tyme ynough to eate. And there he passed by shipe out of ỹ waye in to a deserte place. And the people sawe thē departynge awaye, and many knewe of it, and ranne thither together of fote out of all cities, and came before thē, and came vnto him. And Jesus wente out, and sawe moch people, and had cōpassion vpon them: for they were * as the shepe, that haue no shepherde, and he begāne a lōge sermon.

Now whan the daye was farre past, his disciples came vnto him, and sayde: This is a deserte place, let them departe, that they maye go in to the vyllagies and townes rounde aboute, and bye them selues bred, for they haue nothinge to eate. But Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: geue ye them to eate.

And they sayde vnto him: Shal we go then, and bye two hundreth peny worth of bred, and geue them to eate? He sayde vnto them: How many loaues haue ye? Go and se. And when they had searched, they sayde: Fyue, and two fisshes. And he commaunded them all to syt downe by table fulles vpon the grene grasse. And they satdowne here a rowe and there a rowe by hundreds and by fifties. And he toke the fyue loaues and two fisshes, and loked vp vnto heauen, and gaue thankes, and brake the loaues, and gaue to the disciples, to set before them. And the two fisshes parted he amonge them all. And they all ate, and were satisfied. And they toke vp twolue baskettes full of ỹ broken peces and of the fisshes. And they that ate, were aboute fyue thousande men. And anone he caused his disciples to go in to the shippe, and to passe ouer before him vnto Bethsaida, whyle he sent awaye the people. And at euen was the shippe in the myddest of the see, and he alone vpon the londe. And he sawe that they were in parell with rowynge, for the wynde was agaynst them.

And aboute the fourth watch of ỹ night he came vnto them, and walked vpon the see, and wolde haue gone ouer by thē. And whan they sawe him walkinge vpon the see, they thought it had bene a spyrite, and cried out, for they sawe him all, and were afrayed. But immediatly he talked with them, and sayde vnto them: Be of good comforte, it is I, be not afrayed. And he wēte vnto them in to the shippe, and the wynde ceassed. And they were astonnyed, and marueled exceadingly: for they had forgotten the * loaues, and their hert was blynded.

And whan they were passed ouer, they came in to lande of Genezareth, and drue vp in to the hauen. And whan thy were come out of the shippe, immediatly they knewe him, and ranne thorow out all the region aboute, and beganne on euery syde to bringe vnto him in beddes soch as were sicke, where they herde that he was. And whither so euer he entred in to townes, cities or vyllagies, there layed they the sicke in the market place, and prayed him, that they might but touch the hemme of his garment. And as many as touched him, were made whole.

The VII. Chapter.

A Nd there came vnto him the Pharises, and certayne of the scrybes, that were come from Jerusalē. And whā they sawe certayne of his disciples eate bred with comon (that is, with vnwashen) handes, they complayned. For the Pharises & all the Jewes eate not, except they wasshy their handes oft tymes: obseruynge so the tradicions of the elders. And whan they come from the market, they eate not, except they waßhe. And many other thynges there be, which they haue taken vpon them to obserue, as the washinge of cuppes and cruses, and brasen vessels and tables.

Then the Pharises and scrybes axed him: Why walke not thy disciples after the tradicions of the elders, but eate bred with vnwaßhen handes? But he answered & sayde vnto them: Full well hath Esay prophecied of you Ypocrytes, as it is wrytte: This people honoureth me wt their lippes, but their hert is farre fro me. But in vayne do they serue me, whyle they teach soch doctrynes as are nothinge but the commaundemētes of mē. Ye leaue the cōmaundement of God and kepe the tradicions of men, as the wasshynge of cruses and cuppes, & many soch thinges do ye.

And he saide vnto thē: How goodly haue ye cast asyde the cōmaundement of God, to manteyne youre owne tradicions? For Moses sayde: Honoure father & mother. * Who so curseth father and mother, shal dye the death. But ye saye: A mā shal saye to father or mother: Corban, that is, The thinge ỹ I shulde helpe the with all, is geuē vnto God. And thus ye suffre him nomore to do ought for his father or his mother, & make Gods worde of none effecte, thorow youre owne tradicions that ye haue set vp. And many soch thinges do ye.

And he called vnto him all the people, and sayde vnto them: Herken vnto me ye all, and vnderstonde me. There is nothinge without a man, that can defyle him, whan it entreth in to him. But that goeth out of him, that is it that maketh the man vnclene. Yf eny man haue eares to heare, let him heare. And whan he came from the people in to ỹ house, his disciples axed him of this symilitude. And he sayde vnto them: Are ye so then without vnderstondinge? perceaue ye not yet, ỹ euery thinge which is without, and goeth in to the mā, can not defyle him: For it entreth not in to his hert, but in to ỹ bely, and goeth out in to the draught, that purgeth all meates.

C And he sayde: The thinge that goeth out of the man, that defyleth the man. For from within out of the hert of man proceade evell thoughtes, aduoutrye, whordome, murthur, theft, coueteousnes, wickednes, disceate, vnclennes, a wicked eye, blasphemy, pryde, foolishnes. All these evell thinges go from within, and defyle the man.

Mat.15.c And he arose, and wente from thence in to the borders of Tyre and Sydon, & entred in to an house, and wolde let no man knowe of it, and yet coude he not be hyd: For a certayne woman (whose doughter had a foule spirete) herde of him, and came and fell downe at his fete (and it was in Heithē woman of Syrophenices) and she besought him, that he wolde dryve out the devell from hir doughter. But Jesus sayde vnto her: Let the children be fed first: It is not mete to take the childrēs bred, and to cast it vnto dogges. She answered and sayde vnto him: Yee LORDE, neverthelesse the whelpes also eate vnder ỹ table, of ỹ childrēs crōmes. And he D sayde vnto her: Because of this sayenge go thy waye, the devell is departed out of thy doughter. And she wente vnto her house, & founde that the devell was departed, and hir doughter lyenge on the bed.

Mat.9.d Luc.11.b And whan he wente out agayne from the coastes of Tyre and Sydon, he came vnto the see of Galile, thorow the myddes of ỹ coastes of the tē cities. And they brought vnto him one that was deaf, and had impediment in his speach. And they prayed him, that he wolde laye his hande vpon him.

And he toke him a syde from the people, and put his fyngers in his eares, and dyd spyt, and touched his tonge, and loked vp vnto heauen, sighed, and sayde vnto him: Ephatha, that is, be opened. And immediatly his eares were opened, and the bonde of his tōge was lowsed, and he spake right.

Marc.1.d and 9.a And he charged them, that they shulde tell no man.

But the more he forbad them, the more they published it, & marueyled out of measure, and sayde: * He hath done all thinges well. The deaf hath he made to heare, and the domme to speake.

The VIII. Chapter.

AT the same tyme whan there was A moch people there, and had nothinge to eate, Jesus called his disciples to him, and sayde vnto them: I haue compassion vpon the people, for they haue taried wt me now thre dayes, & haue nothinge to eate. And yf I let them go home fro me fastynge, they shulde faynte by the waye. * For some of them were come from farre. And his disciples answered him: Where shulde we get bred here in the wyldernes, to satisfie them? And he axed thē: How many loaues haue ye? They sayde: Seuen. And he commaunded the people to syt downe vpon the grounde. And he toke the seuen loaues, and gaue thākes, and brake them, and gaue thē vnto his disciples to set them before the people. And they set thē before the people. And they had a few small fyshes, and whan he had geuen thankes, he bad set the same before the people. They ate, and were satisfied, & toke vp seuē baskettes full of ỹ brokē meate that was left. And they ỹ ate, were vpō a foure thousande. And he sent thē awaye.

And [illegible] with he wente in to a shippe B with his disciples, and came in to the coastes [illegible] Dalmanutha. And the Pharises went out, and begāne to dispute with him, and tempted him, and desyred a token of him from heuē. And he sighed in his spirete, and sayde: Why doth this generacion seke a token? Verely I saye vnto you: There shal no tokē be geuē vnto this generacion. And he left them, and wēte againe into the shippe, and passed ouer.

And they forgat to take bred with them, and had no more with them in the shippe but one loaf. And he cōmaunded them, and sayde: Take hede, and bewarre of the leuen of the Pharises, and of the leuen of Herode. And their myndes wauered here and there, and sayde amonge them selues: This is it, that we haue no bred. And Jesus vnderstode that, and sayde vnto them: Why trouble ye youre selues, that ye haue no bred? Are ye yet without vnderstondinge? Haue ye yet a blynded hert in you? Haue ye eyes, & see not? and haue ye eares, and heare not? and remembre ye not, that I brake fyue loaues amonge fyue thousande, how many baskettes full of broken meate toke ye then vp? They sayde: twolue. And * whan I brake the seuen amonge the foure thousande, how many baskettes full of broken meate toke ye then vp? They sayde: Seuen. And he sayde vnto thē: Why are ye then without vnderstondinge?

And he came to Bethsaida, & they brought one blynde vnto him, and prayed him to touch him. And he toke the blynde by the hande, and led him out of the towne, and spat in his eyes, and layed his handes vpon him, and axed him whether he sawe ought. And he loked vp, and sayde: I se men goynge as yf I sawe trees. After this he layed his handes vpon his eyes ageyne, and made him to se. And he was brought to right againe, and sawe all clearly. And he sent him home, and sayde: Go not in to ỹ towne, and tell it also vnto noman therin.

D And Jesus wente out and his disciples into the townes of the cite Cesarea Philippi, And in ỹ waye he axed his disciples and sayde vnto them: What do men saye, that I am? They answered: They saye, thou art Jhon the baptist: Some saye thou art Elias, some that thou art one of the prophetes. And he sayde vnto them: But whom saye ye that I am? Then answered Peter and sayde vnto him: Thou art very Christ. And he charged them strately, that they shulde tell no man of him. And he begãne to teach them: The sonne of man must suffre many thinges, and be cast out of the elders & hye prestes and scrybes, and be put to death, and after thre dayes ryse agayne. And that word spake he fre openly. And Peter toke him vnto him, and beganne to rebuke him. But he turned him aboute, and loked vpon his disciples, and reproued Peter, and sayde: Go after me thou Sathan, for thou sauourest not the thinges that be of God, but of men.

E And he called vnto him the people with his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Who so euer wyl folowe me, let him denye himself, and take vp his crosse, and folowe me. For who so euer wyl saue his life, shal lose it: and who so euer loseth his life for my sake and ỹ gospels, ỹ same shal saue it. What helpeth it a mã though he wãne the whole worlde, and yet toke harme in his soule? Or, what can a man geue, to redeme his soule withall? Who so euer is ashamed of me and of my wordes amonge this aduouterous and synfull generacion, of him shal the sonne of man also be ashamed, whan he commeth in the glory of his father with the holy angels. And he sayde vnto them: Verely I saye vnto you: There stõde here some, which shal not taist of death, tyll they se the kyngdome of God come with power.

The IX. Chapter.

A And after sixe dayes Jesus toke vnto him Peter, James and Jhon, and brought them vp in to an hye mountayne out of the waye alone, and was trãsfigured before them, and his clothes were bright and very whyte as ỹ snowe, so whyte as no fuller can make vpon earth. And there appeared vnto thẽ Elias with Moses, and they talked with Jesus. And Peter answered, and sayde vnto Jesus: Rabbi, here is good beynge for vs. Let vs make thre tabernacles: one for the, one for Moses, and one for Elias. For he knewe not what he sayde, and they were very fearfull. And there was a cloude, which ouershadowed thẽ. And out of the cloude there came a voyce, and sayde: This is my deare sonne, * heare him. And immediatly they loked aboute them, and sawe noman more then Jesus onely with them. Mat.17.a Luc.9.d Mat.3.b Marc.1.a Luc.3.c * Deu 18

But whan they were downe from the mountayne, Jesus charged them, that they shulde tell no man what they had sene, tyll the sonne of man were rysen agayne from the deed. Mat.17.b

B And they kepte that sayenge by them, and axed one another: What is that ryssinge agayne from the deed? And they axed him, and sayde: Why saye the scrybes then, that * Elias must first come? He answered and sayde vnto them: Elias shal come first in dede, and bringe all thinges to right agayne. The sonne of man also shal suffre many thinges, and be despysed, * as it is wrytten. But I saye vnto you: Elias is come, and they haue done vnto him what they wolde, accordinge as it is wrytten of him. *Mala.3 * Esa.53. Psal.21.

And he came to his disciples, and sawe moch people aboute them, and the scrybes disputynge with them. And as soone as the people sawe, they were astonnyed, and ranne vnto him, and saluted him. And he axed the scrybes: What dispute ye with them? And one of the people answered, and sayde: Master, I haue brought vnto the my sonne, which hath a domme spryte: and whan so euer he taketh him, he teareth him, and he fometh, and gnasheth with the teth, and pyneth awaye, & I haue spoken to thy disciples that they shulde cast him out, and they coude not. Mat.17.b Luc.9.c

He answered him, and sayde: O thou vnfaithfull generacion, how longe shal I be with you? How longe shal I suffre you? Bringe hi hither to me. And they brought him vnto him. And as soone as the spryte sawe him, he tare him, and fell vpon the C and goeth in to the mā, can not defyle him: For it entreth not in to his hert, but in to ỹ bely, and goeth out in to the draught, that purgeth all meates.

C And he sayde: The thinge that goeth out of the man, that defyleth the man. For from within out of the hert of man proceade euell thoughtes, aduoutrye, whordome, murthur, theft, coueteousnes, wickednes, disceate, vnclennes, a wicked eye, blasphemy, pryde, foolishnes. All these euell thinges go from within, and defyle the man.

Mat.15.c And he arose, and wente from thence in to the borders of Tyre and Sydon, & entred in to an house, and wolde let no man knowe of it, and yet coude he not be hyd: For a certayne woman (whose doughter had a foule spriete) herde of him, and came and fell downe at his fete (and it was in Heithē woman of Syrophenices) and she besought him, that he wolde dryue out the deuell from hir doughter. But Jesus sayde vnto her: Let the children be fed first: It is not mete to take the childrēs bred, and to cast it vnto dogges. She answered and sayde vnto him: Ye LORDE, neuertheles the whelpes also eate vnder ỹ table, of ỹ childrēs crōmes. And he D sayde vnto her: Because of this sayenge go thy waye, the deuell is departed out of thy doughter. And she wente vnto her house, & founde that the deuell was departed, and hir doughter lyenge on the bed.

Mat.9.d Luc.11.b And whan he wente out agayne from the coastes of Tyre and Sydon, he came vnto the see of Galile, thorw the myddes of ỹ coastes of the tē cities. And they brought vnto him one that was deaf, and had impediment in his speach. And they prayed him, that he wolde laye his hande vpon him.

And he toke him a syde from the people, and put his fyngers in his eares, and dyd spyt, and touched his tonge, and loked vp vnto heauen, sighed, and sayde vnto him: Ephatha, that is, be opened. And immediatly his eares were opened, and the bonde of his tōge was lowsed, and he spake right.

Marc.1.d and 9.a And he charged them, that they shulde tell no man.

But the more he forbad them, the more they published it, & marueyled out of measure, and sayde: * He hath done all thinnGen.1.d Eccli.39.c ges well. The deaf hath he made to heare, and the domme to speake.

The VIII. Chapter.

AT the same tyme whan there was A mocb people there, and had nothinge to eate, Jesus called his disciples to him, and sayde vnto them: I haue compassion vpon the people, for they haue taried wt me now thre dayes, & haue nothinge to eate. And yf I let them go home fro me fastynge, they shulde faynte by the waye. * For Mar some of them were come from farre. And his disciples answered him: Where shulde we get bred here in the wyldernes, to satisfie them? And he axed thē: How many loaues Mar haue ye? They sayde: Seuen. And he commaunded the people to syt downe vpon the grounde. And he toke the seuen loaues, and gaue thākes, and brake them, and gaue thē vnto his disciples to set them before the people. And they set thē before the people. And they had a few small fyshes, and whan he had geuen thankes, he bad set the same before the people. They ate, and were satisfied, & toke vp seuē baskettes full of ỹ brokē meate that was left. And they ỹ ate, were vpō a foure thousande. And he sent thē awaye.

And [illegible] he wente in to a shipp B with his disciples, and came in to the coastes [illegible] Dalmanutha. And the Pharises Mar wente out, and begāne to dispute with him, and temptynge him, and desyred a token of him from heuē. And he sighed in his spriete, and sayde: Why doth this generacion seke a Mar token? Verely I saye vnto you: There shal no tokē be geuē vnto this generacion. And he left them, and wēte agayne into the shippe, and passed ouer.

And they forgat to take bred with them, and had no more with them in the shippe but one loaf. And he cōmaunded them, and sayde: Take hede, and bewarre of the leuen of the Pharises, and of the leuen of Herode. And their myndes wandered here and there, and sayde amonge them selues: This is it, that we haue no bred. And Jesus vnderstode that, and sayde vnto them: Why trouble ye youre selues, that ye haue no bred? Are ye yet without vnderstondinge? Haue ye yet a blynded hert in you? Haue ye eyes, & se not? and haue ye eares, and heare not? and remC bre ye not, that I brake fyue loaues amonge fyue thousande, how many baskettes full of broken meate toke ye then vp? They sayde: twolue. And * whan I brake the seuen Mat amonge the foure thousande, how many baskettes full of broken meate toke ye then vp? They sayde: Seuen. And he sayde vnto thē: Why are ye then without vnderstondinge?

And he came to Bethsaida, & they broughe

one blynde vnto him, and prayed him to touch him. And he toke the blynde by the hande, and led him out of the towne, and spat in his eyes, and layed his handes vpon him, and axed him whether he sawe ought. And he loked vp, and sayde: I se men goynge as yf I sawe trees. After this he layed his handes vpon his eyes ageyne, and made him to se. And he was brought to right againe, and sawe all clearly. And he sent him home, and sayde: Go not in to ỹ towne, and tell it also vnto noman therin.

D And Jesus wente out and his disciples into the townes of the cite Cesarea Philippi, And in ỹ waye he axed his disciples and sayde vnto them: What do men saye, that I am? He sayde: Of a childe, and oft tymes hath he cast him in to the fyre and water, to destroye him: but yf thou canst do eny thinge, haue mercy vpon vs, and helpe vs. Jesus sayde vnto him: Yf thou couldest beleue: All thinges are possible vnto him that beleueth. And immediatly the father of the childe cried with teares, and sayde: LORDE I beleue: O helpe thou myne vnbeleue.

Now whan Jesus sawe that the people ranne to, he rebuked the foule spirite, and sayde vnto him: Thou domme and deaf spirite, I charge the, departe out of him, and entre nomore in to him from hence forth. And he cried, and rent him sore, and departed. And he was as though he had bene deed, in so moch that many sayde: he is deed. But Jesus toke him by the hande, and set him vp. And he arose. A

And he rose vp, and came from thence in to the places of Jewry beyonde Jordan. And the people wēte agayne vnto him by heapes, and as his maner was he taught them agayne. And the pharises came vnto him, and axed him, yf it were lawfull for a man to put awaye his wife, and tempted him withall. But he answered and sayde: What hath Moses cōmaunded you? They sayde: Moses suffred to wryte a testimoniall of deuorcemēt, and to put her awaye. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Because of ỳ hardnesse of yō hert dyd Moses wryte you this commaundement. But from the first creacion God made thē man and woman. For this cause shal a man leaue his father & mother, and cleue vnto his wife, and they two shalbe one flesh. Now are they not twayne thē, but one flesh. Let not man therfore put asunder that, which God hath coupled together.

B And they brought childrē vnto him, that he might touch them. But the disciples reproued those that brought thē. Neuertheles whan Jesus sawe it, he was displeased, and sayde vnto them: Suffre the children to come vnto me, and forbyd them not, for of soch is the kyngdome of God. Verely I saye vnto you: Who so euer receaueth not the kyngdome of God as a childe, he shal not entre therin. And he toke them vp in his armes, and layed his handes vpon them, and blessed them.

And whan he was gone forth vpon the waye, there came one runninge, and kneled vnto him, & axed him: Good Master, what shal I do, that I maye inheret euerlastinge life: But Jesus saide vnto him: Why callest thou me good? There is no man good, but God onely, Thou knowest the commaundementes: Thou shalt not breake wedlocke: thou shalt not kyll: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt beare no false wytnesse: thou shalt begyle no man: Honoure thy father and mother. But he answered, and sayde vnto him: Master, all these haue I kepte fro my youth vp. And Jesus behelde him, and loued him, & sayde vnto him: Thou wantest one thinge: Go thy waye, and * sell all that thou hast, and geue it vnto ỹ poore: so shalt thou haue a treasure in heauen, and come & followe me, and take the crosse vpon ỹ. And he was disconforted at the sayenge, & went awaye sory, for he had greate possessions.

C And Jesus loked aboute him, and sayde vnto his disciples: O how hardly shal the ryche come into ỹ kyngdome of God? And the disciples were astonnyed at his wordes. But Jesus answered agayne, and sayde vnto them: Deare children, how harde is it for them that trust in riches, to come into the kyngdome of God? It is easier for a Camell to go thorow the eye of a nedle, then for a rich man to entre in to ỹ kyngdome of God. Yet were they astonnyed ỹ more, and sayde amonge thē selues: Who can thē be saued? But Jesus behelde them, and sayde: With men it is vnpossyble, but not with God: for with God all thinges are possyble.

Then sayde Peter vnto him: Beholde, we haue forsaken all, and folowed the. Jesus answered & sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: There is no man that forsaketh house, or brethren, or sisters, or father or mother, or wife, or children, or londes for my sake and the gospels, that shal not receaue an hundreth folde now in this tyme, houses, and brethrē, and sisters, and mothers and children, and londes with persecucions, and in the worlde to come euerlastinge life. But many that are the first, shal be the last: and the last the first. Luc.13.c

D They were in the waye goinge vp to Jerusalem, and Jesus wente before them. And they were astonnyed, and folowed him, and were afrayed. And Jesus toke the twolue agayne, and tolde them what shulde happē vnto him. Beholde, we go vp to Jerusalem, and the sonne of man shalbe delyuered vnto the hye prestes and scrybes, and they shal condemne him to death, and delyuer him vnto the heythē. And they shal mocke hī, and scourge him, and spyt vpon him, and put him to death, and on the thirde daye shal he ryse agayne. Mat.20.b Luc.18.d

Then wēte vnto him James and Jhon ỹ sonnes of Zebede, and sayde: Master, We desyre, that what soeuer we axe of the, thou wilt do it for vs. He sayde vnto thē: What desyre ye that I shal do to you? They sayde vnto him: Graunte vs, that we maye syt one at thy right hande, and one at thy left hande in thy glory. But Jesus sayde vnto thē: Ye wote not what ye axe. Maye ye drynke the cuppe, ỹ I shal drynke? and be baptysed with the baptyme that I shal be baptysed withall? They sayde vnto him: Yee ỹ we maye. Jesus sayde vnto them: The cuppe that I drynke, shal ye drynke in dede: and be baptysed with the baptyme that I shall be baptysed withall. Neuertheles to syt at my right hande and at my left, is not myne to geue you, but vnto them for whom it is prepared. Mat.20.c

And whā the ten herde that, they disdayned at James and Jhon. But Jesus called them, and sayde vnto them: Ye knowe that the prynces of ỹ worlde haue dominacion of the people, and ỹ mightie exercise auctorite amonge them. So shal it not be amonge you: but who so euer wil be greate amōge you, shal be youre mynister: and who so wyl be chefest amonge you, shalbe seruaunt of all. For the sonne of man also came not to be serued, but to do seruyce, and * to geue his life to a redempcion for many. Mat.20. Marc.9.c Luc.9.c and 22.b * Ioh.10.

And they came vnto Jericho. And whan he wente out of Jericho, and his disciples, and moch people, there sat one blynde Barthimeus the sonne of Thimeus by ỹ waye, and begged. And whā he herde that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to crie and saye: Jesu thou sonne of Dauid haue mercy vpon me. And many reproued him, that he shulde holde his tunge. But he cried moch Mat.20.d Luc.18.d

more: Thou sonne of Dauid haue mercy vpō me. And Jesus stode styll, and bad call him. And they called the blynde, and sayde vnto him: Be of good comforte, arise, he calleth the. And he cast awaye his garment from him, stode vp, and came to Jesus. And Jesus answered, & sayde vnto him: What wilt thou that I do vnto the? The blynde sayde vnto him: Master, that I might se. Jesus sayde vnto him: Go ỳ waye, thy faith hath helped ỳ. And immediatly he had his sight and folowed him in the waye.

The XI. Chapter.

A Mat.21.a Luc.19.c AND whan they came nye Jerusalem to Bethphage and Bethanye vnto mount Oliuete, he sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Go in to the towne that lyeth before you, and as soone as ye come in, ye shal synde a foale bounde, wher vpon no man hath sytte: lowse it, and bringe it hither. And yf eny man saye vnto you: wherfore do ye that? Then saye ye: The LORDE hath nede therof, and forth with he shal sende it hither. They wēte their waie and founde the foale tyed by ỳ dore without at the partynge of the waye, and lowsed it. And certayne of those ỳ stode there, axed them: What do ye, that ye lowse the foale? But they sayde vnto thē, like as Jesus had commaunded them. And so they let them alone. And they brought the foale vnto Jesus, and layed their clothes theron, and he sat theron. But many spred their garmētes in the waye: some cut downe braunches frō the trees, and strowed thē in the waye. And they that wente before, and that folowed after, cried, and sayde: Hosyanna, blessed be he, that commeth in the name of the LORDE: blessed be the kyngdome of oure father Dauid, which commeth in the name of the LORDE. Hosyanna in the height.

B AND the LORDE entred in to Jerusalem, and wente in to the temple, and loked vpon all. And at euen he wente out vnto Bethany with the twolue: and on the morow whā they departed from Bethanye, he hūgred, and sawe a fygge tre afarre of, which had leaues. Then came he nye, (to se) yf he coude synde eny thinge theron. And whan he came to it, he founde nothinge but leaues (for the tyme of fygges was not yet) And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto it: Neuer mā eate frute of the for euermore. And his disciples herde it.

And they came to Jerusalem. And Jesus wente in to the temple, and beganne to dryue out the sellers and byers in the tēple, & ouerthrew the tables of the money chaungers, and the stoles of the doue sellers, and suffred not eny man to cary a vessell thorow the temple. And he taught and sayde vnto them: Is it not wrytten: My house shalbe called a house of prayer for all people? But ye haue made it a denne of murthurers.

And the scrybes and hye prestes herde of it. And they sought how they might destroye him, but they were afrayed of him, for all the people marueled at his doctryne. And at euen he wente out of the cite. And on the morow they passed by, and sawe the fygge tre, that it was wythred vnto the rote. And Peter thought theron, and sayde vnto him: Master, beholde, the fygge tre ỳ thou cursedest, is wythred awaye. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Haue faith in God. Verely I saye vnto you: Who so euer saieth vnto this mountayne: Avoyde, and cast thy self in to the see, and douteth not in his hert, but beleueth that the thinges shal come to passe which he saieth, then loke what he sayeth, it shal come to passe. Therfore I saye vnto you: What so euer ye desyre in youre prayer, beleue that ye shal receaue it, and ye shal haue it. And whan ye stonde and praye, forgeue yf ye haue ought ageynst eny man, that youre father also in heauen, maye forgeue you youre trespaces.

D AND they came agayne vnto Jerusalem and whan he wente in the temple, there came vnto him the hye prestes and scrybes and the elders, and sayde vnto him: By what auctorite dost thou these thinges? and who gaue the this auctorite to do soch?

But Jesus answered and sayde vnto the: I wil axe you a worde also, answere me, and I wyl tell you, by what auctorite I do these. The baptyme of Jhon, was it from heauen, or of men? Answere me.

And they thought in them selues: yf we saye, it was from heauen, then shal he saye: Why dyd ye not then beleue him? But yf we saye: It was of men, then feare we the people, for they all helde that Jhon was a true prophet. And they answered, and saide vnto him: We can not tell. And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Neither tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thinges.

The XII. Chapter.

A AND he beganne to speake vnto them by parables: A certayne mā planted a vynyarde, and made a hedge aboute it, and dygged a wynne presse, and buylded a tower, and let it out vnto hußbande men, and wente in to a straunge countre. And whan the tyme was come, he sent a seruaũt to the hußbande men, that he might receaue of the hußbandmen, of the frute of the vynyarde. But they toke him, and bet him, and sent him awaye emptye. Agayne, he sent vnto them another seruaunt, whom they stoned, and brake his heade, and sent him awaye shamefully dealt withall. Agayne he sent another, whom they slew, and many other: some they bett, and some they put to death.

Then had he yet one sonne onely, whom he loued, him he sent also vnto them at the last, and sayde: they wyl stonde in awe of my sonne. But the same hußbandmen sayde amonge them selues: This is the heyre, Come, let vs kyll him, so shal the inheritaunce be ours. And they toke him, and slewe him, and cast him out of the vynyarde. What shal now the lorde of the vynyarde do? He shal come and destroye the hußbande men, and geue the vynyarde vnto other. Haue ye not red this scripture: The same stone which the buylders refused, is become the headstone in the corner? This was the LORDES doynge, and it is maruelous in oure eyes.

And they wente aboute to take him (but they feared the people) for they perceaued, that he had spokẽ this parable agaynst thẽ. And they left him, and wente their waye.

B And they sent vnto him certayne of the Pharises and Herodes officers to take him in his wordes. And they came, and sayde vnto hi: Master, we knowe that thou art true and carest for no man. For thou regardest not the outwarde appearaunce of men, but teachest ỹ waye of God truly. Is it lawfull to geue tribute vnto the Emperoure, or not? Ought we to geue it, or ought we not to geue it? But he perceaued their ypocrisse, and sayde vnto them: Why tempte ye me? Brynge me a peny, that I maye se it. And they brought it him. Then sayde he: Whose ymage and superscripcion is this? They sayde vnto him: The Emperours. Then answered Jesus and sayde vnto thẽ: Geue therfore vnto the Emperoure that which is the Emperours, and vnto God that which is Gods. And they marueled at him.

Then came vnto him the Saduces (which holde that there is no resurreccion) these axed him, and sayde: Master, Moses wrote vnto vs. Yf eny mans brother dye, and leaue a wife, and leaue no children, his brother shal take his wife, and rayse vp sede vnto his brother. Now were there seuen brethren: the first toke a wife, and dyed, and left no sede: and the seconde toke her, and dyed, and left no sede also: the thirde in like maner. Deut.25.a

And they all seuen toke her, and left no sede. At the last after them all, the wyfe dyed also. Now in the resurreccion whan they shal ryse agayne, whose wife shal she be of them? For seuen had her to wife.

Then answered Jesus, and sayde vnto them: Do not ye erre? because ye knowe not the scryptures ner ỹ power of God? Whan they shal ryse agayne from the dede, they shal nether mary ner be maried, but they are as the angels in heauen. As touchinge the deed, that they shal ryse agayne, haue ye not red in the boke of Moses, how God spake vnto him in the bush, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Jsaac, & the God of Jacob? Yet is not God a God of the deed, but of the lyuynge. Therfore ye erre greatly. Exod.3.a Act.7.d

And there came vnto him one of the scrybes, that had herkened vnto thẽ how they disputed together, and sawe that he had answered them well, and axed him: Which is the chefest cõmaundement of all? Jesus answered him: The chefest commaundemẽt of all commaundementes is this: Heare O Jsrael, the LORDE oure God is one God, and thou shalt loue the LORDE thy God with all thy hert, with all thy soule, with all thy mynde, and with all thy strength. This is the chefest commaundement, and the seconde is like vnto it: Thou shalt loue thy neghboure as thy self. There is none other greater commaundement then these. Mat.22.d Deut.6.f and 30.b Leui.19. Ro.13.b

And the scrybe sayde vnto him: Master, Verely thou hast sayde right: for there is but one God, & there is none other without him, and to loue him with all the hert, with all the mynde, with all the soule, and with all the strength, and to loue a mans neghboure as himself, is more then brent sacrifices and all offerynges. But whã Jesus sawe that he answered discretly, he sayde vnto him: Thou art not farre from the kyngdome of God. And after this durst no man axe him eny mo questions.

And Jesus answered, and sayde, whan he D taught in the temple: How saye the scrybes, Mat.22.d ỹ Christ is the sonne of Dauid? But Dauid Luc.20.e

himself saieth thorow the holy goost: The Psal.109.a LORDE sayde vnto my LORDE: Syt thou on my right honde, tyll I make thine enemies ẏ fotestole. There Dauid calleth him his LORDE. How is he thē his sonne? And many people herde him gladly.

Mat.23.a Luc.20.c And he taught thē, and sayde vnto thē: Bewarre of the scrybes, that loue to go in longe garmentes, and loue to be saluted in the market, and syt gladly aboue in the synagoges and at the table: they deuoure wyddowes houses, and vnder a coloure they make longe prayers. These shal receaue the more damnacion.

Luc.21.a * 4.Reg. 12.b And Jesus sat ouer agaynst the * Gods cheste, and behelde how the people put money in to the Godscheste. And many that were riche: put in moch. And there came a poore wyddowe, and put in two mytes, which make a farthinge. And he called vnto him his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Verely I saye vnto you: this poore wyddowe hath put more in ẏ Godscheste, then all they that haue put in: For they all haue put ī of their superfluyte, but she of hir powerte hath put in all that she had, euen hir whole lyuynge.

The XIII. Chapter.

A Mat.24.a Luc.21.a AND whan he wēte out of the temple, one of his disciples sayde vnto him: Master, se, what stones and what a buyldinge is this? And Jesus answered and sayde vnto him: Seist thou all this greate buyldinge? There shal not one stone be left vpō another, ẏ shal not be broken downe.

And whan he sat vpon mount Oliuete ouer agaynst the temple, Peter and James, and Jhon, and Andrew axed him priuatly: Tell vs, Whan shal all these come to passe? And what shalbe the tokē, whā all these shalbe fulfilled? Jesus answered them, and beganne to saye: Take hede, that no man disceaue you, for there shal many come vnder my name, and saye: I am Christ, & shal disceaue many. But whan ye shal heare of the noyse of warres, be not ye afrayed: for so must it be, but ẏ ende is not yet. One people shal ryse ageynst another, and one realme ageynst another, and there shal be earth quakes here and there, and derth shal there be and troubles. These are the begynnynge of sorowes.

B Mat.10.b Some reade: coūcelhouses. But take ye hede to youre selues. For they shal delyuer you vp to the * councels, and synagoges, and ye shal be beaten, and shalbe brought before prynces and kynges for my names sake, for a wytnesse vnto thē. And ẏ gospel must first be preached amōge all people.

Now whan they shal lede you and delyuer you vp, take ye no thought afore what ye shal saye: and ymagyn ye nothinge afore hande, but what so euer shal be geuē you at the same houre, that speake: for it is not ye that speake, but the holy goost. One brother shal delyuer another vnto death, and the father the sonne, & the children shal ryse ageynst their fathers and mothers, and shal helpe them to death, and ye shal be hated of all men for my names sake. But who so endureth to the ende, shalbe saued.

Mat. Luc. Whan ye shal se the abhominacīō of desolacion (wherof it is spokē by * Daniel the prophet) stonde where it ought not (who so readeth it, let him marck it well) then let thē which be in Jewry, flye vnto the mountaynes: and let him that is on the house toppe not descēde into the house, ner come therin, to fetch eny thinge out of the house. And let him that is in the felde, not turne backe to fetch his clothes.

Mat. Luc. Dan. C But wo vnto them that are with childe, and to them that geue suck in those dayes. Neuertheles praye ye, that youre flight be not in the wynter. For in those dayes there shal be soch trouble as was not from the begynnynge of ẏ creatures which God created, vnto this tyme, nether shal be. And ẏ ẏ LORDE had not shortened those dayes, there shulde no man be saued. But for the electes sake whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened those dayes.

Mat. Luc. Now yf eny man shal saye vnto you at ẏ tyme: Lo, here is Christ: lo, he is there, beleue it not. For there shal aryse false Christes, and false prophetes, which shal do tokens & wonders, to disceaue euen the very chosen, yf it were possyble. But take ye hede, Behold, I haue tolde you all before.

Mat. Luc. Ioel. But at the same tyme after this trouble, the Sonne and Mone shal lose their light, and the starres shall fall from heauen, and the powers of the heauens shal moue: and Dan. then shal they se the sonne of man comming in the cloudes with greate power and glory. And thē shal he sende his angels, and shal gather together his chosen frō the foure wyndes, from one ende of the earth to the other.

Mat. Luc. Lerne a symilitude of the fyge tre: Whā his braunch is yet tēder, and hath brought forth leaues, ye knowe that the Sommer is nye. So lykewyse whā ye se all these thinges come to passe, be ye sure, that it is nye euen at the dores. Verely I saye vnto you: this generacīō shal not passe, tyll all these be fulfilled.

heaven and earth shal perisshe, but my wordes shal not perisshe. But of that daye and houre knoweth no man, nether the angels in heaven, no not the sonne him self, but the father onely.

Take hede, watch, & praye, for ye knowe not whan the tyme is. Like as a man that wente in to a straunge countre, and left his house, and gaue his seruauntes auctorite, vnto euery one his worke, and commaunded ye porter, that he shulde watch. Watch ye ther fore, for ye knowe not whā the master of ye house cōmeth, whether he cōmeth in the euenynge, or at mydnight, or aboute the cock crowynge, or in the mornynge, that he come not sodenly, and fynde you slepynge. Loke what I saye vnto you, that saye I vnto all. Watch.

The XIIII. Chapter

AND after two dayes was Easter, and the daies of swete bred. And ye hye prestes & scrybes sought how they might take him with disceate, & put him to death. But they sayde: Not in the feast daye, lest there be an vproure in the people.

And when he was at Bethanye in the house of Symon the leper, and sat at the table, there came a woman, which had a boxe of pure and costly Nardus oyntment. And she brake ye boxe, & poured it vpō his heade. Then were there some, ye disdayned and sayde: Where to serueth this waist? This oyntment might haue bene solde for more then thre hundreth pens, & bene geuē to ye poore. And they grudged agaynst her.

But Jesus sayde: let her be in rest. Why trouble ye her? She hath done a good worke vpō me. Ye haue allwaye the poore with you, and whā so euer ye wil, ye maye do thē good: but me haue ye not allwaie. She hath done what she coulde, she is come before, to anoynte my body for my buriall. Verely I saye vnto you: Where so euer this gospell shalbe preached in all the worlde, there shal this also that she hath now done, be tolde for a remembraunce of her.

And Judas Iscarioth one of the twolue wente vnto the hye prestes, to betraye him vnto them. Whan they herde ye, they were glad, & promysed that they wolde geue him money. And he sought, how he might cōueniently betraye him.

And vpon ye first daye of swete bred, whā the Easter lambe was offered, his disciples sayde vnto him: Where wilt thou ye we go and prepare, ye thou mayest eate ye Easter lābe? And he sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye into the cite, and there shal mete you a mā bearinge a pitcher with water, folowe him, & where so euer he goeth in, there saye ye to the good man of the house: The Master sendeth the worde: Where is the gest house, wherin I maye eate the Easter lābe, wt my disciples? And he shal shewe you a greate parlour, which is paued & prepared, there make readye for vs. And ye disciples wēte forth, & came in to ye cite, & foūde it as he had sayde vnto thē. And they prepared ye Easter lambe.

At euen he came wt the twolue. And as they sat at the table & ate, Jesus sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: One of you ye eateth wt me, shal betraye me. And they were sory, & sayde vnto hī one after another: Is it I? & another (sayde:) is it I? He answered & saide vnto thē: One of the twolue, euen ye same ye dyppeth with me in ye platter. The sonne of man truly goeth forth, as it is wrytte of hī. But wo vnto that mā, by whom the sonne of man is betrayed. It were better for the same man, that he had neuer bene borne. Mat.26.b Luc.22.b Iohā.13.c

And as they ate, Jesus toke the bred, gaue thankes, & brake it, and gaue it thē, & sayde: Take, eate, this is my body. And he toke the cuppe, thāked, and gaue it thē, and they all dranke therof. And he sayde vnto them: This is my blonde of the new Testament, which shalbe shed for many. Verely I saye vnto you, that from hence forth I wil not drynke of the frute of the vyne, tyll ye daye ye I drynke it new in ye kyngdome of God. And whā they had sayde grace, they wēte forth vnto mount Oliuete. Mat.26.c Luc.22.b 1.Cor.11.c

And Jesus sayde vnto them: This night shal ye all be offended in me, for it is wrytten: * I wil smyte the sheperde, & the shepe shal be scatred abrode. Neuertheles after ye I am ryssen agayne, I wil go before you in to Galile. But Peter sayde vnto him: And though all men shulde be offended, yet wol de not I be offended. And Jesus sayde vnto him: Verely I saye vnto ye: To daye in this same night, before ye cock crowe two tymes, shalt thou denye me thryse. But he saide yet more: Yee though I shulde dye wt ye, yet wil I not denie ye. So saide they all ī like maner. Mat.26.c *Zac.13.b Act.1.a

And they came in to ye felde called Gethsemane, and he saide vnto his disciples: Syt ye here, tyll I go yonder, and praye. And he toke with him Peter & James, & Jhon, and begāne to ware fearefull, & to be in an agonye, & sayde vnto thē: My soule is heuye euē vnto ye death: tary ye here and watch. And he wente forth a litle, fell vpon the grounde and prayed, that, (yf it were possyble) ye houre might passe frō him, and sayde: Abba, my father, all thinges are possyble vnto the, take this cuppe awaye fro me: Neuertheles not what I wyl, but what thou wilt.

E And he came vnto them, and founde thē slepynge, and sayde vnto Peter: Symon, slepest thou? Couldest thou not watch with me one houre? Watch and praye, that ye fal not in to temptacion. The spirite is wyllinge, but ye flesh is weake. And he wēte forth agayne, and prayde, and spake the same wordes, and returned, and founde them slepynge agayne: for their eyes were heuy, & they knewe not what they shulde answere him. And he came the thirde tyme, and sayde vnto them: Slepe on now, and take youre rest, It is ynough, the houre is come: beholde, ye sonne of man shalbe delyuered into the handes of synners: aryse, let vs be goynge. Beholde, he is at hande, that betrayeth me.

Mat.26.d Luc.22.d Iohā.18.a And immediatly whyle he yet spake, came Judas one of the twolue, and with him a greate multitude, with swerdes and staues from the hye prestes and scrybes and elders. And the traytoure had geuen them a token, and sayde: Whom so euer I kysse, that same is he, laye handes vpon him, and lede him awaye warely. And whā he was come, he wente straight waye vnto him, and sayde vnto him: O master, master, and kyssed him. Then layed they their handes vpon him, & toke him. But one of thē that stode by, drew out his swerde, and smote the hye prestes seruaunt, and cut of his eare.

F And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto thē: Mat.26.f Luc.22.d Ye are come forth as it were to a murthurer with swerdes and with staues to take me. I was daylie with you in the temple, and taught, and ye toke me not. * But this is done, that the scrypture maye be fulfilled. And all the disciples forsoke him, and fled. And there folowed him a yonge mā, which was clothed in lynnen vpon the bare skynne, and the yonge mē toke holde of him. But he let the lynnen go, and fled naked from them.

* Esa.53.b Marc.15.c

Mat 26.f Luc.22.d Ioh.18.b And they led Jesus vnto the hye prest, where all ye hye prestes, and elders and scrybes were come together. As for Peter, he folowed him a farre of in to the hye prestes palace. And he was there, and sat with the seruauntes, and warmed him.

Mat.26.f But the hye prestes and the whole counsell sought wytnesse agaynst Jesus, ye they might bringe him to death, and they founde none. Many gaue false wytnesse agaynst him, but their wytnesses agreed not together. And some stode vp, and gaue false wytnes agaynst him, and sayde: We herde him saye: I wil breake downe this temple that is made with hōdes, and in thre dayes buyld another not made wt handes. But their wytnesse agreed not together.

And the hye prest stode vp amonge them, and axed Jesus, and sayde: Answerest thou nothinge vnto it, that these testifie agaynst the? But he helde his tunge, and answered nothinge. Thē the hye prest axed him agayne, and sayde vnto him: Art thou Christ the sonne of the blessed? Jesus sayde: I am. And ye shal se the sonne of man syt at the right hande of power, and come in the cloudes of heauē. Then the hye prest rent his clothes, & sayde: What nede we eny mo wytnesses? Ye haue herde the blasphemy. What thynke ye? They all cōdemned him, that he was giltie of death. Then beganne there some to spyt vpō him, and to couer his face, and to smyte him with fistes, and to saye vnto him Prophecie vnto vs. And the seruauntes smote him on the face.

And Peter was beneth in ye palace. Thē came one of the wenches of the hye prest: And whā she sawe Peter warmynge him, she loked vpō hī, and sayde: And thou wast with Jesus of Nazareth also. But he denyed, & sayde: I knowe him not, nether can I tell what thou sayest. And he wente out in to the fore courte, and the cock crew. And a damsell sawe him, and beganne agayne to saye vnto them that stode by: This is one of them. And he denyed it agayne. And after a litle whyle they ye stode by, sayde agayne vnto him: Of a trueth thou art one of them for thou art a Galilean, and thy speach sōmdeth euen alike. But he begāne to curse and sweare: I knowe not the man, that ye speake of. And the cock crew agayne. Then thought Peter vpon the worde, that Jesus sayde vnto him: * Before ye cock crow two tymes, thou shalt denye me thryse. And he beganne to wepe.

The XV. Chapter.

AND soone in the mornynge the hye prestes helde a councell wt the elders and scrybes and the whole councell, & bounde Jesus, and led him awaye, and delyuered him vnto Pylate. And Pylate axed him: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? he answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou sayest it. And the hye prestes accused him sore. But Pylate axed him agayne, and sayde: Answerest thou nothinge? Beholde, how sore they laye to ye charge. Neuertheles Jesus answe red nomore, in so moch ỹ Pylate marueyled.

At that feast of Easter he was wonte to delyuer vnto them a presoner, whom so euer they wolde desyre. There was ī presō with the sedicious, one called Barrabas, which in the vproure had committed murthur.

And the people wente vp, and prayed him, that he wolde do, as he was wonte. Pylate answered them: wyl ye that I geue lowse vnto you the kynge of the Jewes? For he knew, that ỹ hye prestes had delyuered him of envye. But the hye prestes moued ỹ people, that he shulde rather geue Barrabas lowse vnto them.

Pylate answered agayne, and sayde vnto them: What wil ye thē that I do vnto him, whom ye accuse to be kynge of the Jewes? They cried agayne: Crucifie hi. Pylate sayde vnto thē: What euell hath he done? But they cried yet moch more: Crucifie him. So Pylate thought to satisfie the people, and gaue Barrabas lowse vnto them, and delyuered thē Jesus, to be scourged & crucified.

And the soudyers led him in to the comō hall, and called the whole multitude together, and clothed him with purple, and plated a crowne of thorne, and crowned him withall, and beganne to salute him: Hayle kynge of the Jewes. And smote him vpon the heade with a rede, and spytted vpō him, and fell vpō the kne, & worshipped him. And whā they had mocked him, they toke ỹ purple of him, and put his clothes vpon him, & led him out, that they might crucifye him.

And they compelled one that passed by, called Symon of Cyren (which came from the felde, and was the father of Alexander and Ruffus) to beare his crosse. And they brought him to the place Golgatha, which is by interpretacion: a place of deed mens skulles. And they gaue him wyne myrred wh myrre, to drynke, & he toke it not. And whan they had crucified him, they parted his garmētes, & cast lottes therfore, what euery one shulde take. And it was aboute ỹ thirde houre, & they crucified him. And the tytle of his cause was wrytte ouer aboue him (namely:) The kynge of the Jewes. And they crucified him wh two murthurers, one at ỹ right hande, and one at the left. Then was the scripture fulfilled, which sayeth: He was coūted amonge the euell doers.

And they that wēte by, reuyled him, and wagged their heades, and sayde: Fye vpon the, how goodly breakest thou downe ỹ tēple, & buyldest it agayne in thre dayes? Helpe ỹ self now, & come downe frō the crosse.

The hye prestes also in like maner laughed him to scorne amonge thē selues, with the scrybes, & sayde: He hath helped other, himself can he not helpe. Yf he be Christ and ỹ kynge of Israel, let him come downe now frō the crosse, ỹ we maye se it, & beleue. And they ỹ were crucified wh hī, checked hī also.

D And whā it was aboute the sixte houre, there was a darckenesse ouer the whole lōde, tyll aboute ỹ nyenth houre. And aboute ỹ nyenth houre Jesus cried loude, and sayde: Eli, Eli, lamma asabthani? which is interpreted: My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? And some that stode by, whan they herde ỹ, they sayde: Beholde, he calleth Elias. Then rāne there one, & fylled a spōge wh vyneger, & stickte it vpō a rede, & gaue hī to drynke, & sayde: Holde styll, let se, whether Elias wil come, and take him downe. But Jesus cried loude, and gaue vp the goost. And the vale of the tēple rent in two peces, from aboue tyll beneth.

The captayne that stode thereby ouer agaynst him, whā he sawe ỹ he gaue vp the goost with soch a crye, he sayde: Verely this man was Gods sonne.

Mat 27. f Luc. 23. e

E And there were wemen there also, which beheld this afarre of, amōge whō was Mary Magdalene, & Mary of James ỹ litle, & the mother of Joses, & Salome, which had folowed him whā he was in Galile, and ministred vnto hī: & many other ỹ wēte vp wh hī to Jerusalem. And at euen (for so moch as it was the daye of preparinge, which is the fore Sabbath) there came one Joseph of Arimathia, a worshipfull Senatoure (which loked also for the kyngdome of God) & wēte in boldely vnto Pilate, & axed ỹ body of Jesus. But Pylate marueyled ỹ he was deed all ready, & called ỹ captayne, & axed hī, whether he had lōge bene deed. And whā he had gotten knowlege of the captayne, he gaue Joseph ỹ body. And he bought a lynnē cloth, & toke him downe, & wrapped hī in ỹ lynnē clothe, & layed him in a sepulcre, which was hewē out of a rocke, & rolled a stone before ỹ dore of ỹ sepulcre. But Mary Magdalene and Mary Joses behelde, where he was layed.

The XVI. Chapter.

A And whan the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, & Mary James, and Salome, bought spyces, ỹ they might come, & anoynte hī. And they came to the sepulcre vpō a daye of ỹ Sabbathes very early, whā ỹ Sonne arose, & sayde one to another: Who shal rolle vs ỹ stone frō ỹ dore of the sepulcre? And whan they loked,

Mat. 28. a Luc. 24. a Iohā. 20. a they sawe, that the stone was rolled awaye: for it was a very greate one. And they wente in to the sepulcre, and on the right hande they sawe a yonge man syttinge, which had a longe whyte garmēt vpon him, and they were abaßhed. But he sayde vnto thē: Be not ye afrayed, ye seke Jesus of Nazareth which was crucified: he is rysen, he is not here. Beholde, ỳ place, where they layed him. But go ye youre waye, and tell his disciples and Peter, that he wil go before you in to Galile, there shal ye se him * as he sayde vnto you. And they wente forth in all the haist, and fled from the sepulcre: for there was a tremblynge & feare come vpon them, nether sayde they eny thinge to eny man, for they were afrayed.

*Mar.14.d

B But Jesus, whan he was rysen vp early vpō the first daye of the Sabbathes, he appeared first vnto Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast out seuen deuels. And she wēte and tolde thē that were with him, as they mourned and wepte. And whan they herde that he lyued, and had appeared vnto her, they beleued it not. After warde as two of thē were walkynge, he shewed himself vnder another figure, whan they were goynge vpon the felde. And they wente, and tolde the other: these they beleued not also.

The gospell of S. Luke.

The prologe of S. Luke.

FOR so moch as many haue taken in hande, to set forth ỹ wordes of the actes that are come to passe amonge vs, like as they delyuered thē vnto vs, which from the begynnynge sawe them their selues, and were mynisters of the worde, I thought it good (after that I had diligently searched out all from the begynnynge) to wryte the same orderly vnto the (good Theophilus) that thou mightest knowe the certēte of ỹ wordes, wherof thou art informed.

The first Chapter.

AN the tyme of Herode kynge of Jewry, there was a preest named Zachary of the course of Abia: and his wife of the doughters of Aaron, & hir name Elizabeth. They were both righteous before God, and walked in all the commaundementes and statutes of the LORDE vnreproueably. And they had no childe, for Elizabeth was baren, and they were both well stricken in age. 1.Pa.23.

And it came to passe as he executed the prestes office before God whan his course came (acordinge to the custome of the presthode) it fell to his lott to burne incense. And he wente in to the temple of the LORDE, and the whole multitude of the people was without in prayer, whyle the incense was aburnynge. And the angell of the LOR Exo.30.b Heb.9.a

DE appeared vnto him, and stode on the right syde of the altare of incēse. And whan Zachary sawe him, he was abaßhed, & there came a feare vpon him.

But the angell sayde vnto him: Feare not Zachary, for thy prayer is herde. And ỳ wife Elizabeth shal beare the a sonne, whose name thou shalt call Jhon, & thou shalt haue ioye and gladnesse: and many shal re-ioyce at his byrth, for he shal be greate before the LORDE. Wyne and stronge drynke shal he not drynke. And he shalbe fylled with the holy goost, euen in his mothers wombe.
And many of the children of Israel shal he turne vnto the LORDE their God. And he Mala.3.d Matt.11.b shal go before him in the spirite and power of* Elias, to turne the hertes of ỳ fathers vnto the children, and the vnfaithfull vnto the wyßdome of the righteous, to make the people ready for the LORDE.

B And Zachary sayde vnto the Angel:
Gen.17.c and 18.b Iudic.13.b Wherby shal I knowe this? For I am olde, and my wife well stricken in age. The angell answered, and sayde vnto him: I am Gabriell that stonde before God, and am sent to speake vnto the, and to shewe the these glad tydinges. And beholde, thou shalt be domme, and not able to speake, vntyll the daye 4.Re.7.a that this come to passe, because thou hast *not beleued my wordes, which shalbe ful-fylled in their season.

And the people wayted for Zachary, and marueyled, that he taried so longe in the tēple. And whā he wēte out, he coude not speake vnto them. And they perceaued, that he had sene a vision in the tēple. And he beckened vnto them, and remayned speachlesse.

And it fortuned whā the tyme of his office was out, he wente home in to his house.
And after those dayes Elizabeth his wife conceaued, and hyd hir self fyue monethes, & sayde: Thus hath ỳ LORDE done vnto me in ỳ dayes, wherin he hath loked vpō me, to take awaye from me my rebuke amōge men.

Matt.1.c And in the sixte moneth was the angell Gabriel sent from God in to a cite of Galile, called Nazareth, vnto a virgin that was spoused vnto a man, whose name was Joseph, of the house of Dauid, and the virgins name was Mary. And the angell came in vnto her, and sayde: Hayle thou full of grace, the LORDE is with the: blessed art thou amonge wemen.

C Whā she sawe him, she was abaßhed at his sayenge, and thought: What maner of Esa.7.c Mat.1.c salutacion is this? And the angell sayde vnto her: Feare not Mary, for thou hast foūde grace with God. Beholde, thou shalt cōceā-ue in thy wōbe, & beare a sonne* & shalt call Luc.
his name Jesus: he shalbe greāte, & shalbe called ỳ sonne of the Hyest. And the LORDE God shal geue him ỳ seate of Dauid his fa- Ba.
ther, & he shal be kinge ouer ỳ house of Jacob for euer* & there shalbe no ende of his kyng- Dan.
dome. Then sayde Mary vnto the angell: Ma.
How shal this be, seinge I knowe not a mā? Ma.
The angell answered, & sayde vnto her: The holy goost shal come vpon the, & the power of the Hyest shal ouershadowe the. Therfore that Holy also which shalbe borne (of the) shalbe called the sonne of God. And beholde, thy cosen Elizabeth she also hath cōceaued a sonne in hir olde age, & this is the sixte mo-neth of her, which is reported to be barē: Ma.
for with God is nothinge vnpossyble. And Ma- Lu.
ry sayde: Beholde, here am I the handmadē of the LORDE: be it vnto me, as thou hast sayde. And the angell departed frō her.

And Mary arose in those dayes, and wen te in to the moūtaynes with haist, into* ỳ cite of Jewry, and came in to ỳ house of Zachary, and saluted Elizabeth. And it forwar-ned as Elizabeth herde the salutacion of Mary, the babe sprange in hir wombe. And Elizabeth was fylled with the holy goost, & cried loude, and sayde: Blessed art thou amō ge wemen, and blessed is the frute of ỳ wom be. And how happeneth this to me, that ỳ mother of my LORDE commeth vnto me?
Beholde, whan I herde the voyce of thy salutacion, the babe sprange in my wombe w ioye, And blessed art thou that hast beleued, for ỳ thinges shalbe performed, which we re tolde ỳ frō ỳ LORDE. And Mary sayde:

My soule magnifieth the LORDE.
And my spirite reioyseth ī God my Sauiour.
For he hath loked vpō the lowe degre of his handmayde. Beholde, frō hence forth shal all generacions call me blessed.
For he that is Mighty, hath done greate thinges vnto me, and holy is his name.
And his mercy endureth thorow out all generacions, vpon them that feare him.
He sheweth strength with his arme, and scatreth them that are proude in the ymagi nacion of their hert.
He putteth downe the mightie from the seate, and exalteth them of lowe degre.
He fylleth the hongrie with good thin-ges, and letteth the riche go emptye.
He remēbreth mercy, and helpeth vp his seruaunt Israel.
Euen as he promysed vnto oure fathers,
*Abraham and to his sede for euer.

And Mary abode with her aboute thre monethes, and then returned home agayne.

And Elizabethes tyme was come, that she shulde be delyuered, & she brought forth a sonne. And hir neghbours and kynsfolkes herde, ỹ the LORDE had shewed greate mercy vpō her, & they reioysed with her. And it fortuned vpon the eight daye, they came to circumcyse ỹ childe, and called him Zachary after his father: And his mother answered, and sayde: Nay, but he shalbe called Jhon. And they sayde vnto her: There is none in ỹ kynne, ỹ is so called. And they made signes vnto his father, how he wolde haue him called. And he axed for wrytinge tables, wrote & sayde: His name is Jhon. And they marueyled all. And immediatly was his mouth and his tōge opened, and he spake, & praysed God. And there came a feare vpon all their neghbours. And all this acte was noysed abrode thorow out all the hill countre of Jewry: And all they ỹ herde therof, toke it to hert, and sayde: What maner of man wil this childe be? For the hande of the LORDE was with him.

And Zachary his father was fylled with the holy goost, and prophecied, and sayde:

Blessed be ỹ LORDE God of Israel, for he hath vysited and redemed his people.

And hath set vp an * horne of saluacion in the house of his seruaunt Dauid.

Euen as he promysed afore tyme, by the mouth of his holy prophetes.

That he wolde delyuer vs frō oure enemies, & from ỹ hande of all soch as hate vs.

And ỹ he wolde shewe mercy vnto oure fathers, & thynke vpō his holy * couenaūt.

Euen the ooth ỹ he sware vnto oure father Abraham, for to geue vs.

* That we delyuered out of ỹ hāde of ō enemies, might serue him without feare all the dayes of oure life, in soch holynes and righteousnes as is accepte before him.

And thou childe shalt be called a prophet of the hyest: for thou shalt go before ỹ LORDE, to prepare his wayes.

And to gene knowlege of saluacion vnto his people, for the remyssion of their synnes.

Thorow the tender mercy of oure God, wherby the daye spryngе from an hye hath vysited vs.

That he might geue light vnto them ỹ sytin darckneſſe and shadowe of death, and to gyde oure fete in to the waye of peace.

And the childe grew, and waxed stronge in spirite, and was in the wyldernes, tyll the tyme that he shulde shewe him self vnto the people of Israel.

The II. Chapter.

IT fortuned at the same tyme, that there wēte out a cōmaundement frō Augustus the Emperoure, that the whole worlde shulde be taxed. And this taxynge was the first that was executed, whan Syrenius was leftenaunt in Siria. And they wente all, every one to his owne cite to be taxed. Then Joseph gat him vp also frō Galile, out of the cite of Nazareth, in to Jewry, to ỹ cite of Dauid, which is called Bethleem, (because he was of ỹ house and lynage of Dauid) that he might be taxed wt Mary his spoused wife, which was wt childe. 1. Reg. 15. 16. 2. 20. b

And it fortuned whyle they were there, ỹ tyme was come, that she shulde be delyuered. And she brought forth hir first begotte sonne, & wrapped him in swadlinge clothes, and layed him in a maunger: for they had els no rowme in the ynne. Mat. 1. c

And there were in ỹ same region shepherdes in the felde by the foldes, and watchinge their flocke by night. And beholde, ỹ angell of the LORDE stode by thē, and ỹ bughtnes of the LORDE shone rounde aboute them, and they were sore afrayed. And the angell sayde vnto them: Be not afrayed. Beholde, I brynge you tydīges of greate ioye, which shall happen vnto all people: for vnto you this daye is borne ỹ Sauioure, euē Chriſt ỹ LORDE, in the cite of Dauid. And take this for a token: Ye shal fynde the babe swadled, and layed in a maunger. And straight waye there was by the angell a multitude of heauenly hoostes, which praysed God, and sayde: Glory be vnto God an hye, & peace vpon earth, and vnto men a good wyll.

And it fortuned whā the angels were gone from thē in to heauē, the shepherdes sayde one to another: let vs go now euen vnto Bethleem, and se this thinge that is happened, which ỹ LORDE hath shewed vnto vs. And they came wt haist, & founde both Mary and Joseph, & the babe layed in ỹ maunger. And whan they had sene it, they publisshed abrode the sayenge, ỹ was tolde thē of this childe. And all they that herde it, wondred at the wordes, which the shepherdes had tolde them. But Mary kepte all these sayenges, and pondred them in hir hert. And the shepherdes returned, prayſinge and laudinge God, for all that they had herde and sene, euen as it was tolde them.

And whan eight dayes were ended, that the childe shulde be circumcysed, his name was called Jesus, * which was named of ỹ angell, before he was conceaued in his mothers wombe. Gen. 17. b * Luc. 1. c

D And whā the dayes of their purificacion Leuit.12.b after the lawe of Moses, were come, they 1.Reg.1.d brought him to Jerusalē, that they might presēt him vnto the LORDE (As it is wryt
*Exo.13.a ten in the lawe of the LORDE: *Every mā Num.3.c childe that firste openeth the Matrix, shalbe called holy vnto ỳ LORDE) and that they might geue the offeryng, as it is wryttē in the lawe of the LORDE (namely) a payre of turtle doues, or two yonge pigeons.

And beholde, there was a man (at Jeru-salē) whose name was Symeon, and the same mā was iust, and feared God, and lōged for the consolacion of Israel, and the holy goost was in him. And an answere was geuē him of the holy goost, that he shulde not se death, before he had sene ỳ LORDES Christ.
And he came by inspiracion in to the tēple.

E And whan the elders brought the childe
Jesus in to the temple, to do for him after ỳ Leui.12.b custome of the *lawe, then toke he him vp in his armes, and praysed God, and sayde: LORDE, now lettest thou thy seruaūt departe in peace, accordinge to thy promesse.
For myne eyes haue sene thy Sauioure, whō thou hast prepared before all people.
Esa.49.b *A light for the lightenynge of the Hey-Act.13.e thē, & for the prayse of ỳ people of Israel.

And his father and mother marueyled at the thinges that were spokē of him. And Symeon blessed them, and sayde vnto Mary his mother: Beholde, this (childe) shalbe set to a fall, and to an vprysinge agayne of many in Israel, and for a token, which shal-be spokē agaynst. And the swerde shal pearse thy soule, that the thoughtes of many her-tes maye be opened.

A And there was a prophetisse, one Anna, the doughter of Phanuel of the tribe of Aser, which was of a greate age, and had ly-ued seuen yeares with hir husbāde from hir virginite, & had now bene a wedowe aboute foure score & foure yeares, which came neuer frō the tēple, seruynge God wt fastynge and prayenge, daye and night: the same came forth also the same houre, and praysed the LORDE, and spake of him vnto all that loked for the redempcion at Jerusalem.

And whan they had performed all acor-dinge to the lawe of the LORDE, thy returned ī to Galile, to their owne cite Nazareth.
And the childe grewe, and wexed stronge in spirite, full of wysdome, & the grace of God was with him.

And his elders wente to Jerusalem euery yeare at the feast of Easter. And whan he was twolue yeare olde, they wente vp to Jerusalem, * after the custome of the feast. And whan they had fulfilled the dayes, and were gone home agayne, the childe Jesus abode styll at Jerusalem. And his elders knewe it not, but thought he had bene in the company, and they came a dayes iourney, and sought hī amōge their kynsfolkes & acquātaunce. And whā they founde him not, they wēte agayne to Jerusalē, and sought him.

And it fortuned after thre dayes, ỳ they founde him in the temple, syttinge amonge the teachers, hearynge thē, and oppo-synge them. And all they that herde him, wodred at his vnderstondynge and answeres. And whan they sawe him, they were astonyed.
And his mother sayde vnto him: My sonne, why hast thou done this vnto vs? Beholde, thy father and I haue sought the sor-wynge. And he sayde vnto them: *What is it, that ye haue sought me? Wyst ye not, ỳ I must go aboute my fathers busynes? And they *vnderstode not the sayenge ỳ he spake vnto them. And he wente downe with thē, and came to Nazareth, and was obediēt vnto them. And his mother kepte all these wor-des in hir hert. And Jesus increased in wysdome, age and fauoure with God and men.

The III. Chapter.

IN the fifteenth yeare of the raigne of Tiberius the Emperoure, whā Pontius Pilate was lefte naūt in Jewry, and Herode one of the foure princes in Ga-lile, and his brother Philippe one of the fou-re prynces in Iturea, & in the coastes of Traconites, and Lysanias one of the foure princes of Abilene, when Hannas and Caiphas were hye prestes, thē came ỳ worde of God vnto Jhon the sonne of Zachary in the wyldernes. And he came in to all ỳ coastes aboute Jordan, and preached the baptyme of re-pētaunce for the remyssion of synnes. As is wryttē in ỳ boke of ỳ sayenges of Esay the prophet, which sayeth: The voyce of a cryer in the wyldernes: prepare the waye of the LORDE, and make hys pathes straight.
Euery valley shalbe fylled, and euery moutayne & hyll shalbe brought lowe. And what so is croked, shalbe made straight: and what rough is, shalbe made smooth, and all flesh shal se the Sauioure of God.

Then sayde he vnto the people, ỳ went out to be baptysed of him: Ye generacion of vipers, who hath certified you, that ye shal escape ỳ wrath to come? Take hede, bringe forth due frutes of repētaūce, & begynne not to saye: We haue Abrahā to o' father. For I saye vnto you: God is able of these stones

rayse vp children vnto Abraham. The axe is put vnto the tre allready: so that euery tre which bryngeth not forth good frute, shalbe hewen downe, and cast in to the fyre. And the people axed him, and sayde: What shal we do then? He answered, & sayde vnto thē: He that hath two coates, let him parte with him yͭ hath none: and he that hath meate, let him do likewyse.

The publicans came also, to be baptysed and sayde vnto him: Master, what shal we do? He sayde vnto them: Requyre nomore, then is appoynted you. Then yͤ soudyours axed him likewyse, and sayde: What shal we do then? And he sayde vnto thē: Do no man violence ner wronge, and be content with youre wages.

But whan the people were in a doute, & thought all in their hertes, whether he were Christ, Jhon answered, and sayde vnto thē all: I baptyse you with water, but after me there cōmeth one stronger thē I, whose shue lachet I am not worthy to lowse: he shal baptyse you with the holy goost and with fyre. Whose fanne is in his hande, and he shal pourge his floore, and shal gather yͤ wheate in to his barne, and shal burne the chaffe with vnquencheable fyre. And many other thynges more exorted he, & preached vnto the people.

But Herode the Tetrarcha (whā he was rebuked of him because of Herodias his brothers wife, and for all the euels that Herode dyd) besydes all this he layed Jhō in preson.

And it fortuned whan all the people receaued baptyme, and whan Jesus also was baptysed and prayed, that heauen opened, and the holy goost came downe in a bodely shappe like a doue vpon him. And out of heauen there came a voyce, which sayde: Thou art my deare sonne, in whō I delyte.

in those dayes ate he nothinge. And whan they were ended, he hongred afterwarde.
And the deuell sayde vnto him: Yf thou be ỳ sonne of God, cōmaunde this stone, ỳ it be

It is wrytten: * Man shal not lyue by bred onely, but by euery worde of God. And ỳ de-uell toke him vp into an hye moūtayne, and shewed him all the kyngdomes of ỳ whole worlde in ỳ twinckelinge of an eye, & sayde vnto him: All this power wil I geue vnto the, and the glory therof, for it is geuē ouer vnto me, and I geue it, to whom I wil. Yf thou now wilt worshippe me, they shal all be thine. Jesus answered him, and sayde:
Deut. 6. c Auoyde fro me thou Satan. It is wrytten:
Thou shalt worshippe the LORDE thy God, and him onely shalt thou serue.

B And he caried him to Jerusalem, and set him vpon a pynnacle of the temple, and say de vnto him: Yf thou be ỳ sonne of God, cast thy self downe from hence. For it is wryttē:

sayde vnto him: It is sayde: Thou shalt not tempte the LORDE thy God. And whan ỳ deuell had ended all the temptacions, he departed from him for a seāson.

Mat. 4. b Marc. 1. c And Jesus came agayne in the power of the spirite into Galile. And the fame of him was noysed thorow out all ỳ region rounde aboute. And he taught in their synagoges, and was commended of euery man.

Mat. 13. g Marc. 6. a And he came vnto Nazareth where he was noursed, and as his custome was, he wēt in to the synagoge vpon ỳ Sabbath, and Esa. 8. b stode vp for to rede. Then was there delyue red him the * boke of ỳ prophet Esay. And Esa. 61. a whan he had turned ouer the boke, he foun-de the place where it is wrytten: The spirite of the LORDE is with me, because he hath anoynted me: to preach the Gospell vnto ỳ poore hath he sent me: to heale the broken harted: to preach delyueraūce to the capty-ue, and sight to the blynde: and frely to set at liberty them that are brused: and to preach the acceptable yeare of the LORDE.

And whan he had closed the boke, hega C ue it agayne to ỳ mynister, & sat him downe.
And the eyes of all that were in the synago ge, were fastened on him. And he begāne to saye vnto them: This daye is this scripture fulfilled in youre eares. * And they all gaue Ma him wytnesse, and wōdred at the gracious Ma wordes, which proceaded out of his mouth, and they saide: Is not this Josephs sonne? Luk.

And he sayde vnto them: Doutles ye wyl saye vnto me this prouerbe: Phisician, heale thyself. For how greate thinges haue we her de done at Capernaū? Do the same here also in thine owne countre. But he saide: Verely Ma I saye vnto you: There is no prophet accep Mar ted in his owne countre. Neuertheles of a Luk trueth I saye vnto you: * There were many D wedowes in Israel in ỳ tyme of Elias, whā the heauē was shut thre yeares and sire mo nethes, and whan there was a greate derth in all the lande: & to none of thē was Elias sent, but onely vnto Sarepta of the Sydonyans to a wedowe. * And many lepers we 4.
re there in Israel in the tyme of Eliseus ỳ prophet, and none of thē was clensed, saue onely Naaman of Syria.

And as many as were in the synagoge, D
whā they herde ỳ, were fylled with wrath.
And they rose vp, and thrust him out of the cite, and led him vp to the edge of the hyll wher vpō their cite was buylded, that they might cast him downe headlynge. But he went his waye euen thorow the myddest of them, and came to Capernaum a cite of Ma Galile, and taught thē vpō the Sabbathes. Mar
And they wondred at his doctryne, * for his Luk preachinge was with power.

And in the Synagoge there was a man possessed with a foule deuell, & he cryed lou de, and sayde: Let me alone, what haue we to do wt thee thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art Ma thou come to destroye vs? I knowe ỳ who thou art, euen the Holy of God. And Jesus rebuked him and sayde: holde thy tūge, and departe out of him. And the deuell threw hī in the myddest amonge them, and departed from him, and dyd him no harme. And the re came a feare ouer thē all, and they spake amonge them selues, and sayde: What maner of thinge is this? He commaundeth the foule spirites with auctorite and power, and they departe out. And ỳ fame of him was noysed thorow out all the places of ỳ coun tre rounde aboute.

And he rose vp out of the synagoge, and Ma came in to Symons house. And Symōs mo ther in lawe was take with a greate feuer, & they prayde him for her. And he wēte vnto her, & cōmaunded the feuer. And it left her, & imediatly she rose vp, & mynistred vnto thē.

And whan the Sonne was gone downe all they that had sicke of dyuerse diseases, brought thē vnto him. And he layed his hādes vpon euery one of thē, & made thē whole. The deuels also departed out of many, crīege and sayenge: Thou art Christ the sonne of God. And he rebuked thē, & suffred them not to speake: for they knewe that he was Christ. But whā it was daye, he wēte out into a deserte place. And the people sought hī, and came vnto him, & kepte him, ỳ he shulde not departe frō thē. But he sayde vnto thē: I must preach the Gospell of ỳ kyngdome of God to other cities also: for there to am I sent. And he preached in the synagoges of Galile.

The V. Chapter.

IT came to passe, ỳ the people preassed vpon him to heare the worde of God, and he stode by the lake of Genazereth, and sawe two shippes stōde by ỳ lake syde, but ỳ fishers were gone out of thē, and had waßhed their nettes. Then wente he into one of the shippes, which was Symons, and prayed him, ỳ he wolde thrust out a litle frō the londe. And he sat him downe, and taught the people out of ỳ shippe.

And whan he had left of talkynge, he sayde vnto Symon: Launch out into the depe & let slyppe yō nettes, to make a draught. And Symon answered and sayde vnto him: Master, we haue laboured all ỳ night, and taken nothinge. But vpō thy worde, I wil lowse forth the nett. And whā they had so done, they toke a greate multitude of fißhes, & their net brake. And they made sygnes to their felowes which were in ỳ other shippe, ỳ they shulde come, & helpe thē. And they came, & filled both the shippes full, so ỳ they soncke. Whan Symon Peter sawe ỳ, he fell downe at Jesus knees, & sayde: LORDE, go frome, for I am a synfull man: For he was astonnyed and all that were wt him, at this draught of fishes which they toke, and so were James and Jhon also the sonnes of Zebede, which were Symons companyons. And Jesus sayde vnto Symō: Feare not, for frō hence forth thou shalt take men. And they brought the shippes to londe, and left all, and folowed him.

And it fortuned as he was in a cite, behold, there was a man full of leprosy. Whā he sawe Jesus, he fell vpō his face, & besought him, and sayde: LORDE, yf thou wilt, thou canst make me cleane. And he stretched out his hāde, and touched him, and sayde: I wil, be thou cleane. And imediatly the leprosy departed from him. And he charged him, ỳ he shulde tell no mā, but go thy waye (sayde he), and shewe thy self vnto ỳ preist, and offre for ỳ clensynge, as Moses cōmaunded, for a witnesse vnto thē. Leui. 14

But ỳ fame of hī wēte out farther abrode, & there came moch people together, to heare him, & to be healed by hī frō their sicknesses. And he departed into the wylderneßes, & gaue him self to prayer.

And it fortuned vpō a daye, ỳ he taught, and there sat ỳ Phariseis and scrybes which were come out of all the townes of Galile, and Jewry, and frō Jerusalē, and the power of the LORDE wēte frō him, & healed euery man. And beholde, certayne men brought vpon a bed, a man ỳ had ỳ palsye, and they sought how they might bringe him in, and laye him before him. And whan they coude not fynde by what waye they might bringe him in (for ỳ people) they clymmed vp to ỳ toppe of the house, & let him downe thorow the tylinge wt the bed, amōge thē before Jesus. And whan he sawe their faith, he sayde vnto hī: Man, ỳ synnes are forgeuē ỳ. And the scrybes and pharyses begāne to thynke, & saide: What is he this, ỳ speaketh blasphemy. Who cā forgeue synnes, but onely God? Esa. 43.d and 44.

Neuertheles whā Jesus perceaued their thoughtes, he answered, and saide vnto thē: What thynke ye in yō hertes? Whether is easier to saye: Thy synnes are forgeuē ỳ, Or to saye: Aryse, and walke? But that ye maye knowe, that the sonne of mā hath power to forgeue synnes vpon earth, he sayde vnto ỳ sicke of the palsie: I saye vnto ỳ: Aryse, take vp ỳ bed, and go home. And imediatly he rose vp before thē, & toke vp the bed ỳ he had lyen vpō, and wēte home, and prayseḋ God. And they were all astonnyed, and gaue God ỳ prayse, and were fylled wt feare, and sayde: We haue sene maruelous thynges to daye. Mat. 9.a Marc. 2.a Iohā. 5.a

And afterwarde he wēte out, and sawe a publican named Leui, syttinge at ỳ receate of custome, & he sayde vnto him: Folowe me. And he left all, rose vp, & folowed him. And Leui made hī a greate feast i his house. And many publicans & other sat wt hī at ỳ table. And the scrybes and Pharyses murmured agaynst his disciples, & saide: Wherfore do ye eate & drynke wt publicās & synners? And Jesus answered, & sayde vnto thē: They whole nede not ỳ phisician, but they ỳ are sicke. I am not come to call ỳ righteous, but sinners to repentaūce. Mat. 9.a Marc. 2.b Luc. 15.a Luc. 7.e and 15.a 1. Tim. 1.

But they sayde vnto him: Wherfore fast ỹ disciples of Jhō so of, & praye so moch, & the disciples of the pharises likewyse, but ỹ disciples eate and drynke? And he sayde vnto them: Can ye make the weddynge childrē fast, so lōge as the brydegrome is with thē? But the tyme wil come that the brydegrome shalbe takē frō thē, then shal they fast.

And he sayde vnto them a symilitude: No man putteth a pece of new cloth in to an olde garment: for els he renteth the new, and the pece of the new agreeth not with the olde. And no man putteth new wyne in to olde vessels, for els ỹ new wyne barsteth the vessels, and runneth out it self, and the vessels perishe. But new wyne must be put in to new vessels, and so are they both preserued. And there is no man that dryncketh the olde, and wolde straight waye haue the new, for he sayeth: the olde is pleasaunter.

The VI. Chapter.

Marc.2.c

AND it fortuned vpon an after prynci pall Sabbath, that he wente thorow the corne felde, & his disciples plucked the eares of corne, and ate, and rubbed thē with their hādes. But certayne of the pharises sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye that, which is not laufull to do vpon the Sabbath? And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto thē: Haue ye not red what Dauid dyd, whā he was hongrie, and they that were with him, how he wente in to the house of God, and toke the * shewbred, and ate, and gaue also vnto them that were with him, which was laufull for no man to eate, but for the prestes onely? And he sayde vnto them: The sonne of man is LORDE euen ouer the Sabbath.

1.Reg.21.c
Exo 25.c

Mat.12.b
Marc.3.a

It came to passe vpō another Sabbath, that he wēte in to the synagoge, and taught and there was a man, whose right hande was wythred. But ỹ scrybes and pharises marked him, whether he wolde heale vpon the Sabbath, that they might fynde an occasion agaynst him. Neuertheles he perceaued their thoughtes, and sayde vnto the mā with the wythred hande: Aryse, and steppe forth here. And he arose, and stepped forth. Then sayde Jesus vnto thē: I wil axe you a question: What is it laufull to do vpō the Sabbath? good, or euell? to saue life, or to destroye it? And he behelde thē all rounde about, and sayde vnto the mā: Stretch out thine hande. And he dyd so. Then was his hande restored him to right, euen as whole as the other. But they were fylled full of madnes, and commoned together, what they wolde do to him.

And it fortuned at the same tyme, that he wente out in to a mountayne to praye, and continued all night in prayer to God. And whā it was daye, he called his disciples, and chose twolue of them, whom he called also apostles. Symon, whom he named Peter, and Andrew his brother, James and Jhon, Phylippe and Bartylmew, Mathew and Thomas, James the sonne of Alpheus, Symon called Zelotes, Judas the sonne of James, and Judas Iscarioth, which was the traytoure.

And he wente downe with them, and stode vpon a playne in the felde, and the company of his disciples, and a greate multitude of people, from all Jewry, and Jerusalē, and from Tyre and Sydon by the see coast, which were come to heare him, and to be healed of their diseases, and they that were vexed with foule spretes, were healed. And all the people sought to touch him, for there wente vertue frō him, and healed thē all.

And he lift vp his eyes vpō his disciples, and sayde: Blessed are ye poore, for yours is the kyngdome of God. Blessed are ye that honger here, for ye shalbe satisfied. Blessed are ye ỹ wepe here, for ye shall laugh. Blessed are ye, whan men hate you, and put you out of their cōpanyes, and reuyle you, and cast out youre name as an euell thinge, for the sonne of mans sake. Reioyse ye then, and be glad: for beholde, youre rewarde is greate in heauen. Euen thus dyd their fathers vnto the prophetes also.

But two vnto you riche, for ye haue youre cōsolacion allready. Wo vnto you that are full, for ye shal honger. Wo vnto you that laugh here, for ye shal wepe and wayle. Wo vnto you whan euery man prayseth you, Euen so dyd their fathers vnto the falsepe phetes also.

But I saye vnto you that heare: Loue youre enemies: do good vnto them that hate you: blesse them that curse you: praye for them that wrongfully trouble you. And who so smyteth the on the one cheke, offre him ỹ other also. And who so taketh awaye thy cloake, forbyd him not ỹ cote also. Who so euer axeth of the, geue him: and who so taketh awaye thyne, axe it not agayne.

* And as ye wolde that men shulde do vnto you, euen so do ye vnto them likewyse.

And yf ye loue them that loue you, what thāke haue ye therfore? For synners also loue their louers. And yf ye do good for youre good doers, what thanke haue ye therfore? For synners also do euen the same. And yf ye lende vnto them, of whō ye hope to receaue what thāke haue ye therfore? For synners also lende vnto synners, that they maye receaue as moch agayne. But rather loue ye yō enemies, do good, and lende, lokynge for nothinge therof agayne: so shal yō rewarde be greate, and ye shalbe the children of the hyest, for he is kynde, euen to the vnthankfull and to the euell.

Be ye therfore mercifull, as youre father also is mercifull. Judge not, and ye shal not be iudged. Condēpne not, and ye shal not be condempned. Forgeue, and ye shal be forgeuen. Geue, and to you shalbe geuē. A good measure, pressed downe, shaken together, & rūnynge ouer, shal mē geue into youre bosōme. For with what measure ye meete, with the same shal it be measured to you agayne.

And he sayde a symilitude vnto thē: Can the blynde shewe the waye to ỳ blynde? Do they not both thē fall in to the dyche? The disciple is not aboue his master. But whoso euer is perfecte, ỳ same shalbe as his master. But why seist thou a moote ī thy brothers eye, and considerest not the beame, that is in thine awne eye? Or how canst thou saye vnto thy brother: holde styll brother, I wil plucke ỳ moate out of thyne eye, and thou thy self seist not ỳ beame in thine awne eye? Thou ypocryte, fyrst cast the beame out of thine awne eye, and thē shalt thou se clearly to pull the moote out of thy brothers eye.

For it is no good tre, ỳ bryngeth forth euell frute: and no euell tre ỳ bringeth forth good frute. Euery tre is knowne by his frute. For mē gather not fygges of thornes, ner grapes of bußhes. A good mā out of ỳ good treasure of his hert, bryngeth forth ỳ which is good: and an euell mā out of the euell treasure of his hert, bryngeth forth that which is euell. For of the abundaunce of the hert, the mouth speaketh.

But why call ye me LORDE LORDE, & do not that I saye vnto you? * Who so euer commeth vnto me, and heareth my wordes and doth thē, I wil shewe you to whom he is lyke. He is like vnto a man which buylded an house, and digged depe, and layed ỳ foundacion vpon a rocke. Whan the waters came, the floudes bett vpon that house, and coulde not moue it: for it was grouded vpō ỳ rocke. But he that heareth and doth not, is like vnto a man that buylded his house vpō the earth without foundacion, and the stremes bett vpō it, and it fell immediatly, and greate was the fall of that house.

The VII. Chapter.

A Whan he had ended his talkynge vnto the people, he wente in to Capernaum: and a captaynes seruaunt laye deed sicke, whom he loued. Whā he herde of Jesus, he sent the elders of the Jewes vnto him, and prayed him, that he wolde come, and make his seruaunt whole. But whā they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, & sayde: He is worthy ỳ thou shuldest shewe this for him, for he loueth oure people, & hath buylded vs ỳ synagoge. And Jesus wente wt them.

Now whan they were not farre from ỳ house, ỳ captaine sent frēdes vnto hī, saiēge vnto him: O LORDE, trouble not thy self, I am not worthy, ỳ thou shuldest enter vnder my rofe, and therfore I thought not my self worthy to come to ỳ: but speake ỳ worde, & my seruaūt shalbe whole. For I my self also am a mā, subiecte to the hygher auctorite, & haue soudyers vnder me. And I saye vnto one: Go, & he goeth. And to another: Come, & he cōmeth. And to my seruaūt: Do this, & he doeth it. Whan Jesus herde ỳ, he marueyled at hī, & turned him aboute, & sayde vnto ỳ people ỳ folowed hī: I saye vnto you: So greate faith haue I not founde, no not in Jsrael. And whā they that were sent, came homeagayne, they founde the seruaūt that was sicke, whole.

B And it fortuned afterwarde, that he wēte in to a cite called Naim, and many of his disciples wente with him, and moch people. Whan he came nye to the gate of the cite, beholde, there was caried out one deed, which was the onely sonne of his mother, and she was a wyddowe, and moch people of the cite wente with her. And whan the LORDE sawe her, he had cōpassion on her, and sayde vnto her: Wepe not. And he came nye, and touched the Coffyn. And they that bare him, stode styll. And he sayde: Yonge man, I saye vnto the: Aryse. And * the deed sat vp, and beganne to speake. And he delyuered him vnto his mother. And there came a feare on them all, and they praysed God, and sayde: * A greate prophet is rysen amonge vs, and God hath vysited his people. And this fame of him was noysed in all Jewry, and in all ỳ regions that laye rounde aboute.

And the disciples of Jhō shewed him of all these thinges. And Jhon called vnto him two of his disciples, and sent thē vnto Jesus sayenge: Art thou he that shal come, or shal we loke for another? Whan the men came to him, they sayde: Jhon ỳ baptist hath sent vs vnto the, sayenge: Art thou he that shal come, or shal we loke for another?

C At the same houre healed he many from sicknesses & plages, and frō euell spretes, and vnto many that were blynde, he gaue sight. And Jesus answered, & sayde vnto thē: Go yō waye, shewe Jhon, what ye haue sene & herde. The blynde se, the halt go, the lepers are clensed, the deaf heare, the deed aryse, *the Gospell is preached vnto ỳ poore, and blessed is he, that is not offended at me.

Whan the messaungers of Jhō were departed, Jesus begāne to speake vnto ỳ people cōcernynge Jhō: What are ye gone out for to se in ỳ wylderneesse? Wolde ye se a rede, that is shakē wt the wynde? Or what are ye gone out for to se? Wolde ye se a mā clothed in soft rayment? Beholde, they that are gorgiously arayed, & lyue delycately, are in kynges courtes. Or what are ye gone out for to se? Wolde ye se a prophet? Yee I saye vnto you: one that is more thē a prophet. This is he, of whom it is wrytten: Beholde, I sende my messaunger before ỳ face, wch shal prepare thy waye before the. For I saye vnto you: Amonge thē ỳ are borne of wemē, there is no greater prophet thē Jhon the baptist. Notwithstondynge he that is lesse in the kyngdome of God, is greater then he.

And all the people that herde him, and ỳ publicans, iustified God, and were baptysed with the baptyme of Jhon. But the Pharises and scrybes despysed ỳ councell of God against thē selues, & were not baptised of hī.

D But the LORDE saide: Where vnto shal I licken the men of this generacion? And whom are they like? They are like vnto childrē which syt in the market, and crye one to another, and saye: We haue pyped vnto you, and ye haue not daunsed: we haue mourned vnto you, & ye haue not wepte. For Jhon ỳ baptist came, and *ate no bred, and drāke no wyne, and ye saye: he hath ỳ deuell. The sonne of man is come, eateth and drynketh, & ye saye: This man is a glutton and a wyne bebber, a frende of publicans and synners. And wyßdome is iustified of all hir children.

And one of the Pharises desyred him, ỳ he wolde eate with him. And he wente in to the Pharises house, and sat him downe at ỳ table. *And beholde, there was in the cite a wemā, which was a synner. Whē she knewe that Jesus sat at the table in the Pharises house, she brought a boxe with oyntment, & stode behynde at his fete, and wepte, and began to water his fete with teares, and dryye thē wt the hayres of hir heade, and kyssed his fete, & anoynted thē with oyntmēt.

But whan the Pharise which had called him sawe that, he spake within himself, and sayde: Yf this mā were a prophet, he wolde knowe who, & what maner of woman this is that toucheth him, for she is a synner. And Jesus answered, and saide vnto him: Symō, I haue somewhat to saye vnto the. He sayde: Master saye on. A certayne lender had two detters, the one ought fyue hundreth pens, the other fifti: but whan they had nothinge to paye, he forgaue thē both. Tell me which of them wyl loue him most? Symon answered, and sayde: He, (I suppose) to whō he forgaue most. Then sayde he vnto him: Thou hast iudged right.

And he turned him to the woman, and sayde vnto Symō: Seist thou this womā? I am come in to thine house, thou hast geuē me no water vnto my fete, but she hath wtred my fete with teares, and dryed thē wt the hayres of hir heade: Thou hast geuē me no kysse, but she (sens the tyme she came in) hath not ceassed to kysse my fete: Thou hast not anointed my heade wt oyle, but she hath anoynted my heade with oyntment. Therfore I saye vnto the: Many synnes are forgeuen her, for she hath loued moch. But vnto whom lesse is forgeuen, the same loueth the lesse.

And he sayde vnto her: Thy synnes are forgeuen the. Then they that sat at the table with him, beganne to saye within themselues: What is he this, that forgeueth synnes also? But he sayde vnto the woman: Thy faith hath saued the, Go thy waye in peace.

The VIII. Chapter.

AND it fortuned afterwarde, that he wente thorow the cities and townes, and preached, and shewed ỳ Gospell of the kyngdome of God, and the twolue wt him. And certayne wemen also, whō he had healed frō euell spretes and infirmities: Namely, Mary *which is called Magdalene, out of whom wente seuen deuels, and Joanna ỳ wife of Chusa Herodes steward, and Susanna, and many other, that myniſtred vnto them of their substaunce.

Now whā moch people were gathered together, and haisted vnto him out of the cities, he spake by a symilitude: There wente out a sower to sowe his sede, & whyle he was sowynge, some fell by the waye syde, and was troddē vnder fote, and the foules of the greate it vp. And some fell on stone, and whan it was spronge vp, it wythred awaye; because it had no moystnesse. And some fell amonge thornes, and the thornes sprange vp with it, and choked it. And some fell vpō a good grounde, and sprange vp, and bare frute an hundreth folde. Whā he sayde this he cryed: Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare.

B And his disciples axed him, and sayde: What symilitude is this? And he sayde: Vnto you it is geuē, to knowe the mysteryes of the kyngdome of God, but vnto the other in parables, ỹ though they se it, they shulde not se it, and though they heare it, they shulde not vnderstonde.

This is the parable: The sede is the worde of God: As for those that are by ỹ waye syde, they are they that heare it, afterwarde commeth the deuell, and taketh awaye the worde out of their hertes, that they shulde not beleue, and be saued. But they on ỹ stone, are soch as whan they heare it, receaue the worde with ioye, and these haue no rote: they beleue for a whyle, and in the tyme of temptacion they fall awaye. As for it that fel amonge the thornes, are soch as heare it, and go forth amonge the cares, riches and volupteousnesses of this life, and are choked and bringe forth no frute. But that on the good grounde, are they that heare the worde, and kepe it in a pure good hert, and bringe forth frute in pacience.

No man lighteth a cādell, and couereth it with a vessell, or putteth it vnder a table, but setteth it vpon a candelsticke, that soch as go in may se light. For there is nothinge hyd, that shal not be openly shewed: and there is nothinge secrete, that shal not be knowne, and come to light. Take hede therfore how ye heare. * For who so hath, vnto him shalbe geuē: but who so hath not, from him shalbe taken awaye, euē the same that he thynketh to haue.

C There wente vnto him his mother and his brethren, and coude not come at him for the people. And it was tolde him. Thy mother and thy brethren stonde without, and wolde se the. But he answered, & sayde vnto thē: My mother and my brethren are these, which heare the worde of God, and do it.

And it fortuned vpon a certayne daye, ỹ he wente in to a shippe, and his disciples wt him, & he sayde vnto thē: Let vs passe ouer to the other syde of ỹ lake. And they thrust of frō the lōde. And as they sayled, he slepte. And there came a stoume of wynde vpon ỹ lake, and the wawes fell vpon thē, and they stode in greate ioperdy. Then wēte they vnto him, and waked him vp, & sayde: Master master, we perishe. Then he arose, and rebuked the wynde, and the tēpest of water, and they ceassed, and it waxed calme. But he sayde vnto thē: Where is youre faith? Neuertheles they were afrayed, and wōdred, and sayde one to another: What is he this? For he cōmaundeth the wyndes and the water, and they are obedient vnto him. And they sayled forth in to the countre of the Gadarenites, which is ouer agaynst Galile. Mat.8.d Marc.5.a

And whan he wente out to londe, there met him out of ỹ cite a mā, which had a deuell longe tyme, & ware no clothes, & taried in no house, but in the graues. Neuertheles whā he sawe Jesus, he cried, and fell downe before him, and cried loude, & sayde: What haue I to do with the Jesus, thou sonne of the hyest God? I beseke the, that thou wilt not tormēte me. For he cōmaunded the foule spriete, that he shulde departe out of the mā, for he had plaged hī a lōge season. And he was bounde with cheynes, and kepte in fetters, and he brake the bondes in sonder, and was caried of the deuell in to the wylderneesse. D

And Jesus axed him, and sayde: What is thy name? He sayde: Legion. For there were many deuels entred in to him. And they besought him, that he wolde not cōmaunde thē to go in to the depe. But there was there a greate heerd of swyne fedynge vpon the mountayne, and they besought him, that he wolde geue them leue, to entre in to ỹ same. And he gaue thē leue. Then departed ỹ deuels out of the mā, and entred into the swyne. And the heerd ruȝhed headlynges with a stoume in to the lake, and were drowned. But whā ỹ herdmen sawe what had chaunsed, they fled, and tolde it in the cite and in the vyllagies. Mat.8.d Marc.5.b

E Then wente they out, for to se what was done, and came to Jesus, and founde the mā (out of whom the deuyls were departed) sytinge at Jesus fete, clothed, and in his right mynde, and they were afrayed. And they ỹ had sene it, tolde thē how the possessed was healed. And the whole multitude of ỹ countre of the Gadarenites besought him, that he wolde departe from them, for there was a greate feare come vpon thē. * And he gat him in to ỹ shippe, and turned agayne. And the man out of whō the deuels were departed, besought him, ỹ he might be with him. But Jesus sent him awaye, and sayde: Go Marc.5.b

home agayne, and shewe how greate thinges God hath done for the. And he wente his waye, & preached thorow out all ỹ cite, how greate thinges Jesus had done for hī.

Mat.9.c Marc.5.c And it fortuned whā Jesus came agayne, the people receaued him, for they wayted for him. And beholde, there came a man named Jairus (and he was a ruler of the synagoge) and fell at Jesus fete, & besought him, that he wolde come in to his house. For he had but one doughter (vpon a twolue yeare of age) and she laye at ỹ poynt of death. And as he wente, the people thronged him.

Mat.9.c Marc.5.c ¶ And a womā hauyng the blondyssiue twolue yeares, (which had spent all hir substaunce vpon phisicians, and coude be healed of none) came behynde, & touched the hemme of his garmēt, and immediatly hir yssue of blonde was staunched.

And Jesus sayde: Who hath touched me? But whan they all denyed, Peter sayde, and they that were with him: Master, the people thronge the and thrust the, and thou sayest: Who hath touched me? Jesus saide: Some body hath touched me, for I fele, that there is vertue gone out fro me. But whan the woman sawe that she was not hyd, she came trēblynge, and fell downe before him, and tolde him before all the people, for what cause she had touched him, & how she was healed immediatly. And he sayde vnto her: Doughter, be of good comforte, thy faith hath made the whole, go thy waye in peace.

Mat.9.c Marc.5.d

Whyle he yet spake, there came one frō ỹ ruler of ỹ synagoges house, and sayde vnto him: Thy doughter is deed, disease not the master. Whan Jesus herde that, he answered him, and sayde: Feare not, beleue onely, and she shal be made whole. But whan he came in to the house, he suffred no man to go in, saue Peter, and James and Jhō, and the father and mother of the mayden. They wepte all, and sorowed for her. But he sayde: Wepe not, for she is not deed, but *slepeth. And they laughed hī to scorne, knowynge well that she was deed. But he thrust them all out, and toke her by the hande, and cryed, and sayde: Mayde aryse. And hir spirite came agayne, & she arose straight waye. And he cōmaunded to geue her meate. And hir elders were astonnyed. But he charged them, that they shulde tell no man, what was done.

A Mat.10.a Marc.3.b and 6.a Luc.6.b

The IX. Chapter.

*Mat.10.a Luc.10.a And he called the twolue together, and gaue them power and auctorite ouer all deuels, and that they might heale diseases. And he sent thē out to preach the kyngdome of God, and to heale ỹ sicke, and sayde vnto them: * Ye shal take nothinge with you by the waye, nether staff, ner scryppe, ner bred, ner money: ner haue two coates. And into what house so euer ye entre, there abyde, tyll ye go thence. And who so euer receaue you not, departe out of the same cite, and shake of the dust from youre fete, for a wytnesse ouer them. And they departed, and wente thorow the townes, preachinge ỹ Gospell, & healynge euerywher.

Herode the Tetrarcha herde of all that was done by him. And he toke care, for so moch as it was sayde of some: Jhō is rysen agayne from the deed: of some, Elias hath appeared: of some, One of the olde prophetes is rysen agayne. And Herode sayde: Jhō haue I beheaded, who is this then, of whō I heare soch thinges? And he desyred to se him.

And the Apostles came agayne, and tolde him how greate thinges they had done. And he toke them to him, and wente asyde into a solytary place by the cite called Bethsaida. Whan the people knew of it, they folowed him. And he receaued them, and spake vnto them of the kyngdome of God, and healed soch as hade nede therof. But the daye beganne to go downe. Then came the twolue to him, and sayde vnto him: let the people departe frō the, that they maye go in to the townes rounde aboute, and in to ỹ vyllagies, where they maye fynde lodgynge & meate, for we are here in ỹ wyldernesse. But he sayde vnto them: Geue ye them to eate. They sayde: We haue no more but fyue loaues and two fyßhes. Except we shulde go & bye meate for so moch people (for there were vpon a fyue thousande men) But he sayde vnto his disciples: Cause them to sytte downe by fifties in a cōpany. And they dyd so, and made them all to syt downe. Then toke he the fyue loaues and two fißhes, and loked vp toward heauē, and sayde grace ouer them, brake them, and gaue them to the disciples, to set thē before the people. And they ate, and were all satisfied. And there were taken vp of that remayned to them, twolue baskettes full of broken meate.

And it fortuned whan he was alone, and at his prayer, and his disciples with him, he axed them, and sayde: Whom saye the people that I am? They answered, and sayde: They saye, thou art Jhon the baptist: Some, that thou art Elias: Some, that one of the olde prophetes is rysen agayne. But sayde vnto them: Whom saye ye that I am? Then answered Peter and sayde: Thou art the Christ of God. And he charged them straitely, and commaunded them, that they shulde tell this vnto no mā, and sayde: * For the sonne of man must suffre many thinges, and be cast out of the Elders and of ỹ hye prestes, and scrybes, and be put to death, and ryse agayne the thirde daye.

Then sayde he vnto them all: Yf eny mā wil folowe me, let hī denie himself, & take vp his crosse daylie, & folowe me. * For who so ever wil saue his life, shall lose it. But who so loseth his life for my sake, shal saue it. For what auauntage hath a man, though he wanne the whole worlde, and loseth himself, or runneth in dammage of himself? Who so is ashamed of me and of my sayenges, of him shall the sonne of mā also be ashamed, whan he commeth in his glory, and in the glory of his father, and of the holy angels. I saye vnto you of a treuth: there be some of them that stonde here, which shall not taist of death, tyll they se the kyngdome of God.

And it fortuned, that aboute an eight dayes after these wordes, he toke vnto him Peter, Jhon and James, and wente vp in to a moūt for to praye. * And as he prayed, the shappe of his countenaunce was chaunged of another fashion, and his garment was whyte, and shyned: and beholde, two men talked with him, Which were Moses and Elias, that appeared gloriously, and spake of his departynge, which he shulde fulfill at Jerusalem. As for Peter and them that were with him, they were full of slepe. But whan they awoke, they saw his glory, and the two men stondynge with him.

And it chaunsed, whan they departed frō him, Peter sayde vnto Jesus: Master, here is good beynge for vs. Let vs make thre tabernacles: one for the, one for Moses, and one for Elias, and wyst not what he sayde. But whyle he thus spake, there came a cloude, and ouershadowed them. And they were afrayed, whan the cloude couered them. And out of the cloude there came a voyce, which sayde: This is my deare sonne, * heare him. And whyle this voyce came to passe, they founde Jesus alone. And they kepte it close, and tolde no mā in those dayes eny of the thinges which they had sene.

And it chaunsed on the nexte daye after, whan they came downe from the mount, moch people met him, and beholde, a man amonge the people cryed out, and sayde: Master, I beseke the, loke vpon my sonne, for he is my onely sonne: beholde, the spirite taketh him, and sodenly he crieth, and he teareth him, that he foometh, and with payne departeth he from him, whan he hath rente him. And I besought thy disciples to cast him out, and they coulde not. Then answered Jesus, and sayde: Oh thou vnfaithfull and croked generacion, how longe shal I be with you, & suffre you? Bringe hither thy sonne. And whan he came to him, the deuell rente him and tare him. But Jesus rebuked the foule spirite, and healed the chylde, and delyuered him vnto his father agayne. And they were all amased at the mighty power of God. Marc.1.c Luc.4.d

And whyle they wondred euery one at all thinges which he dyd, he sayde vnto his disciples: Comprehende these sayenges in youre eares. For the sonne of man must be delyuered in to the hādes of men. But they wyst not what that worde meaned, and it was hyd from them, that they vnderstode it not. And they were afrayed to axe him of that worde. * There came a thought also amonge them, which of them shulde be the greatest. But whā Jesus sawe the thoughtes of their hert, he toke a childe, & set him harde by him, and sayde vnto them: Whosoeuer receaueth this childe in my name, receaueth me: and who so ever receaueth me, receaueth him that sent me. * But who so is leest amōge you all, ỹ same shal be greate. Mat.16.c and 20.b Marc.8.d and 9.d Luc.2.g and 18.d * Mat.18. Marc.9.d Luc.22.b Mat.10.e Marc.9.c Luc.10.b Iohā.13.c * Mar.20. Marc.9.d and 10.c Luc.22.b

Then answered Jhō and sayde: Master, we sawe one dryue out deuels in thy name, and we forbad him, for he folowed the not with vs. And Jesus sayde vnto him: For byd him not, for he that is not agaynst vs, is for vs.

And it fortuned whan the tyme was fulfylled that he shulde be receaued vp from hence, he turned his face to go straight to Jerusalem, and before him he sent messaungers, which wente their waye, and came in to a towne of the Samaritans, to prepare lodginge for him. And they wolde not receaue him, because he had turned his face to go to Jerusalē. But whan his disciples James and Jhon sawe that, they sayde: LORDE, wilt thou, that we commaunde, that fyre fall downe from heauen, and consume them, * as Elias dyd? Neuertheles Jesus turned him aboute, and rebuked them, and sayde: Knowe ye not, what maner of spirite ye are of? The sonne of man is not come to destroye mens soules, but to saue them. And they wente in to another towne. 4.Re.1.c

Mat.8.c And it fortuned as they went by the waye, one sayde vnto him: I wil folowe the, whyther so euer thou go. And Jesus sayde vnto him: The foxes haue holes, and the byrdes vnder the heauē haue nestes: but the sonne of man hath not wheron to laye his heade.

Mat.8.c And he sayde vnto another: Folowe me. He sayde: Syr, geue me leue first to go, and burye my father. But Jesus sayde vnto him: * Let the deed burye their deed. But go thou thy waye, and preach the kyngdome of God.

b Leui.21.b

And another sayde: Syr, I will folowe the, * but geue me leue first, to go bydde them farwele, which are at home in my house. Jesus sayde vnto him: Whoso putteth his hāde to the plowe, and loketh backe, is not mete for the kingdome of God.

A AFterwarde the LORDE appoynted out other seuentie, and sent them two and two before him in to euery cite and place, whither he himself wolde come,

Mat.9.d and sayde vnto them: The harueste is greate, but the labourers are fewe. Praye therfore the LORDE of the harueste, to sende forth labourers in to his harueste. Go youre waye: beholde, I sende you forth as the lābes amonge ỹ wolues. Beare nether wallet, ner scrype, ner shues, and * salute no mā by the waye.

* 2.Re.4.d

In to what so euer house ye entre, first saye: Peace be in this house. And yf the childe of peace be there, youre peace shal rest vpon him. Yf no, then shal youre peace turne to you agayne. But tary ye still in the same house, eatinge and drynkinge soch as they haue. For the labourer is worthy of his rewarde.

Go not from house to house. And in to what so euer cite ye entre, and they receaue you, eate soch thinges as are set before you. And heale the sicke that are there, and saye vnto them: The kyngdome of God is comenye vnto you. But in to what so euer cite ye come, and they receaue you not, go youre waye out in to the stretes of the same, and saye: Euen the very dust which cleaueth vpon vs of youre cite, wype we of vpon you. But of this ye shal be sure, that the kyngdome of God was comenye vnto you. I saye vnto you: It shalbe easyer for Sodome in that daye, then for that cite.

Mat.10.b Marc.6.b Luc.9.a Act.13.e and 18.a

B Wo vnto the Chorazin, wo vnto the Bethsaida: for yf the miracles which haue

Mat.11.b bene done amonge you had bene done at Tyre and Sidon, they had done penaunce longe agoo, syttinge in sackcloth and in asshes. Neuertheles it shalbe easyer for Tyre and Sidon at the iudgment, then for you. And thou Capernaum which art exalced vnto the heauen, shalt be thrust downe vnto hell. He that heareth you, heareth me: and he that despyseth you, despyseth me: but who so despyseth me, despyseth him ỹ sent me.

The seuētye came agayne with ioye, and sayde: LORDE, the deuels also are subdued vnto vs in thy name. But he sayde vnto them: I sawe Sathan fall downe from heauen as a lightenynge. Beholde, * I haue geuen you power to treade vpon serpētes and scorpions, and ouer all power of the enemye, and nothinge shall hurte you. Neuertheles, reioyce not ye in this, that the spretes are subdued vnto you: but reioyse, * that youre names are wrytten in heauen.

Luk.11.a Act.5.c * Mat.7.c Apo.20.a

At the same houre reioysed Jesus in spirite, and sayde: I prayse the (O father and LORDE of heauen and earth) that thou hast hyd these thinges from the wyse and prudent, and hast opened them vnto babes. Euen so father, for so it pleased the. All thinges are geuen ouer vnto me of my father: * and no man knoweth who the sonne is, but onely the father: nether who the father is, saue onely the sonne, and he to whō the sonne wil open it.

C Mat.11.a

* Mat.11.a Ioh.3.a

And he turned him vnto his disciples, and sayde in especiall: Blessed are the eyes, which se that ye se. For I saye vnto you: Many prophetes and kynges, wolde haue sene the thynges that ye se, and haue not sene them: and to haue herde the thynges that ye heare, and haue not herde them.

Mat.13.a

And beholde, there stode vp a scrybe and tempted him, and sayde: Master, what must I do, to inheret euerlastinge life? He sayde vnto him: What is wrytten in the lawe? How readest thou? He answered and sayde: Thou shalt loue thy LORDE God with all thy hert, with all thy soule, with all thy strength, and with all thy mynde, and * thy neghboure as thy self. He sayde vnto him: Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt lyue. But he wolde haue iustified himself, & sayde vnto Jesus: Who is then my neghboure?

Deu.6.a * Leui.19.a Mat.22.a Marc.12.a

D Then answered Jesus, and sayde: A certayne man wente downe from Jerusalem vnto Jericho, and fell amonge murthurers, which stryped him out of his clothes, and wounded him, and wente their waye, and left him half deed. And by chaūce there came downe a preest the same waye: and whan he sawe him, he passed by. And likewyse a Leuite, whā he came nye vnto the same place and sawe him, he passed by. But a Samaritane was goynge his iourney, and came that waye, and whan he sawe him, he had compassion vpon him, wente vnto him, bounde vp his woundes, and poured oyle and wyne therin, and lifte him vp vpon his beast, and brought him into the ynne, and made prouysion for him. Vpon the next daye whan he departed, he toke out two pens, and gaue them to the ooste, and sayde vnto him: Take cure of him, and what soeuer thou spendest more, I wil paye it the, whan I come agayne. Which of these thre now thinkest thou, was neghboure vnto him, that fell amonge the murtherers? He sayde: He that shewed mercy vpon him. Then sayde Jesus vnto him: Go thy waye then, and do thou likewyse.

It fortuned as they wēte, that he entred into a towne, where there was a woman named Martha, which receaued him in to hir house. And she had a sister, called Mary, which sat hir downe at Jesus fete, and herkened vnto his worde. But Martha made hir self moch to do, for to serue him. And she stepte vnto him, and sayde: LORDE, carest thou not, that my sister letteth me serue alone? Byd her therfore, that she helpe me. But Jesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Martha Martha, thou takest thought, and combrest thy self aboute many thinges: * there is but one thinge nedefull. Mary hath chosen a good parte, which shal not be taken awaye from her.

The XI. Chapter.

A ND it fortuned that he was in a place, and prayed. And whan he had ceassed, one of his disciples sayde vnto him: LORDE, teach vs to praye, as Jhon also taught his disciples. He sayde vnto thē: Whan ye praye, saye: O oure father which art in heauen, halowed be thy name. Thy kyngdome come. Thy wil be fulfilled vpon earth, as it is in heauen. Geue vs this daye oure daylie bred. And forgeue vs oure synnes, for we also forgeue all them that are detters vnto vs. And lede vs not in to temptacion, but delyuer vs from euell.

And he sayde vnto them: Which of you is it that hath a frende, and shulde go to him at mydnight, and saye vnto him: frende, lende me thre loaues, for a frende of myne is come to me out of the waye, and I haue nothinge to set before him: and he within shulde answere and saye: Disquyete me not, the dore is shutt allready, and my children are with me in the chamber, I can not ryse, and geue the. I saye vnto you: and though he wolde not aryse and geue him, because he is his frende, yet because of his vnshame fast begginge he wolde aryse, and geue him as many as he neded.

B And I saye vnto you also: Axe, and it shal be geuen you: Seke, and ye shal fynde: knocke, and it shalbe opened vnto you. For who so euer axeth, receaueth: and he that seketh, fyndeth: and to him that knocketh, shal it be opened. Yf the sonne axe bred of eny of you that is a father, wyl he geue him a stone therfore? Or yf he axe a fysshe, wyl he for the fisshe offre him a serpent? Or yf he axe an egg, wyl he profer him a scorpion? Yf ye then which are euell, can geue youre children good giftes, how moch more shal the father of heauen geue the holy spriete vnto them that axe him?

And he droue out a deuell that was domme: and it came to passe whan the deuell was departed out, the domme spake, and the people wondred. But some of them sayde: He dryueth out the deuels, thorow Beelzebub the chefe of the deuels. The other tempted him, and desyred a token of him from heauen. But he knewe their thoughtes, and sayde vnto them: Euery kyngdome deuyded within it self, shal be desolate, and one house shal fall vpō another. Yf Sathan then be at variaunce within himself, how shal his kyngdome endure? Because ye saye, that I dryue out deuels thorow Beelzebub.

And yf I dryue out deuels thorow Beelzebul, by whom thē do youre children dryue them out? Therfore shall they be youre iudges. But yf I cast out the deuels by the fynger of God, then is the kyngdome of God come vnto you.

C Whan a stronge harnessed man kepeth his house, that he possesseth is in peace: * but whan a stronger then he commeth vpō him, and ouercommeth him, he taketh frō him all his wapens, wherin he trusted, and deuydeth the spoyle. He that is not with me, is agaynst me: and he that ga-thereth not with me, scatereth abrode.

Mat.12.c When the vncleane spryte is gone out of a man, he walketh thorow drye places, seekynge rest, and fyndeth none. Then sayeth he: I wil turne agayne in to my house, from whence I wente out. And whan he commeth, he fyndeth it swepte, and garnished. Then goeth he, and taketh vnto him seuen other spretes, worse thē himself. And whan they are entred in, they dwell there. And the ende of that man is worse then the begynnynge.

And it fortuned whan he spake soch, a certayne woman amonge the people lift vp hir voyce, and sayde vnto him: Blessed is ỹ wombe that bare the, and the pappes that thou hast sucked. But he sayde: Nee blessed are they that heare the worde of God, and kepe it.

Whan the people were gathered thicke together, he beganne to saye: This is an arc.8.b euell generacion, they desyre a tokē, and there shal no token be geuen them, but the tokē onæ 2.a of the prophet Jonas. * For like as Jonas id 3.b was a tokē vnto the Niniuytes, so shal the sonne of man be vnto this generacion. The Re.10.a quene of the south shal arise at the iudgmēt Par.9.a with the men of this generacion, and shall at.12.d condempne them: for she came from the ende of the worlde, to heare the wyßdome of Salomon. And beholde, here is one more then Salomon. The men of Ninine shal arise at the iudgment with this generacion, and shall condempne them: for they dyd penaunce after the preachinge of Jonas: and beholde, here is one more thē Jonas.

at.5.b No man lighteth a candell, and putteth arc.4.b it in a preuy place, nether vnder a buß hell, c.8.b but vpon a candilsticke, that they which come in, maye se ỹ light. Mat.6.c * The eye is the light of the body. Yf thine eye then be syngle, all thy body shal be full of light: but yf thine eye be wicked, then shal all thy body be full of darckneße. Take hede therfore, that the light which is in the, be not darckneße. Yf thy body now be light, so that it haue no parte of darkneße, then shal it be all full of light, and shall light the euen as a cleare lightenynge.

D But whyle he yet spake, a certayne Pharise prayed him, that he wolde dyne with him. And he wente in, and sat him downe at the table. Whan the Pharise sawe that, he marueyled, that he waßhed not first before dyner. But the LORDE sayde vnto him: Now do ye Pharises make cleane the out syde of the cuppe and platter, but youre Mat.23.a inwarde partes are full of robbery and wickednesse. Ye fooles, is a thinge made cleane within, because the outsyde is clensed? Neuertheles geue almesse of that ye haue, and beholde, all is cleane vnto you.

But wo vnto you Pharises, ye that tythe mynt and rewe, and all maner herbes, and passe ouer iudgmēt and ỹ lope of God. These ought to haue bene done, and not to leaue the other vndone.

Wo vnto you Pharises, for ye lone to syt Mat.23.a vppermost in the synagoges, and to be salu- Mar.12.c ted in the market. Luc.11.d

Wo vnto you scrybes and Pharyses, ye ypocrites, for ye are like couered sepulcres, where ouer men walke, and are not awarre of them.

Then answered one of the scrybes, and sayde vnto him: Master, with these wordes thou putteſt vs to rebuke also. But he saide And wo vnto you also ye scrybes, for ye lade men with vntollerable burthens, and ye youre selues touch them not with one of yō fyngers.

Wo vnto you, for ye buylde the sepulcres Luc.11.d of the prophetes, but youre fathers put Mat.23.a them to death. Doutles ye beare wytnesse, and consente vnto the dedes of yō fathers: for they slewe them, and ye buylde their sepulcres.

Therfore sayde the wyßdome of God: I wil sende prophetes and Apostles vnto thē: and some of them shal they put to death and persecute, that the bloude of all the prophetes which hath bene shed sens the foundacion of the worlde was layed, maye be requyred of this generacion: from the bloude Ge.4.b of Abell, vnto ỹ bloude of * Zachary, which 2.Par.24.b perished betwene the altare and ỹ temple. Nee I saye vnto you: it shalbe requyred of this generacion.

Wo vnto you scrybes, for ye haue receaued ỹ keye of knowlege. Ye are not come in youre selues, and haue forbydden them that wolde haue bene in.

Whan he spake thus vnto them, the scrybes and Pharyses beganne to preasse sore vpon him, and to stoppe his mouth with many questions, and layed wayte for him, and sought to hunte out some thinge out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

The XII. Chapter.

THere were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, in so moch that they trode one another: Then beganne he, and sayde first vnto his disciples: Bewarre of the lenen of the Pharises, which is ypocrisye. * But there is nothinge hyd, that shal not be discouered: neither secrete, that shal not be knowne. Therfore what soeuer ye haue spoke in darknesse, that same shal be herde in light: and that ye haue spoken into the eare in the chābers, shalbe preached vpon the house toppes.

But I saye vnto you my frendes: Be not afrayed of them that kyll the body, and after that haue nomore that they can do. But I wil shewe you, whom ye shal feare. Feare him, which after he hath kylled, hath power also to cast in to hell: Yee I saye vnto you: Feare him. Are not fyue sparowes bought for two farthinges: Yet is not one of them forgotten before God. The very hayres of youre heade also are nombred euery one. Feare not therfore, for ye are better then many sparowes.

I saye vnto you: Who so euer knowlegeth me before men, him shal the sonne of mā also knowlege before the angels of God: But he that denyeth me before men, shal be denyed before the angels of God. And who so euer speaketh a worde agaynst the sonne of man, it shalbe forgeuen him: But who so blaspheme the holy goost, it shal not be forgeuen him.

Whan they brynge you in to their synagoges, and to the rulers & officers, take ye no thought, how or what ye shal answere, or what ye shal speake: for the holy goost shal teach you in the same houre, what ye ought to saye.

But one of the people sayde vnto him: Master, byd my brother deuyde the enheritaunce with me. Neuertheles he sayde vnto him: Man, who hath set me to be a iudge or heretage parter ouer you? And he sayde vnto them: Take hede, and bewarre of couetousnesse, for no man lyueth therof, that he hath abundaunce of goodes. And he tolde them a symilitude, and sayde: There was a riche man, whose felde had brought forth frutes plenteously, and he thought in himself, and sayde: What shal I do? I haue nothinge wher in to gather my frutes. And he sayde: This wil I do, I wil breake downe my barnes, & buylde greater, and therin wil I gather all myne increace, & my goodes, & wil saye vnto my soule: Soule, thou hast moch goodes layed vp in stoare for many yeares, take now thine ease, eate, drinke, and be mery. But God sayde vnto him: Thou foole, this night shal they require thy soule from the, * and whose shal it be that thou hast prepared? Thus goeth it with him y gathereth treasure for himself, and is not riche in God.

But he sayde vnto his disciples: Therfore I saye vnto you: Take ye no thought for youre life, what ye shal eate: nether for youre body, what ye shal put on. The life is more then meate, and the body more then rayment. Consydre the rauens, they nether sowe ner reape, they haue also nether stoarehouse ner barne, and yet God fedeth them. But how moch better are ye then the foules?

Which of you (though he toke thought therfore) coulde put one cubyte vnto his stature? Seinge then ye be not able to do that, which is least, why take ye thought for the other? Consydre the lilies vpō the felde, how they growe: they laboure not, they spynne not. But I saye vnto you: that euen Salomon in all his royalte was not clothed like one of these. Wherfore yf God so cloth the grasse, y is to daye in y felde, and tomorow shalbe cast into the fornace, how moch more shal he clothe you, o ye of litle faith? Are not ye therfore what ye shal eate, or what ye shal drynke, and clymme not vp an hye: The heithen in the worlde seke after all soch thinges. But seke ye the kyngdome of God, and all these shal be mynistred vnto you.

Feare not thou litle flocke, for it is youre fathers pleasure to geue you the kyngdome. Sell that ye haue, and geue almesse. Make you bagges, which ware not olde: euen a treasure that neuer sayleth in heauen, where no these commeth, and no moth corrupteth: for where youre treasure is, there wil youre hert be also.

Let youre loynes be gerded aboute, and youre lightes burnynge, and be ye like vnto men that wayte for their lorde, agaynst he returne from the mariage, that whan he cōmeth & knocketh, they maye straight waye open vnto him. Blessed are those seruauntes, whom the LORDE (whan he cōmeth) shal fynde watynge. Verely I saye vnto you: * he shal gyrde vp him self, and make them syt downe at the table, and shal go by them, and mynister vnto them. And yf he come in the seconde watch, and in the thirde watch, and fynde them so, blessed are those seruauntes. But be sure of this, that yf the good man of the house knewe, what houre the these wolde come, he wolde surely watch, and not suffre his house to be broken vp.

Therfore be ye ready also, for at an houre Mat.25.a whan ye thynke not, shal the sonne of man

Pe But Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, tel-whom his lorde setteth ouer his housholde, to geue thē their dewtye in due season? Bles-

Mat.24.d he cōmeth) shal fynde so doynge. Verely I saye vnto you: he shal set him ouer all his goodes. But yf the same seruaūt shal saye in his hert: Tush, it wil be longe or my lorde come, and shal begynne to smyte ye seruauntes and maydens, yee & to eate and drynke, & to be dronke: the same seruauntes lorde shal come in a daye whan he loketh not for him, and in an houre that he is not aware of, & shal hew him in peces, and gene him his re-warde with the vnbeleuers.

1co.4.b The seruaunt that knewe his lordes wil and prepared not himself, neither dyd acor-dinge to his will, shal be beaten with many strypes: But he that knewe it not, and yet dyd thinges worthy of strypes, shal be beaten with few strypes. For loke vnto whom moch is geuen, of him shal moch be sought:
and loke to whom moch is commytted, of him shal moch be requyred.

I I am come to kyndle fyre vpō earth, and mother agaynst the doughter, & the doughagaynst hir doughter in lawe, and ye dough-

And he sayde vnto the people: Whan ye shion of the skye and of the earth: Why can ye not discerne this tyme also? Yee and why iugde ye not of youre selues, what is right?

Whyle thou goest with thine aduersary vnto the Prynce, geue diligēce by the waye, that thou mayest be quyte of him, lest he me out thence, tyll thou paye the vtteremost

The XIII. Chapter.

THere were present at the same season A certayne, that shewed him of ye Ga- Ac.4 lileans, whose blonde Pilate had migled with their awne sacrifice. And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Suppose ye, that these Galileās were greater synners then all the other Galileans, because they suffred soch punyshment? I tell you naye, but excepte ye amēde youre selues, ye shal all perishe likewyse. Or thinke ye that ye eighte ne (vpon whom the tower in Siloe fell and slewe them) were giltie aboue all men that dwell at Jerusalem? I tell you naye: but excepte ye amende youre selues, ye shal all perishe likewyse.

And he tolde them this symilitude: A cer tayne mā had a fygge tre, which was plan ted in his vynyarde, & he came and soughte frute theron, and founde none. Then sayde he vnto the wynegardener: Beholde, This thre yeare longe have I come euery yeare, and sought frute vpon this fygge tre, and fynde none: cut it downe, why hyndreth it the grounde? But he answered, and sayde:
Syr, let it alone yet this yeare, tyll I dygge roūde aboute it and donge it, yf it wyl bry-ge forth frute: Yf no, then cut it downe afterwarde.

And he taught in a synagoge vpon the Sabbath: and beholde, there was a womā, which had a spirite of infirmyte eightene yeares, and was croked, and coulde not wel loke vp. Whan Jesus sawe her, he called her to him, and sayde vnto her: Woman, be dely nered from thy disease. And he layed his han des vpō her, and immediatly she was made straight, and praysed God. Then answered the ruler of the synagoge, and toke indigna cion (because Jesus healed vpō ye Sabbath) and sayde vnto the people: There are sixe dayes, wherin men ought to worke, in them come and be healed, and not on the Sabbath.

Then the LORDE answered him, and sy de: Thou ypocryte, doth not euery one of you lowse his oxe or asse frō the crybbe vpō Sabbath, and leade him to the water? But shulde not this (which is Abrahams dough ter) whom Sathan hath bounde notweigh-tene yeares, be lowsed from this bonde vpō

the Sabbath: And whan he thus sayde, all his aduersaries were ashamed. And all the people reioysed ouer all the excellent dedes, that were done by him.

And he sayde: What is the kyngdome of God like? Or wher vnto shal I cõpare it? It is like a greyne of mustarde sede, which a man toke, and cast in his garden: and it grewe, and waxed a greate tre, and the fowles of the ayre dwelt amonge the braunches of it.

And agayne he sayde: Where vnto shal I licken the kyngdome of God? It is like vnto leuen, which a woman toke, and myxte it amõge thre peckes of meele, tyll it was all leuended. And he wẽte thorow cities and townes, and taught, and toke his iourney towarde Jerusalem.

C And one sayde vnto him: LORDE, are there few (thinkest thou) that shalbe saued? But he sayde vnto them: Stryue ye to entre in at the strayte gate, for many (I saye vnto you) shal seke to come in, and shal not be able. From that tyme forth, whan the good man of the house is rysen vp, and hath shut the dore, then shal ye begynne to stonde without, and to knocke at ỹ dore, and saye: LORDE LORDE, open vnto vs. And he shal answere, and saye vnto you: I knowe you not whence ye are.

Then shal ye begynne to saye: We haue eaten and dronken before the, and thou hast taught vs vpon ỹ stretes. And he shal saye: I tell you, I knowe you not whence ye are. Departe fro me all ye workers of iniquyte. There shalbe wepynge and gnaßhinge of teth, when ye shal se Abraham, and Jsaac, and Jacob and all the prophetes in ỹ kyngdome of God, and youre selues thrust out. And whã they shal come from the east and from the west, from the north and from the south, which shal syt at ỹ table in the kyngdome of God. And beholde, there are last, which shal be fyrst: and there are first, which shalbe last.

D Vpon the same daye there came certayne of ỹ pharises, and sayde vnto him: Get the out of the waye, and departe hence, for Herode wyl kyll the. And he sayde vnto thẽ: Go ye and tell that fore: beholde, I cast out deuels, and heale the people todaye and tomorow, and vpõ the thirde daye shal I make an ende: for it can not be, that a prophet perisshe without Jerusalem.

O Jerusalem Jerusalẽ, thou that kyllest the prophetes, and stonest thẽ that are sent vnto ỹ, how oft wolde I haue gathered thy children together, euen as the henne gathereth hir nest vnder hir wynges, and ye wolde not? Beholde, yo habitacion shal be left vnto you desolate. For I saye vnto you: ye shal not se me, tyll ỹ tyme come that ye shal saye: blessed be he, ỹ cõmeth in ỹ name of the LORDE.

The XIIII. Chapter.

AND it fortuned that he came in to the house of one of ỹ chefe pharises vpõ a Sabbath, to eate bred, & they watched him. And beholde, there was a mã before him, which had ỹ dropsye. And Jesus answered, & spake vnto the scrybes and pharises, & sayde: Is it laufull to heale on the Sabbath? But they helde their tonge. And he toke him, and healed him, & let him go, and answered, and sayde vnto thẽ: Which of you shal haue an oxe or an asse fallen in to a pyte, and wil not straight waye pull him out on the Sabbath daye? And they coude not answere him agayne to that.

And he tolde a symilitude vnto ỹ gestes, whã he marked how they chose the hyest seates, & sayde vnto thẽ: Whan thou art bydde of eny man to a weddynge, syt not downe in the hyest rowme, lest a more honorable man thẽ thou be bydde of him, and he that bade both the and him, come & saye vnto ỹ: gene this mã rowme, and thou thẽ begynne with shame to take ỹ lowest rowme. But rather whã thou art bydde, go and syt in ỹ lowest rowme, that whã he that bade the, cõmeth, he maye saye vnto the: Frende, syt vp hyer: then shalt thou haue worshipe in the presence of them that syt at the table. For who so euer exalteth himself, shalbe brought lowe: and he ỹ humbleth himself, shalbe exalted.

He sayde also vnto him that had bydden him: Whã thou makest a dyner or a supper, call not thy frendes, ner thy brethren, ner thy kynsfolkes, ner ỹ riche neghbours, lest they call the agayne, and recompẽce be made ỹ. But whã thou makest a feast, call the poore, the crepell, the lame, the blynde, then art thou blessed, for they can not recompẽce ỹ. But it shalbe recompensed the in the resurreccion of the righteous.

Whan one of them that sat by at the table herde this, he sayde vnto him: Blessed is he, that eateth bred in ỹ kyngdome of God. But he sayde vnto him: A certayne mã made a greate supper, and called many ther to. And in ỹ houre of the supper he sent his seruãte, to saye vnto thẽ ỹ were bydde: Come, for now are all thinges ready. And they begãne all together to excuse thẽ selues one after another: The first sayde vnto hi: I haue bought a ferme, and I must nedes go forth and se it, I praye ȳ haue me excused. And ȳ seconde sayde: I haue bought fyue yoke of oxen, and now I go to prowe them, I praye the haue me excused. And the thirde sayde: I haue maried a wife, therfore can I not come. And the seruaunt came, and brought his lorde worde agayne therof.

Then was the good man of the house displeased, and sayde vnto his seruaũt: Go out quyckly in to the stretes and quarters of ȳ cite, and bryng in hither the poore and crepell, and lame and blynde. And the seruaũt sayde: lorde, it is done as thou hast cõmaunded, and there is yet more rowme. And the lorde sayde vnto the seruaunt: Go out into the hye wayes, and to the hedges, and compell them to come in, that my house maye be fylled. But I saye vnto you: that none of these men which were bydden, shal taist of my supper.

D There wente moch people with him, and he turned him aboute and sayde vnto them: Deut. 13. b
Mat. 10. c
And if any man come vnto me, and hate not his father, mother, wife, childrẽ, brethrẽ, sisters, yee and his owne life also, he can not be my disciple. And whosoeuer beareth not his crosse, and followeth me, can not be my disciple. And 16. d

Which of you is it, ȳ wil buylde a tower, and sytteth not downe first and counteth ȳ cost, whether he haue sufficiẽt to perfourme it, ꝛ lest after he hath layed the foundaciõ, and is not able to perfourme it, all they that se it, begynne to laugh him to scorne, ꝛ to saye: This man begane to buylde, and is not able to perfurme it. Or what kynge wil go to make battayl agaynst another kynge, and sytteth not downe first, and casteth in his mynde, whether he be able with ten thousande, to mete him that commeth agaynst him with twentye thousande? Or els, whyle the other is yet a greate waye of he sendeth embassage, and desyreth peace. So likewyse euery one of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, can not be my disciple.

There resorted vnto him all the publicans and synners, that they might heare him. And ȳ pharises and scribes murmured, and sayde: This man receaueth synners, and eateth with them. But he tolde thẽ this symilitude, and sayde: What man is he amonge you, that hath an hundreth shepe, and yf he loose one of thẽ, that leaueth not the nyne and nyentye in the wyldernesse, and goeth after that which is lost tyll he fynde it? And whan he hath founde it, he layeth it vpon his shulders with ioye: and whan he commeth home, he calleth his frẽdes and neghbours, and sayeth vnto thẽ: Reioyce with me, for I haue founde my shepe, ȳ was lost. I saye vnto you: Euẽ so shal there be ioye in heauen ouer one synner that doth pennaunce, more then ouer nyne and nyentye righteous, which nede not repentaunce. Luc.

Or what woman is it that hath ten grotes, yf she loose one of them, that lighteth not a candell, and swepeth the house, and seketh diligently, tyll she fynde it? And whan she hath founde it, she calleth hir frendes ꝛ neghboureresses, and sayeth: Reioyce with me, for I haue foũde my grote, which I had lost. Euen so (I tell you) shal there be ioye before the angels of God, ouer one synner ȳ doth pennaunce. B

And he sayde: A certayne man had two sonnes, and the yonger of them sayde vnto the father: Father, geue me the porcion of ȳ goodes, that belongeth vnto me. And he deuyded the good vnto them. And not longe therafter, gathered the yonger sonne all together, ꝛ toke his iourney in to a farre countre, and there waisted he his goodes with ryotous lyuynge. Now whan he had spent all that he had, there was a greate derth thorow out all the same lõde. And he begãne to lacke, and wente his waye, and claue to a cytesin of that same countre, which sent him in to his felde, to kepe swyne. And he wolde fayne haue fylled his bely with the coddes, that the swyne ate. And no man gaue him them.

Then came he to him self, and sayde: How many hyred seruauntes hath my father, which haue bred ynough, and I perish of honger? I wil get vp, and go to my father, and saye vnto him: Father, I haue synned agaynst heauen and before the, and am no more worthy to be called thy sonne, make me as one of thy hyred seruauntes. And he gat him vp, ꝛ came vnto his father. But whan he was yet a greate waye of, his father sawe him, and had cõpassion, and ranne, and fell aboute his neck, and kyssed him. Then sayde the sonne vnto him: Father, I haue synned agaynst heauẽ, and before the, I am no more worthy to be called thy sonne. But the C father sayde vnto his seruauntes: Bringe forth the best garment, and put it vpon him, and geue him a rynge vpon his hande, and shues on his fete, and bringe hither a fed calfe, and kyll it, let vs eate and be mery: for this my sonne was deed, and is alyue agayne: he was lost, and is founde. And they begame to be mery.

D But the elder sonne was in the felde. And whan he came, and drewe nye to the house, he herde ỹ mynstrelsye and daunsynge, and called one of the seruauntes vnto him, and axed what it was. He sayde vnto him: Thy brother is come, and thy father hath slayne a fed calfe, because he hath receaued him safe and sounde. Then was he angrie, and wolde not go in. Then wente his father out, and prayed him. But he answered, and sayde vnto his father: Lo, thus many yeares haue I done the seruyce, nether haue I yet broken thy commaundement, and thou ganest me neuer one kydd, ỹ I might make mery with my frendes. But now that this thy sonne is come, which deuoured his goodes with harlottes, thou hast slayne a fed calfe. But he sayde vnto him: My sonne, thou art allwaye with me, and all that is myne, is thine: thou shuldest be mery and glad, for this ỹ brother was deed, and is alyue agayne: he was lost, and is founde agayne.

The XVI. Chapter.

A He sayde also vnto his disciples: There was a certayne riche man, which had a stewarde, that was accused vnto him, that he had waisted his goodes. And he called him, and sayde vnto him: How is it, that I heare this of the? gene a comptes of ỹ stewardshipe, for thou mayest be no longer stewarde. The stewarde sayde within himself: What shal I do? My lorde wil take awaye the stewardshipe fro me. I cañot dygge, and to begg I am ashamed. I wote what I wil do, that whã I am put out of the stewardshipe, they maye receaue me in to their houses.

And he called vnto hĩ all his lordes detters, and sayde vnto the first: How moch owest thou vnto my lorde? He sayde: an hundreth tonnes of oyle. And he sayde: Take ỹ byll, syt downe quyckly, & wryte fifti. Then sayde he vnto another: How moch owest thou? He sayde: an hundreth quarters of wheate. And he sayde vnto him: Take thy byll, and wryte foure score. And the lorde cõmended the vnrighteous stewarde, because he had done wysely. For the children of this worlde are in their kynde wyser, thẽ the children of light. And I saye vnto you: Make you frendes with the vnrighteous Mammon, ỹ whan ye shal haue nede, they maye receaue you in to euerlastinge Tabernacles.

B He that is faithfull in the least, is faithfull also in moch: and he that is vnrighteous in the least, is vnrighteous also in moch. If ye then haue not bene faithfull in the vnrighteous Mammon, who wyll beleue you in that which is true? And yf ye haue not bene faithfull in anothers mans busyneße, who wil geue you that which is youre awne?

No seruaunt can serue two masters: for Mat.6.c either he shal hate the one, and loue ỹ other: or els he shal leane to the one, and despyse the other. Ye can not serue God and Mammon.

All these thinges herde the pharises, which were couetous, and they mocked hĩ. And he sayde vnto them: Ye are they that iustifie yõ selues before men, but God knoweth youre hertes. For ỹ which is hye amonge men, is an abhominacion before God.

There was a certayne riche man, which clothed him self with purple and costly lynnen, and fared deliciously euery daye. And there was a poore man named Lazarus which laye at his gate full of sores, and desyred to be fylled with the crommes, that fell from the riche mans table. Yet came the dogges, and licked his sores. But it fortuned, that the poore man dyed, and was caried of the angels in to Abrahams bosome. The riche man dyed also, and was buried.

Now whan he was in the hell, he lift vp D his eyes in the payne, and sawe Abraham afarre of, and Lazarus in his bosome: and he cried, and sayde: Father Abraham, haue mercy vpon me, and sende Lazarus, that he maye dyppe the typpe of his fynger in water, & coole my tonge, for I am tormẽted in this flãme. But Abrahã sayde: Remẽbre sonne, ỹ thou hast receaued good in ỹ life, & con trary wyse Lazarus receaued evell. But now is he comforted, and thou art tormented. And beside all this, there is a greate space set betwene vs and you: so ỹ they which wolde go downe from hence vnto you, cannot: nether maye they passe ouer from thence vnto vs.

Then sayde he: I praye the then father, that thou wilt sende him vnto my fathers house, for I haue yet fyue brethren, that he maye warne them, lest they also come in to this place of torment. Abraham sayde vnto him: They haue Moses and the prophetes, let them heare them. But he sayde: Nay father Abraham, but yf one wente vnto them frō the deed, they wolde do penaunce. Neuertheles he sayde vnto him: Yf they heare not Moses & the prophetes, then shal they not beleue also, though one rose agayne frō the deed.

The XVII. Chapter.

A Mat. 18. a' Marc. 9. e

HE sayde vnto his disciples: It is vnpossible that offences shulde not come: but wo vnto him by whom they come: It were better for him, that a mylstone were hanged aboute his neck, and he cast in to the see, then that he shulde offende one of these litle ones. Take hede to youre selues. Yf thy brother trespace agaynst the, rebuke him: and yf he amende, forgeue him. Mat. 18. b And though he synne agaynst the seuen tymes in a daye, and come seuen tymes in a daye to ỹ agayne, and saye: It repenteth me, forgeue him.

And the Apostles sayde vnto ỹ LORDE: Increace oure faith. The LORDE sayde: Yf ye haue faith as a grayne of mustarde sede, and saye vnto this Molbery tre: plucke thy self vp by the rotes, and plāte thy self in the see, it shalbe obediēt vnto you. Mat. 17. c and 21. c Which of you is it, that hath a seruaunt (which ploweth, or fedeth the catell) whā he commeth home from ỹ felde, that he wil saye vnto him: Go

B quyckly, and syt the downe to meate? Is it not thus? that he sayeth vnto him: Make ready, that I maye suppe, gyrde vp thyself, and serue me, tyll I haue eaten and dronken, afterwarde shalt thou eate and drynke also. Thanketh he the same seruaunt also, because he dyd that was commaunded him? I trowe not. So likewyse ye, whā ye haue done all that is cōmaunded you, saye: We are vnprofitable seruauntes, we haue done that we were bounde to do.

And it fortuned, whan he toke his iourney towarde Jerusalem, he wente thorow the myddest of Samaria and Galile. And as he came in to a towne, there met him ten leporous men, which stode afarre of, and lift vp their voyce, and sayde: Jesu master, haue mercy vpon vs. And whan he sawe them, he sayde vnto thē: Go, and shewe youre selues Leuit. vnto ỹ prestes. And it came to passe, as they wente, they were clensed. And one of them whā he sawe that he was clensed, he turned backe agayne, and praysed God with loude voyce, and fell downe on his face at his fete, and gaue him thankes. And the same was a Samaritane. Jesus answered and saide: Are there not ten clensed? But where are those nyne? There were els none founde, that turned agayne, and gaue God the prayse, saue onely this straūger. And he sayde vnto him: Aryse, go thy waye, thy faith hath made ỹ whole.

But whan he was demaunded of ỹ pha C rises: Whan cōmeth the kyngdome of God? He answered them, and sayde: The kyngdome of God commeth not with outwarde appearaunce, nether shal it be sayde: lo, here or there is it. For beholde, ỹ kyngdome of God is inwarde in you.

And he sayde to the disciples: The tyme shal come, whā ye shal desyre to se one daye of the sonne of man, and shal not se it. And they shal saye vnto you: Se here, Se there, Go not ye, nether folowe, for as the lightenynge shyneth aboue from the heauen, and lighteth ouer all that is vnder the heauē, so shal the sonne of mā be in his daye. But fyrst must he süffre many thinges, and be refused of this generacion.

And as it came to passe in the tyme of Noe, so shal it come to passe also in ỹ dayes of the sonne of man. They ate, they dranke, they maried, and were maried, euen vnto ỹ daye that Noe wente in to the Arke, and ỹ flode came, and destroyed them all.

Likewyse also as it came to passe in the D tyme of Lot, they ate, they dranke, they bought, they solde, they planted, they buylded. But euen the same daye that Lot went out of Sodom, it rayned fyre and brymstone from heauē, and destroyed them all. After this maner also shal it go, in the daye whan the sonne of man shal appeare.

In that daye, who so is vpō the rofe, and his stuffe in ỹ house, let him not come downe to fetch it: Likewyse he that is in the felde, let him not turne backe, for it that is behynde him. Remēbre Lottes wife. Who so euer goeth aboute to saue his life, shal lose it: and who so euer shal lose it, shal saue it.

I saye vnto you: In ỹ nyght shal two ye vpon one bed, the one shalbe receaued, the other shalbe forsaken. Two shalbe grynding together, the one shalbe receaued, the other shalbe forsaken. And they answered, and sayde vnto him: Where LORDE? He sayde vnto thē: Where so euer ỹ deed carcase is there wil ỹ Aegles be gathered together.

The XVIII. Chapter.

HE tolde them a symilitude, signifienge, ỹ men ought allwayes to praye, & not to leaue of, & sayde: There was a iudge in a cite, which feared not God, and stode in awe of no man. And in the same cite there was a wedowe, which came vnto him, and sayde: delyuer me fro myne aduersary. And he wolde not a greate whyle. But afterwarde he thought within hī self: Though I feare not God, & stonde in awe of no man, yet seynge this weddowe is so importune vpon me, I wil delyuer her, lest she come at the last, and rayle vpon me.

Then sayde the LORDE: Heare what ỹ vnrighteous iudge sayeth. But shall not God also delyuer his chosen, that crye vnto hi daye and night, though he differre thē? I saye vnto you: He shal delyuer them, and that shortly. Neuertheles, whan the sonne of man cōmeth, suppose ye, that he shal fynde faith vpon earth?

And vnto certayne which trusted in thē selues, that they were perfecte, and despysed other, he spake this symilitude: There wente vp two men in to the tēple, to praye: the one a pharise, the other a publican. The pharise stode, and prayed by himself after this maner: I thanke the God, that I am not as other men, robbers, vnrighteous, aduouters, or as this publican. I fast twyse in the weke, I geue the tithes of all that I haue. And the publican stode afarre of, and wolde not lift vp his eyes to heaven, but smote vpon his brest, and sayde: God be thou mercyfull vnto me synner. I tell you: This man wente downe in to his house iustified more thē the other. For who so euer exalteth himself, shalbe brought lowe: and he that humbleth himself, shalbe exalted.

They brought yonge children also vnto him, that he shulde touch them. But whan the disciples sawe that, they rebuked them. Neuertheles Jesus called them vnto him, and sayde: Suffre childrē to come vnto me, and forbyd thē not, for of soch is ỹ kyngdome of God. Verely I saye vnto you: Whosoeuer receaueth not ỹ kyngdome of God as a childe, shal not enter therin.

And a certayne ruler axed him, and sayde: Good master, what must I do, that I maye enherete euerlastinge life? But Jesus sayde vnto him: Why callest thou me good? There is no man good, but God onely. Thou knowest the cōmaundementes: Thou shalt not breake wedlocke: Thou shalt not kyll: Thou shalt not steale: Thou shalt not beare false wytnesse: Honoure thy father and ỹ mother. But he sayde: All these haue I kepte fro my youth vp. Whā Jesus herde that, he sayde vnto him: Yet lackest thou one thinge, sell all that thou hast, and geue it vnto ỹ poore, and thou shalt haue a treasure in heauen, and come & folowe me. Whan he herde that, he was sory, for he was very riche. Mat.19.a Mar.10.b Exo.20.c

Whan Jesus sawe that he was sory, he sayde: How hardly shal the riche come in to the kyngdome of God? It is easyer for a Camell to go thorow the eye of a nedle, thē for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of God. Then sayde they ỹ herde that: Who can then be saued? But he sayde: loke what is vnpossible with mē, is possible with God. Mat.19.c Marc.10.c Luc.1.c

Then sayde Peter: Beholde, we haue forsake all, and folowed the. He sayde vnto thē: Verely I saye vnto you: There is no mā ỹ forsaketh house, or elders, or brethren, or wife, or children for the kyngdome of Gods sake, which shal not receaue moch more in this tyme, and euerlastinge life in the worlde to come. Mat.19.d Mar.10.c

He toke vnto him the twolue, and sayde vnto them: Beholde, we go vp to Jerusalē, and it shal all be fulfilled, that is wrytten by the prophetes of the sonne of man. For he shal be delyuered vnto ỹ Heythen, and shalbe mocked, and despytefully intreated, and spitted vpon: and whan they haue scourged him, they shal put him to death, and vpon the thirde daye shal he aryse agayne. And they vnderstode nothinge of these thinges. And this sayenge was hyd from them, and they perceaued not the thinges that were spoken. D Mat.20.b Marc.10.d Luc.23.a Luc.3.g

And it came to passe, whan he came nye vnto Jericho, there sat one blynde by the waye, and begged. And whan he herde the people passe by, he axed what it was. Then sayde they vnto him, that Jesus of Nazareth passed by. And he cryed, and sayde: Jesu thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercy vpon me. But the people that wente before, rebuked him, that he shulde holde his tunge. Neuertheles he cried moch more: Thou sonne of Dauid haue mercy vpō me. Jesus stode styll, & cōmaunded hī to be brought vnto hī. And whan he was come neare, he axed him and Mat.20.d Marc.10.e

sayde: What wilt thou, that I do vnto the? He sayde: LORDE, that I maye receaue my sight. And Jesus sayde vnto him: Receaue thy sight, thy faith hath saued the. And immediatly he sawe, and folowed him, & praysed God. And all the people that sawe it, gaue God the prayse.

The XIX. Chapter.

A AND he entred in, and wente thorow Jericho: & beholde, there was a man named Zacheus, which was a ruler of the publicans, and was riche, and desyred to se Jesus what he shulde be, and he coulde not for the people, for he was lowe of stature. And he ranne before, and clymmed vp in to a wylde fygge tre, that he might se him: for he shulde come yͤ waye. And whan Jesus came to the same place, he loked vp, and sawe him, and sayde vnto him: Zache, come downe haistely, for todaye must I turne in to thy house. And he came downe hastely, Act.16.e and receaued him * with ioye. Whan they sawe that, they murmured all, and sayde, yͤ he was gone in, to a synner.

But Zacheus stode forth, and sayde vnto the LORDE: Beholde LORDE, the half of my goodes gene I to the poore: and yf I haue defrauded eny man, I restore him foure folde. Jesus sayde vnto him: This daye is healthe happened vnto this house, for so moch as he also is Abrahams sonne. * For Mat.15.c the sonne of mā is come, to seke and to saue that which was lost.

Now whyle they herkened, he tolde a symilitude also, because he was nye vnto Jerusalem, and because they thought, that the kyngdome of God shulde appeare immediatly. And he sayde: A certayne noble mā wēte in to a farre countre, to receaue hī a kyngdome, and then to come agayne. Mat.25.a Marc.13.d This man called ten of his seruauntes, and delyuered them ten pounde, and sayde vnto them: Occupye, tyll I come agayne. But his citesyns hated him, and sent a message after him, and sayde: We wil not haue this man to raigne ouer vs.

B And it fortuned whan he came agayne, after that he had receaued the kyngdome, he bade call for the seruauntes, vnto whom he had genē his money, yͤ he might knowe, what euery one had done. Then came the first and sayde: Syr, thy pounde hath wonne ten pounde. And he sayde vnto him: Well thou good seruaūt, for so moch as thou hast bene faithfull in the least, thou shalt haue auctorite ouer ten cities. The seconde came also, and sayde: Syr, thy pounde hath wonne fyue pounde. And to him he sayde: And thou shalt be ouer fyue cities. And yͤ thirde came, and sayde: Lo syr, here is thy pounde, which I haue kepte in a napkyn. I was afrayed of the, for thou art an harde man, thou takest vp yͤ thou hast not layed downe, and reapest that thou hast not sowne. He sayde vnto him: * Of thine awne mouth iudge I the thou euell seruaunt. Knewest thou that I am an harde man, takynge vp that I layde not downe, and reapynge that I dyd not sowe? Wherfore then hast thou not delyuered my money to the exchaunge banke? And at my commynge might I haue requyred myne awne with vauntage? a.Re Mat

And he sayde vnto them that stode by: C Take yͤ pounde from him, and geue it vnto him that hath ten pounde. And they sayde vnto him: Syr, he hath ten pounde already. But I saye vnto you: Whosoeuer hath, vnto him shal be geuē: but from him that hath not, shal be taken awaye euen that he hath. As for those myne enemies, which wolde not that I shulde raigne ouer them, bringe them hither, and slaye them before me. And whan he had thus sayde, he wēte on forwarde, and toke his iourney vp to Jerusalem.

And it fortuned whan he came nye to Bethphage and Bethany vnto mount Oliuete, he sent two of his disciples, and sayde: Go in to the towne that lyeth ouer agaynst you, and assone as ye are come in, ye shal fynde a foale tyed, wheron yet neuer man sate, lowse it, and bringe it hither. And yf eny mā aske you wherfore ye lowse it, saye thus vnto him. The LORDE hath nede therof.

And they that were sent, wēte their waye and founde euen as he had sayde. But whī they lowsed yͤ foale, the owners therof sayde vnto thē: Why lowse ye the foale? They sayde: The LORDE hath nede therof. And they brought it vnto Jesus, and cast their clothes vpō the foale, and set Jesus theron. Now as he wente, they spred their garmentes in the waye.

And whan he wēte downe fro mount Oliuete, yͤ whole multitude of his disciples begāne ioyfully to prayse God with loude voyce, ouer all the miracles that they had sene, and sayde: Blessed be he, that cōmeth a kynge in the name of the LORDE. * Peace be in heauen, and prayse in the height. And some of the Pharises amonge the people sayde vnto him: Master, rebuke thy disciples. And he answered and sayde vnto them: I tell you, * yf these holde their peace, yet shal the stones crye.

And whan he was come neare, he behelde the cite, and * wepte vpō it, and sayde: Yf thou knewest what were for ỳ peace, thou shuldest remēbre it euen in this present daye of thine. But now is it hyd from thine eyes. For the tyme shal come vpon the, that thine enimies shal cast vp a bāke aboute the, and aboute thy children with the, and besege ỳ, and kepe the in on euery syde, and make the euen with the grounde, and shal not leaue in the one stone vpon another, because thou hast not knowne ỳ tyme, wherin thou hast bene visited.

And he wente into the temple, and begā ne to dryue out them that bought and solde therin, and sayde vnto them: It is wrytten: * My house is an house of prayer, but ye ha ue made it a denne of murthurers. And he taught daylie in the tēple. But the hye prestes and the scrybes and the chefest of ỳ people wente aboute to destroye him, and founde not, what to do vnto him. For all the people stacke by him, and gaue him audience.

The XX. Chapter.

AND it fortuned one of those dayes, whan he taught the people in the tēple, and preached the Gospell, the hye prestes and scrybes came to him with the Elders, and spake vnto him, and sayde: Tell vs, by what auctorite doest thou these thinges? Or who gaue the this auctorite? But he answered, & sayde vnto thē: I wil axe you a worde also, tell it me: The baptyme of Jhō was it from heauen, or of men? But they thought in them selues, and sayde: Yf we saye, from heauen, then shal he saye: Why dyd ye not thē beleue him? But yf we saye, of men, then shal all the people stone vs, for they be persuaded, that Jhon is a prophet. And they answered, that they coulde not tell, whence it was. And Jesus sayde vnto them: Nether tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thinges.

And he beganne to tell the people this symilitude: A certayne man planted a vynyarde, and let it out vnto hußbādmen, and went himself in to a straunge countre for a greate season. And whan his tyme was come, he sent a seruaūt to the hußbādmen, that they might geue him of the frute of the vynyarde. But the hußbandmen bet him, and sent him awaye emptye. And agayne he sent yet another seruaūt: but they bet him also, and intreated him shamefully, & sent him awaye emptye. And besydes this, he sent the thirde: but they wounded him also, and thrust him out. Then sayde the lorde of the vynyarde: What shal I do? I wil sende my * deare sonne, peraduenture they wil stonde in awe of him, whan they se him. Iohā 5.c Rom.8. Phil.2.a

But whan the hußbande men sawe the sonne, they thought in thē selues, and sayde: This is the heyre, come, * let vs kyll him, ỳ the inheritaunce maye be oures. And they thrust him out of ỳ vynyarde, and slew him. What shal now the lorde of the vynyarde do vnto them? He shal come, and destroye those hußbandmen, and let out his vynyarde vnto other. Whan they herde that, they sayde: God forbyd. Gen.37.

But he beheldē thē, and sayde: What is this then that is wrytten: The same stone which the buylders refused, is become the head corner stone? Who so euer falleth vpon this stone, shalbe broken in sunder: but vpō whō so euer he falleth, he shall grynde him to poulder. And the hye prestes and scrybes wente aboute to laye handes vpon him the same houre, and they feared the people: for they perceaued, that he had spokē this symilitude agaynst them. Psal.117. Esa.28.c Mat.21.c Marc.12. Luc.19.c

And they watched hī, & sent forth spyes, which shulde fayne thē selues perfecte, that they might take him in his wordes, to delyner him vnto the power and auctorite of ỳ debite. And they axed him, & sayde: Master, we knowe that thou sayest & teachest right, and regardest the outwarde appearaūce of no man, but teachest the waye of God truly. Is it lawfull, that we geue tribute vnto the Emperoure, or not? But he perceaued their craftynes, and sayde vnto them: Why tēpte ye me? Shewe me the peny. Whose ymage and superscripcion hath it? They answered, and sayde: The Emperours. Then sayde he vnto them: Geue thē vnto the Emperoure, that which is the Emperours: & vnto God, that which is Gods. And they coulde not repreue his worde before the people, and marueyled at his answere, and helde their peace. Mat.22.c Marc.12.c

Then came vnto him certayne of the Saduces (which holde that there is no resurrection) and axed him, and sayde: Master, Moses wrote vnto vs, yf eny mans brother dye hauynge a wife, and dyeth without childrē, then shal his brother take his wife, and raise vp sede vnto his brother. Now were there seuē brethrē: the first toke a wife, and dyed childlesse: and the seconde toke the wife, and deyed without children also: and the thirde toke her, likewyse all the seuē, and left no children behynde thē, and dyed. At the last after them all, the woman dyed also. Now in the resurrection, whose wife shal she be of them Deut.25.a

For seuen had her to wife. And Jesus answered and saide vnto them: The childrē of this worlde mary, & are maried, but they ỹ shalbe worthy to enioye that worlde and the resurreccion from the deed, shal nether mary ner be maried, for they can dye nomore. For Iohā.3.a they are like vnto the aungels, and are the* children of God, in so moch as they are children of the resurreccion.

℣ But that the deed ryse agayne, hath Moses also signified besydes the bush, when he Exod.3.a called the LORDE, the God of Abraham, the God of Jsaac, and the God of Jacob. But God is not a God of the deed but of the lyuynge, for they lyue all vnto him. Then answered certayne of the scrybes, and sayde: Master, thou haist sayde well. And from that tyme forth they durst axe him no mo questions.

Mat.22.d Marc 12.d But he sayde vnto them: How saye they that Christ is Dauids sonne? And Dauid himself sayeth in the boke of the psalmes:
Psal.109.a The LORDE sayde vnto my LORDE: Syt thou on my right honde, tyll I make thine enemies thy fote stole. Dauid calleth him LORDE, how is he then his sonne?

Mat.23.a Marc.12.d Luc.11.d Now whyle all the people gaue audience, he sayde vnto his disciples: Bewarre of the scrybes, which wyl go in longe garmentes, and loue to be saluted vpon the market, and desyre to syt hyest in the synagoges, and at the table. They deuoure wedowes houses and that vnder a culoure of longe prayenge: These shal receaue the greater dānacion.

The XXI. Chapter.

A Marc.12.d AND he loked vp, and beheelde ỹ riche, how they put in their offerynges in to the Gods chest. He sawe also a poore wedowe, which put in two mytes, and he 1.Cor.9.b sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: This poore wedowe hath put in more thē they all: For these all haue of their excesse put in vnto the offerynge of God, but she of hir pouerte hath put in all hir lyuynge that she had.

Mat.24.a Marc.13.a And whā some spake of the temple, that it was garnished with goodly stones and 3.Re.9.b Iere.7.b Jewels, he saide: The time shal come, wher Luc.19.d in of all this that ye se, there shal not be left one stone vpon another, which shal not be broken downe. They axed him, and sayde: Master, whā shal these be? and what shalbe the token, whan these shal come to passe?

He sayde: Take hede, that ye be not dis-
1.Ioh.4.a ceaued: For many shal come in my name, and saye, I am he, & the tyme is come hard by. Folowe them not.

B But whan ye heare of warres and insurreccions, be not ye afrayed, for soch must come to passe, but the ende is not yet there so soone. Then sayde he vnto them: One people shal ryse agaynst another, and one realme ageynst another, & shal be greate earthEsa.19.a quakes here and there, pestilence, and derth, and fearfull thinges. And greate tokēs shal there be frō heauē. But before all these, they Mat. and Mar. Luc. Iohā. and shal laye handes vpon you, and persecute you, and delyuer you vp in to their synagoges and presons, and bringe you before kynges & princes for my names sake. But this shal happen vnto you for a wyenesse. Beat a poynt therfore in youre hertes, that ye take no thought, how ye shal answere: for I wil geue you mouth & wyßdome, ggaynst Luc. Mat. Act. the which all youre aduersaries shal not be able to speake ner to resist. But ye shal be Mich. delyuered vp euen of youre elders, brethren, kynsfolkes and frendes, and some of you shal they put vnto death, and ye shal be hated of euery man for my names sake, and yet shal not one hayre of youre heade perishe. Holde fast youre soules with pacience.

But whan ye shal se Jerusalem beseged C with an hoost, then vnderstonde, that the desolacion of it is nye. Then let them which Mat. Mar. be in Jewry, flye vnto the mountaynes. And let soch as be in the myddest therof, departe out: and let soch as be in the countrees, not come therin. For these are the dayes of vengeaunce, that euery thinge which is wryten, maye be fulfilled. But wo vnto them that are with childe, and to them that geue sucke in those dayes: for there shalbe greate trouble vpon earth, and wrath ouer this people, and they shal fall thorow the edge of the swerde, and be led captyne amōge all nacions. And Jerusalē shalbe troden downe of the Heithen, vntyll the tyme of the Heithen be fulfilled. Luc.

And there shalbe tokens in the Sonne m and Mone, and starres, and vpon earth the Mat. Mar. people shalbe in soch perplexite, that they Luc. shal not tell which waye to turne them selues. And the see and the waters shal roare, and men shal pyne awaye for feare, and for lokynge after the thinges which shal come vpō earth. For euen the very powers of heauen shal moue.

And then shal they se the sonne of man Mat. Mar. Luc. commynge in the cloude with power and greate glory. But whan these thinges begynne to come to passe, thē loke vp, and lifte vpp youre heades, for youre redempcion draweth nye.

And he tolde them a symilitude: Beholde the fygge tre, and all tre trees, whā they now shute forth their buddes, ye se by them, and perceaue, that Sommer is now at hande. So likewyse ye, whan ye se all these thinges come to passe, be sure that the kyngdome of God is nye. Verely I saye vnto you: This generaciō shal not passe, tyll all be fulfilled. Heauen and earth shal passe, but my wordes shal not passe.

But take hede vnto youre selues, that yō hertes be not overladē with excesse of eatinge and with dronkennes, and with takinge of thought for lyuynge, and so this daye come vpō you vnawares. For as a snare shal it come on all them that dwell vpon earth. Watch therfore cōtynually, and praye, that ye maye be worthy to escape all this that shal come, & to stōde before ỹ sonne of man.

And on the daye tyme he taught in the temple, but in the night seasōn he wente out and abode all night vpon mount Oliuete. And all the people gat them vp early vnto him in the temple, for to heare him.

The XXII. Chapter.

The feast of swete bred (which is called Easter) drue nye. And ỹ hye prestes and Scrybes sought how they might put him to death, and were afrayed of the people. But * Satan was entred in to Judas, named Iscarioth (which was of ỹ nombre of ỹ twolue) and he wēte his waye, and talked with the hye prestes and with ỹ officers, how he wolde betraye him vnto them. And they were glad, and promysed to geue him money. And he cōsented, & sought oportunite, ỹ he might betraye hī without ỹ rumoure.

Then came ỹ daye of swete bred, wherin the Easter lambe must be offered. And he sent Peter and Jhon, and sayde: Go youre waye, prepare vs the Easter lambe, that we maye eate. But they sayde vnto him: Where wilt thou, that we prepare it? He saide vnto them: Beholde, whā ye come in to ỹ cite, there shal mete you a man, bearinge a pitcher of water, folowe him in to the house ỹ he entreth in, and saye vnto the good man of the house: The master sendeth ỹ worde: Where is ỹ gesthouse, wherin I maye eate the Easter lābe with my disciples? And he shal shewe you a greate parlour paued. They wente their waye, and founde as he had sayde vnto them, and made ready the Easter lambe.

And whan the houre came, he sat him downe, and the twolue Apostles with him, and he sayde vnto them: I haue hertely desyred to eate this Easter lābe with you before I suffre. For I saye vnto you: that hence forth I wil eate no more therof, tyll it be fulfilled in the kyngdome of God. And he toke the cuppe, gaue thankes, and sayde: Take this and deuyde it amonge you. For I saye vnto you: I wil not drynke of the frute of ỹ vyne, vntyll the kyngdome of God come. Mat. 26. Mar. 14. 1. Cor. 11.

And he toke the bred, gaue thankes, and brake it, and gaue it them, and sayde: This is my body, * which shalbe geuen for you. This do in the remembraunce of me. Likewyse also the cuppe, after they had supped, and sayde: This cuppe is the new Testamēt in my blonde, which shalbe shed for you. Iohā. 6. E

But lo, the hande of him that betrayeth me, is with me on the table. And the sonne of man truly goeth forth, as it is appoynted. But wo vnto that man, by whom he is betrayed. And they beganne to axe amonge them selues, which of them it shulde be, that shulde do that. Mat. 26. Mar. 14.

There rose a strife also amōge thē, which of them shulde be takē for the greatest. But he sayde vnto them: The kynges of ỹ worlde haue domynion ouer ỹ people, and they that beare rule ouer thē, are called gracious lordes. * But ye shal not be so: But the greatest amonge you, shalbe as the yongest: and the chefest, as a seruaunt. For which is the greatest? he that sytteth at the table, or he that serueth? Is not he that sytteth at the table? * But I am amōge you as a mynister. As for you, ye are they, that haue bydde wt me in my temptacions. And I wil appoynte the kyngdome vnto you, euen as my father hath appoynted me, that ye maye eate and drynke at my table in my kyngdome, * and syt vpon seates, and iudge the twolue trybes of Israel. And whan thou art cōuerted, strength thy brethren: But he sayde vnto him: LORDE, I am ready to go with the in to preson, and in to death. Neuertheles he sayde: Peter, I saye vnto the: The cock shal not crowe this daye, tyll thou haue thryse denyed, ỹ thou knewest me. C Mat. 26. Marc. 14. Iohā. 13. d

Iohā. 6.d And there appeared vnto him an angell frō heauen, and conforted him. And it came so, that he wrestled with death, and prayed the longer. And his sweate was like droppes of bloude, runnynge downe to the grounde. And he rose vp frō prayer, and came to his disciples, and founde them slepinge for heuynesse, and sayde vnto them: What, slepe ye? ryse vp and praye, that ye fall not in to tentacion.

Then kyndled they a fyre in the myddest of the palace, and sat them downe together. And Peter sat him downe amonge them. Then a damsell sawe him syttinge by the light, and behelde him well, and sayde vnto him: This same was also with him. But he denyed him, and sayde: Womā, I knowe him not. And after a litle whyle, another sawe him, and sayde: Thou art one of them also. But Peter sayde: Man, I am not.

And aboute the space of an houre after, L another affirmed, & sayde: Verely this was with him also, for he is a Galilean. But Peter saide: Mā, I wote not what thou sayest. And immediatly whyle he yet spake, ye cock crewe. And the LORDE turned him aboute and loked vpō Peter. And Peter remembred the wordes of ye LORDE, how he sayde vnto him: * Before the cock crowe, thou shalt denye me thryse. And Peter wente out, and wepte bytterly.

The men that helde Jesus, mocked him, and stroke him, blyndfolded him, and smote him on the face, and axed him, and sayde: Prophecie, who is it that smote the? And many other blasphemies sayde they vnto hī.

And whan it was daye, there gathered together the Elders of the people, the hye prestes and scrybes, and led him vp before, their councell, and sayde: Art thou Christ? Tell vs. But he sayde vnto them: Yf I tell you, ye wyl not beleue: But yf I axe you, ye wyl not answere me, nether wyl ye let me go. From this tyme forth shal the sonne of Col. Heb. and man sytt at the right hāde of the power of God. Then sayde they all: Art thou then ye sonne of God? He sayde vnto them: Ye saye it, for I am. They sayde: What nede we anye farther wytnesse? We oure selues haue herde it of his awne mouth.

The XXIII. Chapter.

AND the whole multitude of thē arose, and led him vnto Pilate, and begāne to accuse him, and sayde: We haue founde this felowe peruertinge the people, and forbyddinge to geue trybute vnto the Emperoure, and sayeth, that he is Christ a kynge. But Pilate axed him, and sayde: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? He answered him, and sayde: Thou sayest it. Pilate sayde vnto ye hye prestes and to the people: I fynde no cause in this man. But they were the more fearce, and sayde: He hath moued the people, in that he hath taught here & there in all the londe of Jewry, and hath * begonne at Galile vnto this place.

Whan Pilate herde mencion of Galile, he axed whether he were of Galile. And whan he perceaued that he was vnder * Herodes iurisdiccion * he sent him to Herode, which was also at Jerusalē in those dayes. When Herode sawe Jesus, he was exceadinge glad, for he had longe bene desyrous to se him: because * he had herde moch of him, & hoped to se a miracle of hī. And he axed him many thinges. Neuertheles he answered him nothinge. The hye prestes and scrybes stode, and accused him sore. But Herode with his men of warre despysed him, and mocked him, put a whyte garmēt vpō him, and sent him agayne vnto Pilate. Vpō ỹ same daye were Pilate and Herode made frendes togeather, for afore they had bene at varyaunce.

B Pilate called the hye prestes, and the rulers, and the people together, and sayde vnto thē: Ye haue brought this man vnto me, as one that peruerteth the people, and beholde, I haue examyned him before you, & fynde in the mā none of the causes, wherof ye accuse him: Nor yet Herode: for I sent you to him, and beholde, there is brought vpon hī nothinge, that is worthy of death. Therfore wil I chasten him, and let him lowse: For he must haue let one lowse vnto them after the custome of the feast.

Then cried the whole multitude, and sayde: Awaye with him, and delyuer vnto vs Barrabas, which for insurrecciō made in the cite, and because of a murthur, was cast into preson. Then called Pilate vnto them agayne, & wolde haue let Jesus lowse. But they cried, and sayde: Crucifye him, Crucifye him. Yet sayde he vnto them, the thirde tyme: What euell thē hath he done? I fynde no cause of death in hī, therfore wil I chasten him, and let him go. But they laye styll vpon him with greate crye, and requyred ỹ he might be crucified. And the voyce of thē and of the hye preastes prenayled.

C And Pilate gaue sentence, that it shulde be as they requyred, and let lowse vnto thē, him, that for insurrecciō and murthur was cast into preson, whom they desyred, but gaue Jesus ouer vnto their wyll. And as they led him awaye, they toke one Simon of Cyren (which came from the felde) and layed ỹ crosse vpon him, to beare it after Jesus.

And there folowed him a greate multitude of people and of wemen, which bewayled and lamented him. But Jesus turned him aboute vnto thē, and sayde: Ye doughters of Jerusalē, wepe not ouer me: but wepe ouer youre selues, and ouer youre childrē. For beholde, the tyme wil come, wherin it shal be sayde: Blessed are the baren, and the wombes that haue not borne, and the pappes that haue not geuen sucke. * Then shal they begynne to saye vnto the mountaynes: Fall vpon vs. And to the hylles: Couer vs. For yf this be done to a grene tre, what shal be done then to the drye?

And two other (which were myßdoers) were led out also, to be put to death with him. And whā they came to ỹ place, which is called Caluery, they crucifyed him euen there, and the two myßdoers with him, the one on the righte hande, the other on ỹ left. But Jesus sayde: Father, forgeue them, for they wote not what they do. And they parted his garmentes, and cast lottes therfore. And the people stode and beheld. Act.7. * Psal.2. Mat.27. Marc.15. Iohā.19.

D And the rulers mocked him with them, and sayde: He hath helped other, let him helpe him self now, yf he be Christ ỹ chosen of God. The soudyers also mocked him, wēte vnto him, & brought him vyneger, and sayde: Yf thou be the kynge of the Jewes, then helpe thy self. And aboue ouer him was this superscripcion wrytten with letters of Greke, Latyn, and Hebrue: This is the kynge of the Jewes. Mat.27. Iohā.19.

And one of the myßdoers that hanged there, blasphemed him, and sayde: Yf thou be Christ, then helpe thy self and vs. Then answered the other, rebuked him, and sayde: And thou feareste not God also, which art yet in like dānacion. And truly we are therin be right, for we receaue acordinge to oure dedes. As for this man, he hath done nothinge amysse. And he sayde vnto Jesus: LORDE, remembre me, whan thou commest in to thy kyngdome. And Jesus sayde vnto him: Verely I saye vnto the: To daye shalt thou be with me in Paradyse. And it was aboute the sixte houre, and there was darkenesse ouer ỹ whole londe vntyll the nyenth houre. And the Sonne was darkened, and the vayle of the temple rente in two euen thorow the myddes. Mat.27. Marc.15.

And Jesus cryed loude, & sayde: Father, * in to thy handes I commende my spirete. And whan he had so sayde, he gaue vp the goost. But whan the Captayne sawe what had happened, he praysed God, and sayde: Verely this was a iust mā. And all the people that stode by & behelde, whan they sawe what was done, smote vpon their brestes, & turned backe agayne. But all his acquantaunce, and the wemen that had folowed him out of Galile, stode a farre of, and beheld all these thinges. E Psal.30. Act.7. Mat.27. Marc.15.

And beholde, a mā named Joseph, a Senatour, which was a good iust man, the same had not consented vnto their councell and dede, which was of Arimathia a cite of the Jewes, which same also wayted for the kyngdome of God: he wēte vnto Pilate, and axed the body of Jesus. And the toke him downe, wrapped him in a lynnen cloth, and Mat.27. Marc.15. Iohā.19.

layed him in a hewen sepulcre, wherin neuer man was layed. And it was the daye of preparinge, and the Sabbath drue on.

luc.8.a The wemen that were come with him out of Galile, folowed him, and behelde the Sepulcre, & how his body was layed. But they returned, and made ready the spyces & anoyntmētes. And vpon the Sabbath they rested, acordinge to the lawe.

The XXIIII. Chapter.

A mat.28.a marc.16.a luc.24.a BVt vpon one of the Sabbathes very early in the mornynge, they came vnto the Sepulcre, and brought ỹ spyces which they had prepared, and certayne wemen with thē. Neuertheles they founde the stone rolled awaye from the sepulcre, and wente in, and founde not the body of ỹ luc.24.b LORDE Jesu. * And it happened as they were amased therat, beholde, there stode by them two men in shyninge garmentes. And they were afrayed, and cast downe their faces to the earth. Then sayde they vnto thē: What seke ye: the lyuynge amōge the dede: He is not here. He is rysen vp. Remembre, how ỹ he tolde you whā he was yet in Galile, and sayde: * The sonne of man must be delyuered in to the hādes of synners, and be crucified, and the thirde daye rysē agayne.

luc.9.c And they remēbred his wordes, and wente from the sepulcre, and tolde all this vnto the eleuen, and to all the other. It was Mary Magdalene, and Johanna, and Mary James, and the other with them, that tolde this vnto the Apostles. And theyr wordes semed vnto them, as though they had bene but fables, and they beleued them not. But Peter arose, and ranne to the sepulcre, and stouped in, and sawe the lynnen clothes layed by them selues, and departed. And he wondred within himself at that which had happened

B mat.28.b marc.16.b luc.24.b And beholde, two of them wente that same daye, to a towne (which was thre score furlōges from Jerusalem) whose name was called Emaus. And they talked together of all these thinges ỹ had happened. And luc.18.c it chaunced as they were thus talkinge and reasonynge together, Jesus himself drue nye, and wente with them. But their eyes were holden, that they shulde not knowe hī. And he sayde vnto them: What maner of cōmunicacions are these that ye haue one to another as ye walke, and are sad: Then answered the one, whose name was Cleophas, and sayde vnto him: Art thou onely a straunger at Jerusalē, not knowinge what is come to passe there in these dayes: And he sayde vnto thē: What: They sayde vnto him: That of Jesus of Nazareth, * which mat.21.c was a prophet, mighty in dede and worde, before God and all ỹ people, how oure hye prestes and rulers delyuered him to the condemnacion of death, and crucified him. But we hoped that he shulde haue delyuered Israel. And besydes all this, to daye is the thirde daye that this was done. * Yee & certayne wemen also of oure company which luc.24.c were early at the Sepulcre, and founde not his body, came and tolde, that they had sene a visiō of angels, which sayde he was alyue. And certayne of them that were with vs, wente vnto the sepulcre, and founde it euen so as ỹ wemē sayde, but hī founde they not.

C And he sayde vnto thē: O ye fooles and slowe of hert to beleue all that the prophetes haue spokē: * Ought not Christ to haue luc.24.c suffred these thinges, and to entre in to his glory: And he beganne at Moses and at all the prophetes, and expounded vnto them all the scriptures, that were spoken of him. And they drue nye vnto the towne, which they wēte vnto, and he made as though he wolde haue gone farther. * And they com- Gen.19.c pelled him, and sayde: Abyde with vs, for it Luc.24.c draweth towardes night, and the daye is farre passed. And he wente in to tary with thē. And it came to passe whan he sat at the table with thē, he toke the bred, gaue thankes, brake it, and gaue it them. Then were their eyes opened, and they knewe him. And he vanyshed out of their sight. And they sayde, betwene thē selues: Dyd not oure hert burne with in vs, whan he talked with vs by the waye, whyle he opened the scriptures vnto vs: And they rose vp the same houre, turned agayne to Jerusalem, and founde ỹ elenē gathered togethe, and them that were with them, which sayde: The LORDE is rysen of a trueth, and hath appeared vnto Symon. And they tolde thē what had happened by ỹ waye, and how they knewe him in breakynge of the bred.

But whyle they were talkynge therof, Jesus himself stode in the myddes amonge thē, and sayde: Peace be with you. But they were abashed and afrayed, supposinge that they had sene a spirite. And he saide vnto thē: D Why are ye abashed: & wherfore ryse therē soch thoughtes in yō hertes: Beholde my hādes & my fete, it is euen I my self. Handle me, and se, for a spirite hath not flesh and bones, as ye se me haue. And whan he had thus spokē, he shewed thē his hōdes and his fete. But whyle they yet beleued not for ioye and wondred, he sayde vnto them: Haue ye any thinge here to eate? And they set before him a pece of a broyled fish, and an hony combe. And he toke it, and ate it before thē.

And he sayde vnto them: * These are the wordes, which I spake vnto you, whyle I was yet with you. For it must all be fulfilled that was wrytten of me in the lawe of Moses, in the prophetes, & in the psalmes. Thē opened he their vnderstondinge, that they might vnderstonde the scriptures, and sayde vnto them: * Thus is it wrytte, and thus it behoued Christ to suffre, & the thirde daye to ryse agayne frō the deed, and to let repentaunce and remyssion, of synnes be preached in his name amōge all nacions, * and to begynne at Jerusalē. As for all these thinges, ye are wytnesses of thē. And beholde, I wil sende vpon you the * promes of my father: but ye shal tary in the cite of Jerusalem, tyll ye be endewed with power from aboue.

* But he led them out vnto Bethany, and lift vp his handes, and blessed them. And it came to passe whā he blessed them, he departed from them, and was caried vp into heauen. And they worshipped him, and turned agayne to Jerusalem with greate ioye: and were contynnally in ỳ tēple, geuynge prayse and thankes vnto God. Amen.

The gospell of S. Jhon.

The first Chapter.

A N the begynnynge was the worde, and the worde was with God, and God was ỹ worde. The same was in the begynnynge wt God. * All thinges were made by the same, and without the same was made nothinge that was made. In him was the * life, and the life was the * light of men: and the light shyneth in the darkneſſe, and the darkneſſe comprehended it not.

There was sent from God a man, whose name was Jhon. The same came for a witneſſe, to beare wytneſſe of ỹ light, that thorow him they all might beleve. * He was not that light, but that he might beare witneſſe of ỹ light. That was the true light, which lighteth all men, that come in to this worlde. He was in the worlde, & the worlde was made by him, and ỹ worlde knewe him not. He came in to his awne, and his awne receaued him not. But as many as receaued him, * to them gave he power to be the children of God: euen soch as beleve in his name. Which are not borne of blonde, ner of the wyl of the flesh, ner of the wyl of man, but of God.

B And the worde became flesh, and dwelt amonge vs: * and we sawe his glory, a glory as of the onely begotte sonne of the father, full of grace and trueth.

Jhon bare wytneſſe of him, cryed, and sayde: It was this, of whom I spake: After me shal he come, that was before me, For he was or euer I: and * of his fulneſſe have all we receaued grace for grace. For the lawe was geuen by Moses, grace and trueth came by Jesus Christ. No man hath sene God at eny tyme. The onely begotte sonne which is in the bosome of the father, he hath declared the same vnto vs.

And this is the recorde of Jhon, whan the Jewes sent preſtes and Leuites frō Jerusalem, to axe him: Who art thou? And * he confeſſed and denyed not. And he confeſſed, and sayde: I am not Christ. And they axed him: What thē? Art thou Elias? He sayde: I am not. Art thou the * prophet? And he answered: No. Then sayde they vnto him: What art thou thē, ỹ we maye gene answere vnto thē that sent vs? What sayeſt thou of ỹ self? He sayde: I am ỹ voyce of a cryer in the wylderneſſe. Make straight ỹ waye of the LORDE. * As ỹ prophet Esay sayde.

And they that were sent, were of ỹ pharises. And they axed him, & sayde vnto him: Why baptyseſt thou then, yf thou be not Christ, ner Elias, ner a prophet? Jhon answered them, and sayde: I baptyse with water, but there is one come in amonge you, whom ye knowe not. It is he that cōmeth after me, which was before me: whose shue lachet I am not worthy to vnlowse. This was done at Bethabara beyonde Jordane, * where Jhon dyd baptyse.

The nexte daye after, Jhon sawe Jesus commynge vnto him, and sayde: Beholde the * lābe of God, which taketh awaye the synne of the worlde. This is he, of whom I sayde vnto you: After me commeth a man, which was before me. For he was or ever I, and I knewe him not: but that he shulde be declared in Israel, therfore am I come to baptyse with water.

And Jhon bare recorde, & sayde: I sawe the spirite descende from heaven like vnto a doue, and abode vpon him, & I knewe him not. But he that sent me to baptyse with water, ỹ same sayde vnto me: Vpon whom thou shalt se the spirite descende and tary styll on him, the same is he, that baptyseth with the holy goost. And I sawe it, and bare recorde, that this is the sonne of God.

The nexte daye after, Jhon stode agayne, and two of his disciples. And whā he sawe Jesus walkynge, he sayde: Beholde the lābe of God. And two of his disciples herde him speake, and folowed Jesus. And Jesus turned him aboute, and sawe them folowinge, and sayde vnto thē: What seke ye? They sayde vnto him: Rabbi, (which is to saye by interpretacion, Master.) Where art thou as lodginge? He sayde vnto them: Come and se it. They came and sawe it, & abode with him the same daye. It was aboute the tenth houre.

One of the two, which herde Jhon speake, and folowed Jesus, was Andrew the brother of Symon Peter: the same founde first his brother Symon, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde Messias (which is by interpretacion, ỳ Anoynted) and brought him to Jesus. Whan Jesus behelde him, he sayde: Thou art Symon the sonne of Jonas, * thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretacion, a stone.

The nexte daye after, wolde Jesus goagayne in to Galile, and founde Philippe, and sayde vnto him: Folowe me. Philippe was of Bethsaida the cite of Andrew and Peter. Philippe founde Nathanael, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde him, of whō * Moses in the lawe, and ỳ * prophetes haue written, euen Jesus the sonne of Joseph of Nazareth. And Nathanaell sayde vnto him: * What good can come out of Nazareth? Philippe sayde vnto him: Come, and se.

Jesus sawe Nathanael cōmynge to him, and sayde of him: Beholde, a righte Israelite, in whom is no gyle. Nathanael sayde vnto him: From whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Before ỳ philippe called the, whan thou wast vnder the fygge tre, I sawe the. Nathanaell answered, and sayde vnto hī: Rabbi, thou art ỳ sonne of God, thou art ỳ kynge of Israel. Jesus answered, & sayde vnto him: Because I sayde vnto the, that I sawe the vnder the fygge tre, thou beleuest: thou shalt se yet greater thinges thē these. And he sayde vnto him: Verely verely I saye vnto you: frō this tyme forth shal ye se the heauen open, and the angels of God goinge vp & downe ouer the sonne of man.

The II. Chapter.

AND vpon the thirde daye there was a mariage at Cana in Galile, and the mother of Jesus was there. Jesus also and his disciples was called vnto ỳ mariage. And whan the wyne fayled, the mother of Jesus saide vnto him: They haue no wyne. Jesus sayde vnto her: * Womā, what haue I to do wt the? Myne houre is not yet come. His mother sayde vnto ỳ mynisters: Whatsoeuer he sayeth vnto you, do it. There were set there sixe water pottes of stone, after ỳ maner of the purifienge of ỳ Jewes, euery one cōteyninge two or thre measures.

Jesus sayde vnto thē: Fyll the water pottes with water. And they fylled thē vp to ỳ brymme. And he sayde vnto thē: Drawe out now, & bringe vnto the Master of the feast. And they bare it. Whā the master of ỳ feast had taisted ỳ wyne which had bene water, and knewe not whence it came (but the mynisters that drue ỳ water, knewe it) the Master of the feast called the brydegrome, and sayde vnto him: Euery man at the first geueth the good wyne: & whan they are dronken, thē that which is worse. But thou hast kepte backe the good wyne vntyll now.

This is the first token that Jesus dyd at Cana in Galile, and shewed his glory, and his disciples beleued on him. Afterwarde wente he downe to Capernaum, he, his mother, his brethrē, and his disciples, and taried not longe there. B Mat.4.b Marc.1.b Luc.4.d

And the Jewes Easter was at hande. And Jesus wēte vp to Jerusalem, and founde syttinge in the tēple, those that solde oxen, shepe, and doues, and chaungers of money. And he made a scourge of small cordes, and droue them all out of the tēple with the shepe and oxen, and poured out the chaungers money, and ouerthrewe the tables, and sayde vnto them that solde the doues: Haue these thinges hēce, and make not my fathers house an house of marchaundyse. His disciples remembred it, that is writtē: * The zele of thine house hath euen eaten me. Mat.21.b Marc.11.b Luc.19.d Psal.68.b

Then answered the Jewes, and sayde vnto him: What token shewest thou vnto vs, that thou mayest do these thinges? Jesus answered & sayde vnto thē: * Breake downe this temple, and in thre dayes wil I set it vp agayne. Then sayde the Jewes: * Sixe and fourtye yeare was this temple abuyldinge, and wilt thou set it vp in thre dayes? But he spake of ỳ tēple of his body. Now whā he was rysen agayne from the deed, his disciples remembred that he thus sayde, and they beleued the scripture, and the wordes which Jesus spake. C Mat.16.a Iohā.6.d * Mat.26.f 1.Esd.5.c

Whā he was at Jerusalē at Easter in ỳ feast, many beleued on his name, whan they sawe ỳ tokēs ỳ he dyd. But Jesus cōmytted not himself vnto thē, for he knewe thē all, & neded not ỳ eny mā shulde testifye of man, * for he knewe well what was in man. Iere.17.b Apo.2.d

The III. Chapter.

THere was a man of the Pharises, named Nicodemus a ruler amōge the Jewes. The same came vnto Jesus by night, & sayde vnto hī: Master, we knowe ỳ thou art come a teacher frō God: for * no mā can do these tokēs ỳ thou doest, except God be with him. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Verely verely I saye vnto the: A Iohā.7.a and 19.d Iohā.3.b

For God so loued the worlde, that he gaue his onely sonne, that whosoeuer beleueth in hī, shulde not perishe, but haue euerlastinge life. * For God sent not his sonne in to ỹ worlde to condempne the worlde, but that the worlde might be saued by him. He that beleueth on him, shal not be cōdemned. But he that beleueth not, is cōdemned allready: because he beleueth not on the name of the onely sonne of God. But this is ỹ cōdempnacion, that the light is come in to the worlde, and men loued the darknesse more thē ỹ light: for their workes were euell. Whosoeuer doth euell, hateth the light, and cōmeth not to the light, that his dedes shulde not be reproued. Jhon answered and sayde: A man can receaue nothinge, except it be geuen him from heauē. Ye youreselues are my witnesses, how * that I sayde, I am not Christ, but am sent before him. The IIII. Chapter.

NOw whan Jesus had knowlege, ỹ it was come to the eares of the Pharises, that Jesus made and baptysed mo disciples thē Jhon (howbeit Jesus himself baptysed not, but his disciples) * he left the londe of Jewry, and departed agayne in to Galile. But he must nedes go thorow Samaria. Then came he in to a cite of Samaria, called Sichar, nye vnto ỹ pece of lōde, ỹ Jacob gaue vnto Joseph his sonne. And there was Jacobs well. Now whan Jesus was weery of his iourney, he satt hī downe so vpō the well. And it was aboute the sixte houre. Then came there a woman of Samaria to drawe water. Jesus sayde vnto her: Geue me drynke. (For his disciples were gone their waye in to ỹ cite, to bye meate.) Then the woman of Samaria sayde vnto him: How is it that thou arest drynke of me, seynge thou art a Jewe, and I a woman of Samaria? For the Jewes medle not with the * Samaritans.

Iohā. 3. a

Jesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Yf thou knewest the gift of God, and whoit is that sayeth vnto the, geue me drynke, thou woldest are of him, and he wolde geue the, the water of life. The woman sayde vnto him: Syr, thou hast nothinge to drawe withall, and the well is depe, from whence hast thou then that water of life? Art thou greater then oure father Jacob, which gaue vs this well? And he himself dranke therof, and his children, and his catell. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Who so euer drynketh of this water, shal thyrst agayne: But whosoeuer shal drynke of the water that I shal geue him, shal neuer be more a thyrst: * but the water that I shal geue him, shal be in him a well of water, which spryngeth vp into euerlastinge life.

The woman sayde vnto him: * Syr, geue me that same water, that I thyrst not, nether nede to come hither to drawe. Jesus sayde vnto her: Go, call they husbande, and come hither. The woman answered, and sayde vnto him: I haue no husbande.

Jesus sayde vnto her: Thou hast sayde well, I haue no husbande: for thou hast had fyue husbandes, and he whom thou hast now, is not thine husbande: there saydest thou right. The womā sayde vnto him: Syr, I se, that thou art a prophet. Oure fathers worshipped vpon this mountayne, and * ye saye, that at Jerusalem is the place, where men ought to worshippe. Jesus sayde vnto her: Woman, beleue me, the tyme commeth, that ye shal nether vpon this mountayne ner at Jerusalem worshippe the father. Ye wote not what ye worshippe, but we knowe what we worshippe, for * Saluacion commeth of the Jewes. But the tyme commeth, and is now allready, that the true worshippers shal worshippe the father in * spriete and in the trueth: For the father wil haue soch so to worshippe him. * God is a spriete, and they that worshippe him, must worshippe in spriete and in the trueth.

The womā sayde vnto him: I wote that Messias shal come, which is called Christ. Whan he commeth, he shal tell vs all thinges. Jesus sayde vnto her: I that speake vnto the, am he. And in the meane season came his disciples, and they marueyled that he talked with the woman. Yet sayde no man: What aresst thou, or what talkest thou with her? Then the woman let hir pot stonde, and wente in to the cite, and sayde vnto the people: Come, se a man, which hath tolde me all that euer I dyd, Is not he Christ?

Then wente they out of the cite, and came vnto him: In the meane whyle his disciples prayed him, and sayde: Master, eate. But he sayde vnto them: I haue meate to eate, that ye knowe not of. Then sayde the disciples amōge them selues: Hath eny man brought him meate? Jesus sayde vnto thē: My meate is this, that I do the wyll of him that sent me, and to fynish his worke. Saye not ye youre selues: There are yet foure monethes, and then commeth the harueste? Behold, I saye vnto you: lift vp youre eyes, and loke vpon the selde, * for it is whyte allready vnto the harueste. Mat.9.d Luc.10.a

And he that reapeth, receaueth rewarde, and gathereth frute to euerlastinge life, E that both he that soweth and he that reapeth, maye reioyse together. For herin is the prouerbe true: One soweth, another reapeth. I haue sent you to reape that, wheron ye bestowed no laboure. Other haue laboured, and ye are come in to their laboures.

Many Samaritans of the same cite beleued on him, for the sayenge of the woman, which testified: He hath tolde me all that euer I dyd. Now whan the Samaritans came to him, they besought him, that he wolde tary with them. And he abode there two dayes, and many mo beleued because of his worde, and sayde vnto the woman: We beleue now hence forth, not because of thy sayenge, * we haue herde him oure selues, and knowe, that this of a trueth is Christ the Sauioure of the worlde. Iohā.17.b

After two dayes he departed thence, and wente in to Galile. * For Jesus himself testified, that a prophet is nothinge set by at home. Now whā he came in to Galile, the Galileās receaued him, which had sene all that he dyd at Jerusalem in the feast: for they also were come thither in the feast. And Jesus came agayne vnto Cana in Galile, * where he turned the water vnto wyne. Mat.13.g Mar.6.a Luc.4.c Iohā.2.a

And there was a certayne ruler, whose F sonne laye sicke at Capernaum. This herde that Jesus came out of Jewry in to Galile, and wente vnto him, and besought him, that he wolde come downe, and helpe his sonne, for he laye deed sicke. And Jesus sayde vnto him: Excepte ye se tokens and wonders, ye beleue not. The ruler sayde vnto him: Come downe Syr, or euer my childe dye. Jesus sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, thy sonne lyueth. The man beleued the worde, that Jesus sayde vnto him, and wente his waye. And as he was goinge downe, his seruauntes mett him, and tolde him, and sayde: Thy childe lyueth. Then enquyred he of them the houre, wherin he beganne to amende. And they sayde vnto him: Yesterdaye aboute the seuēth houre the feuer left him. Then the father perceaued, that it was aboute the same houre, wherin Jesus Act.13.a sayde vnto him: Thy sonne lyueth. And he beleued with his whole house. This is now the seconde token that Jesus dyd, whan he came from Jewry in to Galile.

The V. Chapter.

A AFterwarde, there was a feast of the Jewes, and Jesus wente vpto Jerusalem. There is at Jerusalem by the slaughter house a pole, which in Hebrue is called Bethseda, & hath fyue porches, wherin laye many sicke, blynde, lame, wythred, which wayted, whan the water shulde moue. For the angell wente downe at his tyme in to the pole, and stered the water. Who so euer now wente downe first, after that the water was stered, ỳ same was made whole, what soeuer disease he had. And there was a man, which had lyen sicke eight and thirtie yeares. Whan Jesus sawe him lye, & knewe that he had lyen so longe, he saide vnto him: Wilt thou be made whole? The sicke answered him: Syr, I haue no man, whan the water is moued, to put me in to the pole. And whan I come, another steppeth downe in before me.

Jesus sayde vnto him: Aryse, take vp thy bed, and go thy waye. And immediatly the Then sayde the Jewes vnto him that was made whole: To daye is ỳ Sabbath, it is not laufull for the to cary the bed. He answered them: He that made me whole, sayde vnto me: Take vp thy bed, and go ỳ waye. Then axed they him: What man is that, which sayde vnto the: Take vp thy bed, and go ỳ waye? But he that was healed, wyst not who he was: for Jesus * had gotte him self awaye, because there was moch people.

ohā.6.b

B Afterwarde founde Jesus him in the tẽple, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou art ohā.8.a made whole, * synne no more, lest a worse thinge happen vnto the. The mā departed, and tolde the Jewes, that it was Jesus, which had made hi whole. Therfore dyd ỳ Jewes persecute Jesus, and sought to slaye him, because he had done this vpō ỳ Sabbath.

1.Cor.13.a But Jesus answered them: * My father worketh hither to, and I worke also. Therfore sought the Jewes the more to slaye hi: because he brake not onely ỳ Sabbath, but saide also, that God was his father, and made him self equall with God. Thē answered Jesus, and sayde vnto them: Verely verely I saye vnto you: * The sonne can do nothinge of him self, but that he seyth the father do. For what soeuer he doeth, that doeth ỳ sonne also. The father loueth the sonne, & sheweth him all that he doth, and wyll shewe him yet greater workes, so that ye shal marueyle. For as the father rayseth vp the dead, and maketh them lyue, euē so the sonne also maketh lyuynge whom he wyll. For the father iudgeth no man, but * hath geuen all iudgmēt vnto the sonne, that they all might honoure the sonne, euen as they honoure ỳ father. Who so honoureth not the sonne, the same honoureth not the father, which hath sent him.

C Verely verely I saye vnto you: Who so heareth my worde, and beleueth him that sent me, hath euerlastinge life, and * cōmeth not in to damnacion, but is passed thorow from death vnto life.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: * The houre cōmeth, & is now allready, ỳ the dead shal heare ỳ voyce of ỳ sonne of God: and they that heare it, shal lyue. For * as the father hath life in him self, so likewyse hath he geuen vnto the sonne, to haue life in him self: & hath geuē hi power also to execute iudgmēt because he is the sonne of mā. Marueyle not ye at this: * for ỳ houre cōmeth, in ỳ which all that are in ỳ graues, shal heare his voyce, and shal go forth, they that haue done good, vnto the resurreccion of life: but they that haue done euell, vnto the resurreccion of damnacion.

I can do nothinge of my self. As I heare, so I iudge: & my iudgmēt is iust. For I sēke not myne owne wyll, but the wyll of the father which hath sent me. * If I beare wytnesse of my self, my wytnesse is not true. There is another that beareth wytnesse of me, and I am sure, that the wytnesse which he beareth of me, is true.

D * Ye sent vnto Jhon, and he bare wytnesse of the trueth. As for me, I take no recorde of mā, but these thinges I saye, that ye might be saued. He was a burnynge and shyninge light, but ye wolde haue reioysed a litle whyle in his light. Neuertheles I haue a greater wytnesse then the wytnesse of Jhon. For the workes which the father hath geuē me to fynish, the same workes which I do, beare wytnesse of me, that the father hath sent me. And ỹ father him self which hath sent me, beareth wytnesse of me. * Ye haue neyther herde his voyce at eny tyme, ner sene his shappe: and his worde haue ye not abydinge in you, for ye beleue not him, whom he hath sent.

Searche the scripture, for ye thinke ye haue euerlastinge life therin: and the same is it that testifyeth of me, and ye wil not come vnto me, that ye might haue life. I receaue not prayse of men. But I knowe you, that ye haue not the loue of God in you. I am come in my fathers name, and ye receaue me not. * Yf another shal come in his awne name, him wil ye receaue. How can ye beleue which receaue prayse one of another, and seke not the prayse, that is of God onely?

Ye shall not thynke that I wyll accuse you before ỹ father: there is one ỹ accuseth you, euen Moses, in whō ye trust. Yf ye beleued Moses, ye shulde beleue me also: For he hath wrytte of me. * But yf ye beleue not his wrytinges, how shal ye beleue my wordes?

The VI. Chapter.

AFter this wente Jesus ouer the see vnto the cite Tiberias in Galilee. And moch people folowed him, because they sawe the tokens that he dyd vpon thē which were diseased. But Jesus wēte vp into a mountayne, and there he sat with his disciples. And Easter ỹ feast of the Jewes was nye. Then Jesus lift vp his eyes, and sawe ỹ there came moch people vnto him, and he sayde vnto Philippe: Whence shal we bye bred, ỹ these maye eate? But this he sayde to proue him, for he him self knewe, what he wolde do.

Philippe answered him: Two hundreth peny worth of bred is not ynough amonge thē, ỹ every one maye take a litle. Thē sayde vnto hī one of his disciples, Andrew ỹ brother of Symō Peter: There is a lad here, ỹ hath fyue barlye loaues, and two fishes, but what is that amōge so many? Jesus sayde: Make the people syt downe. There was moch grasse in the place. Then they sat thē downe, aboute a fyue thousande men. Jesus toke the loaues, thanked, and gaue them to the disciples: the disciples (gaue) to them that were set downe. Likewyse also of the fishes as moch as they wolde.

Whan they were fylled, he sayde vnto his disciples: Gather vp the broken meate that remayneth, that nothinge be lost. Thē they gathered, and fylled twolue basshettes with the brokē meate, that remayned of the fyue barlye loaues, vnto them which had eaten. Now whan the men sawe the token ỹ Jesus dyd, they saide: * This is of a trueth the Prophet, ỹ shulde come in to the worlde. Whan Jesus now perceaued that they wolde come, and take him vp, to make him kynge, * he gat him awaye agayne in to a mountayne him self alone.

C The nexte daye after, the people which stode on the other syde of the see, sawe that there was none other shippe there saue that one, wherin to his disciples were entred: and that Jesus wēte not in with his disciples in to the shippe, but ỹ his disciples were gone awaie alone. Howbeit there came other shippes from Tiberias, nye vnto ỹ place where they had eatē the bred, after ỹ the LORDE had genen thankes. Now whan the people sawe that Jesus was not there, nether his disciples, they toke shippe also, and came to Capernaum, and sought Jesus.

And whan they founde him on the other syde of the see, they sayde vnto him: Master, whan camest thou hither? Jesus answered thē, & sayde: Verely verely I saye vnto you: Ye seke me not because ye sawe ỹ tokēs, but because ye ate of the loaues, and were fylled. Laboure not for the meate which perisheth but ỹ endureth vnto euerlastinge life, which the sonne of mā shal geue you: For him hath God the father sealed.

D Thē sayde they vnto him: What shal we do, that we maye worke ỹ workes of God? Jesus answered, and sayde vnto thē: This is the worke of God, that ye beleue on him, whom he hath sent. Then sayde they vnto him: * What token doest thou thē, that we maye se and beleue ỹ? What worckest thou? Oure fathers ate Māna in the wyldernesse, as it is wrytte: He gaue thē bred frō heauen to eate. But I haue sayde vnto you, ỹ ye haue sene me, and yet ye beleue not. All that my father geueth me, cōmeth vnto me: and who so cōmeth vnto me, him wyl not I cast out: for I am come downe from heauē, not to do myne awne wyll, but the wyll of him that hath sent me.

Joh̄.5.c him which hath sent me, that, who soeuer seyth the sonne and beleueth on him, haue euerlastinge life, and I shal rayse him vp at the last daye.

Thē murmured the Jewes therouer, that he sayde: I am ỹ bred which is come downe from heauē, and they sayde: Is not this Jesus, Josephs sonne, whose father and mother we knowe? How sayeth he then, I am come downe from heauen? Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Murmur not amonge youre selues.

Luc.22.b my flesh* which I wil geue for ỹ life of the worlde.

Then stroue the Jewes amonge them selues, and sayde: How cā this folowe geue vs his flesh to eate? Jesus sayde vnto thē: Verely verely I saye vnto you: Excepte ye eate ỹ flesh of ỹ sonne of man and drynke his blonde, ye haue no life in you. Who so eateth my flesh, and drynketh my blonde, hath euerlastinge life: and I shal rayse him vp at the last daye. For my flesh is ỹ very meate, and my blonde is ỹ very drynke. Who so eateth my flesh, and drynketh my blonde, abydeth in me, and I in him. As the lyuynge father hath sent me, and I lyue for the fathers sake: Euen so he that eateth me, shal lyue for my sake. This is ỹ bred which is come frō heauen: Not as youre fathers ate Manna, and are deed. He that eateth of this bred, shal lyue for euer.

1.Joh.4 These thinges sayde he in the synagoge, G whā he taught at Capernaum. Many now of his disciples that herde this, sayde: This is an harde sayenge, who maye abyde the hearynge of it? But whan Jesus perceaued in hī self, that his discipes murmured therat he sayde vnto them: Doth this offende you? What and yf ye shal se the sonne of man ascende vp thither, where he was afore? It is ỹ spriete that quyckeneth, ỹ flesh profiteth nothinge. The wordes that I speake, are spriete, and are life. But there are some amōge you, that beleue not. For Jesus knewe well from the begynnynge, which they were that beleued not, and who shulde betraye him. And he sayde: Therfore haue I sayde vnto you:
Joh.6.d * No man can come vnto me, excepte it be geuen him of my father.

From that tyme forth, many of his disciples wente backe, and walked nomore with him. Then sayde Jesus vnto the twolue: Wyll ye also go awaye? Then answered Simon Peter: LORDE, Whither shal we go? Thou hast the wordes of euerlastinge life: and we haue beleued & knowne, that thou art Christ the sonne of the lyuynge God. Jesus answered them. Haue I not chosen you twolue, and one of you is a deuell? But he spake of Judas Symon Iscarioth: the same betrayed him afterwarde, and was one of the twolue.

The VII. Chapter.

After that wente Jesus aboute in Ga A lile, for he wolde not go aboute in Jewry, because the Jewes sought to kyll him. But the Jewes feast of Tabernacles was at hande. Then sayde his brethren vnto him: Get the hēce, and go into Jewry, that thy disciples also maye se thy workes, that thou doest. He that seketh to be openly knowne, doth nothinge in secrete. Yf thou do soch thinges, thē shewe ỹ self before the worlde: For his awne brethren also beleued not in him.

Then sayde Jesus vnto them: My tyme is not yet come, but youre tyme is allwaye ready. The worlde can not hate you,* but me it hateth: because I testifye of it, that the workes of it are euell.

Go ye vp vnto this feast, I wyll not go vp yet vnto this feast, for my tyme is not yet fulfylled. Whan he sayde this vnto them, he abode styll in Galile. But as soone as his bre thren were gone vp, then wente he vp also vnto the feast, not openly, but as it were secretly. Then sought him ỹ Jewes at ỹ feast, and sayde: * Where is he? And there was a greate murmur of him amonge the people. Some sayde: He is good. But other sayde: Nay, he doth but disceaue the people. Howbeit no man spake frely of him, for feare of the Jewes.

B But in the myddes of the feast wẽte Jesus vp in to the temple, and taught. And the Jewes marueyled and sayde: How can he ỹ scrypture, seynge he hath not lerned it? Jesus answered them, and sayde: My doctryne is not myne, but his that hath sent me. Yf eny man wyl do his will, he shal knowe, whether this doctryne be of God, or whether I speake of my self. He that speaketh of himself, seketh his awne prayse: but he that seketh the prayse of him that sent him, the same is true, & there is no vnrighteousnes in him. Hath not Moses geuen you the lawe. and none of you kepeth the lawe? Why go ye about to kyll me? The people answered, and sayde: Thou hast the deuell, who goeth about to kyll the? Jesus answered and sayde: One worke haue I done, and ye all marueyle. Moses gaue you the circumcision, (not because it commeth of Moses, but of ỹ * fathers:) Yet do ye circumcyse a man vpon the Sabbath. Yf a man receaue circũcision vpon the Sabbath, that the lawe of Moses shulde not be broken, diss dayne ye then at me, because I haue made a mã euery whyt whole on the Sabbath? Judge not after the vtter appearaũce, but iudge righteous iudgment.

C Then sayde some of them of Jerusalem: Is not this he, whõ they go about to kyll? And beholde, he speaketh boldely, and they saye nothinge to him. Do oure rulers knowe in dede, that he is very Christ? Howbeyt * we knowe, whence this is. But whã Christ commeth, no man shal knowe whence he is.

Then cryed Jesus in the temple as he taught, and sayde: Yee ye knowe me, and whence I am ye knowe, * and of my self am I not come, but he ỹ sent me, is true, whom ye knowe not. But I knowe him, for I am of him, and he hath sent me. Then sought they to take him, but no man layed handes vpon him, for his houre was not yet come. * But many of the people beleued on him, and sayde: Whan Christ commeth, shall he do mo tokens, then this doth?

D And it came to the pharises eares, that ỹ people murmured soch thinges of him. And the pharises and hye prestes sent out seruauntes, to take him. Then sayde Jesus vnto them: I am yet a litle whyle with you and then go I vnto him that hath sent me. Ye shal seke me, & not fynde me: and where I am, thither can ye not come. Then sayde the Jewes amonge them selues: Whyther wil he go, that we shal not fynde him? Wyl he go amõge the Grekes that are scatred abrode, and teach the Grekes? What maner of sayenge is this, that he sayeth: ye shal seke me, and not fynde me: and where I am, thither can not ye come?

But in the last daye which was ỹ most solempne daye of the feast, Jesus stode vp, cried, and sayde: Who so thyrsteth, let him come vnto me, and drynke. He that beleueth on me, as the scripture sayeth, out of his body shal flowe ryuers of the water of life. (But this spake he of the * spirite, which they that beleue on him, shulde receaue. For the holy goost was not yet there, because Jesus was not yet glorifyed.) Many of the people now whan they herde this sayenge, sayde: This is a very prophet. Other sayde: * He is Christ. But some sayde: Shal Christ come out of Galile? Sayeth not the scripture, that Christ shal come of the sede of Dauid, and out of the towne of * Bethleem, where Dauid was? Thus was there disceancion amonge the people for his sake. Some of them wolde haue taken him, but no man layed handes on him.

E The seruauntes came to the hye prestes and pharises, and they sayde vnto them: Why haue ye not brought him? The seruauntes answered: Neuer mã spake as this man doth. Then answered them the pharises: Are ye also disceaued? * Doth eny of the rulers or pharises beleue on him? But the comon people which knowe not the lawe, are cursed. Nicodemus sayde vnto them, he that came to him by nyght, which was one of them: * Doth oure lawe iudge eny man, before it heare him, and knowe what he hath done? They answered and sayde vnto him: Art thou a Galilean also? * Searche and loke, out of Galile aryseth no prophet. And so euery man wente home.

The VIII. Chapter.

A Mat.21.b Marc.11.b

JEsus wente vnto mount Olinete, and early in the mornynge came he agayne in to the temple, and all the people came vnto him. And he sat downe, and taught them. And ỳ scrybes and pharises brought vnto him a woman taken in aduoutrye, and set her there openly, and sayde vnto him: Master, this woman was taken in aduoutrye, euē as the dede was adoynge. Leui.20.b Moses in the lawe commaunded vs to stone soch. What sayest thou? This they sayde, to tempte him, that they might haue wherof to accuse him. But Jesus stouped downe, and wrote with his fynger vpō the grounde. Now whyle they contynued axynge him, he lift him self vp, and sayde vnto them: He that is amonge you without synne, let him cast the first stone at her. And he stouped downe agayne, and wrote vpon the grounde. But whan they herde that, they wente out, one after another: the eldest first, and left Jesus alone, and the woman stondinge before him. Jesus lift himself vp, and whan he sawe no man but the woman, he sayde vnto her: Woman, where are thine accusers? hath no man condempned the? She sayde: LORDE, no man. Jesus sayde: Nether do I cōdempne the, Go thy waye, and synne nomore. Iohā.5.b

B Ioh.1.a & 8.a.12.e

Then spake Jesus agayne vnto them, and sayde: I am the light of the worlde. He that foloweth me, shal not walke in darknesse, but shal haue the light of life. Then sayde the Pharises vnto him: Thou bearest recorde of thy self, thy recorde is not true.

Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Though I beare recorde of my self, yet my recorde is true: for I knowe whence I came, and whither I go: but ye can not tell whence I come, and whither I go. Ye iudge after the flesh, I iudge no man: but yf I iudge, my iudgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the father that hath sent me. It is wrytten also in youre lawe, * that the testimony of two men is true. I am one that beare wytnesse of my self: And the father that sent me, beareth wytnes of me also. Then sayde they vnto him: Where is thy father? Jesus answered: Ye nether knowe me ner yet my father. Yf ye knewe me, ye shulde knowe my father also. These wordes spake Jesus vpon the Godschest, as he taught in the tēple. And no man toke him, for his houre was not yet come.

Ioh.7.d and.13.d

Then sayde Jesus agayne vnto them: I go my waye, and ye shal seke me, and shal dye in youre synnes: whither I go, thither can not ye come. Then sayde ỳ Jewes: Wyl he kyll him self then, that he sayeth: whither I go, thither can not ye come? And he sayde vnto them: Ye are from beneth, I am from aboue: Ye are of this worlde, I am not of this worlde. Therfore haue I sayde vnto you, that ye shal dye in youre synnes. * For yf ye beleue not that I am he, ye shal dye in youre synnes.

Mar. Ioh.

Then sayde they vnto him: Who art thou then? And Jesus sayde vnto thē: Euē the very same thinge that I saye vnto you. I haue many thinges to saye and to iudge of you. But he that sent me, is true: and loke what I haue herde of him, that speake I before the worlde. Howbeit they vnderstode not, that he spake of the father.

C Ioh. Ioh.

Then sayde Jesus vnto them: Whan ye haue lift vp an hye the sonne of man, then shal ye knowe that I am he, and that I do nothinge of my self: but as my father hath taught me, euen so I speake. And he that sent me, is with me. The father leaueth me not alone, for I do alwaie that pleaseth him. Whan he thus spake, * many beleued on him. Then sayde Jesus vnto the Jewes, that beleued on him: Yf ye contynue in my worde, then are ye my very disciples, and ye shall knowe the trueth, and the trueth shal make you * fre.

Ioh. Ioh. Rom. and Col.

Then answered they him: We are Abrahams sede, we were neuer bonde to eny man, how sayest thou then: Ye shal be fre? Jesus answered them, and sayde: Verely verely I saye vnto you: * Who so euer doth synne, is the seruaunt of synne: As for the seruaunt, he abydeth not in the house for euer, but the sonne abydeth euer. Yf the sonne therfore make you fre, then are ye fre in dede. I knowe that ye are Abrahams sede, but ye seke to kyll me. For my worde taketh not amonge you. I speake that I haue sene of my father, & ye do that ye haue sene of youre father.

They answered, and sayde vnto him: Abraham is oure father. Jesus sayde vnto them: Yf ye were Abrahams children, ye wolde do the dedes of Abraham. But now ye go aboute to kyll me, a man, that haue tolde you the trueth, * which I haue herde of God, this dyd not Abraham. Ye do the dedes of youre father. Then sayde they vnto him: We are not borne of fornicacion, we haue one father, euen God. Jesus sayde vnto them: Yf God were youre father, then wolde ye loue me. For I am proceaded forth, and come from God. For I am not come of my self, but he hath sent me. Why knowe ye not thē my speach? Euē because ye can not abyde the hearinge of my worde.

Ye are of the father the deuell, and after the lustes of youre father wyl ye do. * The same was a murthurer from the begynnynge, and abode not in the trueth: for the trueth is not in him. Whan he speaketh a lye, then speaketh he of his awne: for he is a lyar, and a father of the same. But because I saye the trueth, ye beleue me not.

Which of you can rebuke me of one synne? If I saye the trueth, why do ye not beleue me? * He that is of God, heareth Gods worde. Therfore heare ye not, because ye are not of God.

Then answered the Jewes, and sayde vnto him: Saye we not right, that thou art a Samaritane, * and hast the deuell? Jesus answered: I haue no deuell, but I honoure my father, and ye haue dishonoured me. I seke not myne awne prayse, but there is one that seketh it, and iudgeth. Verely verely I saye vnto you: If eny man kepe my worde, he shal neuer se death.

Then sayde the Jewes vnto him: Now knowe we, that * thou hast the deuell. Abraham is deed and the prophetes, and thou sayest: If eny mā kepe my worde, he shal neuer taist of death. Art thou greater then our father Abraham? which is deed, and the prophetes are deed? Whō makest thou thy self? Jesus answered: * If I prayse my self, then is my prayse nothinge. But it is my father that prayseth me, which ye saye is youre God, and ye knowe hī not: but I knowe him. And yf I shulde saye, I knowe him not, I shulde be a lyar, like vnto you. But I knowe him, and kepe his worde.

Abraham youre father was glad, that he shulde se my daye, * And he sawe it, and reioysed. Then sayde the Jewes vnto him: Thou art not yet fiftie yeare olde, and hast thou sene Abraham? Jesus sayde vnto thē: Verely verely I saye vnto you: Or euer Abraham was, * I am. Then toke they vp stones, to cast at him. But Jesus hyd himself, and wente out of the temple.

The IX. Chapter.

AND Jesus passed by, and sawe a man that was borne blynde. And his disciples axed him, & sayde: Master, Who hath synned? this, or his elders, that he was borne blynde? Jesus answered: Nether hath this synned, ner his elders, * but that ỹ workes of God shulde be shewed on him. I must worke the workes of him that hath sent me, whyle it is daye. The night commeth, whan no man can worke. As longe as I am in the worlde, I am the * light of the worlde. Iohā. 1.a 8.b. 12.c

Whan he had thus sayde, he spat on the grounde, and made claye of the spetle, and rubbed the claye on the eyes of the blynde, and sayde vnto him: Go thy waye to the pole of * Syloha (which is interpretated, sent) and wash the. Then wēte he his waye and waßhed him, and came seynge. The neghbours and they that had sene him before, that he was a begger, sayde: Is not this he that sat, and begged? Some sayde: It is he. Other sayde: he is like him. But he himself sayde: I am euen he. Then sayde they vnto him: How are thine eyes opened? He answered, and sayde: The mā that is called Jesus, made claye, and anoynted myne eyes, and sayde: Go thy waye to the pole of Siloha, and wash the. I wente my waye, & washed me, and receaued my sight. Then sayde they vnto him: Where is he? He sayde: I can not tell. Esa. 8.b

Then brought they vnto the phariseS, him that a litle before was blynde * It was the Sabbath, whan Jesus made the claye, and opened his eyes. Then agayne the Pharises also axed him, how he had receaued his sight. He sayde vnto thē: He put claye vpon myne eyes, and I waßhed me, & now I se. Mat. 12.a Marc. 1.c Luc. 6.a Iohā. 5.a and 7.b

Then sayde some of the pharises: This man is not of God, seynge he kepeth not ỹ Sabbath. * But the other sayde: How can a synfull man do soch tokens? And there was a stryfe amonge thē. They sayde agayne vnto ỹ blynde: What sayest thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? He sayde: he is a prophet. Iohā. 7.d 10.b. 12.b

The Jewes beleued not hī, that he was blynde, and had receaued his sight, tyll they called the elders of him, that had receaued his sight, and they axed them, and sayde: Is this youre sonne, whom ye saye, was borne blynde? How doth he now se then? His elders answered them, and sayde: We knowe, that this is oure sonne, and that he was borne blynde. But how he now seyeth, we can not tell: or who hath opened his eyes, can we not tell. He is olde ynough himself, ax him, let him speake for him self.

This sayde his elders, because they feamunicate. Therfore sayde his elders: He is olde ynough, axe him.

Then called they the mā agayne ẏ was blynde, and sayde vnto him: *Geue God ẏ prayse, we knowe that this man is a synner. Iosue.7.c Act.12.d He answered, & sayde: Whether he be a synner or no, I can not tell: one thinge am I sure off, that I was blynde, and now I se. Thē sayde they vnto him agayne: What dyd he vnto the? how opened he thine eyes? He answered them: I tolde you right now. Herde ye it not? What, wil ye heare it agayne? Will ye also be his disciples? Then rayted they him, and sayde: Thou art his disciple. We are sure that God spake vnto Moses: As for this felowe, we know not whēce he is.

D The man answered, and sayde vnto thē: This is a maruelous thinge, that ye wote not whence he is, and he hath opened mine eyes. For we knowe that God heareth not ẏ sinners: but yf eny mā be a fearer of God, and doth his will, him heareth he. Sens ẏ worlde beganne was it not herde, that eny man opened the eyes of one that was borne blynde. Yf this man were not of God, he coulde haue done nothinge. They answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou art altogether borne in synne, and teachest thou vs? And they thrust him out.

Jesus herde, ẏ they had thrust him out, and whā he had founde him, he sayde vnto him: Beleuest thou on the sonne of God? He answered, and sayde: LORDE, who is it, ẏ I might beleue on him? Jesus sayde vnto him: Thou hast sene him, and he it is, that talketh with the. He sayde: LORDE, I beleue. And he worshipped him.

And Jesus sayde: I am come to iudgmēt in to this worlde, that they which se not, might se: and that they which se, might be made blynde. And some of the Pharises ẏ were with him, herde this, and sayde vnto him: Are we then blynde also? Jesus sayde Iohā.15.c vnto thē: *Yf ye were blynde, ye shulde haue no synne. But now that ye saye, we se, therfore youre sonne remayneth.

The X. Chapter.

VErely verely I saye vnto you: he ẏ entreth not in at the dore in to the shepefolde, but clymmeth vp some other waye, the same is a these & a murthurer. But he that goeth in at the dore, is the shepherde of the shepe: to him ẏ porter openeth, and the shepe heare his voyce, and he *calleth his awne shepe by name, and ledeth them out. And whan he ha[s] forth his awne shepe, he [go]eth [bef]n, and the [shepe] is voyce.

As for a straunger, they folowe him not, but flye from him: for they knowe not the voyce of straungers. This prouerbe spake Jesus vnto them, but they vnderstode not what it was, that he sayde vnto them.

Then sayde Jesus vnto them agayne: Verely verely I saye vnto you: *I am the Ioh. dore of the shepe. All they that are come before me, are theues and murthures. But ẏ shepe harkened not vnto them. I am the dore. Yf eny man entre in by me, he shalbe saued, and shal go in and out, and fynde pasture. A these cōmeth not, but for to steale, kyll, and destroye. I am come, ẏ they might haue life, and haue it more abundauntly.

I am a good shepherde. A good shep- B herde geueth his life for the shepe. But an hyred seruaunt, which is not the shepherde, nether the shepe are his awne, seyth ẏ wolfe cōmynge, and leaueth ẏ shepe, and flyeth. And the wolfe catcheth & scatereth ẏ shepe. But the hyred seruaūt flyeth, because he is an hyred seruaunte, and careth not for the shepe. I am a good shepherde, *and knowe Ma. myne, and am knowne of myne. Euē as my father knoweth me, and I knowe ẏ father. And *I geue my life for my shepe. And I Ma. haue yet other shepe, which are not of this folde, and those same must I bringe also, and they shal heare my voyce, and there shalbe one flocke and one shepherde.

Therfore doth my father loue me, because I leaue my life, that I maye take it agayne. No mā taketh it fro me, but I leaue it of myself. I haue power to leaue it, and haue power to take it agayne. This commaundement haue I receaued of my father. Then was there discension amōge the Jewes for these sayenges. Many of thē sayde: He hath Mat. the deuell, and is madd, why heare ye him? Other sayde: *These are not wordes of one Mar. that is possessed. Can the deuell also open ẏ eyes of the blynde?

It was the dedicacion of the tēple at Je- C rusalē, & was wynter, and Jesus walked in Salomōs porche. Thē came ẏ Jewes rounde aboute hī, & saide vnto hī: How lōge dost thou make vs doute? Yf thou be Christ, tell vs planely. Jesus answered thē: I tolde you, & ye beleue not. The workes ẏ I do in my fathers name, they beare wytnesse of me. But ye beleue not, because ye are not of my shepe as I sayde vnto you. My shepe heare my voyce, & I knowe thē, & they folowe me. And I geue thē euerlastinge life, & they shal neuer perishe, and noman shal plucke thē out of my hande. My father which gaue thē me, is greater thē all: & noman is able to plucke them out of my fathers hande. * I and the father are one. Then the Jewes toke vp stones agayne, to stone him. Jesus answered them: Many good workes haue I shewed you from my father, for which of them stone ye me?

The Jewes answered him, and sayde: For the good worke sake we stone the not, * but for the blasphemy: and because that thou beynge a man, makest thy self God. Jesus answered them: Is it not wrytten in youre lawe: * I haue sayde, Ye are Goddes? If he call them Goddes, vnto whom the worde of God came (and the scripture can not be broken) saye ye them vnto him, whom the father hath sanctified and sent in to the worlde: thou blasphemest God, because I sayde: I am the sonne of God? * If I do not the workes of my father, beleue me not: but yf I do them, them (yf ye beleue not me) yet beleue the workes, that ye maye knowe and beleue, that the father is in me, and I in the father.

They wente aboute agayne to take him, but he escaped out of their handes, and wente awaye agayne beyonde Jordane, into the place * where Jhon had baptysed before, and there he abode. And many came to him, and sayde: Jhon dyd no tokens, but all that Jhon spake of this man, is true. And many beleued on him there.

The XI. Chapter.

A There laye one sicke, named Lazarus of Bethania, in the towne of Mary and hir sister Martha * It was that Mary which anoynted the LORDE with oyntment, and dryed his fete with hir heer, whose brother Lazarus laye sicke.) Then sent his sisters vnto him, and sayde: LORDE, beholde, he whom thou louest lyeth sicke. When Jesus herde that, he sayde: This sickenesse is not vnto death, but for the prayse of God, that the sonne of God maye be praysed there thorow. Jesus loued Martha and hir sister, and Lazarus. Now when he herde that he was sicke, he abode two dayes in the place where he was.

After warde sayde he vnto his disciples: Let vs go agayne into Jewry. His disciples sayde vnto him: Master, * lately wolde the Jewes haue stoned the, and wilt thou go thither agayne? Jesus answered: Are there not twolue houres in the daye? He that walketh in the daye, stombleth not, for he seyeth the light of this worlde. But he that walketh in the night, stombleth: for there is no light in him.

B This he spake, and after warde sayde he vnto them: Lazarus our frende * slepeth, but I go to wake him out of slepe. Then sayde his disciples: LORDE, yf he slepe, he shal do well ynough (Howbeyt Jesus spake of his death but they thought that he had spoken of the bode ly slepe.) Then sayde Jesus vnto them planely: Lazarus is deed, and I am glad for youre sakes, that I was not there, that ye maye beleue. Nevertheles let vs go vnto him. Then sayde Thomas (which is called Didimus) vnto the disciples: Let vs go also, that we maye dye with him. Iohā.10.c

Then came Jesus, and founde that he had lyen in the graue foure dayes allready. Bethanye was nye vnto Jerusalem, aboute fiftene furlonges. And many of the Jewes were come to Martha and Mary, to comforte them ouer their brother. Now when Martha herde that Jesus came, she wente to mete him. But Mary satt styl at home.

Then sayde Martha vnto Jesus: LORDE, C yf thou haddest bene here, my brother had Ioh.11.d not bene deed. But nevertheles I knowe also, what soeuer thou axest of God, that God wyl geue it the. Jesus sayde vnto her: Thy brother shal ryse agayne. Martha sayde vnto him: I knowe, that he shal ryse agayne in the resurreccion at the last daye. Jesus saide vnto her: I am the resurreccion and the life * He Rom.1.b that beleueth on me, shal lyue, though he were Ioh.3.b deed allready: and whosoeuer lyueth and be- and 6.f
leueth on me, shal neuer dye. Beleuest thou this? She saide vnto him: Yee LORDE, I beleue, that thou art Christ the sonne of God, which shulde come into the worlde. And when she had sayde this, she wente hir waye, and called Mary hir sister secretly, and saide: The maister is come, and calleth for the. She whan she herde that, rose vp quyckly, and came vnto him: For Jesus was not yet come into the towne, but was yet in the place, where Martha met him. The Jewes that were with her in the house and comforted her, whan they sawe Mary, that she rose vp haistely, and went out, they folowed her, and saide: She goeth to the graue, to wepe there.

Now when Mary came where Jesus was D and sawe him, she fell downe at his fete, and sayde vnto him: LORDE, yf thou haddest bene here, my brother had not bene deed. When Jesus Ioh.11.e
sawe her wepe, and the Jewes wepinge also that came with her, he groned in the spirete, and was sory with himself, and sayde: Where haue ye layed him? They sayde: LORDE come, and se it. And * Jesus wepte. Then sayde the Jewes: Beholde how he loued him. But some of them saide: Coulde not he * which opened the eyes of the blynde, haue made also, that this man shulde not haue dyed? But Jesus groned agayne in himself, and came to the graue. It was a caue, and a stone layed on it. Jesus saide: Take awaye the stone. Martha the sister of him that was deed, saide vnto him: LORDE allready, for he

Jesus sayde vnto her: Sayde I not vnto the, that yf thou dyddest beleue, thou shuldest se the glory of God?

E Then toke they awaye the stone, where the deed laye. Jesus lift vp his eyes, and sayde: Father, I thāke ỹ, that thou hast herde me. Howbeit I knowe, that thou heaurest me allwaye: but * because of ỹ people that stonde by, I sayde it, that they maye beleue, that thou hast sent me. Joh.11.d

Whan he had sayde this, he cryed loude: Lazarus come forth. And ỹ deed came forth bounde hande & fote wt̄ graue clothes, & his face bounde wt̄ a napkyn. Jesus sayde vnto thē: Lowse him, & let him go. Many now of ỹ Jewes which mere come vnto Mary, and sawe what Jesus dyd, beleued on him. But some of thē wente their waye vnto the phariseis, and tolde thē what Jesus had done.

Then the hye prestes, and the phariseis gathered a councell, and sayde: * What do we? This man doth many tokens. Yf we let him go thus, all mē wyl beleue in him: * thē shal the Romaynes come, and take awaye oure londe and people. But one of them, named Caiphas, which was hye prest that same yeare, sayde vnto them: Ye knowe nothinge nether considre ye eny thinge at all. * It is better for us that one mā dye for the people, then that all the people shulde perishe. Psal.2.a Act.4.b Dan.9.c Joh.18.b

F This spake he not of himself, but for so moch as he was hye prest of the same yeare, he prophecied. For Jesus was for to dye for the people, and not for the people onely, but that he shulde gather together the children of God, which were scatered abrode: From that daye forth they toke coūcell, how they might put him to death. Jesus walked no more openly amonge the Jewes, but wente from thence in to a countre by the wylderneisse, to a cite called Ephraim, & there had he his beynge with his disciples.

The Jewes Easter was nye at hande. And there wente vp many to Jerusalē out of that countre before ỹ Easter, to purifye them selues. Then stode they vp, and axed after Jesus, and spake amonge them selues in the temple: * What thynke ye, that he cōmeth not to ỹ feast? The hye prestes & phariseis had geuen a commaundement, that yf ony man knewe where he were, he shulde shewe it, that they might take him.

The XII. Chapter.

SIx dayes before Easter came Jesus vnto Bethanye, where Lazarus was, which was deed, whom Jesus [illegible] from the deed. There they made him a supper, and Martha serued. But Lazarus was one of them, that sat at the table with him. * Then toke Mary a pounde of oyntment of pure and costly Nardus, and anoynted Jesus fete, & dryed his fete with hir heer. The house was full of the sauoure of the oyntment. Then sayde one of his disciples, Judas Iscarioth Symons sonne, which afterwarde betrayed him: Why was not this oyntment solde for thre hundreth pens, and geuen to the poore? (This sayde he not that he cared for the poore, but because he was a thefe, and * had the bagge, and bare that which was geuē.) Then sayde Jesus: Let her alone, this hath she kepte agaynst the daye of my buryenge. For the poore haue ye allwaye with you, but me haue ye not allwaye. Luc.

Then moch people of the Jewes had A knowlege, that he was there, and they came not for Jesus sake onely, but also ỹ they might se Lazarus, * whom he had raysed from the deed. But ỹ hye prestes were adwised to put Lazarus to death also: because ỹ for his sake many of the Jewes wēte awaye and beleued on Jesus. Joh.

Vpon the nexte daye moch people which were come vnto the feast, whan they herde that Jesus came towarde Jerusalem, they toke braunches of palme trees, and wēte out to mete him, and cryed: Hosianna, * Blessed be he, that in the name of the LORDE cometh kynge of Israel. Jesus gat a yonge Asse, and rode theron, As it is wryttē: * Feare not thou doughter of Sion, beholde, thy kynge cōmeth rydinge vpō an Asses foale. Neuertheles his disciples vnderstode not these thinges at the first, but whan Jesus was glorified, then remēbred they that soch thinges were wryttē of him, and that they had done soch thinges vnto him. Mat. Mar. Luc. Joh. Psa. Zac.

The people that was with him whan he called Lazarus out of ỹ graue and raysed him from the deed, commended the acte. Therfore the people met him, because they herde, that he had done soch a miracle. But the phariseis sayde amonge them selues: Se, that we prenayle nothinge, beholde, all ỹ worlde runneth after him.

There were certayne Grekes (amonge thē that were come vp to Jerusalē to worshipe at the feast) the same came vnto Philippe, * which was of Bethsaida out of Galile, & prayed him, and sayde: Syr, we wolde fayne se Jesus. Philippe came, & tolde Andrew. And agayne, Philippe and Andrew tolde Jesus. Jesus answered thē, and sayde: The Joh.

houre is come, that the sonne of man must be glorified.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: Excepte the wheatcorne fall in to the grounde, and dye, it bydeth alone: But yf it dye, it bryngeth forth moch frute. He that loueth his life, shal lose it: and he that hateth his life in this worlde, shal kepe it vnto life euerlastinge. He that wyl serue me, let him folowe me. And where I am, there shal my seruaunt be also: and he that serueth me, him shal my father honoure.

Now is my soule heuy, and what shal I saye? Father, helpe me out of this houre. But therfore am I come in to this houre. Father, glorifye thy name.

Then came there a voyce from heauen: I haue glorified it, and wyl glorifye it agayne. Then sayde the people that stode by and herde: It thondereth. Other sayde: An angell spake vnto him. Jesus answered, and sayde: * This voyce came not because of me, but for youre sakes.

Now goeth the iudgment ouer the worlde. Now shal the prynce of this worlde be thrust out. And I whan I am lift vp from the earth, wyl drawe all vnto me. (But this he sayde, to signifye, what death he shulde dye.) Then answered him the people: We haue herde in the * lawe, that Christ endureth for euer: and how sayest thou then, that the sonne of man must be lift vp? Who is this sonne of man?

Then sayde Jesus vnto them: The light is yet a litle whyle with you, walke whyle ye haue the light, that the darknesse fall not vpō you. He that walketh in the darknesse, woteth not whither he goeth. Beleue ye on the light, whyle ye haue it, that ye maye be the children of light.

These thinges spake Jesus, and departed awaye, and hyd himself from them. And though he had done soch tokens before thē, yet beleued they not on him, that the sayenge of Esay the prophet might be fulfylled, which he spake: LORDE, who beleueth oure preachinge? Or to whom is the arme of the LORDE opened? Therfore coulde they not beleue, for Esay saide agayne: He hath blynded their eyes, and hardened their hert, that they shulde not se with the eyes, ner vnderstonde with the hert, & shulde be conuerted, and he shulde heale them. This sayde Esay, whan he sawe his glory, and spake of him.

Neuertheles many of the chefe rulers beleued on him, but because of the pharises they wolde not be aknowne of it, lest they shulde be excommunicate, * For they loued more the prayse with men, then with God. Ioh.9.c *Ioh.5.d

Jesus cryed and sayde: He that beleueth on me, beleueth not on me, but on him that sent me. And he that seyth me, seyth him yͭ sent me. I am come a light in to the worlde, that whosoeuer beleueth on me, shulde not byde in darknesse. And he that heareth my wordes and beleueth not, I iudge him not, for I am not come to iudge the worlde, but to saue the worlde. He that refuseth me, and receaueth not my wordes, hath one allready that iudgeth him. * The worde that I haue spoken, that shall iudge him at the laste daye, For I haue not spoken of my self: but the father that sent me, hath geuen me a commaundement, what I shulde do and saye. And I knowe that his commaundement is life euerlastinge. Therfore loke what I speake, that speake I euē so, as the father hath sayde vnto me. Ioh.12.c Ioh.8.a Ioh.3.c Deut.18.c Ioh.16.b

The XIII. Chapter.

A BEfore the feast of Easter whan Jesus knewe that his tyme was come, that he shulde departe out of this worlde vnto yͭ father, as he loued his which were in the worlde, euen so loued he them vnto the ende. And after supper, whan the deuell had allready put into yͤ hert of Judas Iscarioth Symons sonne, to betraye him, Jesus knowinge that the father had geuen all thinges in to his handes, & that he was come from God, and wente vnto God, he rose from supper, and layed asyde his vpper garmentes, and toke a towell, and gyrde it aboute him. After warde poured he water into a basen, and beganne to washe the disciples fete, and dryed them with the towell, yͭ he was gyrded withall. Mat.26.b Mar.14.b Luc.22.a Mat.11.c Luc.10.c

Then came he vnto Symon Peter, and yͭ same sayde vnto him: LORDE, shalt thou washe my fete? Jesus answered and sayde vnto him: What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt knowe it hereafter. Thē sayde Peter vnto him: Thou shalt neuer washe my fete. Jesus answered him: Yf I washe yͭ not, thou shalt haue no parte with me. Symon Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, not the fete onely, but the handes also and the heade.

B Jesus sayde vnto him: He that is washē, nedeth not, saue to washe yͭ fete, but is cleane euery whytt. And ye are cleane, but not all. Ioh.c.2.
For he knewe his betrayer, therfore sayde he: ye are not all cleane.

Now whan he had waßhen their fete, and taken his clothes, he sat him downe agayne, and sayde vnto thē: Wote ye what I haue done vnto you? Ye call me master and LORDE, and ye saye right therin, for so I am. Yf I then youre LORDE and master haue waßhen youre fete, ye ought also to wash one anothers fete. I haue genē you an ensample, that ye shulde do as I haue done vnto you. Verely verely I saye vnto you: * the seruaunt is not greater then his lorde, nether is the Apostell greater then he that sent him. Yf ye knowe thesē thinges, blessed are ye yf ye do them. I speake not of you all, I knowe whom I haue chosen, but that the scripture might be fulfilled: * He ỹ eateth my bred, hath lift vp his hele against me. I tell it you now, before it come, that whan it is come to passe, ye maye beleue, that I am he.

Then the disciples loked one vpon another, ỹ were in doute, of whom he spake. But there was one amōge his disciples, that leaned at the table on Jesus bosome, whō Jesus loued: to him beckened Symon Peter, that he shulde axe, who it was, of whom he spake. For the same leaned vpō Jesus brest, and sayde vnto him: LORDE, who is it? Jesus answered: It is he, vnto whom I dyppe the soppe ỹ geue it. And he dypte in the soppe, and gaue it vnto Judas Iscarioth Symons sonne. And after ỹ soppe the deuell entred in to him.

D Whan he was gone forth, Jesus sayde: Now is the sonne of mā glorified, and God is glorified in him. Yf God be glorified in him, thē shal god glorifie him also in hīself, ỹ straight waye shal he glorifye him. Deare childrē, I am yet a litle while with you. And now I saye vnto you, A new cōmaundmēt Iohā. geue I you, that ye loue together as I haue loued you, ỹ euen so ye loue one another. By this shal euery man knowe that ye are my disciples, yf ye haue loue one to another. Symon Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him: Whither I go, thou canst not folowe me now, * but thou shalt folowe me hereafter. Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, why cānot I folowe the now? I wil geue my life for ỹ sake. The XIIII. Chapter.

And he sayde vnto his disciples: Let A not youre hert be afrayed. Yf ye beleue on God, thē beleue also on me. In my fathers house are many dwellinges. Yf it were not so, I wolde haue tolde you: I go to prepare the place for you. And though I go to prepare the place for you, yet wil I come agayne, and receaue you vnto my self, ỹ ye maye be where I am. And whither I go, ye knowe, and the waye knowe ye also.

Thomas sayde vnto him: LORDE, we knowe not whither thou goest, ỹ how can we knowe the waye? Jesus sayde vnto him: I am the waye, and the trueth, and the life. No man cōmeth to the father but by me. Yf ye knewe me, ye knewe my father also. And frō hēce forth ye knowe hī, ỹ haue sene him. Philippe sayde vnto him: LORDE, shewe vs the father, and it sufficeth vs. Jesus sayde vnto him: Thus longe am I with you, and hast thou not knowne me? Philippe, he that seyth me, seyth the father. And how sayest thou then: Shewe vs the father? Beleuest thou not that I am in the father, and that ỹ father is in me? The wordes that I speake vnto you, those speake not I of my self: but the father that dwelleth in me, he doth the workes. Beleue me, that I am in the father, and that ỹ father is in me: Or els, beleue me at the leest for the workes sake.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: He that beleueth on me, shal do the workes that I do, and shal do greater then these: for I go to the father. And what soeuer ye axe ỹ father in my name, that wyl I do, that the father maye be praysed in the sonne. Yf ye axe eny thinge in my name, I wyl do it.

Yf ye loue me, kepe my commaundementes. And I wyl praye the father, and he shal geue you another comforter, that he maye byde with you for euer: euen ỹ spirite of trueth, whom ỹ worlde can not receaue, for it seyth him not, nether doth it knowe him: but ye knowe him, for he abydeth wt you, & shalbe in you. * I wil not leaue you cõfortles, I come vnto you. Yt is yet a litle whyle, thẽ shal the worlde se me nomore, * but ye shal se me: for I lyue, and ye shal lyue also. In ỹ daye shal ye knowe, that I am in the father and ye in me, and I in you. He that hath my cõmaundementes, and kepeth them, the same is he that loueth me: and he that loueth me, shalbe loued of my father: & I wyl loue him, and wyl shewe myne awne self vnto him. * Judas sayde vnto hi: (not that Iscarioth) LORDE, What is the cause thẽ, that thou wilt shewe thy self vnto vs, and not vnto the worlde?

Jesus answered, and sayde vnto him: He that loueth me, wyl kepe my worde, and my father wyl loue him: and we wyl come vnto him, and wyll make oure dwellynge with him. But he that loueth me not, kepeth not my sayenges. And the worde that ye heare, is not myne, but the fathers which hath sent me.

This haue I spoken vnto you, whyle I was with you. But that comforter euen ỹ holy goost, whõ my father shal sende in my name, he shal teache you all thinges, & bringe all to youre remembraunce, what soeuer I haue tolde you.

Peace I leaue vnto you, my peace I geue you: I geue not vnto you, as the worlde geueth. Let not yo hert be troubled, nether let it be afrayed. Ye haue herde, that I sayde vnto you: I go, & come agayne vnto you. Yf ye loued me, ye wolde reioyse, because I saide, I go to the father: for ỹ father is greater thẽ I. * And now haue I tolde you, before it come, that whan it is come to passe, ye maye beleue: Here after wyl not I talke moch with you. For the prynce of this worlde cõmeth, and hath nothinge in me. But that the worlde maye knowe that I loue ỹ father. And as the father hath cõmaunded me, so do I. Aryse, let vs go hence.

The XV. Chapter.

I Am a true * vyne, and my father is an husbande man. Euery braunch that bringeth not forth frute in me, shal he cut of: and euery one that bryngeth forth frute, shal he pourge, ỹ it maye bringe forth more frute. Now are ye cleane, because of the worde, that I haue spokẽ vnto you. Byde ye in me, and I in you. Like as ỹ braunch can not bryngе forth frute of it self excepte it byde in the vyne, Euen so nether ye also, excepte ye abyde in me.

I am the vyne, ye are the braunches. He that abydeth in me, and I in him, the same bryngeth forth moch frute: for without me can ye do nothinge. He that abydeth not in me, is cast out as a vyne braunche, and it wythereth, and men gather it vp, and cast it in to the fyre, and it burneth. * Yf ye abyde in me, and my wordes abyde in you, ye shal aske what ye wyl, & it shal be done vnto you. Herin is my father praysed, that ye bryngе forth moch frute, and become my disciples. Like as my father hath loued me, euẽ so haue I loued you. Cõtynue ye ĩ my loue. * Yf ye kepe my cõmaundementes, ye shal cõtynue in my loue: like as I haue kepte my fathers cõmaundementes, and cõtynue in his loue.

These thinges haue I spoken vnto you, that my ioye might remayne in you, and ỹ youre ioye might be perfecte. This is my cõmaundement, that ye loue together, as I haue loued you. No man hath greater loue, then to set his life for his frende. * Ye are my frendes, yf ye do that I commaunde you. Hence forth call I you not seruauntes, for a seruaunt knoweth not what his lorde doeth. But I haue sayde that ye are frendes: For all that I haue herde of my father, haue I shewed vnto you. Ye haue not chosen me, but I haue chosen you, and ordeyned you, that ye go, and * bringe forth frute, and that youre frute contynue, that what soeuer ye are the father in my name, he shulde geue it you.

This I commaunde you, that ye loue one another. Yf the worlde hate you, then knowe, that it hath hated me before you. Yf ye were of the worlde, the worlde wolde loue his awne. Howbeit because ye are not of the worlde, but I haue chosen you from the worlde, therfore the worlde hateth you. Remembre my worde, that I sayde vnto you: The seruaunt is not greater then his lorde. Yf they haue persecuted me, they shal persecute you also: Yf they haue kepte my worde, they shal kepe yours also.

But all this shal they do vnto you for my names sake, because they knowe not him ỹ sent me. Yf I had not come & spokẽ vnto thẽ, thẽ shulde they haue no synne But now haue they nothinge to cloake their synne withall. He ỹ hateth me, hateth my father also. Yf I had not done amõgе thẽ the workes which no other mã dyd, they shulde haue no synne. But now haue they sene it, and yet haue they hated both me & my father. vnto you by * prouerbes. Neuertheles the of my father.

In that daye shal ye axe in my name.
And I saye not vnto you, that I wyl praye vnto the father for you: for the father himself loueth you, because ye haue loued me, & beleued that I am come out from God. I wente out from the father, and came in to the worlde: Agayne, I leaue ỹ worlde, and go to the father.

His disciples sayde vnto him: Behold, now talkest thou plainly, and speakest no prouerbe. Now are we sure ỹ thou knowest all thinges, and nedest not that eny mā shal

Now ye do beleue: Beholde, the houre draw scatred, euery man in to his awne, and shal leaue me alone: and yet am I not alone, for the father is with me.

These thinges haue I spoken vnto you, that in me ye might haue peace. In ỹ worl de haue ye trouble, but be of good comfort,
I haue ouercome the worlde.

The XVII. Chapter.

THese thinges spake Jesus, and lift vp his eyes towarde heauen, and saye de: Father, the houre is come, that thou glorifye thy sonne, that thy sonne also maye glorifye the. Like as thou hast geuen him power ouer all fleshe, that he shulde gi

ye euerlastinge life to as many as thou hast geuen him. * But this is the life euerlastinge, that they knowe the (that thou onely art the true God) and whom thou hast sent, Jesus Christ.

I haue glorified ỹ vpō earth, & * fynished ỹ worke, ỹ thou gauest me to do. And now glorifye me thou father by thine awne self, with ỹ glory which I had or euer the worlde was. I haue declared thy name vnto ỹ men, whom thou gauest me from the worlde. They were thine, and thou gauest them vnto me, and they haue kepte thy worde.

Now knowe they, that all thinges what soeuer thou hast geuen me, are of the. For ỹ wordes which thou gauest me, haue I geuē vnto them, and they haue receaued them, & knowne of a trueth, that I am come forth from the, and haue beleued, that thou hast sent me. I praye for them, and praye not for the * worlde, but for them whom thou hast geuen me, for they are thine. And all that is myne, is thine: and what thine is, that is myne. And I am glorifyed in them. And now am I nomore in the worlde, and they are in ỹ worlde, and I come to the. Holy father, kepe in thy name, those whom thou * hast geuē me, that they maye be one, like as we are. Whyle I was with thē in the worlde, I kepte them in thy name. Those ỹ thou gauest me, haue I kepte, and none of them is lost, but that lost childe, that the * scripture might be fulfylled. But now come I vnto the, and this I speake in the worlde, that they maye haue my ioye perfecte in them. I haue geuen them thy worde, * and the worlde hateth thē: for they are not of the worlde, euen as I also am not of the worlde. I praye not that thou shuldest take them out of the worlde, * but that thou kepe thē frō euell. They are not of the worlde, as I also am not of the worlde.

C Sanctifye them in thy trueth. Thy worde is the trueth. Like as thou hast sent me in to the worlde, so haue I sent them in to the worlde: and for their sakes I sanctifye my self, that they also maye be sanctifyed in the trueth.

Neuertheles I praye not for them only, but also for those, which thorow their worde shal beleue on me, that they all maye be one, like as thou father art in me, and I in ỹ, that they also maye be * one in vs: that the worlde maye beleue, that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gauest me, haue I geuen them: that they maye be one, like as we are one. I in thē, and thou in me, that they maye be perfecte in one, and that the worlde maye knowe, that thou hast sent me and hast loued them, as thou hast loued me.

Father, I wil, that they whom thou hast geuen me, be with me where I am, ỹ they maye se my glory, which thou hast geuē me: for thou hast loued me, or euer ỹ worlde was made. Righteous father, the worlde hath not knowne ỹ, but I haue knowne ỹ: and these haue knowne, that thou hast sent me. And I haue declared thy name vnto them, & wyl declare it, ỹ the loue wherwith thou hast loued me, maye be in thē, & I in them.

The XVIII. Chapter.

A When Jesus had thus spokē, he wēte forth with his disciples ouer the broke Cedron, where there was a gardē, in to the which Jesus entred and his disciples. But Judas ỹ betrayed hī, knewe the place also. For Jesus resorted thither oft tymes & his disciples. Now whan Judas had takē vnto him the cōpany, & myniſters of the hye prestes and Pharises, he came thither with creshettes, & lanternes, and with weapens. Jesus now knowinge all ỹ shulde come vpon him, wēte forth, and sayde vnto thē: Whom seke ye? They answered him: Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus sayde vnto them: I am he. Judas also which betrayed him, stode with thē. Now whan Jesus sayde vnto thē: I am he, they wēte bacwardes, and fell to the grounde. Then axed he thē agayne: Whom seke ye? They sayde: Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus answered: I haue tolde you, that I am he. Yf ye seke me, then let these go their waye. That the worde might be fulfylled, which he sayde: Of them whō thou gauest me, haue I not lost one. Then had Symon Peter a swerde, and drewe it out, and smote the hye prestes seruaūt, and cut of his righte eare. And ỹ seruaūtes name was Malchus.

Mat. 26. c Mar. 14. c Luc. 22. c

Ioh. 17. b

B Then sayde Jesus vnto Peter: Put vp thy swerde in to the sheeth. Shal I not dryncke of ỹ cuppe, which my father hath geuē me? Then the company and the captayne & the officers of the Jewes toke Jesus, and bounde him, & led him awaye first vnto Annas, that was fatherlawe vnto Caiphas, which was hye prest ỹ same yeare. Ie was Caiphas, which gaue coūcell vnto ỹ Jewes that it were good, that one man shulde dye for the people.

Ioh. 11. a

As for Symon Peter, he and another disciple folowed Jesus. The same disciple was knowne vnto the hye prest, and wēte in with Jesus in to the hye prestes palace. But Peter stode without at the dore. Then ỹ other disciple which was knowne vnto the hye preest, wente out, and spake to the damsell ꝥ kepte the doꝛe, and brought in Peter. Then the damsell that kepte the doꝛe, sayde vnto Peter: Art not thou also one of this mans disciples? He sayde: I am not.

C The seruauntes & officers stode, and had made a fyre of coles (foꝛ it was colde) & warmed thē selues. Peter also stode with them, and warmed him self. The hye preest axed Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctryne. Ioh.7.b Jesus answered him: I haue spoken openly before the worlde, I haue euer taught in the synagoge and in the tēple, whither all the Jewes resoꝛted, & in secrete haue I spokē no thinge. Why axest thou me? Axe thē ꝥ haue herde, what I haue spoken vnto thē: beholde, they can tell what I haue sayde. But Iere.30.a Mat.26.g Act.23.a whan he had thus spokē, one of the officers that stode by, smote Jesus on the face, and sayde: Answerest thou the hye preest soꝛ? Jesus answered him: Yf I haue euell spokē, thē beare wytnesse of euell: but yf I haue well spoken, why smytest thou me? And Annas sent him bounde vnto Caiphas ꝥ hye preest.

Mat.26.g Mar.14.g Luc.22.d Symō Peter stode and warmed him self. Thē sayde they vnto him: Art not thou one of his disciples? He denyed, and sayde: I am not. A seruaūt of the hye preestes, a kynßmā of his, whose eare Peter had smytten of, sayde vnto him: Dyd not I se the in the gardē with him?

D Then Peter denyed agayne. And immediatly the cock crew. Ioh.13.d Then led they Jesus *Mat.27.a Marc.15.a Luc.23.a from Caiphas in to the comon hall. And it was early in the mornynge. And they them selues wēte not in to the comō hall, lest they shulde be defyled, but ꝥ they might eate ꝥ Pascall lambe. Then wente Pilate out vnto thē, and sayde: What accusacion brynge ye agaynst this man? They answered, and sayde vnto him: Yf he were not an euell doer, we had not delyuered him vnto the. Then sayde Pilate vnto thē: Take ye him, and iudge him after yō lawe. Then sayde ꝥ Jewes vnto him: It is not laufull foꝛ vs to put eny mā to death. That ꝥ worde of Jesus might be fulfilled, Ioh.12.d * which he spake, whan he signified, what death he shulde dye.

Mat.27.b Marc.15.a Luc.23.a Then entred Pilate in to the comon hall agayne, and called Jesus, & sayde vnto him: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? Jesus answered: Sayest thou that of thy self, oꝛ haue other tolde it the of me?

E Pilate answered: Am I a Jewe? Thy people and the hye preestes haue delyuered the vnto me. What hast thou done? Jesus answered: My kyngdome is not of this worlde. Yf my kyngdome were of this worlde, my mynisters wolde fight therfoꝛe, ꝥ I shulde not be delyuered vnto the Jewes. But Ioh. now is my kyngdome not from hence. Thē sayde Pilate vnto hī: Art thou a kynge thē? Jesus answered: Thou sayest it, foꝛ I am a kynge. Foꝛ this cause was I borne, and came in to the worlde, that I shulde testifye the trueth. Who so euer is of the trueth, heareth my voyce. Pilate sayde vnto hī: What is the trueth? And whan he had sayde that he wēte out agayne to the Jewes, and sayde vnto them: I fynde no gyltinesse in him: Mat. Mar. Luc. * But ye haue a custome, that I shulde geue one vnto you lowse at Easter. Wyl ye now ꝥ I lowse vnto you the kynge of ꝥ Jewes? Thē cryed they agayne altogether, and sayde: Not him, but Barrabas. Yet was Barrabas a murthurer.

The XIX. Chapter.

Then Pilate toke Jesus, and scourged him. And the soudyers platted a crowne of thornes, and set it vpon his heade, and put a purple garment vpon him, and sayde: Hayle kynge of the Jewes. And they smote him on the face. Then wente Pilate forth agayne, and sayde vnto thē: Beholde, I brynge him forth vnto you, ꝥ ye maye knowe, ꝥ I fynde no faute in hī. So Jesus wente out, & ware a crowne of thorne and a purple robe. And he sayde vnto them: Beholde, the man. Whan the hye preestes & the mynisters sawe him, they cryed, & sayde: Crucifye, crucifye. Pilate sayde vnto thē: Take ye him, and crucifye him, foꝛ I fynde no giltynesse in him. The Jewes answered him: We haue a lawe, & after oure lawe he ought to dye, * because he made him self the sonne of God. Whan Pilate herde that worde, he was the moꝛe afrayed, and wente agayne in to the comon hall, and sayde vnto Jesus: Whence art thou? But Jesus gaue him no answere. Thē sayde Pilate vnto him: Speakest thou not vnto me? Knowest thou not, ꝥ I haue power to crucifye ꝥ, & haue power to lowse ꝥ? Jesus answered: Thou shuldest haue no power vōō me, yf it were not * geuē the from aboue. Therfoꝛe he that delyuered me vnto ꝥ, hath the moꝛe synne. From that tyme forth Pilate sought meanes to lowse him. But the Jewes cryed, & sayde: Yf thou let him go, thou art not the Emperours frende. Foꝛ whosoeuer maketh him self kynge, is agaynst the Emperoure.

Whan Pilate herde ꝥ worde, he brought Jesus forth, & sat hī downe vpō ꝥ iugdmēt seate, in the place which is called the Pauement, but in the Hebrue, Gabbatha. It was the daye of preparinge of the Easter aboute the sixte houre. And he sayde vnto the Jewes: Beholde yo kynge. But they cryed: Awaye wt him, awaye wt him, crucifie him. Pilate saide vnto thē: Shal I crucifye yo kynge? The hye prestes answered: We haue no kynge but ye Emperō. Thē delyuered he him vnto them, to be crucifyed.

They toke Jesus, and led him awaye. And he bare his crosse,* and wente out to the place called ye place of deed men skulles, which in Hebrue is named Golgatha, where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either syde one, but Jesus in the mydes* Pilate wrote a superscripcion, and set vpon the crosse. And there was wrytten: Jesus of Nazareth, kynge of the Jewes. This superscripcion red many of the Jewes. For ye place where Jesus was crucifyed, was nye vnto the cite. And it was wrytten in Hebrue, Greke & Latyn. Then sayde the hye prestes of the Jewes vnto Pilate: Wryte not kynge of the Jewes, but ye he sayde, I am kynge of the Jewes. Pilate answered: What I haue wrytten, that haue I wrytten.

The sondyers, whan they had crucifyed Jesus, toke his garmentes, and made foure partes, to euery soudyer one patte, and the cote also. As for the cote, it was vnsowed frō aboue, wrought thorow and thorow. Then sayde they one to another: Let vs not deuyde it, but cast lottes for it, who shal haue it, that the scripture might be fulfilled, which sayeth:* They haue parted my garmentes amonge them, and on my cote haue they cast lottes. This dyd the soudyers in dede.

There stode by the crosse of Jesus, his mother, and his mothers sister Mary, the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene. Now whan Jesus sawe his mother, and the disciple stondynge by, whō he loued, he sayde vnto his mother: Woman, beholde, that is thy sonne. Then sayde he to the disciple: beholde, that is thy mother. And from that houre the disciple toke her vnto him.

After that whan Jesus knewe that all was perfourmed,* that the scripture might be fulfylled, he sayde: I am a thyrst. There stode a vessell full of vyneger. They fylled a sponge with vyneger and wonde it aboute with ysope, and helde it to his mouth. Now whan Jesus had receaued the vyneger, he sayde: It is fynished, and bowed his heade, and gaue vp the goost.

The Jewes then, for so moch as it was the daye of preparinge, that ye bodies shulde not remayne vpon the crosse on the Sabbath, (for ye same Sabbath daye was greate) besought Pilate, that their legges might be broken, and that they might be taken downe. Then came the soudyers, and brake the legges of the first, and of the other that was crucifyed with him. But whan they came to Jesus, and sawe that he was deed allready, they brake not his legges, but one of the soudyers opened his syde with a speare.* And immediatly there wente out blonde and water. Zach.13.

And he that sawe it, bare recorde, and his recorde is true. And he knoweth that he sayeth true, that ye might beleue also. For this is done, ye the scripture might be fulfylled:* Ye shal not breake a bone of him. And Exod.12.
agayne, another scripture sayeth:* They Zach.12.
shal se him, whom they haue pearsed.

After that, Joseph of Arimathia, which was a disciple of Jesus (but secretly for feare of the Jewes) besought Pilate, ye he might take downe the body of Jesus. And Pilate gaue him lycence. There came also* Nicodemus, (which afore came vnto Jesus by night) & brought of Myre & Aloes mingled together, aboute an hūdreth poūde weight. Marc.15. Mat.27. Luc.23.c Ioh.3.a

Thē toke they the body of Jesus, & wonde it with lynnen clothes, and with the spyces, as the maner of the Jewes is to burye. And by ye place where Jesus was crucified, there was a gardē, and in the garden a new sepulchre, where in was neuer man layed: there layed they Jesus, because of the preparinge daye of ye Jewes, for the sepulcre was nye at hande.

The XX. Chapter.

Upon one daye of the Sabbath, came Mary Magdalene early (whē it was yet darcke) vnto the sepulcre, & sawe that the stone was takē from the sepulcre. Then ranne she, & came to Symon Peter, and to ye other disciple,* whom Jesus loued, and sayde vnto them: They haue takē awaye the LORDE out of the sepulcre, & we can not tell where they haue layed him. Thē wēte Peter forth and the other disciple, and came to the sepulcre. They rāne both together, and that other disciple out rāne Peter, and came first to the sepulcre, and loked in, and sawe the lynnen clothes layed. But he wēte not in. Thē came Symon Peter after him, and wente in to the sepulcre, & sawe the lynnē clothes lye, and the napkyn that was bounde aboute Jesus heade, not layed with the lynnen clothes, but wrapped together in Ioh.19.c 20.c.21.a a place by it self. Thē wēte ī also ẏ other disciple, which came first to ẏ sepulcre, & he sawe & beleued: for as yet they knewe not ẏ scriptures, ẏ it behoued hī to ryse agayne frō ẏ deed. Thē wēte ẏ disciples againe together.

Psal.15.b Act.2.c 1.d.17.a

B As for Mary, she stode before ẏ sepulcre & wepte without. Now as she wepte, she loked in to the sepulcre, and sawe two angels in whyte garmentes syttinge, ẏ one at the heade, & the other at ẏ fete, where they had layed the body of Jesus. And they sayde vnto her: Womā, why wepest thou? She saide vnto thē: They haue taken awaye my LORDE, & I wote not where they haue layed hī. And whan she had sayde ẏ, she turned her self backe, & sawe Jesus stondinge, & knewe not ẏ it was Jesus. Jesus sayde vnto her: Woman, why wepest thou? Whom sekest thou? She thought ẏ it had bene ẏ gardener, & sayde vnto him: Syr, yf thou hast borne him hence: then tell me where thou hast layed him: and I wil fetch hī. Jesus sayde vnto her: Mary. Then turned she her aboute, & sayde vnto him: Rabboni, ẏ is to saye: Master. Jesus sayde vnto her: Touche me not, for I am not yet ascended vnto my father. But go thou ẏ waye vnto my * brethrē & saye vnto thē: I ascēde vp vnto my father and yo father: to my God, & yo God.

Psal.21.c

Joh.20.d

Mary Magdalene came, & tolde ẏ disciples: I haue sene the LORDE, & soch thinges hath he spoken vnto me.

Luc.42.a

C The same Sabbath at euē whā ẏ disciples were gathered together, and the dores were shut for feare of ẏ Jewes, came Jesus, and stode ī ẏ myddes, & sayde vnto thē: Peace be wt you. And whā he had so sayde, he shewed thē his hādes & his syde. * Thē were ẏ disciples glad, ẏ they sawe ẏ LORDE. Thē sayde Jesus vnto thē agayne: Peace be with you. * Like as my father sent me, euē so sēde I you. And whan he had sayde ẏ, he brethed vpō thē, and sayde vnto thē: Receaue the holy goost. Whose synnes soeuer ye remytte, they are remytted vnto thē: and whose synnes soeuer ye retayne, they are retayned.

Luc.24.c

Joh.16.c

Esa.61.a Mar.16.b Luc.4.a Joh.17.c

* But Thomas one of the twolue * which is called Didimus, was not wt thē whā Jesus came. Thē sayde the other disciples vnto him: We haue sene the LORDE. But he sayde vnto thē: Excepte I se in his handes the prynte of the nales, and put my hāde in to his syde, I wil not beleue.

Joh.11.b

D And after eight dayes agayne were his disciples within, & Thomas wt thē. Thē came Jesus (whā ẏ dores were shutt) & stode in the myddes, & sayde: Peace be wt you. After ẏ sayde he vnto Thomas: Reach hither ẏ fynger, and se my handes, and reach hither ẏ hāde, & put it ī to my syde, & be not faithlesse, but beleue. Thomas answered, & sayde vnto him: My LORDE, and my God. Jesus sayde vnto him: Thomas, because thou hast sene me, thou hast beleued. Blessed are they, that se not, and yet beleue.

Many other tokēs dyd Jesus before his disciples, which are not wryttē in this boke. But these are wryttē, ẏ ye shulde beleue, ẏ Jesus is Christ the sonne of God, & that ye thorow beleue might haue life in his name.

The XXI. Chapter.

AFter that shewed Jesus himself agayne at the see of Tiberias. But on this wyse shewed he himself. There were together Symō Peter, & Thomas which is called Didimus, & * Nathanael of Cana a cite of Galile, & the sonnes of Zebede, & two other of his disciples. Symon Peter sayde vnto thē: I go a fyshinge. They sayde vnto hī: We also wil go wt the. They wēte out, & entred in to a shippe straighte waye. And ẏ same night toke they nothinge. But whā it was now morow, Jesus stode on the shore, but his disciples knewe not ẏ it was Jesus. Jesus sayde vnto thē: Childrē, haue ye eny thinge to eate? They answered hī: No. He sayde vnto thē: Caste out the nett on ẏ right syde of the shippe, & ye shal fynde. Thē they caste out, & coulde nomore drawe it for ẏ multitude of fisshes. Thē sayde ẏ disciple * whō Jesus loued, vnto Peter: It is the LORDE.

Luc.5.a

Whan Simon Peter herde that it was the LORDE, he gyrde his mantell aboute him (for he was naked) and sprange in to ẏ see. But other disciples came by shippe (for they were not farre frō londe, but as it were two hundreth cubytes) and they drewe the net with the fisshes. Now whan they were come to londe, they sawe coles layed, and fysh theron, and bred. Jesus sayde vnto thē: Bringe hither of the fysshes, that ye haue taken now. Symon Peter stepped forth, and drew the nett to the londe, full of greate fysshes, an hundreth and thre and fyftie. And for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

Luc.5.a

Jesus sayde vnto them: Come, and dyne. (But none of the disciples durst axe him: Who art thou? For they knewe, that it was the LORDE. Then came Jesus, and toke ẏ bred, and gaue it thē: and the fysshe likewyse. This is now the thirde tyme that Jesus appeared vnto his disciples, after that he was rysen agayne from the deed.

Now whā they had dyned, Jesus sayde vnto Symon Peter: Symō Johāna, loueſt thou me more then theſe do? He sayde vnto him: Yee LORDE, thou knoweſt ẏ I loue the. He sayde vnto him: Fede my lābes. He sayde vnto him agayne the seconde tyme: Symō Johāna, loueſt thou me? He sayde vnto him: Yee LORDE, thou knoweſt, ẏ I loue ẏ. He sayde vnto him: Fede my ſhepe. He saide vnto him ẏ thirde tyme: Symon Johāna, loueſt thou me? Peter was ſory, becauſe he ſayde vnto him, loueſt thou me? And he sayde vnto him: LORDE, thou knoweſt all thinges, thou knoweſt, that I loue ẏ. Jesus sayde vnto him: Fede my ſhepe.

Verely verely I saye vnto the: Whan thou waſt yōge, thou gerdedſt thyſelfe, and walkedſt whither thou woldeſt. But whā thou art olde, thou ſhalt ſtretch forth thy handes, and another ſhal gyde the, and lede the whither thou woldeſt not. But this he sayde, to ſignifye with what death he ſhulde glorifye God.

Whan he had ſpoken this, he sayde vnto him: Folowe me. Peter turned him aboute, and ſawe the diſciple folowinge, whom Jesus loued, (* which alſo leaned vpō his breſt at the ſupper, and sayde: LORDE, who is it that betrayeth the)? Whā Peter ſawe him, he sayde vnto Jesus: LORDE, but what ſhal he do? Jesus sayde vnto him: Yf I wil that he tary tyll I come, what is that to the? Folowe thou me. Then wente there out a ſayenge amonge the brethren: This diſciple dyeth not. And Jesus sayde not vnto him: He dyeth not, but: Yf I wil that he tary tyll I come, what is that to the? This is the ſame diſciple, which teſtifyeth of theſe thinges, and wrote theſe thinges, and we knowe that his teſtimony is true.

There are many other thinges alſo that Jesus dyd, which, yf they ſhulde be wrytte̅ euery one, I ſuppoſe the worlde ſhulde not con tayne the bokes, that were to be wrytten.

The Actes of the Apostles.

The first Chapter.

THE first treatise (dere Theophilus) have I made of all that Jesus begane to do and to teache, vntyll ye daye that he was taken vp, after that he (thorow the holy goost) had geuen commaundementes to to the Apostles, whom he had chosen: to who also he shewed himself alyue after his passion, by many tokes, and appeared vnto them fourtye dayes longe, and spake vnto them of the kyngdome of God.

And whan he had gathered them together, he commaunded them that they shulde not departe from Jerusalem, but to wayte for the promyse of the father, wherof (sayde he) ye have herde of me: * For Jhon baptysed with water, but ye shalbe baptysed wt ye holy goost, & that within this few dayes.

Now whan they were come together, they axed him, and sayde: LORDE, shalt thou at this tyme set vp the kyngdome of Israel agayne? But he sayde vnto them: It belongeth not vnto you to knowe the tymes or seasons, which the father hath kepte in his awne power, but ye shal receaue the power of ye holy goost, which shal come vpon you, and ye shalbe my witnesses at Jerusalem, and in all Jewrye and Samaria, and vnto the ende of the earth.

And whan he had spoken these thinges, & whyle they beholde, he was taken vp, and a cloude receaued him from their sight. And whyle they loked after him, as he wente in to heauen, beholde, there stode by them two men in whyte garmentes, which also sayde:

Ye men of Galile, Why stonde ye gasynge vp in to heauen? This Jesus which is take vp from you in to heauen * shal come euen so as ye haue sene him go in to heauen.

Then turned they agayne from ỹ mount that is called Oliuete, which is nye to Jerusalem, and hath a Sabbath dayes iourney. And whan they came in, they wente vp in to a parler, where abode Peter and James, Jhon and Andrew, Philippe and Thomas, Bartilmew and Mathew, James the sonne of Alpheus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the sonne of James. These all contynued with one accorde in prayer and supplicacion, with the wemen and Mary the mother of Jesu and with his brethren.

C And in those dayes Peter stode vp in the myddes amonge the disciples, and sayde: (The company of the names together, was aboute an hundreth and twentye.) Ye men and brethren, this scripture must nedes be fulfylled, which ỹ holy goost by the mouth of Dauid spake before of Judas, which was a gyde of thē that toke Jesus: * for he was nombred with vs, and had opteyned the felashippe of this mynistracion. This same trulye possessed the * felde for the reward of vnrighteousnes, and hanged himself, and brast a sunder in the myddes, and all his bowels gusshed out. And it is knowne vnto all thē that dwell at Jerusalem, in so moch that the same felde is called in their mother tonge Acheldema, that is to saye, the blonde felde.

D For it is wrytten in the boke of psalmes: His habitacion be voyde, and noman be dwellinge therin. And: * His bisshoprike another take. Wherfore amonge these men which haue bene gathered together with vs (all the tyme that the LORDE Jesus wēte out and in amonge vs, begynnynge from the baptyme of Jhon, vntyll ỹ daye that he was takē vp from vs) must one be a wytnesse with vs of his resurreccion.

And they appoynted two (Joseph called Barsabas, whose syrname was Justus, and Mathias.) makinge their prayer and sayenge: Thou LORDE, which knowest the hertes of all men, shewe whether of these two thou hast chosen, that the one maye take the rowme of this mynistracion and Apostelshippe, from the which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go awaye in to his awne place. And they gaue forth the lottes ouer them, and the lot fell vpon Mathias. And he was counted with the eleuen Apostles.

The II. Chapter.

A ND whan the * Whit sondaye was fulfylled, they were all with one accorde together in one place. And sodenly there came a sounde from heauen, as it had bene the cōmynge of a mightie wynde, and it fylled the whole house where they sat. And there appeared vnto them clouen tunges, like as they had bene of fyre. And he sat vpon ech one of them, and they were all fylled with the holy goost. * And they begānne to preach with other tunges, euen as the spirete gaue them vtteraunce.

There were dwellinge at Jerusalem Jewes, men that feared God, out of euery nacion that is vnder heauen. Now whan this voyce came to passe, the multitude came together, and were astōnyed: For euery one herde, that they spake with his awne tunge. They wondred all and marueyled, and sayde amonge them selues: Beholde, are not all these which speake, of Galile: How heare we thē euery one his awne tunge, wherin we were borne: Parthians and Medes, and Elamites, and we that dwell in Mesopotamia, and in Jewry and Capadocia, Pontus, and Asia, Phrigia and Pamphilia, Egipte, and in the partes of Lybia by Cyren, and straungers of Rome, Jewes and * Proselytes, Cretes and Arabians: we heare them speake with oure awne tunges the greate workes of God.

They were all amased, and wondred, and B sayde one to another: What wil this be? But other mocked them, and sayde: They are full of swete wyne. Then stode Peter vp with the eleuen, and lift vp his voyce, and sayde vnto them:

Ye men of Jewry, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalē, be this knowne vnto you, and let my wordes entre in at youre eares. For these are not dronken, as ye suppose, for it is yet but the thirde houre of ỹ daye: but this is it, that was spokē before by the prophet Joel: And it shal come to passe in the last dayes, sayeth God, I will poure out of my spirete vpon all flesh, and youre sonnes and youre doughters shal prophecye, and youre yonge men shal se visions * and youre olde men shall dreame dreames, and on my seruauntes and on my handmaydens wyll I poure out of my spirete in those dayes, & they shal prophecye.

And I wil shewe wonders in heauen aboue, and tokens on the earth beneth, blonde and fyre, and the vapoure of smoke. The Sonne shalbe turned in to darknesse, and the Moone in to bloude, before that greate and notable daye of the LORDE come. And it shall come to passe, Who so euer shal call vpō the name of the LORDE, shalbe saued.

C Ye men of Israel, heare these wordes: Iesus of Nazareth, ẏ man approued of God amonge you with miracles, and wonders and tokens, which God dyd by him in the myddes amonge you, as ye yō selues knowe also, * him (after that he was delyuered by the determinate councell and foreknowlege of God) haue ye taken by the handes of vnrighteous personnes, and crucifyed him, & slayne him, whō God hath raysed vp, and lowsed the sorowes of death, forsomoch as it was vnpossyble that he shulde be holden of it. For Dauid speaketh of him: Afore hon de haue I set the LORDE allwayes before me, for he is on my right hōde, that I shulde not be moued. Therfore dyd my hert reioyse, and my tunge was glad: For my flesh also shal rest in hope. For thou shalt not leaue my soule in hell, nether shalt thou suffer ẏ Holy to se corrupcion. Thou hast shewed me the wayes of life, thou shalt make me full of ioye with thy countenaunce.

Ye men and brethren, let me frely speake vnto you of the patryarke Dauid: For he is deed and buried, and his sepulcre is with vs vnto this daye. Wherfore now seinge ẏ he was a prophet, and knewe that God had promised him with an ooth, that the frute of his loynes shulde syt on his seate, he sawe it before, and spake of the resurreccion of Christ: for his soule was not left in hell, nether hath his flesh sene corrupcion. This Iesus hath God raysed vp, wherof we all are witnesses.

Seynge now that he by the right hande of God * is exalted, and hath receaued of ẏ father ẏ promyse of the holy goost, he hath shed forth this, that ye se and heare. For Dauid is not ascended in to heauen, but he sayde: The LORDE sayde vnto my LORDE: Syt thou on my righte hande, vntyll I make thine enemies ẏ forestole. So therfore let all the house of Israel knowe for a suertye, ẏ God hath made this same Iesus (whom ye haue crucified) LORDE and Christ.

Whan they herde this, their hert pricked them, and they sayde vnto Peter and to the other Apostles: Ye men and brethrē, * What shal we do? Peter sayde onto them: Amēde youre selues, and let euery one of you be baptysed in the name of Iesus Christ, for the remyssion of synnes, and ye shal receaue the gifte of the holy goost. For this * promyse was made vnto you and youre children, and to all that are farre of, whō so euer the LORDE oure God shal call. And wt many other wordes bare he witnesse, and exorted them, and sayde: Saue youre selues from this vntoward generacion. They that gladly receaued his preachinge, were baptysed, & the same daye there were added vnto them aboute thre thousande soules.

They contynued in the Apostles doctryne, and in the felashippe, and in breakynge of bred, and in prayer. And feare came vpō euery soule, and many wonders and tokens were done by ẏ Apostles. But all they that beleued, were together, and had all thinges commen. They solde their goodes and possessions, and parted them out amonge all, acordinge as euery mā had nede. And they contynued daylie with one acorde in the tēple, and * brake bred in euery house: they tooke their meate with ioye & syngleneſſe of hert, prayſinge God, and had fauoure with all ẏ people. And the LORDE added to the congregacion daylie soch as shulde be saued.

The III. Chapter.

PEter and Jhon wente vp together in to the temple aboute the nyenth houre to praye. And there was a certayne man halt from his mothers wombe, whom they brought and layed daylie at the gate of the tēple, which is called, the Bewty full, that he might axe almesse of them that wēte in to the temple. Now whan he sawe Peter and Jhon, that they wolde in to the temple, he desyred to receaue an almesse. peter beheldе him with Jhon, and sayde: Loke on vs. And he gaue hede vnto them, hopynge to receaue some thinge of them. Howbeit Peter saide: Syluer and golde haue I none: but soch as I haue gene I the. * In thename of Iesus Christ of Nazareth ryse vp & walke. And he toke him by the righte hande and lifte him vp. Immediatly his legges & ancle bones were made stroge, and he sprange, stode and walked, and entred with them in to the tēple, walkynge, and leapinge and prayſinge God.

And all the people sawe him walke and prayse God. And they knewe him, ẏ it was he, which sat for almesse at the bewtyfull gate of the temple. And they were fylled with wondrynge, and were astonyed at that, which had happened vnto hī. But as this halt which was healed helde him to Peter and Jhon, all the people ranne vnto them in to the * porche, which is called Salomōs, and wondred.

Whan Peter sawe that, he answered vn to the people: Ye men of Israel, why marueyle ye at this, or why loke ye so at vs, as though we by oure awne power or deseruyn ge, had made this man to walke? The God of Abraham and of Isaac, and of Jacob, ȳ God of oure fathers hath glorifyed his chil de Jesus, * whom ye delyuered and denyed in the presence of Pilate, whan he had iudged him to be lowsed. But ye denyed the holy and iust, and desyred the murthurer to be geuen you, but ye slewe the prynce of life, whom God hath raysed from the deed, of the which we are witnesses. And thorow ȳ faith in his name, hath he confirmed his na and faith thorow him, hath geuē this man this health before youre eyes.

Now deare brethrē, I knowe that ye ha ue done it * thorow ignoraunce, as dyd also youre rulers. But God, which by the mouth of all his prophetes had shewed before, ȳ his Christ shulde suffre, hath so fulfilled it.
Do penaunce now therfore and turne you, that youre synnes maye be done awaye, whan the tyme of refreshinge shal come before the presence of the LORDE, and whan he shal sende him, which now before is prea ched vnto you, euen Jesus Christ: which must receaue heauen vntyll the tyme that all thinges, which God hath spoken by the mouth of his holy prophetes sence ȳ worl-de beganne, be restored agayne.

For Moses sayde vnto ȳ fathers: A prophet shal the LORDE youre God rayse vp vnto you, euen from amōge youre brethren, like vnto me: him shal ye heare, in all that he shal saye vnto you. And it shal come to passe, what soule soeuer shal not heare the sa me prophet, shal be destroyed from amonge the people. And all the prophetes from Sa muel and thence forth as many as haue spo ken, haue likewyse tolde of these dayes.

Ye are the children of the prophetes and of the couenaunt, which God made vnto o fathers, whan he sayde vnto Abrahā: Tho-row ȳ sede shal all ȳ nacios of ȳ earth be bles sed. * Fyrst vnto you hath God raysed vp his childe Jesus, & sent hī vnto you, to blesse you ȳ euery one shulde turne frō his wickednesse.

The IIII. Chapter.

BVt as they spake to ȳ people, there came vnto thē the prestes and the ru lers of the tēple, and the Saduces, whō it greued ȳ they taught the people, & preached in Jesu ȳ resurreccion frō the deed and they layed handes vpon them, and put thē in holde tyll the morow: for it was now euentyde. Howbeit many of thē which her-de the worde, beleued, and the nombre of ȳ men was aboute fyue thousande.

And it chaunced on ȳ morow, that their rulers and Elders and scrybes (as Annas ȳ hye prest and Caiphas, and Jhon & Alexan der, and as many as were of the hye prestes kynred) gathered them selues together at Jerusalem, and set them before them, and axed them: By what auctorite, Or in what name haue ye done this? Mat.21.c

Peter full of the holy goost, sayde vnto them: Ye rulers of the people, and ye Elders of Israel, Yf we this daye be examyned con cernynge this good dede vpon the sicke mā, by what meanes he is made whole, be it knowne then vnto you and to all the people of Israel, * that in ȳ name of Jesus Christ Act.3.a of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whō God hath raysed vp from the deed, stōdeth this man here before you whole. This is the sto- Psal.117.c ne refused of you buylders, which is become Mar.21.c the heade corner stone, nether is there salua- 1.Pet.2.a cion in eny other: * Nether yet also is there ge- * Mat.1.c uē vnto mē eny other name, wherin we must Phil.2.a be saued.

They sawe the boldnesse of Peter & Jhon B and marueyled, for they were sure ȳ they were vnlerned men and laye people. And they knewe thē also, that they were wt Jesu. As for the man ȳ was made whole, they sawe hī stōdinge by thē, & coulde not saye agaynst it. Then cōmaunded they thē to stōde asyde out of ȳ councell, & cōmened amōge thē sel-ues, & saide: * What shal we do to these mē? Ioh.11.a for a many fest token is done by them, and is openly knowne vnto thē that dwell at Jeru salem, and we can not denye it. But that it breake out no farther amōge the people, let vs threatē them earnestly, that hence forth they speake of this name vnto noman.

And they called them, and cōmaunded thē, that in eny wyse they shulde not speake ner teache in the name of Jesu. But Peter & Jhon answered, and sayde vnto thē: Judge ye youre selues, whether it be right before God, that we shulde be more obedient vnto you, then vnto God. We can not chose, but speake that we haue sene & herde. But they threatened them, and let them go, and found nothinge how to punyshe them because of ȳ people: for they all praysed God beca use of that, * which was done. For the man, Act.1.a vpon whom this token of health was done, was aboue fourtye yeare olde.

And whan they were let go, they came to C their folowes, and tolde them what ỹ hye prestes and Elders sayde vnto them. Whā they herde that, they lifte vp their voyce w one accorde vnto God, and sayde: LORDE, thou that art the God which made heauen and earth, and the see, and all that therin is thou that by the mouth of Dauid thy seruaūt hast sayde: Why do the Heythē rage: and ỹ people ymagin vayne thinges? The Psal. 2. kynges of the earth stonde vp, and the princes haue gathered them selues together agaynst ỹ LORDE, and agaynst his. Christ. Of a trueth agaynst thy holy childe Jesus, whom thou hast anoynted, both Herode & Pontius Pilate with the Heythen and people of Israel, haue gathered thē selues together, to do what soeuer thy hande and thy councell determyned before to be done. And now LORDE, beholde their threatenynges, and graunte vnto thy seruauntes with all stedfast boldnesse to speake thy worde: and stretch out thine hande, that healinge and tokēs and wonders maye be done by the name of thy holy childe Jesus.

D And whā they had prayed, the place moued where they were gathered together, & they were all fylled with ỹ holy goost, & spake the worde of God boldly. The multitude of them that beleued, were of one hert and of one soule. Also none of them sayde of his goodes, that they were his awne, but had all thinges cōmen. And with greate power gaue the Apostles witnesse of the resurrecion of the LORDE Jesu, and greate grace was with them all. Nether was there eny amonge them that lacked. For as many as were possessers of londes or houses, solde thē and brought ỹ money of the goodes that were solde, and layed it at the Apostles fete. And distribucion was made vnto euery mā, accordinge as he had nede.

Joses which was also called of ỹ Apostles, Barnabas (that is to saye, the sonne of consolacion) a Leuite, of the countre of Cypers, had londe, and solde it, & brought the money, and layed it at the Apostles fete.

The V. Chapter.

A BVt a certayne man named Ananias with Saphira his wife, solde his possession, and kepte awaye parte of the money (his wife knowinge of it) and broughte one parte, & layed it at the Apostles fete. But Peter sayde: Ananias, Wherfore hath Sathan fylled thine hert, that thou shuldest lye vnto the holy goost, and withdrawe awaye parte of the money of the lynelod? Mightest thou not haue kepte it, whan thou haddest it? And whan it was solde, the money was also in thy power? Why hast thou then conceaued this thinge in thine hert? Thou hast not lyed vnto mē, but vnto God. Whan Ananias herde these wordes, he fell downe, & gaue vp the goost. And there came a greate feare vpon all them that herde of this. The yonge men rose vp, and put him aside, and caried him out, and buried him.

And it fortuned as it were abonte ỹ space of thre houres after, his wife came in, and knewe not what was done. But Peter answered vnto her. Tell me, solde ye the londe for somoch? She sayde: Yee, for so moch. Peter sayde vnto her: Why haue ye agreed together, to tempte the spirite of the LORDE? Beholde, the fete of thē which haue buried thy husbande, are at the dore, & shal carye the out. And immediatly she fell downe at his fete, and gaue vp the goost. Then came in the yonge men, and founde her deed, and caried her out, and buried her by hir husbāde. And there came a greate feare over the whole congregacion, and ouer all thē that herde it.

Many tokens and wonders were done amonge the people by the hādes of the Apostles (and they were all together with one accorde in * Salomons porche: but of other there durst no man ioyne him self vnto thē, neuertheles the people helde moch of them. The multitude of the men and wemen that beleued in the LORDE, grewe more and more) In so moch that they brought out the sycke in to the stretes, and layed them vpon beddes and barowes, that at the leest waye the shadowe of Peter (whan he came by) might ouershadowe some of thē. There came many also out of ỹ cities roundeabout vnto Jerusalem, and brought the sicke and thē that were vexed with vncleane spirites, and they were healed euery one.

But the hye prest rose vp, and all they ỹ were with him, which is the secte of the Seduces, and were full of indignacion, & layd handes on the Apostles, and put them in the comon preson. But the angell of ỹ LORDE by night opened the preson dores, and brought thē out, and sayde: Go youre way and steppe vp, and speake in the temple to the people all the wordes of this life. Whan they herde that, they entred in to the temple early in the mornynge: and taught.

But the hye prest came, and they ỹ were with him, and called the councell together, & all ỹ Elders of the children of Israel, and sent to the preson to fet them. The mynisters came and founde them not in the preson, and came agayne, and tolde, and sayde: The preson founde we shut with all diligence, and the kepers stondinge without before the doores: but whā we had opened, we founde noman therin. Whan the hye preest, and the rulers of the temple and the other hye prestes herde these wordes, they douted of them, whervnto this wolde growe.

Then came there one, which tolde them: Beholde, the men that ye put in preson, are in the temple, stondinge and teachinge the people. Then wēte ỳ rulers with their mynisters, and fetched them without violence: * for they feared the people, lest they shulde haue bene stoned. And whan they had brought them, they set thē before the councell. And the hye preest axed them, and sayde: Dyd not we * cōmaunde you strately, that ye shulde not teache in this name. And beholde, ye haue fylled Jerusalem with youre doctryne, and ye intēde to brynge this mans blonde vpon vs.

But Peter and the Apostles answered, and sayde: We ought more to obeye God then men. The God of oure fathers hath raysed vp Jesus, whō ye slewe, and hanged on tre. Him hath the ryghte hande of God exalted, to be a prynce and Sauioure, to gene repentaunce and forgeuenesse of synnes vnto Israel. And we are his recordes of these wordes, and the holy goost, whō God hath geuen vnto thē that obeye him. Whā they herde that, it wente thorow the hertes of them, and they thoughte to slaye them.

Then stode there vp in ỳ councell a pharyse, named Gamaliel, a scribe, had in greate reputacion before all ỳ people, and bad put the Apostles asyde a litle, and sayde vnto them: Ye men of Israel, take hede to youre selues, what ye do as touchinge these men. Before these dayes rose vp one Theudas, boostinge himself. (And there cleued vnto him a nōbre of mē, aboute a foure hundreth) which was slayne, and all they ỳ enclyned vnto him, were scatred abrode, and brought to naught. After this stode vp Judas of Galile in ỳ dayes of trybute, and drewe awaye moch people after him, & he also perished, & all they that enclyned vnto him, are scatred abrode. And now I saye vnto you: refrayne yō selues frō these men, and let thē go. * If this councell or worke be of mē, it wil come to naught: but yf it be of God, ye are not able to destroye it, lest ye be founde to be the men, that wil stryue agaynst God. Then they agreed vnto him, and called the Apostles, and bet them, and commaunded them, that they shulde speake nothinge in the name of Jesu, and let them go.

But they departed from the presence of the councell, reioysinge, that they were worthy to suffre rebuke for his names sake. And daylie in the temple and in every house they ceassed not, to teache and to preache the Gospell of Jesus Christ. Mat.5.a

The VI. Chapter.

IN those dayes whan the nombre of the disciples increased, there arose a grudge amōge the Grekes agaynst the Hebrues, because their wyddowes were not loked vpon in the daylie handreachinge. Then the twolue called the multitude of the disciples together, and sayde: It is not mete that we shulde leaue the worde of God, and to serue at the tables. Wherfore brethren, loke out amonge you seuē men, * that are of honeste reporte, and full of the holy goost and wysdome, whom we maye appoynte to this nedefull busynes. But we wil geue oure selues vnto prayer, and to the mynistracion of the worde of God. And the sayenge pleased the whole multitude. And they chose Steuen, a man full of fayth and of the holy goost, and Philippe, and Procorus, and Nicanor, and Thimon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas the proselite of Antioche. * These they set before ỳ Apostles, and they prayed, and layed their handes vpon them. And the worde of God increased, and the nombre of the disciples multiplied greatly at Jerusalem. And there were many prestes also obedient vnto the fayth. 1.Tim.3.b Nu.27.d Act.1.d 1.Ti.4.b 2.Tim.1.b

Steuen full of faith and power, dyd wonders and greate tokens amonge the people. Then arose there certayne of the synagoge, which is called (the synagoge) of ỳ Libertynes, & of the Cyrenites, and of the Alexādrines, and of thē ỳ were of Celicia and Asia, & disputed with Steuē, * and they coulde not resiste the wysdome and the sprete, out of the which he spake. Then sent they in certayne men, that sayde: We haue herde him speake blasphemous wordes agaynst Moses, and agaynst God. And they moued the people, and the Elders and the scrybes, and came vpon him, & caught him, and brought him before the councell, and set false witnesses there, which sayde: This man ceasseth not to speake blasphemous wordes agaynst this holy place and the lawe. For we herde him saye: Jesus of Nazareth shall destroye this place, and chaunge the Luc.21.b Mat.26.f ordinaunces which Moses gaue vs. And all they that sat in the councell, loked vpō him and sawe his face as the face of an angell.

The VII. Chapter.

A Then sayde the hye prest: Is it euē so? He sayde: Deare brethren and fathers, herken to. The God of glorye appeared vnto ō father Abrahā, whyle he was yet in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Haran, and sayde vnto him: Get ȳ out of thy coūtre, and frō thy kynred, and come in to a londe which I wil shewe ȳ. At the same tyme was Moses borne, and was a proper childe before God, and was norished three monethes in his fathers house. But whan he was fourtye yeare olde, it came in to his mynde to vyset his brethren the children of Israel. And whan he sawe one of them suffre wrōge, he helped him, and delyuered him, that had the harme done vnto him, and slewe the Egipcian. And on the nexte daye he shewed himself vnto them as they stroue together, and wolde haue set them at one agayne, and sayde: Syrs, ye are brethren, why hurte ye one another? But he that dyd his neghboure wrōge, thrust him awaye, and sayde: Who made the a ruler and iudge ouer vs? Wilt thou slaye me also, as thou slewest the Egipcian yesterdaye? But Moses fled at that sayinge, and was a straunger in the lande of Madian, where he begat two sonnes.

And after fourtye yeares, the angell of ȳ LORDE appeared vnto him vpon mount Sina, in a flamme of fyre in a bußhe. Whē Moses sawe it, he wondred at the sighte. But as he drue nye to beholde, ȳ voyce of ȳ LORDE came vnto him: I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Howbeit Moses trēbled, and durst not beholde. But ȳ LORDE sayde vnto hī: *Put of thy Exod.3.a shues from thy fete, for ȳ place where thou stondest, is an holy grounde. I haue well sene the trouble of my people in Egipte, and haue herde their gronynge, and am come downe to delyuer them. And now come, I wil sende the in to Egipte.

This Moses, whom they refused, and sayde: Who made ȳ a ruler and iudge ouer vs? him had God sent to be a ruler ⁊ delyuerer by the hande of the angell, that appeared vnto him in the bußhe. The same brought them out, and dyd wonders and tokens in Egipte, and in the reed see, and in ȳ wyldernesse fourtye yeares. This is that Moses, which sayde vnto the children of Israel: A prophet shal the LORDE youre God rayse vp vnto you euen from amonge youre brethren, like vnto me. Him shal ye heare. This is he, that was in the congregacion in the wylderneſſe with the angell, which talked with him, vpō mount Sina, and with oure fathers. This man receaued the worde of life to geue vnto vs, vnto whom oure fathers wolde not be obedient, but thrust him frō thē, and in their hertes turned backe agayne into Egipte, and sayde vnto Aaron: Make vs goddes to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of this Moses, ỹ brought vs out of the lande of Egipte. And they made a calfe at the same tyme, and offred sacrifice vnto the ymage, and reioysed in the workes of their awne handes.

But God turned himselfe, & * gaue them vp, so that they worshipped the hooste of heauē, as it is wrytten in the boke of the prophetes: * O ye house of Israel, gaue ye me sacrifices and catel those fortye yeares in the wylderneſſe: And ye toke vnto you ỹ tabernacle of Moloch, and the starre of youre god Remphan, ymages which ye youre selues made to worshippe thē. And I wil cast you out beyonde Babilon.

Oure fathers had the tabernacle of witneſſe in ỹ wylderneſſe, like as he appoynted them, * whan he spake vnto Moses, that he shulde make it (acordinge to the patrone, ỹ he had sene.) which oure fathers also receaued, and brought it with Josue into the londe that the Heythē had in possession, whom God droue out before the face of oure fathers, vntyll the tyme of Dauid, which founde fauoure with God, and desyred that he might fynde a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

But Salomon buylte hī an house. * Howbeit ỹ Hyest of all dwelleth not in temples that are made with handes: As he sayeth by the prophete: Heauē is my seate, and the earth is my fote stole. What house then wil ye buylde vnto me: sayeth the LORDE: Or which is the place of my rest: Hath not my hande made all these thinges:

Ye styffnecked & of vncircumcysed hertes and eares, ye allwaye reſiste the holy gooste: Enē as yō fathers dyd, so do ye also. Which of the prophetes haue not yō fathers persecuted: And they slewe thē, which tolde before of the cōmynge of ỹ righteous, whose traytours and murthurers ye are now become. Ye receaued the lawe by the mynistracion of angels, * and haue not kepte it.

Whan they herde this, it wente thorow ỹ hertes of thē, and they gnaßhed vpō him with their tethe. But he beynge full of the holy gooste, loked vp towarde heauen, * and Mat 16.
sawe the glorye of God, and Jesus stōdinge on the righte hande of God, and sayde: Beholde, I se the heavens open, and the sonne of mā stondinge on ỹ righte honde of God. But they cried out with a loude voyce, & * Psal.57.
stopped their eares, and rāne violently vpon him all at once, and thrust him out of the cite, and stoned him. * And ỹ witnesses layed Act.22.
downe their clothes at the fete of a yonge man, which was called Saul. And they stoned Steuen, which cryed, & sayde: LORDE Jesu, receaue my spirite. And he kneled downe, & cried with a loude voyce: LORDE, laye Luc.23.
not this synne to their charge. And whā he had thus spoken, he fell a slepe.

The VIII. Chapter.

SAul had pleasure in his death. At ỹ same tyme there was a greate persecucion ouer the congregacion at Jerusalē. And they were all scatered abrode in the regions of Jewrye & Samaria, excepte the Apostles. As for Steuen, men ỹ feared God dressed him, and made greate lamentacion ouer him. But Saul made hauocke of Act.9.
the congregacion, entred in to euery house, 22.a.26 and drue out men & wemen, & delyuered thē I.Cor.1
to preson. They now ỹ were scatered abrode Gal.1.b
wēte aboute & preached the worde. Thē came Philippe in to a cite of Samaria, and preached Christ vnto them. And the people gaue hede with one acorde vnto ỹ thinges that Philip spake, hearinge him, and seynge the tokēs that he dyd. For the vncleane spirites cryed loude, and departed out of many ỹ were possessed. And many that were sicke of the palsie and lame, were healed. And there was greate ioye in the same cite.

But afore there was in ỹ same cite a certayne mā, called Simon, which vsed witche craft, and bewitched ỹ people of Samaria, sayenge, that he was a man which coulde do greate thinges. And they all regarded him from the leest vnto ỹ greatest, & sayde: This is the power of God which is greate. But they regarded him, because that of longe tyme he had bewitched them with his sorcery. Howbeit whan they beleued Philips B preachinge of ỹ kyngdome of God, and of the name of Jesu Christ, they were baptysed both mē & wemē. Then Symon himself beleued also, and was baptysed, and cleued vnto Philippe. And whā he sawe the dedes and tokens that were done, he wondred.

Whan the Apostles which were at Jerusalem, herde, that Samaria had receaued ỳ worde of God, they sent vnto thē Peter and Jhon. Which, whā they were come, prayed for thē, ỳ they might receaue the holy goost. For as yet he was come vpon none of them but they were baptysed onely in the name of Christ Jesu. * Then layed they their hādes on them, and they receaued the holy goost.

But whan Simon sawe, that by the layenge on of the Apostles hādes ỳ holy goost was geuen, he offred thē money, and sayde: Geue me also this power, that, on whomsoeuer I put the hōdes, he maye receaue the holy goost. Howbeit Peter sayde vnto him: Perishe thou with thy money, * because thou thinkest that ỳ gifte of God maye be optayned with money. Thou shalt haue nether parte ner felashipe in this worde, for ỳ hert is not righte before God. Repente therfore of this ỳ wickednesse, and praye vnto God, yf happly the thought of thy hert maye be forgeuē ỳ. For I se, ỳ thou art full of bytter gall, and wrapped in ỽ vnrighteousnesse.

C Then answered Simon, & sayde: * Praye ye vnto the LORDE for me, ỳ none of these thinges whereof ye haue spoken, come vpon me. And they, whā they had testified and spokē the worde of the LORDE, turned agayne to Jerusalem, and preached the Gospell in many townes of the Samaritanes.

But the angell of the LORDE spake vnto Philippe, and sayde: Aryse, & go towarde the South, vnto the waye that goeth downe from Jerusalem vnto Gaza, which is deserte. And he rose, and wente on. And beholde, a mā of the Mouians lōde (a chamberlayne and of auctorite with Candace ỳ quene of the londe of the Mouians) which had the rule of all hir treasuries, ỳ same came to Jerusalē to worshipe. And returned home agayne, and satt vpon his charet, and red the prophet Esay.

The sprete sayde vnto Philippe: Go neare, and ioyne thy selfe to yonder charet. Thē ranne Philippe vnto him, and herde him rede the prophet Esay, and sayde: Vnderstōdest thou what thou readest? He sayde: How can I, excepte some mā enfourme me?

D And he desyred Philippe, that he wolde come vp, and syt with him. The tenoure of the scripture which he red, was this: * He was led as a shepe to be slayne, and as a lambe voyceles before his sherer, so opened he not his mouth. In his humblenesse is his iudgment exalted. Who shal declare his generacion? for his life is taken awaye from the earth. Then answered the chamberlayne vnto Philippe, and sayde: I praye the, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himselfe, or of some other man?

Philippe opened his mouth, and begane at this scripture, and preached him the Gospell of Jesus. And as they wēte on their waye, they came to a water. And the chamberlayne sayde: Beholde, here is water, what hyndereth me to be baptysed? Philippe sayde: Yf thou beleue from thy whole herte, thou mayest. He answered, and sayde: I beleue, that Jesus Christ is the sonne of God. And he commaunded to holde styll the charet, and they wente downe into the water, both Philippe and the chamberlayne. And he baptysed him. But whan they were come vp out of the water, the sprete of the LORDE toke Philippe awaye. And the Chamberlayne sawe him nomore. But he wente on his waye reioysinge. As for Philippe, he was founde at Azzod, and walked aboute, and preached the Gospell vnto all the cities, tyll he came to Cesarea.

The IX. Chapter.

SAul was yet breathinge out threatnynges and slaughter agaynst the disciples of the LORDE. And wente vnto ỳ hye preste, and desyred of him letters to Damascon vnto the synagoges, that yf he foūde eny of this waye (whether they were men or wemen) he mighte bringe thē bounde vnto Jerusalem. And as he was goinge on his iourney, it fortuned, that he came nye vnto Damascō, and sodenly there shyned rounde aboute hī a light frō heuē, and he fell to the earth, and herde a voyce, which sayde vnto him: Saul Saul * why persecutest thou me? He sayde: LORDE, who art thou? The LORDE sayde: I am Jesus, whō thou persecutest. It shalbe harde for ỳ to kycke agaynst the prycke. And he both tremblinge and astonnyed, sayde: LORDE * what wilt thou that I shal do? The LORDE sayde vnto him: Aryse, and go into the cite, there shal it be tolde the what thou shalt do.

As for ỳ mē that iourneyed ỽ him, they stode and were amased: for they herde a voyce, but sawe noman. Saul rose from the earth, and whan he had opened his eyes, he sawe noman. Neuertheles they toke him by the honde, & broughte him to Damascō: and he was thre dayes without sighte, and nether ate ner dranke. At Damascon there was a disciple named Ananias, and vnto him sayde the LORDE in a vision: Ananias

And he sayde: beholde, here am I LORDE. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Aryse, and go into the strete which is called straight, and axe in the house of Juda after one called Saul of * Tharsis: for beholde, he prayeth, & hath sene in a vision a mā named Ananias cōmynge vnto him, & layenge the hāde vpō him, that he mighte receaue his sighte.

Ananias answered: LORDE, I haue herde by many of this man, how moch euell he hath done to thy sayntes at Jerusalē. And here hath he auctorite of the hye prestes, to bynde all thosē ỹ call vpon thy name. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, * for this man is a chosen vessell vnto me, that he maye beare my name before the Heythen, and before kynges, and before the children of Israel. I wil shewe him, how greate thinges he must suffre for my names sake.

And Ananias wente his waye, and came in to the house, and layed the handes vpon him, and sayde: Brother Saul, the LORDE which appeared vnto ỹ in the waye as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receaue thy sight, and be fylled with the holy goost. And immediatly there fell from his eyes as it had bene scales, and he receaued his sighte, and rose, and was baptysed, and toke meate, and was conforted.

Then was Saul a certayne dayes with the disciples that were at Damascon. And straight waye he preached Christ in the synagoges, how that he was ỹ sonne of God. But all they that herde him, were amased, and sayde: Is not this he, which at Jerusalem spoyled all thosē that called on his name? and came hither to the intent that he shulde brynge them bounde vnto the hye prestes? But Saul increased in strength, & cōfounded ỹ Jewes which dwelt at Damascon, and affirmed ỹ this was very Christ.

And after many dayes the Jewes helde a councell together to kyll him. But it was tolde Saul, that they layed wayte for him. And they wayted at ỹ gates daye & nighe, that they might kyll him. * Then the disciples toke him by nighte, & put him thorow the wall, and let him downe in a basket.

But whan Saul came to Jerusalem, he assayed to ioyne himself to ỹ disciples. And they were all afrayed of him, and beleued not, ỹ he was a disciple. Neuertheles Barnabas toke him, and brought him to the Apostles, and tolde them how he had sene the LORDE in the waye, and how he spake to him, & how he had done boldly at Damascon in the name of Jesu. And he was with them, and wente out and in at Jerusalē, and quyte him selfe boldly in ỹ name of ỹ LORDE Jesu. He spake also, and disputed with ỹ Grekes. But they wēte about to slaye him. Whan the brethren knewe ỹ, they brought him to Cesarea, and sent him forth to Tharsis. So the congregacions had rest thorow out all Jewry, and Galile, and Samaria, & were edified, and walked in the feare of the LORDE, and were fylled with the comforte of the holy goost. Act. 22. b

It chaunced that as Peter walked thorow all quarters, he came also vnto ỹ sayntes which dwelt at Lydda. There founde he a man named Eneas, which had lyen vpon his bedd eight yeares sicke of ỹ palsye. And Peter sayde vnto him: Eneas, Jesus Christ make the whole, aryse, and make thy bedd for ỹ selfe. And he arose immediatly. And all they that dwelt at Lydda and at Sarona, sawe him, and turned vnto the LORDE.

At Joppa there was a certayne woman that was a disciple, named Tabitha, which by interpretacion is called Dorcas: ỹ same was full of good workes and almesse dedes, which she dyd. But it chaunced at the same tyme, that she was sicke, and dyed. Then waßhed they her, and layed her in a chāber. But for so moch as Lydda was nye vnto Joppa, and the disciples herde that Peter was there, they sent two men vnto him, and desyred him, ỹ he wolde take it for no gref to come vnto them.

Peter rose, and came with thē. And whā he was come, they brought him in to the chamber, and all the wyddowes stode rounde about him, wepynge, and shewed him the cotes and garmētes, which Dorcas made whyle she was with them. And whā Peter had put them all forth, he kneled downe, made his prayer, and turned him vnto the body, and sayde: Tabitha, ryse vp. And she opened hir eyes: and whan she sawe Peter * she sat hir downe agayne. But he gaue her the hande, and lifte her vp, and called the sayntes and the wedowes, and shewed her there alyue. And it was knowne thorow out all Joppa, & many beleued on ỹ LORDE. And it fortuned, ỹ he taried a lōge season at Joppa by one Simō, which was a tanner.

* Some reade: * She sa vp

The X. Chapter.

There was a man at Cesarea, named Cornelius (a captayne of ỹ cōpany, which is called ỹ Italian ysh) a deuoute man, & one that feared God wt all his house, & gaue moch almesse to ỹ people, and prayed God allwaye. The same sawe in a vision openly (about the nyenth houre of the daye) an angell of God entringe in to him, and sayenge vnto him: Cornelius. He loked vpon him, and was afrayed, and sayde: LORDE, what is it? He sayde vnto him: Eccli.35.b * Thy prayers & thine allmesses are come vp in to remembraunce before God. And now sende men vnto Joppa, & call for Simō, whose syname is Peter, which is at lodginge with one Symon a tanner, whose house lyeth by ye see syde: he shal tell ye, what thou oughtest to do. And whā the angell which spake to Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his housholde seruauntes, & a deuoute soudyer, of thē that wayted vpon him: and tolde them all, and sent thē to Joppa.

On the nexte daye after whan these were goinge on their iourney, and came nye vnto 4.Re.4.d the cite, Peter * wente vp in to a chamber to Mat.6.a Luc.6.b praye aboute the sixte houre. And whan he was hōgrie, he wolde haue eatē. But whyle they made ready for him, he fell in to a traunce, and sawe heauē open, and a vessell cōmynge downe vnto him, as it had bene a greate lynē clothe, knytt at the foure corners, and was let downe to ye earth, wherin were all maner of foure foted beestes of the earth, & wylde beestes, and wormes, and foules of the ayre. And there came a voyce vnto him: Ryse Peter, slaye, & eate. But Peter sayde: Leuit.11.a Deut.14.a Oh no, LORDE, * for I neuer ate eny commen or vncleane thinge. And the voyce spake vnto him agayne ye secōde tyme: * What Mat.15.b Ro.14.b 1.Tim.4.a Tit.1.c God hath clensed, ye make not thou vncleane. This was done thryse. And ye vessell was receaued vp agayne in to heauen.

But whyle Peter was combred in him selfe, what maner of vision this shulde be which he had sene, beholde, the men ye were sent from Cornelius, enquered after Simōs house, and stode before the dore, and called, and axed whether Simon (whose syname was Peter) were lodged there. Whyle Peter was musinge of the vision, the spirite sayde vnto him: beholde, the men seke the. Aryse therfore, and get the downe, & go with thē, and doute not, for I haue sent them.

C Then wente Peter downe to the men, ye were sent vnto him from Cornelius, and sayde: lo, I am he whom ye seke: what is ye cause, wherfore ye are come? They sayde: Cornelius the captayne, a iust man and one that feareth God, and of good reporte amōge all the people of the Jewes, was warned by an holy angell, to sende for the in to his house, and to heare wordes of the. * Then called he Gen.19.a and.24.d 1.Pet.4.b them in, and lodged them.

The nexte daye after wente Peter forth with them, and certayne brethren of Joppa bare him company. And ye daye folowinge came they to Cesarea. Cornelius wayted for thē, and had called together his kynsfolkes and speciall frendes. And as it chaunced ye Peter came in, Cornelius mett him, and fell downe at his fete, & worshipped him. But Peter toke him vp, and sayde: * Stonde vp, Act.10.c I am a man also. And as he talked wt him, he wente in, and founde many that were come together, and he sayde vnto them: Ye knowe, that it is not lawfull for a man beynge a Jewe to ioyne him selfe or to come to a straunger. But God hath shewed me, ye I shulde call no mā cōmen or vncleane. Therfore haue I not doubted to come, as soone as I was sent for. I axe you therfore, for what intent haue ye sent for me?

Cornelius sayde: It is now foure dayes ago, then fasted I, and at the nyenth houre I prayed in my house, and beholde, there stode a mā before me in a bryghte clothinge, and sayde: Cornelius, ye prayer is herde, and thine allmesse dedes are had in remembraunce in the sighte of God. Sende therfore to Joppa, and call for one Simon (whose syname is Peter) which is at lodginge in ye house of Simon ye tāner, by the see syde: ye same whā he commeth, shal speake vnto ye. Then sent I vnto the immediatly, and thou hast done well, that thou art come. Now are we all here presente before God, to heare all thinges that are commaunded the of God.

Peter opened his mouth, & sayde: Now perceaue I of a trueth, that God hath no respecte of personnes, * but in all people he ye feareth him, and worketh righteousnes, is accepted vnto him. Ye knowe of ye preachinge that God sent vnto the children of Israel, preachinge thorow Jesus Christ (which is LORDE ouer all) which preachinge was * published thorow out all Jewry, * and began in Galile after ye baptyme that Jhon preached, how God * anoynted the same Jesus of Nazareth with the holy goost and wt power, which wente aboute, & dyd good, and healed all those that were oppressed of the deuell, for God was with him. And we are witnesses of all that he dyd in the londe of the Jewes, & at Jerusalem. Whom they slewe, and hanged on tre.

Him God raysed vp on the thirde daye, and caused him be openly shewed, not to all the people, but to ye chosen witnesses of God euen vnto vs, which ate & dronke with him after he was rysen vp from the deed. And he commaunded vs to preach vnto the people, and to testifye, that it is he which is ordeyned of God a iudge of the lyuynge and of the deed. Of him beare all the prophetes wytnesse, that thorow his name all they ỹ beleue in him, shal receaue remyssion of synnes. Whyle Peter was yet speakynge these wordes, the holy gooste fell vpō all thē that herkened vnto the worde. And the faithfull of the circūcision which came with Peter, were astonnyed, because that the gifte of ỹ holy gooste was shed out also vpon the Heythen. For they herde that they spake with tunges, and magnified God. Thē answered peter: Maye eny man forbydde water, that these shulde not be baptysed, which haue receaued the holy gooste as well as we? And he commaunded them to be baptysed in the name of the LORDE. Thē prayed they him, that he wolde tary there certayne dayes.

The XI. Chapter.

The Apostles and the brethren that were in Jewrye, herde saye, that the Heythen also had receaued the worde of God. And whan Peter was come vp to Jerusalem, they that were of the circūcision, chode with him, and sayde: Thou wentest in to men that are vncircumcysed, and hast eaten with them. But Peter beganne, and expounded the thinge in order vnto thē and sayde: I was in ỹ cite of Joppa prayēge, and in a traunce I sawe a vision, a vessell comynge downe, as it had bene a greate lynnen clothe with foure corners, and let downe from heauen, and came vnto me. Into the which I loked, and considered, and sawe foure foted beestes of the earth, and wylde beestes, and wormes, and foules of the ayre. And I herde a voyce, which sayde vnto me: Ryse Peter, slaye, and eate. But I sayde: Oh no, LORDE, for there neuer entred eny commen or vncleane thinge in to my mouth. Neuertheles the voyce answered me agayne from heauen: What God hath clensed, that call not thou vncleane. This was done thre tymes, and all was taken vp agayne into heauen.

And beholde, immediatly stode there thre men before the dore of the house that I was in, sent from Cesarea vnto me. But the spirite sayde vnto me, that I shulde go with thē and doute nothinge. These sixe brethrē also came with me, and we entred in to the mās house.

And he shewed vs, how he had sene an angell stondinge in his house, which sayde vnto him: Sende men to Joppa, and call for Simon (whose synname is Peter) he shal tell ỹ wordes, wherby thou and all thy house shal be saued. But whan I beganne to speake, the holy gooste fell vpō them, * like as vpon vs at ỹ begynnynge. Then thoughte I vpon the worde of the LORDE, how he sayde: * Jhon baptysed with water, but ye shalbe baptysed with ỹ holy gooste. For as moch then as God hath geuen them like giftes, as vnto vs, which beleue on the LORDE Jesus Christ, who was I, that I shulde be able to withstōde God? Whan they herde this, they helde their peace, and praysed God, and sayde: Then hath God also to the Heithen graunted repentaunce vnto life.

They that were scatred abrode thorow ỹ trouble ỹ rose aboute Steuen, walked on euerysyde vntyll Phenices, and Cipers, and Antioche, and spake the worde vnto noman but onely vnto ỹ Jewes. Neuertheles some of thē were men of Cipers and Cyren, which came to Antioche, and spake also vnto the Grekes, and preached the Gospell of the LORDE Jesu. And ỹ hande of the LORDE was with thē. And a greate nombre beleued, and turned vnto the LORDE.

This tydinges of them came to ỹ eares of the cōgregacion at Jerusalem. And they sent Barnabas, that he shulde go vnto Antioche. Which whan he was come thither, and sawe the grace of God, he was glad, * and exorted them all, that with purpose of hert they wolde contynue in the LORDE. For he was a good man, full of the holy gooste and faith. And there was a greate multitude of people added vnto the LORDE. But Barnabas departed vnto Tharsus, to seke Saul And whā he had fōūde hī, he brought hī to Anthioche. It chaūced, that a whole yeare they were there cōuersaunte together in the cōgregaciō, and taughte moch people, so that the disciples at Antioche were first called Christen.

In those dayes came there prophetes frō Jerusalem vnto Antioche. And one of them (whose name was * Agabus) stode vp, and declared by the sprete a greate derth, that shulde come ouer the whole compasse of the earth: which came to passe vnder the Emperoure Claudius. But the disciples cōcluded (euery one acordinge to his abylite) to sende * an handreachinge vnto ỹ brethren that were in Jewry: which thinge they also dyd, and sent it by the handes of Barnabas and Saul.

The XII. Chapter.

A AT the same tyme layed kynge Herode handes vpon certayne of the congregacion, to vexe them. As for * James the brother of Jhon, him he slewe with the swerde. And whan he sawe that it pleased the Jewes, he proceaded farther to take Peter also. But it was Easter. Now whan he had taken him, he put him in preson, and delyuered him vnto foure quaternions of soudyers, to kepe him: and thought after Easter to bringe him forth to the people. And Peter was kepte in the preson * But prayer was made without ceassinge of the congregacion, vnto God for him. And whan Herode wolde haue broughte him out vnto the people, in the same nighte slepte Peter betwene two soudiers, bounde with two cheynes. And the kepers before the dore kepte the preson.

B And beholde, the angell of the LORDE was there presente, and a lighte shyned in the habitacion, and he smote Peter on the syde, and waked him vp, and sayde: Arise vp quyckly. And the cheynes fell of from his hondes. And the angell sayde vnto him: Gyrde the, and put on thy shues. And he dyd so. And he sayde vnto him: Cast thy mantle aboute the, and folowe me. And he wente out, and folowed him, and wyst not, that it was trueth that was done by ỹ angell, but thoughte he had sene a vision. Neuertheles they wente thorow the first and seconde watch, and came to the yron gate, that ledeth vnto the cite, which opened to thē by his awne acorde. And they wente out, and passed thorow one strete, and immediatly the angell departed from him.

C And whan Peter was come to himself, he sayde: Now I knowe of a trueth, that ỹ LORDE hath sent his angell, and delyuered me out of the honde of Herode, and from all the waytinge for of the people of the Jewes. And as he considered the thinge, he came to the house of Mary the mother of one Jhon, (which after his syrname was called Marke) where many were gathered together, * and prayed. As Peter knocked at the entry dore, there came forth a damsell to herken, named Rhoda. And whan she knewe Peters voyce, she opened not the entrye for gladnes, but rāne in, and tolde, that Peter stode before ỹ entrye. But they sayde vnto her: Thou art mad. Neuertheles she abode by it, that is was so. They sayde: it is his angell. But Peter contynued knockinge. Whan they opened the dore, they sawe him, and were astonyed, * But he beckened vnto them with the hande, to holde their peace, and tolde them, how the LORDE had broughte him out of the preson. And he sayde: Shewe this vnto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and wēte in to another place.

Act.13.b

Whan it was daye, there was not a litle D a doo amōge the soudyers, what was become of Peter. Whan Herode had called for him, and founde him not, he caused the kepers to be examyned, and commaunded thē to be caried awaye, and he wente downe frō Jewry vnto Cesarea, and there abode. But he was displeased with thē of Tyre and Sidō. Neuertheles they came vnto him with one accorde, and made intercession to Blastus the kynges chamberlayne, and desyred peace, because their countre was nouysshed by the kynges londe. But vpon a daye appointed, Herode put on ỹ kyngly apparell, sat him downe vpon the iudgment seate, and made an oracion vnto them. As for the people, they cried therto: This is a voyce of God, and not of a man. Immediatly the angell of the LORDE smote him, because he gaue not God the honoure: And he was eaten vp of wormes, and gaue vp the goost. But the worde of God grewe, and multiplyed. As for Barnabas and Saul, they came agayne to Jerusalem, and delyuered * the handreachinge, and toke with them Jhon, whose syrname was Marke.

Act.12.d

The XIII. Chapter.

THere were at Antioche in the congregacion, prophetes and teachers, as Barnabas, and Simon called Niger, and Lucius of Cyren, and Manahen Herodes the Tetrachas nourssefelowe, and Saul. As they serued ỹ LORDE, and fasted, the holy goost sayde: Separate me out Barnabas and Saul for the worke, * where vnto I haue called them. Then fasted they and prayed, and layed the handes on them, and let them go. And they beynge sent of the holy goost, came vnto Seleucia, from thence they sayled vnto Cypers. And whan they were come in to the cite Salamin, they shewed the worde of God in the synagoges of ỹ Jewes. And they had * Jhon to their mynister.

Act.13.d

And whan they had gone thorow out the yle vnto the cyte of Paphos, they founde a certayne Sorcerer and false prophet, a Jewe (whose name was Barieſu) which was with Sergius Paulus the ruler of the countre, a mā of vnderstondinge. The same called Barnabas and Saul vnto him, and desyred to heare ỹ worde of God. Then the Sorcerer Elimas (for so was his name by interpretacion) withstode thē, and soughte to turne awaye the ruler frō the faith. But Saul which is also called Paul, beynge full of the holy goost, loked vpon him, and sayde:

O thou childe of the deuell, full of all sutttylte and all disceatfulnesse, and enemye of all righteousnes, thou ceassest not to peruerte the straight wayes of ỹ LORDE. And now beholde, the hāde of the LORDE commeth vpon the, and thou shalt be blynde, and not se the Sonne for a seasō. And immediatly there fell on him a myst and darknesse, and he wente aboute, and soughte them that shulde lede him by the hande. Whan the ruler sawe what was done, he beleued, and wō dred at the doctryne of the LORDE.

Whan Paul and they that were with him, were departed by shippe frō Paphos, they came to Perga in the londe of Pamphylia. * But Jhon departed from them, and wente agayne to Jerusalem. Neuerthe les they wandred thorow from Perga, and came to Antioche in the londe of Pisidia, and wēte into the synagoge vpon the Sab bath daye, and sat downe. But after the lec ture of the lawe and of the prophetes, the rulers of the synagoge sent vnto them, saye-nge: Good brethren, yf ye haue eny sermon to exorte the people, saye on. Then stode Paul vp, and * beckened with the hande (that they shulde holde their peace) and sayde:

Ye men of Israel, and ye that feare God, herkē to: The God of this people chose oure fathers, and exalted the people, whan they were straungers in the lōde of Egipte, and with a mightie arme broughte he them out of it. And by the space of fortye yeares suffred he their maners in the wylderneesse, and destroyed seuen nacions in the lande of Canaan, and parted their londe amonge them by lott. After that gaue he them iudges by the space of foure hundreth and fiftye yea-res, vnto the prophet Samuel. And after that they desyred a kynge, and God gaue vnto them Saul the sonne of Cis, a man of the trybe of Ben Jamin, fortye yeares lon-ge. And whan he had put him downe, he set vp Dauid to be their kynge, of whom he reported, sayenge: * I haue founde Dauid the sonne of Jesse, a man after my hert, he shal fulfyll all my wyll.

Of this mans sede hath God (* accordinge to the promesse) broughte forth vnto the people of Israel, ỹ Sauiour Jesus: whan Jhon had first preached before his cōmynge the baptyme of repentaunce vnto Israel.
But whan Jhon had fulfylled his course, he sayde: I am not he, that ye take me for.
But beholde, there commeth one after me, whose shues of his fete I am not worthy to lowse. Ye men and brethren, ye children of the generacion of Abraham, and they that feare God amonge you, * vnto you is ỹ wor de of this saluacion sent. For the inhabiters of Jerusalem, and their rulers, for somoch as they knewe him not, ner yet the voyces of the prophetes (which are red eue-ry Sabbath) haue fulfylled them in condemnynge him. And though they founde no cause of death in him, yet desyred they Pi late to kyll him. And whan they had fulfyl led all that was wrytten of him, they toke him downe from the tre, and layed him in a sepulcre. But on ỹ thirde daye God raysed him vp from the deed, and he appeared ma ny dayes vnto thē, that wente vp with him from Galile vnto Jerusalem, which * are his witnesses vnto the people.

And we also declare vnto you ỹ promes, which was made vnto oure fathers, how that God hath fulfylled the same vnto vs their children, in ỹ he raysed vp Jesus agayne. As it is wrytten in the seconde Psalme:
Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begot ten the. But that he hath raysed him vp frō the deed, now nomore to returne to corrup-cion, he sayde on this wyse: The grace promysed to Dauid, wyl I faithfully kepe vnto
you. Therfore sayeth he also in another place: Thou shalt not suffre thy holy to se corrupcion. For Dauid, whan he in his tyme had serued the wyll of God, * he fell a slepe, and was layed by his fathers, & sawe corrupcion. But he whō God raysed vp agayne, sawe no corrupcion.

Be it knowne vnto you therfore ye men and brethrē, ỹ thorow this man is preached vnto you ỹ forgeuenesse of synnes, and frō all ỹ thinges, wherby ye mighte not be iusti-fyed in the lawe of Moses. But whosoeuer beleueth on this man, is iustifyed. Bewarre therfore, that it come not vpon you, which is spoken in the prophetes: Beholde ye despy sers, and wonder at it, and perishe, for I do a worke in youre tyme, which ye shal not beleue, yf eny man tell it you.

Whan the Jewes were gone out of the synagoge, the heythen besoughte them, ỹ they wolde speake ỹ worde vnto them be-twene the Sabbath dayes. And whā the cō gregacion of the synagoge was broken vp, many Jewes and Proselites ẏ serued God, folowed Paul and Barnabas, which spake Act.11.c to them, and * exorted them, that they shulde contynue in the grace of God.

E On ẏ Sabbath folowinge, came almost the whole cite together, to heare the worde of God. But whan the Jewes sawe the people, they were full of indignacion, and spake agaynst that which was spoken of Paul, speakinge agaynst it, & blaspheminge. But Paul and Barnabas waxed bolde, and sayde: It behoued first the worde of God to be

The XIIII. Chapter.

A IT fortuned at Iconium, that they wēte both together in to the synagoge of the Jewes, and spake so, that a greate multitude of the Jewes & of the Grekes beleued. But the vnbeleuynge Jewes moued and disquyeted the soules of the Heythē agaynst the brethrē. So they had their beynge there a lōge season, and quyte them selues boldly in the LORDE, which gaue testimony vnto the worde of his grace, and Marc.16.c caused tokens and wonders to be done by their handes. Howbeyt the multitude of the cite was deuyded, some helde wt the Jewes, and some with the Apostles.

But whan there rose vp an insurreccion of the Heythē and of ẏ Jewes, and of their rulers, to put them to shame, and to stone
Mat.10.c thē, they perceaued it, and * fled vnto Lystra and Derba cities of ẏ countre of Licaonia, and vnto ẏ region that lyeth rounde about, and there they preached the Gospell.

B And amonge them of Lystra, there was a man, which sat beynge impotent of his fete, and was crepell frō his mothers wombe, and had neuer walked, the same herde Paul speake. And whan he behelde him, and perceaued that he had faith to be made whole, he sayde wt a loude voyce: Stonde vpright on thy fete. And he sprange vp and walked. But whan the people sawe what Paul had done, they lifte vp their voyce, and sayde in ẏ speache of Lycaonia: The goddes are become like vnto men, and are come downe vn to vs. And they called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercurius, because he was the preacher. But Jupiters prest which dwelt before their cite, broughte oxen and garlandes before the gate, and wolde haue done sacrifice with the people.

Whan ẏ Apostles Barnabas and Paul herde that, they rent their clothes, and rayne in amonge the people, cryenge and sayenge: Ye mē, Why do ye this? We are mortall mē also like vnto you, & preach vnto you ẏ Gospell, that ye shulde turne from these vayne thinges vnto ẏ lyuynge God, which made heauē and earth, and the see, and all that therin is, which in tymes past suffred all ẏ Heythen to walke after their awne wayes. Neuertheles he hath not left hī selfe without wytnesse, in ẏ he hath shewed his benefites, and geuen vs rayne from heauen, and frutefull seasons, fyllynge oure hertes with fode and gladnesse. And whan they sayde this, they scarse refrayned the people, that they dyd not sacrifice vnto them.

But there came thither certayne Jewes from Antioche and Iconiū, and persuaded the people, and * stoned Paul, and drue him out of the cite, supposinge he had bene dead. Howbeyt as ẏ disciples stode rounde about him, he rose vp, & came in to the cite. And on the nexte daye he departed with Barnabas vnto Derba, and preached the Gospell vnto the same cite, and taughte many of them. And they wēte agayne vnto Lystra, and Iconium and Antioche, strengthinge the soules of ẏ disciples, and exortinge thē to cōtynue in the faith: and that we thorow moch tribulacion must entre in to the kyngdome of God. And whē they had ordeyned them Elders by eleccion thorow all the congregacions, they prayed and fasted, and commended them vnto the LORDE, on whom they beleued.

And they wente thorow Pisidia, and came to Pamphilia, and spake the worde in Perga, and wēte downe to Attalia, and frō thence departed they by shippe vnto Antioche: from whence they were delyuered to the grace of God vnto ẏ worke, which they had fulfylled. Whan they came there, they gathered the congregacion together, & shewed them, how greate thinges God had done with thē, and how he had opened the dore of faithe vnto the Heithen. And there they abode a longe tyme with the disciples.

The XV. Chapter.

AND there came certayne frō Jewry, and taughte the brethren: * Excepte ye be circumcysed after the maner of Moses, ye can not be saued. Now whā there rose a discēsion, and Paul and Barnabas had set them selues harde agaynst them, * they ordeyned, that Paul and Barnabas and certayne other of them shulde go vp to Jerusalem vnto the Apostles and Elders, aboute this questiō. And they were broughte on their waye by ỹ cōgregacion, & wente thorow Phenices and Samaria, and declared the * conuersacion of the Heythen, and brought greate ioye vnto all the brethren. Whan they came to Jerusalē, they were receaued of ỹ cōgregacion, & of the Apostles, and of the Elders, & they tolde how greate thinges God had done with thē. Then rose there vp certayne of the secte of ỹ pharises (which beleued) and sayde: They must be circumcysed and cōmaunded, to kepe the lawe of Moses. But the Apostles and Elders came together, to reason vpon this matter.

B Now whan there was moch disputinge Peter rose vp, and sayde vnto thē: Ye men and brethren, ye knowe that a good whyle ago, God chose amonge vs, ỹ the Heythē by my mouth shulde heare the worde of the Gospell, and beleue. And God the knower of hertes bare wytnesse ouer thē, * and gaue thē the holy goost, like as vnto vs, & put no difference betwixte vs & them, and purified their hertes thorow fayth. Now therfore why tempte ye God, with layenge vpon ỹ disciples neckes the yocke, * which nether o fathers ner we were able to beare? But we beleue to be saued thorow the grace of the LORDE Jesu Christ, like as they also. Then all ỹ multitude helde their peace, and gaue audience vnto Paul and Barnabas, which tolde how greate tokens and wonders God had done by thē amōge the Heythen. Afterwarde whan they helde their peace, James answered, and sayde: Ye men and brethren, herkē vnto me, Simō hath tolde, how God at the first vysited to receaue a people vnto C his name from amonge the Heythen. And vnto this agree ỹ wordes of the propheres, as it is wrytte: After this wyl I returne and wyl buylde agayne ỹ tabernacle of Dauid, that is fallen downe, and that which is fallen in decaye therof, wyl I buylde agayne, and wyl set it vp, that the residue of men maye seke after the LORDE & also the Heythen, vpō whom my name is named, sayeth the LORDE, which doth all these thinges. Knowne vnto God are all his workes from the begynnynge of ỹ worlde. Wherfore my sentence is, that they which from amonge the Heythen are turned vnto God, be not disquyeted, but to wryte vnto them, that they absteyne them selues from fylthynesse of * Idols, from * whordome, and from * strangled, and blonde. For Moses hath of olde tyme in euery cite them that preach him: and he is red in the synagoges euery Sabbath daye. Exo.20.a Ephe.5.a Gen.9.a

And the Apostles and Elders with the whole congregacion thoughte it good, to chose out men of them, and to sende them vnto Antioche with Paul and Barnabas, namely * Judas, whose symame was Barsabas, and Sylas (which were chefe men amōge the brethrē) and gaue thē letters in their handes after this maner: Ioh.14.b

D We the Apostles and Elders & brethren, wysh health vnto the brethrē of the Heythē which are at Antioche, and Syria and Celicia. For so moch as we haue herde that certayne of oures are departed, and haue troubled you, and combred youre myndes, sayenge: ye must be circumcysed, and kepe ỹ lawe (to whom we gaue no soch commaundemēt) it semed good vnto vs, beynge gathered together with one accorde, to chose out men, and to sende them vnto you, with oure beloued Barnabas and Paul, men that haue * iopperded their lyues for ỹ name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ. Therfore haue we sent Judas and Sylas, which shal also tell you the same with wordes. For it pleased the holy goost and vs, to laye no charge vpon you, more then these necessary poyntes: That ye absteyne from the * offeringes of Idols, and from blonde, and from strangled, and from whordome. From the which yf ye absteyne youre selues, ye shal do well. Fare ye well. Gal.3.a Act.11.e and 14.a 1.Cor.8.a and 10.c

Whan these were sent forth, they came vnto Antioche, and gathered the multitude together, and delyuered the epistle. Whan they had red it, they were glad of that cōsolacion. As for Judas & Sylas (which were prophetes also) they exorted ỹ brethrē with moch preachinge, and strēgthed them. And whan they had taried there for a season, they were let go of the brethren in peace

E vnto the Apostles. Notwithstondinge Sylas thoughte it good to byde there styll.
But Paul and Barnabas cõtynued at Antioche, teachinge and preachinge the worde of the LORDE, with other many.

Neuertheles after certayne dayes Paul sayde vnto Barnabas: let vs go agayne, and vyset oure brethren thorow all the cities (wherin we haue shewed the worde of the LORDE) how they do. But Barnabas gaue councell, that they shulde take with thẽ Jhon, whose syname was Marke. Howbeit Paul thoughte it mete, not to take him Act.13.b with them, * which departed from them in Pamphilia, and wente not with them vnto the worke. And so sharpe was the strife betwene them, that they departed asunder ỹ one frõ the other, and Barnabas toke Marke vnto him, and sayled vnto Cypers. But Paul chose Sylas, and departed, beynge cõmytted of the brethren vnto the grace of God. He wente thorow Syria and Celicia, stablishynge the congregacions.

The XVI. Chapter.

A HE came vnto Derba and to Lystra, and beholde, a certayne disciple was there named Timotheus, the sonne of a Jewish woman, which beleued, but his father was a Greke: ỹ same had a good reporte amonge the brethrẽ of Lystra and at Jconium. Paul wolde that the same shulde go forth with him, and toke and * circumcysed him because of the Jewes that were in those quarters. For they knewe all, that his father was a Greke. But as they wente
Gal.2.a. thorow the cities, they delyuered them the Act.15.d sentence to kepe, * which was concluded of the Apostles and Elders at Jerusalem. Thẽ were the congregacions stablyshed in the faith, and increased in nombre daylie.

But as they wente thorow Phrygia and Rom.1.b the londe of Galacia, they were * forbydden of the holy goost, to preache the worde in Asia. Howbeit as they came in to Mysia, they proued to take their iourney in to Bithinia, and the spirite suffred them not.

B Neuertheles whan they had passed thorow Mysia, they came downe to Troada, Act.18.a and there appeared a * vision vnto Paul by and 23.b night, that there was a man of Macedonia which stode and prayed him, and sayde: Come downe to Macedonia, and helpe vs. Whan he had sene ỹ vision, we soughte immediatly to go, vnto Macedonia, beynge certified, that ỹ LORDE had called vs thither, to preach the Gospell vnto them. Thẽ departed we from Troada, and came the straight course vnto Samothracia, on the nexte daye to Neapolis, and from thence to Philippis, which is the chefe cite of the londe of Macedonia, and a fre cite. In this cite abode we certayne dayes.

On the daye of the Sabbathes wẽte we out of the citt beside the water, where men were wonte to praye, and we sat downe, and spake vnto the wemen that resorted thither. And a deuoute woman (named Lydia) a seller of purple, out of the cite of Thiatira, herkened to, whose hert the LORDE opened that she gaue hede vnto the thinges that Paul spake. Whan she was baptysed and hir housholde, she besoughte vs, and sayde: Yf ye thynke that J belene on the LORDE, then come in to my house, and a byde there. And she * constrayned vs.

Jt fortuned whan we wente to prayer, ỹ there met vs a damsel, which had a spirite of soythsayenge, and broughte hir master and mastresse greate vauntage with soyth sayenge: ỹ same folowed Paul and vs, and cryed, and sayde: These men are the seruaunnes of the most hye God, which shewe vs ỹ way of saluacion. This dyd she many dayes. But Paul was not contet with it, and turned him abonte, and sayde vnto the spirite: J cõmaunde the in the name of Jesu Christ, that thou departe out of her. And he departed out at the same houre.

But whã hir master and mastresse sawe that the hope of their vauntage was gone, * they toke Paul and Sylas, drue them in to the market place before ỹ rulers, & broughte thẽ vnto the officers, and sayde: These men trouble oure cyte, & are Jewes, and preach an ordynaunce, which is not lawfull for vs to receaue, ner to obserue, seynge we are Romaynes. And the people rãne on them, and the officers rente their clothes, and cõmaunded them to be beaten with roddes. And whan they had beaten them sore, they caste thẽ in preson, and commaunded the iayler, to kepe them diligẽtly. Which whan he had receaued soch commaundement, he caste thẽ in to the ynner preson, and put their fete in the stockes.

But at mydnight prayed Paul and Sylas, and praysed God. And the presoners herde them. Sodenly was there a greate earthquake, so that the foundacions of the preson were shaken. And immediatly were all the dores open, & all their bondes lowsed. Whã the keper of the preson waked out of slepe, and sawe the preson dores open, he drue out his swerde, and wolde haue kylled him self:

for he thoughte ỹ presoners had bene fled. But Paul cryed loude, and sayde: Do thy self no harme, for we are all here.

He called for a lighte, and sprange in, and trembled, and fell at the fete of Paul and Sylas, and broughte them out, and sayde: Syrs, what must I do, to be saued? They sayde: Beleue on the LORDE Jesus, and so shalt thou and thy housholde be saued. And they preached the worde of the LORDE vnto him, and to all that were in his house.

And he toke them to him in the same houre of the night, and waßhed their strypes. And immediatly was he baptysed, and all his. And he broughte them in to his house, and set them a table, and *reioysed with all his housholde, that he was become a beleuer on God.

And whan it was daye, the officers of the cite sent mynisters, and sayde: Let those men go. And the keper of the preson tolde this sayenge vnto Paul: The officers haue sent hither, that ye shulde be lowse. Now therfore get you hẽce, and go in peace. But Paul sayde vnto them: They haue beaten vs openly vncondempned (where as we are yet Romaynes) and haue cast vs in preson, and shulde they now thrust vs out preuely? Not so, but let them come them selues, and bringe vs out. The mynisters tolde these wordes vnto the officers. And they feared, whan they herde that they were Romaynes, and came and besoughte them, and prayed thẽ to departe out of the cite. Then wente they out of the preson, and entred in to the house of Lydia. And whan they had sene the brethren and comforted them, they departed.

The XVII. Chapter.

AS they made their iourney thorow Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagoge of the Jewes. And Paul (as his maner was) wẽte in vnto them, and vpon three Sabbathes he spake vnto them of the scripture, opened it vnto thẽ, and alleged, *that Christ must nedes haue suffred, & ryse agayne from the deed: and this Jesus, whom I preach vnto you (sayde he) is ỹ same Christ. And some of thẽ beleued, and were ioyned vnto Paul and Sylas, a greate multitude also of the deuoute Grekes, and of the chefe wemen not a fewe.

But the styffnecked Jewes had indignacion, and toke vnto them certayne euell men which were vagabundes, and gathered a company, and set the cite in a rore, and preassed vnto the house of Jason, and soughte to bringe them out vnto the comon people. But whan they founde them not, they drue Jason, and certayne brethren vnto the rulers of the cite, and cryed: These that trouble all the worlde, are come hither also, whom Jason hath receaued preuely. And these all do contrary to the decrees of the Emperoure, sayenge, that there is another kynge, one Jesus. They troubled the people, and the rulers of the cite, that herde this. And whan they had receaued a sufficient answere of Jason and of the other, they let them go. Ioh.18.c and.19.a

But the brethren immediatly sent awaye Paul and Sylas by night vnto Berea. Whan they came there, they wẽte in to the synagoge of the Jewes (for they were the Eldest amonge thẽ at Thessalonica) which receaued the worde maruelous wyllingly, and *searched the scriptures daylie, whether it were euen so. Then beleued many of them, and worshipfull wemen off the Grekes, and men not a fewe. *But whan the Jewes off Thessalonica had knowlege, that the worde off God was preached off Paul at Berea, they came, and moued the people there also. Howbeit the brethren sent Paul awaye then immediatly, to go vnto the see. As for Sylas and Timotheus, they abode there styll. Ioh.5.d 1.Tess.2.c

They that conueyed Paul, brought him vnto Athens. And whan they had receaued a commaundement vnto Sylas and Timotheus, that they shulde come vnto him in all the haist, they wente their waye. But whyle Paul wayted for them at Athens, his sprete was moued in him, whan he sawe the cite geuẽ so to the worshippinge of ymages. And he spake vnto the Jewes and deuoute personnes in the synagoge, & in ỹ market daylie vnto thẽ that came to him. But certayne philosophers of ỹ Epicurees and Stoikes disputed with him. And some sayde: What will this babler saye? But some sayde: He semeth to be a tidinges bringer of new *goddes (That was, because he had preached vnto thẽ the Gospell of Jesus, & of the resurreccion.) And they toke him, and broughte him before the councell house, and sayde: Maye we not knowe, what new doctryne this is that thou teachest? For thou bringest straũge tidinges to oure eares: We wolde knowe therfore, what this meaneth. As for all they of Athens, and straungers & gestes, they gaue thẽ selues to nothinge els, Some reade: *deuyls.

but either to tell, or to heare some newes.

D Paul stode on the myddes of the comon place, and sayde: Ye mē of Athens, I se that in all thinges ye are to superstticious. I haue gone thorow, & sene youre gods seruyce, and founde an altare, where vpō was wryt ten: To the vnknowne God. Now shewe I vnto you ỹ same, whom ye worshippe ignoraūtly. God which made ỹ worlde, and all that therin is, for so moch as he is LORDE of heauen and earth, * dwelleth not in temples made of handes, nether is he worshipped with mens handes, as though he had nede of eny man, seynge he himself geueth life and breth vnto all men euery where: and hath made of one blode all the generacion of men to dwell vpō all the face of ỹ earth: and hath assygned borders appoynted before, how longe and farre they shulde dwell, that they shulde seke the LORDE, yf they mighte fele and fynde him.

For as moch then as we are the generacion of God, we oughte not to thinke that the Godheade is like vnto golde or sylner, or ymagery worke of the crafte or ymaginacion of man. And truly God hath ouersene the tyme of ignoraunce: * But now he commaundeth all men euery where to repente, because he hath appoynted a daye, in the which he wyl iudge the cōpasse of the worlde, with righteousnesse, by that one man in whō he hath appoynted it: and offred faith vnto all men, after that he had rayssed him vp from the dede.

Whan they herde of the resurreccion of the dede, some mocked. But some sayde: We wyl heare the agayne of this matter. So Paul departed from amonge them. Howbeit certayne men claue vnto him, and beleued: amonge whom was Dionisius, one of the councell: and a woman named Damaris, and other with them.

The XVIII. Chapter.

A Fter that departed Paul frō Athens, and came to Corinthum, and founde a Jewe named * Aquila, borne in Pōtus, which was lately come out of Italy: and his wife Pusicilla (because the Emperō Claudius had commaunded all Jewes to departe from Rome) and he drue vnto thē. And because he was of the same crafte, he abode with thē, and wroughte. Their crafte was to make tentes. And he preached in the synagoge euery Sabbath daye, and exhorted the Jewes and the Grekes.

Ro.16.a
2.Tim.4.c

Whan Sylas and Timotheus were come fro Macedonia, Paul was constrayned by the spirite to testifye vnto ỹ Jewes, that Jesus was very Christ. But whā they sayde cōtrary and blaspheмed, * he shoke his rayment, and sayde vnto them: Youre blode be vpon youre awne heade. From hence forth I go blameless vnto the Gentyles. And he departed thence, and came in to the house of a man named Justus, which feared God, and his house was nexte vnto the synagoge. Howbeit Crispus the chefe ruler of the synagoge, beleued on ỹ LORDE with all his housholde. And many of the Corinthians that gaue audience, beleued, and were baptysed.

Act.7.f

The LORDE spake vnto Paul by a vision in ỹ nighte: Be not afrayed, but speake, and holde not thy peace, for I am with the: and no man shal inuade the that shal hurte the, for I haue moch people in this cite. He continued there a yeare and sixe monethes, and taught them the worde of God.

But whan Gallio was ruler of the countre of Achaia, the Jewes made insurreccion wt one acorde agaynst Paul, & brought him before the iudgment seate, and sayde: This felowe counceleth men to worshipe God cōtrary to the lawe. Whan Paul was aboute to open his mouth, Gallio sayde vnto ỹ Jewes: Yf it were a matter of wronge or an euell dede (O ye Jewes) reason wolde that I shulde heare you: but yf it be a question of wordes, and of names, and of ỹ lawe amōge you, loke ye to it youre selues, I thinke not to be iudge there ouer. And he drue them from the iudgmēt seate. Then all the Grekes toke Sosthenes the ruler of the Synagoge, and smote him before the iudgment seate. And Gallio cared for none of thothinges.

Paul after ỹ he had taried a good whyle, toke his leue of the brethren, and sayled into Syria, Pusicilla & Aquila bearinge him company. And he shore his heade at Cenchrea (for he had a * vowe) & came downe to Ephesus, & lefte them there. But he himself wēte in to the synagoge, and reasoned with the Jewes. And they desyred him, that he wolde tary with them a longer season. And he cōsented not, but bad them farwele, and sayde: I must nedes in eny wyse kepe this feast that commeth, at Jerusalem: but * yf God wyl, I wil returne agayne vnto you.

And he departed from Ephesus, and meto Cesarea, and wente vp, and saluted ỹ congregacion, and toke his iourney downe to Antioche, and taried there a certayne tyme, and departed, and walked thorow all ỹ countre of Galatia and Phrygia by ordre, and strengthed all the disciples.

There came vnto Ephesus a certayne Jewe, named * Apollo (borne at Alexādria) an eloquent man, and mightie in the scriptures: the same was informed in the waye of the LORDE, and spake fervently in the spirite, and taughte diligently the thinges of the LORDE, and knewe but the baptyme off Jhon onely. The same beganne to speake boldly in the synagoge. Whan Aquila and Priscilla herde him, they toke him vnto thē, and expounded the waye of God vnto him more perfectly. But whan he wolde go in to Achaia, the brethren wrote, and exorted the disciples to receaue him. And whan he was come thither, he helped them moch which beleued thorow grace. For he ouercame the Jewes mightely, and shewed openly by ỹ scripture, that Jesus was Christ.

The XIX. Chapter.

A BVt it fortuned whan Apollo was at Corinthum, that Paul walked thorow the vpper coastes, and came to Ephesus, and founde certayne disciples, vn to whom he sayde: Haue ye receaued ỹ holy goost sence ye beleued? They sayde vnto hī: We haue not herde, whether there be an holy goost. He sayde vnto them: Where with then were ye baptysed? They sayde: With the baptyme of Jhon. Paul sayde: Jhon baptysed with the baptyme of repentaunce, and spake vnto ỹ people, that they shulde beleue on him, which shulde come after him, that is, on Jesus, that the same is Christ. Whan they herde that, they were baptysed in the name of the LORDE Jesu. And whan Paul layed the hādes on thē, the holy goost came vpon them, and they spake with tunges, and prophecied. And all the men were aboute twolue.

He wēte into ỹ synagoge, and preached boldly thre monethes longe, teachinge, and geuynge them exortacions of the kyngdome of God. But whan dyuerse waxed herde herted, and beleued not, and spake euell of the waye of the LORDE before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, and disputed daylye in the scole of one called Tyrannus. And this was done two yeares lōge, so that all they which dwelt in Asia, herde the worde of the LORDE Jesu, both Jewes & Grekes. And God wroughte no small miracles by the handes of Paul, so that from his body there were broughte napkyns or partlettes vnto the sicke, and the diseases departed from them, and the euell spretes wente out of them.

But certayne of the vagabounde Jewes B which were conivrers, vndertoke to name ỹ name of the LORDE Jesus, ouer those that had euell spretes, and sayde: We charge you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth. They were seuen sonnes of one Sceua a Jewe the hye preist, which dyd so. The euell sprete answered, and sayde: Jesus I knowe, and Paul I knowe, but who are ye? And the mā in whō the euell sprete was, ranne vpon them, and ouercame them, and cast them vnder him, so that they fled out of the same house naked and wounded. This was knowne vnto all the Jewes and Grekes which dwelt at Ephesus, and there fell a feare vpon them all. And ỹ name of the LORDE Jesus was magnified. * Many of thē also that beleued, Mat. 3. a came and cōfessed, and shewed their workes. But many of them that had vsed curious craftes, broughte the bokes together, and burnte them openly: and they counted the pryce of them, and founde it of money fiftye thousande pens. So mightely grewe ỹ worde of the LORDE, and preuayled.

Whan this was done, Paul purposed in C sprete to take his iourney thorow Macedonia and Achaia, and to go to Jerusalē, and sayde: After that I haue bene there, I must se Rome also. And he sent into Macedonia two that ministred vnto him, Timotheus and Erastus. But he himselfe remayned in Asia for a season. At the same tyme there rose no litle a doo aboute that waye. For a certayne man named Demetrius a goldsmyth, which made syluer shrynes for Diana, and broughte them of the craste no small vauntage. Them he gathered together, and the felowe workmē of the same occupacion, and sayde: Syrs, ye knowe that by this craste we haue vauntage, and ye se and heare, that not onely at Ephesus, but almost also thorow out all Asia, this Paul turneth awaye moch people with his persuadynge, and sayeth: * They be not goddes that are made Psal. 115. b with hondes. Whan they herde this, they were full of D

And all ỳ cite was on a roore, and they rußhed in with one assent into the open place, and toke Gaius and Aristarchus of Macedonia, Pauls company ons. Whan Paul wolde haue gone in amonge the people, the disciples suffred him not. Certayne also of ỳ chefe of Asia which were Pauls good frendes, sent vnto him, and desyred him, that he shulde not preasse in to the open place. Some cried one thinge, some another. And the congregacion was out of quyete, and the more parte knewe not wherfore they were come together. Some of the people drue forth Alexander, whan ỳ Jewes thrust him forwarde. Alexãder beckened with the hande, and wolde haue geuen the people an answere. But whan they knewe that he was a Jewe, there arose a shoute of all, and cried the space of two houres: Greate is Diana of the Ephesians.

E Whan the towne clarke had stylled the people, he sayde: Ye men of Ephesus, what man is it which knoweth not, that the cite of ỳ Ephesiãs is a worshipper of the greate goddesse Diana, and of the heauenly ymage? Seinge now that this can not be sayde agaynst, ye ought to be contente, and to do nothinge without aduysement. Ye haue brought hither these men, which are nether churchrobbers ner blasphemers off youre goddesse.

But yff Demetrius and they that are crafresmen with him, haue ought to saye vnto eny man, the lawe is open, and there are rulers, let them accuse one another. But yf ye wil go aboute eny other thinge, it maye be determyned in a laufull congregacion. For we stonde in ioperdy to be accused of this dayes vproure: and yet is there no man giltye, of whom we mighte geue a rekenynge of this vproure. And whan he had sayde this, he let the congregacion departe.

The XX. Chapter.

A NOw whan the vproure was ceassed, Paul called the disciples vnto him, and toke his leue of them, and departed * to go in to Macedonia. And whan he had gone thorow those partes, and exhorted them with many wordes, he came in to Grekelonde, and there abode thre monethes. But whan the Jewes layed wayte for him, as he was aboute to sayle in to Syria, he purposed to turne agayne thorow Macedonia. There accompanied him in to Asia, Sopater of Berrea: and of Thessalonica, Aristarchus and Secundus: and Gaius of Derba, and Timotheus: but of Asia, Tychicus and * Trophimus. These wente before, and taried for vs at Troada: but we sayled after the Easter dayes from Philippos, vnto ỳ fyfth daye, and came to them vnto Troada, and taried there seuen dayes.

Act. 20. a. Tim.

D Vpon one of the Sabbathes, whan the disciples came together to breake bred, Paul preached vnto them, wyllinge to departe on the morow, and contynued the preachinge vnto mydnight. And there were many lightes in the chamber, where they were gathered together. There sat a yonge man named Eutychos, in a wyndow, and fell in to a depe slepe (whyle Paul was speakinge) and was ouercome with slepe, and fell downe from the thirde lofte, and was taken vp deed. But Paul wente downe, and fell on him, and enbraced him, and sayde: Make nothinge a doo, for his soule is in hi. Then wente he vp, and brake the bred, and ate, and talked moch with the, tyll the daye brake, and so departed. As for the yõge man, they broughte him alyue, and were not a litle conforted.

But we wente afore in to the shippe, and sayled towarde Asson, wyllinge there to receaue Paul. For so had he appoynted, and wolde himself e go on fote. Whan he was come to vs vnto Asson, we toke him in, and came to Mitylenes, and sayled from thence, and came on the nexte daye ouer agaynst Chios, and on the daye folowinge we aryued at Samos, and taried at Tragilion, and on the nexte daye came we to Mileton: for Paul had determed to sayle ouer by Ephesus, that he nede not to spende the tyme in Asia: for he haisted to be at Jerusalem vpõ the Whitsondaye, yf it were possible for him.

But from Mileton he sent vnto Ephe C sus, and called for the Elders of the congregacion. Whan they were come to him, he sayde vnto them: Ye knowe sence the fyrst daye * that I came in to Asia, after what maner I haue bene with you at all tyme, and serued ỳ LORDE with all humblenesse of mynde, and with many teares and tentacions, which happened vnto me by ỳ layenges of wayte of the Jewes, how ỳ I haue kepte backe nothinge ỳ was profitable, but that I haue shewed you, and taughte you openly, and priuately from house to house. And haue testifyed both vnto the Jewes & to the Grekes * the repentaunce towarde

God, and faith towarde oure LORDE Jesus.

And now beholde, I go bounde in ỹ spirite vnto Jerusalē, not knowinge what shal happen there vnto me, but ỹ the holy goost witnesseth in every cite, and sayeth, that bondes and troubles abyde me there. But I regarde none of them, nether counte I my life dearer then my selfe, that I maye fulfyll my course with ioye, and the office ỹ I haue receaued of the LORDE Jesu, to testifye the Gospell of the grace of God.

And now beholde, I knowe that ye shal se my face nomore, all ye, thorow whom I haue gone, and preached the kyngdome of God. Wherfore I take you to recorde this daye, that I am pure from the blonde of all men: For I haue kepte nothinge backe, but haue shewed you all the councell off God. Take hede therfore vnto youre selues, and to all the flocke, amonge the which the holy goost hath set you to be Bisshoppes, to fede the congregacion of God, which he hath purchaced thorow his owne blonde. For this I knowe, that after my departinge there shal enter in amonge you grevous wolues, which shal not spare the flocke. Yee euē from amonge youre awne selues shal men aryse, speakynge peruerse doctryne, to drawe disciples after them. Therfore awake, and remembre, that by the space of thre yeares I ceassed not to warne every one off you both nighte and daye with teares.

And now brethren I commende you vnto God, and to ỹ worde of his grace, which is mightie to edifye you, and to geue you the enheritaunce amōge all them that are sanctified. I haue not desyred syluer, golde or rayment off eny off you. For ye youre selues knowe, that these handes haue mynistred vnto my necessities, and them that were with me. I haue shewed you all thinges, how that so labouringe ye oughte to receaue the weake, and to remembre the worde of the LORDE, how that he sayde: It is more blessed to geue, then to receaue.

And whan he had sayde this, he kneled downe, and prayed with them all. But there was moch wepynge amonge them all, and they fell aboute Pauls necke, and kyssed him, and were sory, most of all because of the worde which he had sayde, that they shulde se his face nomore. And they accōpanied him vnto the shippe.

The XXI. Chapter.

NOw whan it fortuned that we had launched forth and were departed from them, we came with a straighe course vnto Coon, and on the daye folowinge vnto the Rhodes, and from thence vnto Patara. And whan we founde a shippe redy to sayle vnto Phenices, we wente aborde and set forth. But whā we came within the sighte of Cypers, we lefte it on the lefte hande, and sayled vnto Syria, and came vnto Tyre: for there the shippe shulde laye forth the ware. And whan we had founde disciples, we taried there seuen dayes. And they tolde Paul thorow the spirite, that he shulde not go vp to Jerusalem. And it fortuned whā we had fulfilled those dayes, we departed, and wente oure wayes, and they all broughte vs on oure waye with wyues and childrē, tyll we were come out of ỹ cite, and we kneled downe vpō the shore, and prayed. And whan we had taken oure leue one off another, we toke shippe, but they turned agayne vnto theirs. As for vs we ended the course from Tyre, and came to Ptolomaida, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one daye.

On the nexte daye we ỹ were with Paul departed, and came vnto Cesarea, & entred in to the house of * Philippe the Euangelist (which was one of the seuē) and abode with him. The same had foure doughters, which were virgins, * and prophecied. And as we taried there mo dayes, there came downe from Jewry a prophet, named * Agabus. Whā he was come vnto vs, he toke Pauls gerdell, and bounde his hādes and fete, and sayde: Thus sayeth ỹ holy goost: * The man whose gerdell this is, shal the Jewes bynde thus at Jerusalem, and shal delyuer him in to the handes of the Heythē. Whan we herde this, both we and they that were of the same place, besoughte him, that he wolde not go vp to Jerusalem. Then answered Paul and sayde: What do ye, wepynge, and breakynge my hert? For I am redye not onely to be bounde, but also to dye at Jerusalem for ỹ name of the LORDE Jesu. But whā he wolde not be persuaded, we ceassed, and sayde: * The will of the LORDE be fulfylled. And after those dayes we were redy, & wente vp to Jerusalem: There came with vs also certayne of the disciples off Cesarea, and broughte with them one of Cypers, named Mnason, an olde disciple, with whom we shulde lodge. Now whā we came to Jerusalem, the brethren receaued vs gladly. But on the nexte daye Paul wente in with vs vnto James, and all the Elders came together. And whan he had saluted them, he tolde by order, what God had done amõge the Heythen by his mynistracion.

C Whan they herde that, they praysed the LORDE, and sayde vnto him: Brother, thou seyst how many thousande Jewes there are which beleue, and are all Zelous ouer ỹ lawe. But they are enfourmed agaynst the, that thou teachest all the Jewes which are amõge the Heythẽ, to forsake Moses, and sayest that they oughte not to circumcyse their children, ner to walke after the same custome. What is it therfore: The multitude must nedes come together, for they shal heare that thou art come. Do this therfore that we saye vnto the: We haue foure men, which haue a * vowe on them, take them vn to ỹ, and purifye thyselfe with them, and do the cost on them, that they maye shaue their heades: and they shal knowe, that it is nothinge, wherof they are enfourmed agaynst the, but that thou also walkest and kepest the lawe. For as touchinge them that beleue amonge the Heythen, * we haue writtẽ, and concluded, that they shulde obserue no soch, but onely to kepe them selues from the offeringes of Idols, from blonde, from strãgled, and from whordome. Then Paul toke the men vnto him, and was purified with them on the nexte daye, and entred in to the temple, declaringe that he fulfylled the dayes of purificacion, tyll there was an offeringe offred for euery one of them.

Act.24.b

D But whan the seuen dayes were allmost fulfylled, the Jewes of Asia sawe him in the temple, and moued all the people, layed handes vpon him, and cryed: Ye men of Israel, helpe, this is the man, that teacheth all men euery where agaynst oure people, the lawe, and this place. He hath broughte Grekes also in to the temple, and hath defyled this holy place. For they had sene * Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the cite, him they thoughte ỹ Paul had broughte in to the temple. And all the cite was moued, and the people ranne together. And they toke Paul, and drue him out off the temple, and forth with the dores were shut to.

But whan they wẽte aboute to kyll him, tydinges came to the chefe captayne of the company, that all Jerusalem was moued. Which immediatly toke soudyers and captaynes vnto him, and ranne in amõge them. Whan they sawe the captayne and the soudyers, they lefte smytinge of Paul.

Whan the captayne came nye, he toke him, and commaunded him * to be bounde with two cheynes, and axed what he was, and what he had done. One cried this, another that amonge the people. But whan he coulde not knowe the certente because of the rumoure, he commaunded him to be caried in to the castell. And whã he came to the steppes, it fortuned that he was borne of ỹ soudyers because of the violence of the people. For the multitude off the people folowed after, and cryed: * Awaye with him. Whan Paul was now to be caried in to the castell, he sayde vnto ỹ captayne: Maye I speake vnto the: He sayde: Canst thou Greke: Art not thou the Egipcian, which before these dayes maydest an vproure, & leddest out in to the wylderneße foure thousande preuy murthurers: Paull sayde: I am a man which am a Jewe off * Tharsis, a citesyn of a famous cite in Celicia: I beseke the, suffre me to speake vnto the people. Whan he had geuen him lycence, Paul stode on the steppes, and beckened with the hande vnto the people. Now whan there was made a greate sylẽce, he spake vnto them in Hebrue, and sayde:

The XXII. Chapter.

YE men, brethren, and fathers, heare myne answere which I make vnto you. Whan they herde that he spake vnto them in the Hebrue, they kepte them more sylence. And he sayde: I am a man which am a Jewe, borne at Tharsis in Celicia, and broughte vp in this cite at the fete off * Gamaliel, enfourmed diligently in the lawe of the fathers, and was feruent mynded to God warde, as ye all are also this daye, * and I persecuted this waye vnto the death. I bounde them and delyuered them vnto preson, both men and wemen, as ỹ hye preest also doth beare me wytnesse, and all ỹ Elders: of whom I receaued letters vnto the brethren, and wente towarde Damascon, that I mighte bringe them which were there, bounde to Jerusalem, to be punyshed.

Act.5.c
Act.9.a

But it fortuned as I made my iourney, and came nye vnto Damascon, aboute noone, sodenly there shone a greate lighte aboute me from heauen, and I fell to the earth, and herde a voyce which sayde vnto me: Saull Saull, why persecutest thou me: I answered: Who art thou LORDE: And he sayde vnto me: I am Jesus of Nazareth whom thou persecutest. As for them that were with me, they sawe ye lighte and were afrayed, but they herde not the voyce of him that spake with me. I sayde: LORDE, what shal I do? The LORDE sayde vnto me: Arise, and go in to Damascon, there shalt it be tolde the of all that is appoynted the to do. But whan I sawe nothinge for the bryghtnesse of the lighte, I was led by the hande of them that were with me, and came to Damascon.

There was one Ananias, a deuoute man after the lawe, which had a good reporte of all the Jewes that dwelt there, the same came, and stepte vnto me, and sayde: Brother Saul, loke vp. And I loked vp vpon him the same houre. He sayde: The God of oure fathers hath ordeyned the before, that thou shuldest knowe his wyll, and se the thinge ye is rightfull, and heare the voyce out of his mouth: for thou shalt be his witnesse vnto all men, of the thinges which thou hast sene and herde. And now why tariest thou? Arise, and be baptysed, and waße awaye thy synnes, and * call vpon the name of the LORDE.

But it fortuned, that whan I was come agayne to Jerusalē, and prayed in the temple, I was in a traunce, and sawe him. Then sayde he vnto me: Make haist, * and get the soone out of Jerusalem, for they wyl not receaue the witnesse that thou bearest of me. And I sayde: LORDE, they thē selues knowe that I put in preson and bett in euery synagoge them that beleued on the. * And whā the blonde of Stenē thy witnesse was shed, I stode by also, & consented vnto his death, and kepte the clothes of them that slewe him. And he sayde vnto me: Go thy waye, for * I wil sende the farre amonge the Hey then.

They gaue him audience vnto this worde, and lifte vp their voyce, & sayde: Awaye with soch a felowe from the earth, for it is not reason that he shulde lyue. But as they cried, and cast of their clothes, & threw dust in to the ayre, the captayne bad bringe him in to the castell, and commaunded him to be beaten with roddes and to be examyned, that he mighte knowe, for what cause they cried so vpon him. And whan he bounde him with thonges, Paul sayde vnto the vndercaptayne that stode by: Is it laufull for you to scourge a man that is a Romayne, and vncondemned? Whan the vndercaptayne herde that, he wēte to the vpper captayne, and tolde him, and sayde: What wilt thou do? This man is a Romayne. Then came ye vpper captayne, and sayde vnto him: Tell me, art thou a Romayne? He sayde: Yee. And the vpper captayne answered: With a greate summe optayned I this fredome. But Paul sayde: As for me, I am a Romayne borne. Thē straight waye departed from him, they that shulde haue examyned him. And ye chefe captayne was afrayed, whan he knewe that he was a Romayne, and because he had bounde him. On the nexte daye wolde he knowe the certentye wherfore he was accused of the Jewes, and he lowsed him from the bondes, and commaunded the hye prestes and all their counsell to come together, and broughte Paul forth, and set him amonge them.

The XXIII. Chapter.

PAul beheldē the councell, and sayde: A Ye men and brethren, * I haue lyued Act.24. with all good conscience before God vnto this daye: * But the hye prest Ananias Iere.20. Ioh.18.2 commaunded them that stode aboute him, to smyte hī on the mouth. Then sayde Paul vnto him: God shal smyte the thou paynted wall. Sittest thou and iudgest me after the Deut.17 lawe, and commaundest me to be smytten cōtrary to ye lawe? And they that stode about hī, sayde: Reuyleste thou Gods hye prest? And Paul sayde: Brethrē, I wyst not that he was the hye prest. For it is writtē: * The Exo.22 ruler of thy people shalt thou not curse.

But whan Paul knewe that the one parte was Saduces, and the other parte Pharisēs, he cried out in ye councell: Ye men and brethren, I am a Pharisē, and the sonne of a Pharisē, * Of hope and resurreccion of the Phil.3.2 deed am I iudged. And whan he had so sayde, there arose a dissencion betwene ye Pharisēs and the Saduces, and the multitude was denyded: * for the Saduces saye that Act.4.2 26.2.28.
there is no resurreccion, nether angell, ner spriete: but the Pharisēs graūte both. And Mat.22.c Marc.12 Luc.20.c there was made a greate crye. And ye Scrybes of the Pharyses secte, stode vp, and stroue, and sayde: We fynde no ewell in this mā. B
But yf a spriete or an angell haue spokē vnto him, let vs not stryue agaynst God.

But whan the dissension was greate, ye vpper captayne feared, that Paul shulde haue bene pluckte a sonder of them, and commaunded the soudyers to go downe, and to take him from them, and to bringe him in to the castell. But in the nighte folowinge, the LORDE stode by him, and sayde: Be of good cheare Paul, for as thou hast testified Ephe.3.a of me at Jerusalem * so must thou testifye a.Tim.4. at Rome also.

Now whan it was daye, certayne of the Jewes gathered them selues together, and made a vowe nether to eate ner drynke, tyll they had kylled Paul. They were mo then fortye, which had made this conspyracion. These came to the hye prestes and Elders, and sayde: We haue bounde oure selues wt a vowe, that we wil eate nothinge, tyll we haue slayne Paul. Now therfore geue ye knowlege to the vpper captayne and to the councell, that he maye brynge him forth vnto you tomorow, as though ye wolde heare him yet better: As for vs, we are ready to kyll him, or euer he come nye you.

C But whan Pauls sisters sonne herde of their layenge awayte, he came, and entred into the castell, and tolde Paul. So Paul called vnto him one of ỹ vnder captaynes, and sayde: Brynge this yonge man to the vpper captayne, for he hath somewhat to saye to him. He toke him, and brought hte him to the vpper captayne, and sayde: Paul the presoner called me vnto him, and prayed me to brynge to the this yonge man, which hath somwhat to saye vnto the. Then the hye captayne toke him by the hande, and wente a syde with him out of the waye, and axed him: What is it, that thou hast to saye vnto me? He sayde: The Jewes are agreed together, to desyre the, to let Paul be brought forth tomorow before the councell, as though they wolde yet heare him better. But folowe not thou their myndes, for there laye wayte for him mo then fortye men off them, which haue bounde them selues with a vowe, nether to eate ner drynke, tyll they haue slayne Paul: and euen now are they redye, and loke for thy promes.

Then the vpper captayne let the yonge man departe, and charged him to tell no man, that he had shewed him this. And he called vnto him two vndercaptaynes, and sayde: Make redye two hundreth soudyers, that they maye go to Cesarea, aud three score and ten horsmen, and two hundreth speare men at the thirde houre of the nighte, and delyuer thē beastes, that they maye set Paul theron, and brynge him safe vnto Felix the debyte, and he wrote a letter on this maner:

D Claudius Lysias, vnto the most mightie
r. 21. d Debyte Felix, gretynge. * The Jewes had taken this man, and wolde haue slayne him, then came I with soudyers, and rescued him, and perceaued that he is a Romayne. And whan I wolde haue knowne the cause, wherfore they accused hī, I brought te him in to their councell: then perceaued I, that he was accused aboute questions of their lawe. But there was no accusacion worthy of death or of bondes. And whan it was shewed me, that certayne Jewes layed wayte for him, I sent him straighte waye vnto the, and commaunded the accusers also, that loke what they had agaynst him, they shulde tell the same before the. Fare well.

The soudyers (as it was commaunded them) toke Paul, and broughte him to Antipatras. But on the nexte daye, they lefte ỹ horsemen to go with him, and turned agayne to the castell. When these came to Cesarea, they delyuered the letter vnto the Debyte, & presented Paul before him also. Whan the Debyte had red the letter, he axed off what countre he was. And whā he vnderstode that he was of Celicia, he sayde: I wil Dent. heare the, whan thine accusers are come also. And he commaunded him to be kepte in Herodes iudgment house.

The XXIIII. Chapter.

AFter fyue dayes the hye prest Ananias came downe with the Elders, and wt the Oratour Tertullus, which appeared before the Debyte agaynst Paul. Whan Paul was called forth, Tertullus begāne to accuse him, and sayde: Seynge that we lyue in greate peace by the meanes of ỹ, and that many good thinges are done for this people thorow thy prouydence (most mightie Felix) that alowe we euer and in all places with all thankes. Notwithstondinge ỹ I be nomore tedious vnto the, I praye the, that of thy curtesy thou woldest heare vs a few wordes.

We haue founde this man a pestilent felowe, and a sterer vp of sedicion amonge all the Jewes thorow out all the worlde, and a manteyner of the secte of the Nazaretes, and hath taken in hande also to suspende the temple, whom we toke, and wolde haue iudged him acordinge to oure lawe. But Lysias the hye captayne came vpō vs, and with greate violence delyuered him out of oure handes, and commaunded his accusers to come vnto the: of whom (yf thou wilt enquyre) thou mayest haue knowlege of all these thinges, wherof we accuse him. The Jewes likewyse affirmed and sayde, that it was euen so.

But Paul (whan the debyte had becke- B ned vnto him, that he shulde speake) answe red: Seynge I knowe that thou hast bene iudge now many yeares amonge this people, I wil not be afrayed to answere for my selfe, because that thou mayest knowe, that there are yet nomore but twolue dayes sence I came vp to Jerusalem for to worshippe, and that they nether founde me in the temple disputinge with eny man, or makynge eny vproure amonge the people, ner in ỹ synagoges, ner in the cite: nether can they proue the thinges, wherof they accuse me. But this I * confesse vnto the, that after this waye which they call heresye, so worshippe I the God of my fathers, that I beleue all that is wrytten in the lawe and in the prophetes, and haue hope towardes God, that the same resurreccion of the deed (which they them selues loke for also) shalbe, both of the iust and vniust. Therfore studye I to haue allwaye a cleare conscience towarde God and towarde men.

But after many yeares I came and broughte almesse vnto my people, and offerynges: * wherupon they founde me purifyed in the temple without eny maner of rumoure or vnquyetnesse. Howbeit there were certayne Jewes out of Asia, which shulde be here presente before the, and accuse me, yf they had oughte agaynst me: or els lett these same here saye, yf they haue founde eny vnrighteousnes in me, whyle I stonde here before ỹ councell: excepte it be for this one worde, that I cried stondinge amonge them: Of the resurreccion off the deed am I iudged of you this daye.

C Whan Felix herde this, he dyfferred thē (for he knewe very well of that waye) and sayde: Whan Lysias the vpper captayne commeth downe, I wyl knowe ỹ vttemost of youre matter * But he commaunded the vndercaptayne to kepe Paul, and to let him haue rest, and that he shulde forbydde none of his acquauntaūce to mynister vnto him, or to come vnto him.

But after certayne dayes came Felix wt his wife Drusilla, which was a Jewesse, and called for Paul, and herde him of the faith in Christ. Howbeit whan Paul spake off righteousnesse, and off chastite and off the iudgment to come, Felix trembled, and answered: Go thy waye for this tyme. Whan I haue a conuenyent tyme, I wil sende for the. He hoped also, that money shulde haue bene genen him of Paul, therfore called he oft for him, and commened with him. But after two yeares came Portius Festus in to Felix rowme. Ner Felix wyllinge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, left Paul bounde.

The XXV. Chapter.

NOw whan Festus was come in to A the countre, ouer thre dayes he went vp from Cesarea to Jerusalem. Then appeared the hye prestes and the chefe of the Jewes before him agaynst Paul, and intreated him, and desyred fauoure agaynst him, that he wolde sende for him to Jerusalem, and layed wayte for him, that they might slaye him by the waye. Then answered Festus, that Paul shulde be kepte at Cesarea, but that he himselfe wolde shortly go thither agayne. Let them therfore (sayde he) which are able amonge you, come downe with vs to accuse the man, yf there be oughte in him.

Whan he had taried amonge them more then ten dayes, he wente downe to Cesarea. And on the nexte daye he sat downe on the iudgment seate, and commaunded Paul to be broughte. Whan he was come, ỹ Jewes which were come downe from Jerusalem, stode rounde aboute him, and broughte vp many and greuous quarels agaynst Paul, which they coulde not proue, whyle he answered for himselfe: I haue nether offended ought agaynst the lawe of the Jewes, ner agaynst the tẽple, ner agaynst the Emperoure. B

But Festus wyllinge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, answered Paul, and sayde: Wilt thou go vp to Jerusalem, and there be iudged off these thinges before me? But Paul sayde: I stonde at the Emperours iudgmẽt seate, where I ought to be iudged: to the Jewes haue I done no harme, as thou also knowest very well. Yf I haue hurte eny man, or committed eny thinge worthy off death, I refuse not to dye. But yf there are no soch thinges as they accusē me off, then maye no man delyuer me vnto them. I appeale vnto the Emperoure. Then spake Festus with the Councell, and answered: Thou hast appealed vnto the Emperoure, to the Emperoure shalt thou go.

After certayne dayes came kynge Agrippa and Bernice to Cesarea to welcome Festus. And whan they had taried there many dayes, Festus rehearsed Pauls cause vnto the kynge, and sayde: There is a man left bounde of Felix, for whose cause the hye prestes and Elders of the Jewes appeared before me whan I was at Jerusalem, and desyred a sentence agaynst him. Vnto whom I answered: * It is not the maner off the Romaynes to delyuer eny man that he shal C de perisshe, before that he which is accused, haue his accusers presente, and receaue libertye to answere for him selfe to the accusacion. Whā they were come hither together, I made no delaye, but sat the nexte daye in iudgment, and commaunded the man to be broughte forth. Of whom, whan the accusers stode vp, they broughte no accusacion of soch thinges as I supposed: But had certayne questions agaynst him of their awne superstitions, and of one Jesus deed, whom Paul affirmed to be alyue. Howbeit because I vnderstode not the question, I axed hī, whether he wolde go to Jerusalē, and there be iudged of these matters. But whā Paul had appealed, that he might be kepte vnto the knowlege of the Emperoure, I cōmaunded him to be kepte, tyll I mighte sende him to the Emperoure.

Agrippa sayde vnto Festus: I wolde fayne heare the man also. He sayde: Tomorow shalt thou heare him. And on the nexte daye came Agrippa & Bernice with greate pōmpe, and wēte in to the comon hall with the captaynes & chefe mē of the cite. And at Festus cōmaundement, Paul was broughte forth. And Festus sayde: Kynge Agrippa, and all ye men which are here with vs, ye se this man, aboute whom all the multitude of the Jewes haue entreated me, both at Jerusalē and here also, and cried, that he ought not to lyue eny lenger. But whan I perceaued that he had done nothinge worthy off death, and that he himselfe also had appealed vnto the Emperoure, I determyned to sende him, of whō I haue no certayne thinge to wryte vnto my lorde. Therfore haue I caused hi to be broughte forth before you, specially before the (O kynge Agrippa) that after examinacion had, I might haue somwhat to wryte. For me thynke it an vnreasonable thinge to sende a presoner, and not to shewe the causes which are layed agaynst him.

The XXVI Chapter.

Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Thou hast leue to speake for thy selfe. Thē Paul stretched forth the hande, and answered for himselfe: I thinke my selfe happye (O kynge Agrippa) because I shal answere this daye before the, of all the thinges whereof I am accused of the Jewes: specially for so moch as thou art experte in all customes and questions, which are amonge the Jewes. Wherfore I beseche the, to heare me patiently.

My lyuynge truly from youth vp (how it was led from the begynnynge amonge this people at Jerusalē) knowe all the Jewes which knewe me afore at the first, yf they wolde testifye, for after the most strayte secte of oure Jewysh lawe, I lyued a Pharise. And now stonde I, and am iudged because of the hope of the * promes, that was made of God vnto oure fathers, vnto the which (promes) oure twolue trybes hope to come, seruynge God instātly daye and nighte. For the which hopes sake (O kynge Agrippa) I am accused of the Jewes. Wherfore is this iudged amonge you not to be beleued, that God rayseth vp the deed?

I also verely thoughte by my selfe, that I oughte to do many cōtrary thinges clearne agaynst the name off Jesus off Nazareth, * which I dyd at Jerusalem, whan I shut vp many sayntes in preson, wherupon I receaued auctorite of y hye prestes. And whā they shulde be put to death, I broughte the sentence. And thorow all the synagoges I punyshed them oft, and compelled thē to blaspheme, and was exceadinge mad vpon them, and persecuted them euen vnto straunge cities. Aboute which thinges as I wente to warde Damascon with auctorite and lycence of the hye prestes, euen at myddaye (O kynge) I sawe in the waye, that a lighte from heauē (clearer then the brightnesse of the Sonne) shyned rounde aboute me, and them that iourneyed with me.

But whan we were all fallen downe to the earth, I herde a voyce speakynge vnto me, and sayēge in Hebrue: Saul Saul, why persecutest thou me? It shalbe harde for the to kycke agaynst the prycke. But I sayde: LORDE, who art thou? He sayde: I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest. But ryse vp, and stonde vpon thy fete, for therfore haue I appeared vnto the, that I mighte ordeyne the to be a mynister and witnesse of it that thou hast sene, and that I wyll yet cause to appeare vnto the. And I wil delyuer the from the people, and from the Heythen, amonge whō I wil now sende the, to opē their eyes, that they maye turne from the darknesse vnto the * lighte, and from the power of y deuell vnto God, that they maye receaue forgeuenesse of synnes, and the enheritaunce with them that are sanctified by faith in me.

Wherfore (O kynge Agrippa) I was not faithlesse vnto y heauēly vision, but shewed it first vnto them at Damascon, and at Jerusalē, and in all the coastes of Jewry, and to the Heythen, that they shulde * do penaunce, and turne vnto God, and to do the nighte workes of penaunce. For this cause the Jewes toke me in the temple, and wente aboute to kyll me. But thorow the helpe of God lent vnto me, I stonde vnto this daye, and testifye both vnto small and greate, and saye no other thinge, thē that ỹ prophetes have sayde (that it shulde come to passe) and Moses, that Christ shulde suffre, and be the first of the resurreccion from the deed, and shew light vnto the people, and to the heythen.

Whan he thus answered for himselfe, Festus sayde with a loude voyce: Paul, thou art besydes thy selfe, moch lernynge maketh ỹ madd. But Paul sayde: I am not madd (most deare Festus) but speake the wordes of crueth and sobernesse: for ỹ kynge knoweth this well, vnto whom I speake frely. For I thinke that none off these thinges is hyd from him: for this was not done in a comer. Beleuest thou the prophetes, O kynge Agrippa? I knowe that thou beleuest. Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Thou persuadest me in a parte to become a Christen. Paul sayde: I wolde to God, that (not onely in a parte but altogether,) I might persuade not the onely, but all them that heare me this daye, to be soch I am, these bondes excepte. And whan he had spoken this, the kynge rose vp, and the Debyte, and Bernice, and they that sat with them, and wente aside, and talked together, and sayde: This man hath done nothinge that is worthy of death or of bondes. But Agrippa sayde vnto Festus: This man might have bene lowsed, yf he had not appealed vnto the Emperoure.

The XXVII. Chapter.

A When it was concluded that we shulde sayle in to Italy, they delyuered Paul and certayne other presoners to the vndercaptayne named Julius, of the Emperours soudyers. And whan we were entred in to a shippe of Adramitium, to sayle by Asia, we lowsed from londe. And there was with vs one * Aristarchus out of Macedonia off Thessalonica, and on the nexte daye we came vnto Sidon. And Julius intreated Paul curteously, and gaue him liberty to go to his frendes, and to refresh himselfe. And from thence launched we, and sayled harde by Cypers (because the wyndes were agaynst vs) and sayled ouer the see of Celicia and Pamphilia, and came to Myra in Lycia.

And there the vndercaptayne founde a shippe of Alexandria, ready to sayle in to Italy, and put vs therin. And whan we had sayled slowly, and in many dayes were scarcely come ouer agaynst Gnydon (for the wynde with stode vs) we sayled by Candy nye vnto the cite off Salmo, and came scarcely beyonde it. Then came we to a place, which is called Goodhauen, nye where vnto was the cite Lasea. Now whan moch tyme was spent, and saylinge was now ioperdous, because that they also had fasted ouerlonge, Paul exhorted them, and sayde vnto them: Syrs, I se that this saylinge wyl be with hurte and moch dammage, not onely of the ladynge and of the shippe, but also of oure lyues.

B Neuertheles ỹ vndercaptayne beleued the gouernoure of the shippe and ỹ master, more then it that was spoken of Paul. And for somoch as the hauē was not comodious to wynter in, the more parte off them toke councell to departe thēce, yf by eny meanes they might come to Phenices to wynter there, which is an hauen of Candy, towarde the Southwest and Northwest wynde. Whan the South wynde blewe, they supposinge to haue had their purpose, lowsed vnto Asson, and sayled past all Candy.

But not longe after, there rose agaynst their purpose a flawe of wynde, which is called the Northeast. And whan the shippe was caught, and coulde not resist ỹ wynde, we let her go, and draue with the wedder. But we came to an Ile named Claudia, where we coulde scarce get a bote. Which they toke vp, and vsed helpe, and bounde it vnder harde to the shippe, fearinge lest they shulde haue fallen in to the * Syrtes, and let downe the vessell, and so were caried. And whan we had bydden a greate tēpest, on the nexte daye they made an outcastinge. And on the thirde daye with oure awne handes we cast out the tacklynge of the shippe. But whā neither Sonne ner starres appeared in many dayes, and no small tempest laye vpon vs, all the hope of oure life was taken awaye.

* Syrtes are perlous places i the see.

C And after longe abstinence, Paul stode forth in the myddes of thē, and sayde: Syrs, ye shulde haue herkened vnto me, and not to haue lowsed from Candy, and not to haue broughte vs this harme and losse. And now I exhorte you to be of good cheare, for there shal none of oure lyues perisshe, but the shippe onely.

For this night stode by me the angell off God (whose I am, & whō I serue) & saide: Feare not Paul, thou must be broughte before the Emperoure. And lo, God hath geuen vn to the all thē that sayle with the. Wherfore syrs be of good cheare: for I beleue God, ỹ it shal come so to passe, as it was tolde me.

Howbeit we must be cast in to a certayne ylonde.

But whan the fourtenth night came, as we were caried in Adria aboute mydnight, ỹ shipmen demed that there appeared some countre vnto them, and they cast out the lea de, and founde it twētye feddoms: and whā they were gone a litle farther, they cast out the leade agayne, and founde fyftene feddoms.

D Then fearinge lest they shulde fall on some rocke, they cast foure anckers out of the sterne, and wyßhed for the daye. Whan the shipmen were aboute to flye out of the ship pe, and let downe the bote in to the see, (vnder a coloure as though they wolde cast an-kers out of the fore shippe) Paul sayde to ỹ vndercaptayne and to the soudyers: Excep te these byde in the shippe, ye can not be saued. Then the soudyers cut of the rope from the bote, and let it fall. And whan it bega ne to be daye, Paul exhorted them all to ta ke meate, and sayde: To daye is the fourtene daye that ye haue taried and contynued fas tinge, and haue receaued nothinge: Wherefore I praye you to take meate, for youre Mat.10.d health: for there shal not one heer fall from Luc.12.a the heade of eny of you. And whan he had a Mar.6.c thus spoken, he toke bred, and + gaue thā-nd8.a kes to God before them all, and brake it, and oh.6.a begāne to eate. Then were they all of good .rim 4.a cheare, and toke meate also. We were all together in the shippe two hundreth three-score and sirtene soules. And whan they had ea ten ynough, they lightened the shippe, and cast out the wheate in to the see.

E Whan it was daye, they knewe not the londe. But they spyed an hauen with a ban ke, in to which they were mynded (yf it were possible) to thrust in the shippe. And whan they had takē vp the anckers, they commyt ted them selues to the see, and lowsed the rud der bandes, and hoysed vp the mayne sayle to the wynde, and drue towarde londe. And whan we chaunced on a place which had the see on both the sydes, the shippe dasshed vpon it. And the fore parte abode fast vnmo ued, but the hynder parte brake thorow the violence of the wawes.

The soudyers councell was to kyll ỹ pre-soners, lest eny of them whan he had swymmed out, shulde flye awaye. But the vndercaptayne wyllinge to saue Paul, keped them from their purpose, and commaunded that they which coulde swymme, shulde cast them selues first in to the see, and escape vnto londe: and the other, some on bordes, some on broken peces of the shippe. And so it came to passe, that all the soules came sa fe vnto londe.

The XXVIII Chapter.

AND whā we were escaped, we knewe B that the Ile was called Melite. As for the people, they shewed vs no litle kyndnesse: for they kyndled a fyre, and receued vs all because of the rayne that was co me vpō vs, and because of the colde. Whan Paul had gathered a bondell of stickes, and layed them on the fyre, there came a vyper out of the heate, and leape on Pauls hande.
Whan the people sawe the beest hange on his hande, they sayde amonge them selues:
This man must nedes be a murthurer, whō vengeaunce suffreth not to lyue, though he haue escaped the see. But he shoke of ỹ beest in to the fyre, and + and felt no harme. How- Iac.
beit they wayted, whā he shulde haue swol len, or fallen downe deed sodenly. But whan they had loked a greate whyle, and sawe ỹ there happened no harme vnto him, they chaunged their myndes, and sayde that he was a God.

In the same quarters the chefe man of the Ile whose name was Publius had a lordshipe: the same receaued vs, and lodged vs thre dayes curteously. It fortuned whā Publius father laye sicke of the feuers and of a bloudy fluxe, Paul wente in vnto him, and prayed, and layed the handes on him, and healed him.

Whan this was done, other also which D had diseases in the Ile, came, and were hea led. And they dyd vs greate honoure. And whan we departed, they laded vs with thin ges necessary.

After thre monethes we sayled in a ship pe of Alexandria, which had wyntred in the Ile, and had a badge of Castor and Pollux.
And whan we came to Syracusa, we taried there thre dayes. And whan we had sayled aboute, we came to Rhegium: and after one daye whan the south wynde blewe, we came to Putiolus, where we founde brethrē and were desyred of them to tarye there seu dayes, and so came we to Rome. And from thence whan the brethren herde of vs, they came forth to mete vs to Apiforum and to the Thre tauerns. Whan Paul sawe them, he thāked God, and waxed bolde. But whā we came to Rome, the vndercaptayne dely vnto the presoners to ỳ chefe captayne. As for Paul, he had leue to byde alone with one soudyer that kepte him.

After thre dayes it fortuned, ỳ paul called ỳ chefe of ỳ Jewes together. And whā they were come, he sayde vnto thē: Ye mē & brethrē. I haue cōmytted nothinge agaynst ỳ people, ner agaynst ỳ lawes of ỳ fathers, yet was I boūde, delyuered out of Jerusalē into ỳ Romaynes hādes: which whā they had examyned me, wolde haue let me go, for somoch as there was no cause of death i me. But whā ỳ Jewes spake ỳ cōtrary, I was cōstrayned to appeale vnto ỳ Emperō: not as though I had ought to accuse my people of. For this cause haue I called you, euē to se you, & to speake wt you: because ỳ * for ỳ hope of Jsrael, I am bounde wt this cheyne. They sayde vnto hi: We haue neyther receaued letter out of Jewry cōcernynge the, neyther came there eny of the brethrē, ỳ shewed or spake eny harme of ỳ. But we wyl heare of ỳ, what thou thinkest: for we haue herde of this secte, that euery where * it is spoken agaynst. And whā they had appoynted hī a daye, there came many vnto hī in to his lodginge: vnto whō he expoūded ỳ kyngdome of God & preached vnto thē of Jesu, out of ỳ lawe and out of the prophetes, euē frō mornynge vntyll the euē. And some beleued ỳ thinge ỳ he sayde, but some beleued not.

But whā they agreed not amōge thē selues, they departed, whā Paul had spokē one worde: Full well hath the holy goost spokē by ỳ prophet Esay vnto ō fathers, & sayde: Go vnto this people, and saye: With eares ye shal heare, & not vnderstōde: & with eyes shal ye se, & not perceaue. For ỳ hert of this people is waxed grosse, & they heare hardly wt their eares: & their eyes haue they closed, ỳ they shulde not once se wt their eyes, & heare wt their eares, & vnderstōde i their hertes, and be cōuerted, ỳ Jmighte heale thē. Be it knowne therfore vnto you, ỳ this saluacīō of God is sent vnto ỳ heythē, and they shal heare it. And whā he sayde ỳ, ỳ Jewes departed, & had a greate disputacion amonge thē selues. But Paul abode two whole yeares in his owne hyred dwellinge, & receaued all thē ỳ came in vnto hī, preachinge ỳ kyngdome of God, and teachinge those thinges which concerne the LORDE Jesus with all boldnesse, vnforbydden.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Romaynes.

The first. Chapter.

PAUL the seruaunte of Jesus Christ, called to be an Apostle, * put aparte to preach the Gospell of God (which * he promysed afore by his prophetes in ye holy scriptures) off his sonne, which was begotte * of ye sede of Dauid after the flesh: and mightely declared to be the sonne of God after the spirete which sanctifieth, sence the tyme that he rose agayne from the deed, namely, Jesus Christ oure LORDE, by whom we haue * receaued grace and Apostelshippe amonge all heythen, to set vp the obedience of faith vnder his name, of whom ye are a parte also, which are called of Jesus Christ.

To all you that be at Rome, beloued of God, and sayntes by callynge * Grace be vnto you and peace frō God oure father, and the LORDE Jesus Christ.

First, I thanke my God thorow Jesus Christ for you all, that youre faith is spoken of thorow out all the worlde. For God is my witnesse (* whom I serue in my spirete in the Gospell of his sonne) that without ceassynge I make mencion of you * besekinge allwayes in my prayers, that I mighte once haue a prosperous iourney (* by the will off God) to come vnto you. For I longe to se you, that I mighte bestowe vpon you some spirituall gifte to strēgth you (that is) that I mighte be conforted with you, thorow yō faith ye myne, which we haue together.

But I wolde ye shulde knowe (brethren) how that I haue often tymes purposed to come vnto you (but haue bene * let hither to) that I mighte do some good amonge you, like as amonge other Gentyles. I am detter both to the Grekes, and to the vnkes, to the wyse and to the vnwyse. Wherfore (as moch as ī me is) I am ready to preach the Gospell vnto you at Rome also.

For I am not ashamed of the Gospell of Christ: for it is the * power of God, which saueth all that belene therin, the Jewe fyrst also the Greke: for in it ye righteousnes that is of value before God, is opened, which cōmeth out of faith ī to faith. As it is wreten: The iust shall lyue by his faith. For ye wrath of God is declared from heauen vpon all vngodlynes and vnrighteousnes of mē, which witholde the trueth of God in vnrighteousnes: because that it, which maye be knowne of God, is manifest with thē. For God hath shewed it vnto thē, that the inuisible thinges of God (that is, his euerlastinge power and Godheade) mighte be sene * whyle they are considered by the workes from the creacion of the worlde: so that they are without excuse, in as moch as they knewe, that there is a God, and haue not praysed him as God ner thanked him, but became vayne in their ymaginacions, and * their foolish hert was blynded. Whan they counted them selues wyse, they became fooles: and * turned ye glory of the incorruptible God in to ye symilitude of ye ymage of a corruptible mā, and of bydes, and of foure foted, * and of crepinge beestes. * Wherfore God likewyse gaue them vp vnto their hertes lustes in to vnclennes, to defyle their awne bodies in them selues, which turned the trueth of God vnto a lye, and worshipped and serued the creature more then the maker, which is blessed for euer. Amen.

Therfore God gaue thē vp vnto shamefull lustes. * For their wemen chaunged the naturall vse in to the vnnaturall: likewyse mē also lefte the naturall vse of the woman, and brent in their lustes one on another, and man with man wrought fylthines, and receaued in them selues the rewarde of their erroure, as it was acceptinge. * And as they regarded not to knowe God, euen so * God gaue thē vp in to a lewde mynde, to do those thinges which were not comly, beynge full of all vnrighteousnes, whordome, wickednes, couetousnes, maliciousnes, full of enuye, murthur, strife, disceate, euell cōdicioned whisperers, backbyters, despysers of God, doers of wronge, proude, boosters, bringers vp of euell thinges, disobedient to their Elders, without vnderstondinge, couenaunt breakers, vnlouynge, stubborne, vnmercifull:

which men, though they knowe the righteousnes of God (that they which do soch, are worthy of death) yet not onely do the same, but also haue pleasure in those that do the.

The II. Chapter.

Therfore canst thou not excuse thy selfe (O mā) who soeuer thou be that iudgest: for * loke wherin thou iudgest another, thou condemnest thy selfe, in so moch as thou that iudgest, doest euen the same. For we are sure that the iudgment of God is (acordinge to the trueth) ouer them that do soch. But thinkest thou this O thou man, that iudgest them which do soch thinges, and doest euen the very same thy selfe, that thou shalt escape ỹ iudgmēt of God? Or despysest thou the riches of his goodnesse, pacience, and lōge sufferinge? * Knowest thou not, that ỹ louynge kyndnesse of God leadeth the to repentaunce?

But thou after thine harde and impenitent hert, heapest vnto thy selfe a treasure of wrath, agaynst the daye of wrath and of the openynge of the righteous iudgment of God, * which shal rewarde euery man acordinge to his dedes: namely, prayse & honoure, and vncorrupcion, vnto them that with pacience in doinge good, seke euerlastinge life: But vnto them that are contencious * & not obedient vnto the trueth, but obeye vnrighteousnes, shal come indignacion and wrath, trouble and anguysh vpō all the soules of mē that do euell, of the Jewe first and also of the Greke: But vnto all thē that do good (shal come) prayse and honoure, and peace, vnto the Jewe first, and also to the Greke.

* For there is no respecte of personnes before God: Who so euer haue synned without lawe, shal perish also without lawe: and whosoeuer haue synned in the lawe, shalbe iudged by the lawe. * For before God, they are not righteous, which heare ỹ lawe: but they that do the lawe, shalbe iustified. For yf the Gentyles which haue not the lawe, do of nature the thinges conteyned in the lawe, then they hauynge not the lawe, are a lawe vnto them selues, in that they shewe, that the worke of ỹ lawe is wrytte in their hertes: whyle their conscience beareth witnesse vnto the, and also the thoughtes which accuse or excuse them amonge them selues, in the daye whan God shal iudge the secretes of men by Jesus Christ, acordinge to my Gospell.

But take hede, * thou art called a Jewe, and trustest in the lawe, & makest thy boost of God, and knowest his will: & for so moch as thou art ensourmed out of ỹ lawe, thou prouest what is best to do, and presumest to be a leader of the blynde: a lighte of them ỹ are in darcknes: an enfomer of ỹ vnwyse: a teacher of ỹ symple: which hast the ensample of knowlege & of the trueth in the lawe.

Now teachest thou other, and teachest not thy selfe. Thou preachest that a man shulde not steale, and thou stealest. Thou sayest, that a man shulde not breake wedlocke, and thou breakest wedlocke. Thou abhorrest ymages, and robbest God of his honoure. Thou makest thy boost of the lawe, and thorow breakynge of the lawe thou dishonorest God. For thorow you is the name of God euell spoken of amonge the Gentyles, * as it is wrytten. Esa. 52.a Ezec. 36.

The circūcision verely avayleth, yf thou kepe the lawe: but yf thou breake the lawe, then is thy circumcision become vncircumcision. Therfore yf the vncircumcision kepe the righte thinges conteyned in the lawe, shal not his vncircumcision be counted for circumcision? And so it that of nature is vncircumcision, and fulfilleth the lawe shal iudge the, which vnder the letter and circumcision trāsgressest the lawe. For he is not a Jew which is a Jewe outwarde: nether is that circūcision which is done outwardly in ỹ flesh: But he is a Jewe, which is hydd within. And * the circumcision of ỹ hert is the circumcision, which is done in the sprete and not in the letter: Whose prayse is not of men, but of God. Ioh.3.d Rom.9. *Colos.1

The III. Chapter.

What furtheraunce then haue the Jewes? Or what avauntageth circūcision? Surely very moch. First * Vnto them was commytted what God spake. But where as some of them dyd not beleue theron, what then? shulde their vnbeleue make the promes of God of none effecte? God forbyd. Let it rather be thus, that God is true, * and all mē lyers. As it is wrytten: That thou mayest be iustified in thy sayenges, and shuldest ouercome, whā thou art iudged. Rom.9. Ioh.3.e *Psal.115 Psal.50.a

But yf it be so, that oure vnrighteousnes prayseth ỹ righteousnes of God, what shal we saye? Is God then vnrighteous, that he is angrie therfore? (I speake thus after the maner off men) God forbyd. How myghte God thē iudge ỹ worlde? For yf the trueth of God be thorow my lye the more excellent vnto his prayse, why shulde I thē be iudged yet as a synner? & not rather to do thus (as we are euell spoken of, and as some reporte, that we shulde saye) Let vs do euell, ỹ good maye come therof. Whose dāpnacio is iuste.

B What saye we then? Are we better then they? No, in no wyse: for we haue proued afore, ỹ both the Jewes and Grekes are all vnder synne. As it is wrytte: There is none righteous, no not one. There is none ỹ vnderstondeth, there is none that seketh after God. They are all gone out of the waye, they are altogether become vnprofitable: there is none that doeth good, no not one. * Their throte is an open sepulcre, with their tunges they haue disceaued, the poyson off Aspes is vnder their lippes. Their mouth is full of cursynge and bytternesse. * Their fete are swifte to shed blonde. Destruccion & wrechidnes are in their wayes, and ỹ waye of peace haue they not knowne. * There is no feare of God before their eyes.

But we knowe, ỹ, what soeuer the lawe sayeth, it sayeth it vnto them which are vnder the lawe, ỹ euery mouthe maye be stopped, & ỹ all the worlde maye be detter vnto God, * because ỹ by ỹ dedes of the lawe no flesh maye be iustified in his sighte. * For by the lawe commeth but the knowlege of synne. But now without addinge to of ỹ lawe is the righteousnes which avayleth before God, declared, hauynge witnesse of ỹ lawe and the prophetes: but I speake of ỹ righteousnes before God, which cōmeth by the faith on Jesus Christ, vnto all, and vpō all them that beleue.

C For here is no difference. For they are all synners, and wāte the prayse that God shulde haue of thē, but without deseruynge are they made righteous enē by his grace, thorow the redempcion that is done by Christ Jesu, whom God hath set forth for a * Mercyseate thorow faith in his blonde, to shewe the righteousnes which avayleth before him, in that he forgeueth the synnes, which were done before vnder the sufferaunce of God, which he suffred, that at this tyme he mighte shewe ỹ righteousnes which avayleth before him: ỹ he onely mighte be righteous, & the righteous maker of him which is of the faith on Jesus.

Where is now then thy reioysinge? It is excluded. By what lawe? By the lawe of workes? Nay, but by the lawe of faith. We holde therfore that a man is iustified * by faith, without the workes of the lawe. Or is God the God of the Jewes onely? Is he not also the God of the Heythen? Yes verely the God of the Heythen also, for so moch as he is the God onely that iustifieth the circumcision which is of faith, and the vncircūcision thorow faith. Destroye we then the lawe thorow faith? God forbyd. But we mantayne the lawe.

The fourth Chapter.

WHat shal we saye thē, that Abrahā ỏ father as pertayninge to ỹ flesh A dyd fynde? This we saye: If Abraham were made righteous thorow workes, then hath he wherin to reioyse, but not before God. But what sayeth ỹ scripture? * Abrahā beleued God, & ỹ was counted vnto him for righteousnes. Vnto hī ỹ goeth about ẅ workes, is the reward not rekened of fauoure, but of dutye: Howbeit vnto him, ỹ goeth not about with workes, but beleueth on him ỹ iustifieth the vngodly, is his faith counted for righteousnes. Euen as David sayeth also, that blessednes is onely that mans, vnto whō God counteth righteousnes without addinge to of workes, where he sayeth: Blessed are they, whose vnrighteousnesses are forgeuen, and whose synnes are couered. Blessed is the man, vnto whom the LORDE imputeth no synne.

Now this blessednes, goeth it ouer the B circūcision, or ouer the vncircumcision? We must nedes graunte, ỹ Abrahās faith was coūted vnto hī for righteousnes. How was it thē rekened vnto him? In the circūcision, or in the vncircumcision? Doutles * not in the circūcision, but in the vncircumcision. As for the tokē of circūcision * he receaued it for a seale off the righteousnes off faith, which he had yet in ỹ vncircūsion, ỹ he shulde be a father of all thē ỹ beleue, beinge in ỹ vncircūcisiō, ỹ it might be coūted vnto thē also for righteousnes: & that he might be a father of circumcision, not onely of thē that are of ỹ circumcision, but of them also that walke in the fotesteppes of the faith, which was in the vncircumcision of oure father Abraham.

For the promes (that he shulde be ỹ hey C re of the worlde) was not made vnto Abraham or to his sede thorow the lawe, but thorow the righteousnes of faith. * For yf they which are of the lawe be heyres, thē is faith vayne, and the promes of none effecte, for so moch as the lawe causeth but wrath. For where the lawe is not, there is also no transgression. Therfore was the promes made thorow fayth, that it myght come off fauoure, wherby the promesse myghte be made sure vnto all the sede: not onely vnto him which is off the lawe, but also vnto him that is of the faith of Abrahā. * which is the father of vs all. As it is wrytten: * I haue made the a father of many heythē before God, whom thou hast beleued: which quyckeneth the deed, and calleth it which is not, that it maye be.

D And he beleued vpō hope, where nothinge was to hope, that he shulde be a father of many heythen. Accordinge as it was sayde vnto him: * Euen so shal thy sede be. And he was not faynte in faith, nether cōsidred his awne body, which was deed allready, whyle he was almost an hundreth yeare olde, nether the deed wombe of Sara. For he douted not in the promes of God thorow vnbeleue, but was strōge in faith, and gaue God the prayse: & was sure, that loke what God promyseth, he is able to make it good. And therfore was it rekened vnto him for righteousnes. * But this is not wrytte onely for his sake, yt it was counted vnto him, but also for oure sakes: vnto whō it shalbe counted, yf we beleue on him, that raysed vp oure LORDE Jesus from the deed. Which * was geuen for oure synnes, and raysed vp for oure righteousnesse sake.

The V. Chapter.

A BEcause therfore that we are iustified by faith, we haue peace with God thorow oure LORDE Jesus Christ, by whō also we haue an intraunce in faith vnto this grace, wherin we stonde, & * reioyse in the hope of ye glorye for to come, which God shal geue. Not onely ye, but we reioyse also i troubles, for so moch as we knowe, ye * trouble bryngeth paciēce, paciēce bryngeth experiēce, experiēce bryngeth hope: As for hope, is letteth vs not come to cōfusion, because the loue of God is shed abrode in oure hertes, by the holy goost which is geuen vnto vs. For whan we were yet weake acordinge to the tyme, Christ dyed for vs vngodly. Now dyeth there scace eny man for the righteous sake: peraduenture for a good man durst one dye. * Therfore doth God set forth his loue towarde vs, in ye Christ dyed for vs, whan we were yet synners: Moch more then shal we be saued from wrath by him seynge we are now made righteous thorow his bloude.

B For yf we were recōcyled vnto God by ye death of his sōne, whā we were yet enemies: moch more shal we be saued by him, now ye we are reconcyled. Not onely that, but we reioyse also in God thorow oure LORDE Jesus Christ, by whom we haue now receaued the attonement.

Wherfore * as by one man synned entred in to the worlde, and death by ye meanes off synne: euen so went death also ouer all men, in so moch as they all haue synned. For synne was in ye worlde vnto the lawe: but where no lawe is, there is not synne regarded. Neuertheles death reigned from Adam vnto Moses, euen ouer them also that synned not with like trangression as dyd Adam, which is ye ymage of him ye was to come. Gen.3.a

But it is not with the gifte as with the synne: for yf thorow the synne of one many be deed, yet moch more plenteously came the grace and gifte of God vpon many * by the fauoure that belonged vnto one man Jesus Christ. Ioh.1.b

And the gifte is not onely ouer one synne, C as death came thorow one synne of one that synned. For the iudgment came of one synne vnto condempnacion, but the gifte to iustifye fro many synnes. For yf by ye synne of one, death raigned by the meanes of one, moch more shal they which receaue the abūdaunce of grace and of the gifte vnto righteousnes, raigne in life by ye meanes of one Jesus Christ. Likewyse thē as by the synne of one, condemnacion came on all men, euen so also by the righteousnes of one, came the iustifienge off life vpon all men. For as by the disobedience of one, many became synners, euen so by the obedience of one shal many be made righteous.

But the lawe in the meane tyme entred, Gal.3.c that synne shulde increace. * Neuertheles Luc.7.l where abundaunce of synne was, there was yet more plenteousnes of grace: that, like as synne had reigned vnto death, euē so mighte grace reigne also thorow righteousnes to euerlastinge life by the meanes of Jesus Christ.

The VI. Chapter.

WHat shal we saye then? Shal we A contynue in synne, that there maye be abundaunce of grace? God forbyd. How shal we lyue in synne, ye are deed from it? * Knowe ye not, that all we which Gal.3.d are baptysed into Jesu Christ, are baptysed Col.2.b in to his death? Therfore are we buried wt 1.Pet.3.c him by baptyme in to death, that, like as Christ was raysed vp from the deed by the glory of the father, * euen so we also shulde Ephe.4. walke in a new life. For yf we be grafted wt Col.3.a him vnto like death, then shal we be like the Heb.9.c resurreccion also: For so moch as we knowe, that oure olde man is crucified with him, that the synfull body mighte ceasse, that hence forth we shulde serue synne nomore.

For as touchinge that he dyed, he dyed cōcernynge synne once: but as touchinge that he lyueth, he lyueth vnto God. Lykewyse ye also, counte youre selues to be euen deed concernynge synne, and to lyue vnto God thorow Jesus Christ oure LORDE. Let not synne reigne therfore in youre mortall bodye, that ye shulde obeye vnto the lustes of it. Nether geue ye ouer youre membres vnto synne to be wapens of vnrighteousnes, but geue ouer youre selues vnto God, as they that off deed are become lyuynge, and youre membres vnto God to be wapēs off righteousnes. For synne shal not haue power ouer you, in so moch as ye are not vnder the lawe, but vnder grace.

How then? Shal we synne, because we are not vnder ỹ lawe, but vnder grace? God forbyd. * Knowe ye not, that loke vnto whō
Rom.6.c Pet.2.d ye geue ouer youre selues as seruauntes to obeye, his seruauntes ye are to whom ye obey, whether it be of synne vnto death, or of obediēce vnto righteousnes? But God be thanked, that though ye haue bene the seruauntes of synne, ye are now yet obedient of herte to the ensample off the doctryne, whervnto ye are commytted. For now that ye are made fre from synne, ye are become the seruauntes of righteousnes.

C I wil speake grosly, because of the weaknes of youre flesh. Like as ye haue geuen ouer youre membres to the seruyce of vnclennesse, from one wickednesse to another: Euē so now also geue ouer youre membres to the seruyce of righteousnesse, that they maye be holy. For whan ye were the seruauntes of synne, ye were lowse from righteousnes. What frute had ye at that tyme in those thinges, wherof ye are now ashamed? For the ende of soch thinges is death. But now that ye be fre from synne, and are become the seruauntes of God, ye haue youre frute that ye shulde be holy: but the ende is euer-

The VII. Chapter.

A KNowe ye not brethren (for I speake vnto them that knowe the lawe) how that ỹ lawe hath power vpon a man as longe as he lyueth? For the wo-1.Cor.7.a man ỹ is in subiection to the man, is bounde vnto the lawe whyle the man lyueth: but yf the man dye, then is she lowsed from the lawe that concerneth the man. * Yf she be Num.36.d now with another man, whyle the man lyueth, she shal be called a wedlocke breaker. But yf the man be deed, then is she fre from the lawe, so that she is no wedlocke breaker, yf she be with another man.

Euen so my brethren, ye also are deed vnto the lawe by the body of Christ, that ye shulde be with another (namely vnto him which is rayſed vp from the deed) that we shulde brynge forth frute vnto God. For whan we were in the flesh, the synfull lustes (which were stered vp by the lawe) were mightie in oure membres to brynge forth frute vnto death. But now are we lowsed from the lawe, and deed vnto it, that helde vs captyue, so that we shulde serue in a new conuersacion of the spirite, and not in the olde conuersacion of the letter.

What shal we saye then? Is the lawe B synne? God forbyd: Neuertheles I knewe not synne, but by ỹ lawe. For I had knowne nothinge of lust, yf the lawe had not sayde: * Thou shalt not lust. But then toke syn Rom.7.c Deut.5.c ne occasion at the commaundement, and stered vp in me all maner of lust. For without the lawe synne was deed. As for me, I lyued some tyme without lawe. Howbeit whan the commaundement came, synne reuyued, but I was deed. And the very same commaundement that was geuen me vnto life, was founde to be vnto me on occasion of death. For synne toke occasion at the cōmaundement, and disceaued me, and slewe me by the same commaundement. * The Eſa.42.a 1.Tim.1.a lawe in dede is holy, and the commaundement holy, iust and good. Is that then which is good, become death vnto me? God forbyd. But synne, that it mighte appeare how ỹ it is synne, hath wroughte me death thorow good: that synne mighte be out of measure synfull by the commaundement. For we knowe, that the lawe is spirituall, but I am carnall, * solde vnder synne: Rom.7.b because I knowe not what I do. For I do not ỹ I will, but what I hate, ỹ do I. Yf I do now that which I wil not, thē graunte I, that the lawe is good.

So then it is not I that do it, but synne C that dwelleth in me: for I knowe that in me (ỹ is, in my * flesh) there dwelleth no good Gen.6.a thinge. To wyll is present vnto me, but to per- 1.Tim.1.a fourme ỹ which is good, I fynde not. For ỹ good that I wyll, do I not: but the evell which I wil not, that do I. Yf I do now that I wil not, then is it not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me.

Thus fynde I now by the lawe, ỹ whan I wyl do good, evell is present with me. For I delite in the lawe of God after the inwarde man: but I se another lawe in my membres, which stryueth agaynst ỹ lawe of my mynde, and taketh me presoner in ỹ lawe of synne, which is in my membres. O wretched man that I am, who shal delyuer me from the body of this deathe? I thanke God thorow Jesus Christ oure LORDE. So then wt the mynde I serue ỹ lawe of God, but with the flesh the lawe of synne.

The VIII. Chapter.

A Then is there now no damnacion vnto thē that are in Christ Jesu, which walke not after the flesh, but after ỹ spirete. For ỹ lawe of ỹ spirete (ỹ bryngeth life ī Christ Jesu) hath made me * fre frō the lawe of synne & deathe. * For what vnpossible was vnto ỹ lawe (in as moch as it was weake because of the flesh) ỹ per fourmed God, & sent his sonne in ỹ similitude of synfull flesh, & by * synne dāned synne in ỹ flesh: that the righteousnes requyred of the lawe, mighte be fulfylled in vs, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirete. For they that are fleshly, are fleshly mynded: but they that are goostly, are goostly mynded. To be fleshly mynded, is deathe: but to be goostly mynded, is life and peace. For to be fleshly mynded is enemyte agaynst God, * sythe it is not subdued vnto ỹ lawe of God, for it can not also. As for thē that are fleshlye, they can not please God. Howbeit ye are not fleshly, but goostly, yf so be that the spirete of God dwell in you. But who so hath not the spirete of Christ, the same is not his. Neuertheles yf Christ be in you, then is the body deed because of synne. But the spirete is life for righteousnes sake.

B Wherfore yf the spirete of him, that rayse vp Jesus from the deed, dwell in you, then shal euen he also that rayse vp Christ from the deed, quycke youre mortal bodies, because ỹ his spirete dwelleth in you. Therfore brethrē we are nowe detters, not to the flesh, to lyue after the flesh: for yf ye lyue after ỹ flesh, ye must dye: but yf ye mortyfye the dedes of the body thorow the spirete, ye shal lyue. For who so euer are led by the spirete of God, are Gods childrē: for ye haue not receaued the spirete of bondage to feare eny more, but ye haue receaued ỹ spirete of adopcion, wherby we crye: Abba, deare father. * The same spirete certifieth oure spirete, that we are the childrē of God. Yf we be childrē, then are we heyres also, namely the heyres of God, and heyres annexed with Christ, yf so be that we suffer together, that we maye be also glorified together. 2. Cor. 1. and 5. a Eph. 1. b

C For I suppose, that the afflicciōns off this tyme, are not worthy of ỹ glorye, which shalbe shewed vpon vs. * For the feruent lōginge of ỹ creature loketh for the appearinge of the childrē of God, because the creature is subdued vnto vanyte agaynst hir will, but for his wyll that hath subdued her vpon hope. For the creature also shal be fre from the bondage of corrupcion, vnto the glorious libertye of the childrē of God. For we knowe, that euery creature groneth, and * trauayleth with vs in payne vnto the same tyme. 2. Cor. 4 * 2. Co. 5 Ioh. 16.

Not they only, but we oure selues also, which haue the first frutes of the spirete, grone within in oure selues for the childshippe, and loke for ỹ delyueraunce of oure bodye. For we are sa̅ued ī dede, howbeit ī hope: but ỹ hope that is sene, is no hope: for how can a man hope for that which he seyeth? But yf we hope for that which we se not, thē do we thorow pacience abyde for it.

D Likewyse the spirete also helpeth oure weaknesse: for we knowe not what we shulde desyre as we oughte: * neuertheles ỹ spirete it selfe maketh intercessiō mightely for vs with vnoutspeakable gronynges. Howbeit he ỹ searcheth the hert, knoweth what the mynde of the spirete is: for he maketh intercessiō for the sayntes accordinge to the pleasure of God. But sure we are, that all thinges serue for the best vnto them that loue of God, which are called of purpose. For those whom he knewe before, hath he ordeyned also before, ỹ they shulde be like fashioned vnto ỹ shappe of his sonne, ỹ he mighte be the first begottē amōge many brethrē. As for those whom he hath ordeyned before, them hath he called also: and whom he hath called, thē hath he also made righteous: and whom he hath made righteous, them hath he glorified also. Esa. 26.

What shal we saye then vnto these thinges? Yff God be on oure syde, who can be agaynst vs. * Which spared not his owne sonne, but hath geuen him for vs all: how shal he not with him gene vs all thinges also? Who wyl laye eny thinge to ỹ charge of Gods chosen? Here is God that maketh Nu. 14. a Esa. 50. b * Ge. 22 Esa. 53. c rightyous, who wil then condemne? Here is Christ that is deed, yee rather which is rayséd vp agayne, which is also on ỳ right hande of God, and maketh intercession for vs.

Who will separate vs from the loue of God? Trouble? or anguysh? or persecuciō? or honger? or nakednesse? or parell? or swerde? As it is wrytten: For thy sake are we kylled all the daye longe, we are counted as shepe appoynted to be slayne. Neuertheles se in all these thinges we ouercome farre, for his sake that loued vs. For sure I am, that nether death ner life, nether angell, ner rule, nether power, nether thinges present, nether thinges tocome, nether heyth, ner loweth, nether eny other creature shalbe able to separate vs from the loue of God, which is in Christ Jesu oure LORDE.

B But I speake not these thinges, as though the worde of God were of none effecte: for they are not all Israelites, which are of Israel: * nether are they all children, because they are the sede of Abraham: * but in Isaac shal the sede be called vnto the, that is, They which are children after the flesh, are not the children of God, but the children of the promes are counted for the sede. For this is a worde of the promes, where he sayeth: Aboute this tyme wyl I come, and Sara shal haue a sonne.

om.2.c al.4.c en.21.b en.18.b

B Howbeit it is not so with this onely, but also whan Rebecca was with childe by one (namely by oure father Isaac) or euer the childrē were borne, & had done nether good ner bad (that the purpose of God might stōde accordinge to the eleccion, not by the deseruynge of workes, but by the grace of the caller) it was sayde thus vnto her: The greater shal serue the lesse. As it is wrytten: * Jacob haue I loued, but Esau haue I hated.

en.25.c al.1.a

What shal we saye then? Is God then vnrighteous? God forbyd. For he sayeth vnto Moses: I shewe mercy, to whom I shewe mercy: and haue cōpassion, on who I haue compassion. So lyeth it not then in eny mans wyll or runnynge, but in the mercy of God. For the scripture sayeth vnto Pharao: For this cause haue I stered the vp, euen to shewe my power on the, that my name mighte be declared in all lōdes. Thus hath he mercy on whom he wyl: and whom he wyl, he hardeneth.

Exo.

Thou wilt saye then vnto me: Why blameth he vs yet? For who can resiste his will? O thou man, who art thou, that disputest with God? Sayeth the worke to his workman: Why hast thou made me on this fashion? Hath not the potter power, out of one lompe of claye to make one vessell vnto honoure, and another vnto dishonoure? Therfore whan God wolde shewe wrath, and to make his power knowne, he broughte forth with greate pacience the vessels off wrath, which are ordeyned to damnacion: that he mighte declare the riches off his glorye on ỳ vessels of mercy, which he hath prepared vnto glorye, whom he hath called (namely vs) not onely of the Jewes, but also of the Gentyles. As he sayeth also by Osee: I wil call that my people, which is not my people: and my beloued, which is not ỳ beloued. And it shal come to passe in ỳ place, where it was sayde vnto them: Ye are not my people, there shal they be called the children of the lyuynge God. But Esay crieth ouer Israel: * Though the nombre of the children of Israel be as the sonde of the see, yet shal there but a remnaunt be saued. For there is the worde, that fynisheth and shorteneth in rightyousnes: for a shorte worde shal God make vpon earth. And as Esay sayde before: Excepte the LORDE of Sabbaoth had lefte vs sede, we shulde haue bene as Sodoma, and like vnto Gomorra.

Exo. Rec. 9.Tim. Ose. Esa. Zach. Esa.

What shal we saye then? This wil we saye: The heythen which folowed not rightyousnes, haue ouertaken rightyousnes: but I speake of the rightyousnes that commeth of faith. Agayne, Israel folowed the lawe of rightyousnes, and attayned not vnto the lawe of rightyousnes. Why so? Euen because they soughte it not out of faith, but as it were out of the deseruynge of workes. For they haue stombled at the stomblinge stone. As it is wrytten: Beholde, I laye in Sion a stone to stōble at, and a rocke to be offended at: and who so euer beleueth on him, shal not be confounded.

Esa. Esa.

The X. Chapter.

A BRethren, my hertes desyre, & prayer vnto God for Israel is, that they might be saued. For I beare them recorde, that they are zelous for Gods cause, but not wt vnderstondinge. For they knowe not the righteousnes which auayleth before God, and go aboute to manteyne their awne righteousnes: and thus they are not subdued vnto the righteousnes, that is of value before God. * For Christ is the ende of the lawe, vnto righteousnes for euery one yt beleueth. Moses wryteth of ye righteousnes which commeth of the lawe, that the man which doth ye same, shal lyue therin. But ye righteousnes which cõmeth of faith, speaketh on this wyse: * Saye not in thine hert: Who wil go vp in to heauẽ? (that is nothinge els then to fetch Christ downe) Or who wyl go downe in to ye depe? (that is nothinge els thẽ to fetch vp Christ from the deed.) But what sayeth the scripture? The worde is nye the, euen in thy mouth and in thine hert. This is ye worde of faith ye we preach.

For yf thou knowlegest Jesus with thy mouth, that he is the LORDE, and beleuest in thine hert, that God hath rayseḍ him vp from the deed, thou shalt be saued. For yf a man beleue from the hert, he shalbe made righteous: and yf a mã knowlege with the mouth, he shal be saued. For the scripture sayeth: Who so euer beleueth on him, shal not be confounded.

Here is no difference, nether of the Jewe ner of the Gentyle. For one is LORDE of all, which is riche vnto all ye call vpõ him. * For who so euer shal call vpon the name of the LORDE, shalbe saued. But how shal they call vpõ him, on whõ they beleue not? How shal they beleue on him, of whõ they haue not herde? How shal they heare without a preacher? But how shal they preach, except they be sent? As it is wryttẽ: How beutyfull are the fete of thẽ ye preach peace, ye bringe good tidinges? But they are not all obedient vnto the Gospell. For Esaye sayeth: LORDE, who beleueth oure preachinge? So thẽ faith cõmeth * by hearynge, but hearinge cõmeth by the worde of God.

But I saye: Haue they not herde? No doute their sounde wẽte out in to all londes, and their wordes in to the endes of the worlde. But I saye: Hath not Israel knowne? First, Moses sayeth: I wil prouoke you to envye, by them that are not my people: & by a foolish nacion wyl I anger you. Esaye after him is bolde, and sayeth: I am founde of them, that sought me not: & haue appeared vnto them, that axed not after me. But vnto Israel he sayeth: All the daye lõge haue I stretched forth my handes vnto a people ye beleueth not, but speaketh agaynst me. Esai. 65.

The XI. Chapter.

I Saye then: Hath God thrust out his people? God forbyd: for I also am an Israelite, of the sede of Abraham out of the trybe of Ben Jamin. God hath not thrust out his people, whom he knewe before. Or wote ye not what the scripture sayeth of Elias, how he maketh intercessiõ vnto God agaynst Israel, and sayeth: LORDE, they haue slayne thy prophetes, & dygged downe thine altares, and I am lefte ouer onely, and they seke my life? But what sayeth the answere of God vnto him? I haue reserued vnto me seuen thousande men, which haue not bowed their knee before Baal. Euẽ so goeth it now at this tyme also wt this remnaunt after ye eleccion of grace. * Yf it be done of grace, thẽ is it not of deseruynge: els were grace no grace. But yf it be of deseruynge, then is grace not thinge: els were deseruynge no deseruynge.

What thẽ? Israel hath not optayned ye which he soughte, but the eleccion hath optayned it. As for ye other, they are blynded. As it is wryttẽ: God hath geuen them the spirite of vnquyetnesse, eyes that they shulde not se, and eares that they shulde not heare, euẽ vnto this daye. And Dauid sayeth: Let their table be made a snare to take thẽ with all, & an occasiõ to fall, & a rewarde vnto thẽ. Let their eyes be blynded that they se not, and euer bowe downe their backes.

I saye then: Haue they therfore stombled, ye they shulde cleane fall to naughte? God forbyd: but thorow their fall is saluacion happened vnto ye heythen, that he mighte prouoke them to be zelous after them. For yf their fall be the riches of the worlde, and the mynisshinge of thẽ the riches of the heythen: how moch more shulde it be so, yf their fulnesse were there? I speake vnto you heythen: for in as moch as * I am ye Apostle of the heythen, I wil prayse myne office, yf I mighte prouoke them vnto zele, which are my flesshe, and saue some of them. For yf the losse of them by the recõcylinge of the worlde, what were that els, then as yf life were taken of the deed? Yf the begynnynge be holy, then is all ye dowe holy: * and yf the rote be holy, then are the braunches holy also.

But though some of ye braunches now be brokẽ, and thou, whã thou wast a wylde olyuetre, art grafte in amonge them, and made

The XIII. Chapter.

LEt euery soule submytte him selfe to the auctorite off the hyer powers.* For there is no power but of God. The powers that be, are ordeyned of God: so that who so euer resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinaunce of God. And they that resiste, shal receaue to them selues dānacion. For rulers are not to be feared for good workes, but for euell. Yf thou wilt be without feare off the power, do well then, and thou shalt haue prayse of the same: for he is the minister off God for thy wealth. But yff thou do euell, then feare, for he beareth not the swerde for naughte. For he is the mynister of God, a taker of vengeaunce, to punyshe him that doth euell. Wherfore ye must nedes obeye, not onely for punyshmēt, but also because of conscience. For this cause must ye geue trybute also. For they are Gods mynisters, which māteyne ẏ same defence.

Geue to euery man therfore his dutye: tribute, to whom tribute belongeth: custome, to whom custome is due: feare, to whom feare belongeth: honoure, to whom honoure pertayneth. Owe nothinge to eny man, but to loue one another. For he that loueth another, hath fulfylled the lawe. For where it is sayde:(* Thou shalt not breake wedlocke: thou shalt not kyll: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt not beare false witnesse: thou shalt not lust) and yf there be eny other commaundement, it is compreheded in this worde: Thou shalt loue thy neghboure as thy selfe. Loue doth his neghboure no euell. Therfore is loue ẏ fulfillynge of the lawe.

And for so moch as we know this, namely the tyme * that the houre is now for vs to ryse from slepe (For now is oure saluacion nearer, then whan we beleued: the nighte is past, but the daye is come nye.) Let vs therfore cast awaye ẏ workes of darknesse, and put on the armoure of lighte. Let vs walke honestly as in the daye, * not in excesse off eatinge and in dronkennesse, not in chamburynge and wantonnesse, not in stryse and enuyenge: but put ye on the LORDE Jesus Christ, * and make not prouysion for ẏ flesh, to fulfill the lustes of it.

The XIIII. Chapter.

HIm that is weake in the faith, receaue vnto you, and trouble not the consciences. One beleueth that he maye eate all thinge: but he that is weake, eateth herbes. Let not him that eateth, despyse him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, iudge him that eateth: for God hath receaued him.* Who art thou, that iudgest another mans seruaūt? He stondeth or falleth vnto his LORDE: Yee he maye well stōde, for God is able to make hī stōde. Some man putteth differēce betwene daye ẏ daye, but another man counteth all dayes alyke.* Let euery man be fire of his meanynge. He that putteth difference in the daye, doth it vnto the LORDE: ẏ he that putteth no differēce in the daye, doth it vnto ẏ LORDE also. He ẏ eateth, eateth vnto the LORDE, for he geueth God thākes: and he that eateth not, eateth not vnto ẏ LORDE, and geueth God thankes. For none of vs lyueth to him selfe, and none dyeth to him selfe. Yf we lyue, we lyue vnto the LORDE: Yf we dye, we dye vnto the LORDE. Therfore, whether we lyue or dye, we are the LORDES.

For therto dyed Christ, and rose agayne, and reuyued, that he mighte be * LORDE both of deed and quycke. But why iudgest thou ẏ brother? Or thou other, why despysest thou ẏ brother? We shal all be brought before ẏ iudgmēt seate of Christ. For it is writtē: As truly as I lyue, (sayeth the LORDE) all knees shal bowe vnto me, ẏ all tūges shal knowlege vnto God. Thus shal euery one of vs geue acomptes for himselfe vnto God. Let vs not therfore iudge one another eny more. But iudge this rather, ẏ nomā put a stomblinge blocke or an occasion to fall in his brothers waye.* I know, ẏ am full certified in ẏ LORDE Jesu, ẏ there is nothinge cōmen of it selfe: but vnto him ẏ iudgeth it to be cōmen, to him is it cōmen. But yf ẏ brother be greued ouer ẏ meate, thē walkest thou not now after charite. Destroye not wt thy meate, him, for whom Christ dyed,

Se therfore that youre treasure be not euell spokē of. For the kyngdome of God is not meate and drynke, but righteousnes, ẏ peace, and ioye in the holy goost. He that in these thinges serueth Christ, pleaseth God, ẏ is cōmended of mē. Let vs therfore folowe those thinges which make for peace, ẏ thinges wherwith one maye edifye another. Destroye not ẏ worke of God for eny meates sake. All thinges truly are cleane, but it is euell for ẏ mā, which eateth wt hurte of his cōscience* It is moch better ẏ thou eate no flesh, and drynke no wyne, nor eny thinge, wherby thy brother stombleth, or falleth, or is made weake. Hast thou faith, have it with ỹ selfe before God. Happye is he, that cõdemneth not him selfe in ỹ thinge which he alloweth. But he that maketh conscience of it and yet eateth, is dampned: because he doth it not of faith. For * what so euer is not of faith, that same is synne. Tit 1.c

The XV. Chapter.

A WE that are stronge * ought to beare ỹ fraylnesse of them which are weake, and not to stonde in oure awne consaytes. Let euery one of vs ordre himselfe so, that he please his neghboure vnto his welth and edifienge: For Christ pleased not himselfe, but as it is wrytten: The rebukes of them which rebuked the, are fallen vpon me. * What so euer thinges are wrytte afore tyme, are wrytten for oure learnynge, that we thorow pacience and comforte off the scriptures, might haue hope. The God of pacience and consolacion graunte you to be like mynded one towarde another, accordinge vnto Jesu Christ, that ye beynge of one mynde, maye w̃ one mouth prayse God the father of oure LORDE Jesu Christ. Gal.6.a Pſal.68.b * Ro.4.d

Wherfore receaue ye one another, as Christ hath receaued you to the prayse off God. But I saye that Christ Jesus was a mynister of the circumcision for the trueth of God, to cõfirme the promyses made vnto the fathers, and that the Heythen mighte prayse God because of mercy, as it is wrytten: For this cause wyl I prayse the amõge the Gẽtyles, and synge vnto thy name. And agayne he sayeth: Reioyse ye Heythen with his people. And agayne: * Prayse the LORDE all ye Gentiles, and laude him all ye nacõs. And agayne Esay sayeth: There shalbe the rote of Jesse, and he that shal ryse to rule the Gentyles, in him shal the Gentyles trust. The God off hope fyll you w̃ all ioye and peace in beleuynge, ỹ ye maye be plenteous in hope thorow ỹ power of the holy goost. 2 Re.22.g Pſal.17.c Deu.32.f * Pſa.116.a B

I my selfe am full certified of you (my brethren) that ye youre selues are full of goodnes, fylled with all knowlege, so that ye are able to exhorte one another. Neuertheles (brethrẽ) I have sẽ what more boldly wrytten vnto you, as one that putteth you in remembraunce, for the grace that is geuẽ me of God, that I shulde be a mynister of Jesu Christ amonge the Heythen, to declare the gospell of God, that the Heythen might be an acceptable offerynge vnto God, sanctified by the holy goost. Therfore maye I booste myselfe thorow Jesu Christ, that I medle with thinges perteyninge vnto God. For I durst not speake ought, excepte Christ had wroughte the same by me, to make the Heythen obediẽt thorow worde and dede, thorow the power of tokens and wonders, and thorow the power of the sprete of God, so that from Jerusalẽ, and roũde about vnto Illyricon, I haue fylled all with the Gospell of Christ. So haue I enforced myselfe to preach ỹ Gospell, not where Christes name was knowne, lest I shulde buylde on another mans foundacion, but as it is wrytten: To whom he was not spoken of, they shal se: and they that haue not herde, shal vnderstonde. This is also the cause, wherfore I haue bene oft tymes let to come vnto you. But now syth I haue nemore place in these countrees, hauynge yet a desyre many yeares sence to come vnto you, whan I shal take my iourney in to Spayne, I wil come to you: for I trust that I shal passe ỹ waye and se you, and to be broughte on my waye thitherwarde by you: but so, that I first refresh my selfe a litle with you. C

But now go I to Jerusalem, to mynister vnto the sayntes. For they of Macedonia and Achaia haue wyllingly prepared a commen colleccion together, for the poore sayntes at Jerusalem. They haue done it wyllingly, and their detters are they. * For yf ỹ Heythen be made partakers off their spirituall thinges, their dutye is to mynister vnto the in bodely thinges. Now whan I haue persourmed this, and haue broughte thẽ this frute sealed, I wil take my iourney by you in to Spayne. But I am sure whan I come vnto you, that I shal come with ỹ full blessynge of the Gospell of Christ. D Ro.15.a 1.Co.16.a 2.Co.8.a and 9.a 1.Co.9.a Gal.6.a

I beseke you brethren thorow oure LORDE Jesu Christ, and thorow the loue of the sprete, ỹ ye helpe me in my bussynes with youre prayers vnto God for me, that I maye be delyuered from the vnbeleuers in Jewrye and that this my seruyce which I do to Jerusalem, maye be accepted of the sayntes, ỹ I maye come vnto you with ioye by ỹ wyll of God, and refreshe my selfe with you. The God of peace be with you all. Amen.

The XVI. Chapter.

I Commende vnto you Phebe oure sister, which is a mynister of the congregacion of Cenchrea, that ye receaue her in the LORDE, as it be cõmeth the sayntes, and that ye helpe her in what soeuer busynesse she hath neade off you. For she hath succoured many, and myne awne selfe also. J

I beseke you brethren, marke them which cause deuysion & gene occasions of euell, contrary to ỳ doctryne which ye haue learned, & avoyde them. For they ỳ are soch, serue not the LORDE Jesu Christ, * but their awne belly: & thorow swete preachinges & flateringe wordes, they disceaue ỳ hertes of ỳ innocents. For youre obedience is published amonge all men, therfore am I glad of you.

But yet I wolde haue you wyse in that which is good, & symple in euell. The God of peace treade Sathan vnder yõ fete shortly. The grace of õ LORDE Jesu Christ be with you * Timotheus my helper, & * Lucius, & * Jason, & * Sopater my kynsmẽ salute you. The first Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul, to the Corinthians.

The first Chapter.

A PAul, called to be an Apostle of Jesus Christ thorow ỹ will of God, and brother * Sosthenes, vnto the congregacion off God which is at Corinthum, to them that are * sanctified in Christ Jesus, sayntes by callinge, with all them that call vpon the name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, in every place both off theirs and oures. * Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the LORDE Jesus Christ.

Act.18.b

Ioh.17.c Heb.9.c

2.Cor.1.a

I thāke my God allwayes on youre behalfe, for the fauoure of God which is geuē you in Jesus Christ, that in all poyntes ye are made ryche by him, in every worde, and in all māner of knowlege (euē as ỹ preachinge of Christ is confirmed in you) so that ye wante nothinge in eny gifte, and wayte but for the appearinge of oure LORDE Jesus Christ: which shal strengthe you also vnto ỹ ende, that ye maye be blameles̄e in the daye of oure LORDE Jesus Christ. * For God is faithfull, by whō ye are called vnto the fellishippe of his sonne Jesus Christ oure LORDE.

Num.23.c 1.Co.10.b 1.Tess.5.c

B But I beseke you brethrē thorow the name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, that ye all speake one thinge, and let there be no discension amonge you, but that ye be perfecte in one meanynge. For it is shewed me (my brethren) of you, by them which are of ỹ housholde of Cloes, that there is stryfe amonge you. I speake of that, which every one of you sayeth: I holde of Paul. Another, I holde of * Apollo. The thirde, I holde of Cephas. The fourth, I holde off Christ. Is Christ then deuyded in partes? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were ye baptysed in ỹ name of Paul? I thanke God that I haue baptised none of you, but * Crispus and Gaius: lest eny shulde saye, ỹ I in myne awne name had baptised. I baptysed also ỹ housholde of Stephana. Farthermore knowe I not, whether I baptysed eny other. For Christ sent me not to baptyse, but to preach the Gospell, not with wyßdome of wordes, lest ỹ crosse of Christ shulde haue bene made of none effecte.

Act.18.c

For the worde of ỹ crosse is foolishneße to thē that perishe * but vnto vs which are saued, it is the power of God. For it is wrytē: * I wyl destroye the wyßdome of the wyse, & wil cast away the vnderstondinge of ỹ prudēt. * Where are the wyse? Where are ỹ scrybes? where are ỹ disputers of this worde? hath not God made the wyßdome of this worlde foolishneße? For in so moche as the worlde by the wyßdome therof knewe not God in his wyßdome, it pleased God thorow foolish preachinge to saue them ỹ beleue. For * the Jewes requyre tokens, and the Grekes are after wyßdome. But we preach Christ the crucified: to the Jewes an occasion off fallinge, and vnto the Grekes foolishnes. But vnto them that are called (both Jewes and Grekes) we preach Christ the power of God and * the wyßdome off God.

For the foolishnes of God is wyser then men: and the weaknes of God is strōger then men. Brethren loke on youre callinge, how that * not many wysemē after the flesh, not many mighty, not many of hye degre are called: but that foolish is before the worlde, hath God chosen, that he mighte cōfounde the wyse: And that weake is before ỹ worlde, hath God chosen, ỹ he mighte confounde the mighty. And the vyle and despysed before the worlde hath God chosen, yee and that which is nothinge, that he mighte destroye that which is oughte, that no flesh shulde reioyse in his presence. Of the same are ye also in Christ Jesu, which of God is made vnto vs wyßdome and * righteousnes, and * sanctifienge and redēpcion, that, accordinge as it is wrytten: * He that reioyseth, shulde reioyse in the LORDE.

The II. Chapter.

AND I brethrē, whā I came vnto you came not wt hye wordes or hye wyßdome, to shewe vnto you the preachinge of Christ. For I shewed not forth my selfe amonge you that I knewe eny thinge, saue onely Jesus Christ, euen the sam that ewas crucified. And I was amonge you in weaknes, and in feare, and in moch tremblinge: * and my worde and my preachinge was not with entysinge wordes of mans wysdome, but in shewinge of the spirete and of power: that youre faith shulde not stonde in the wysdome of men, but in the power of God.

That we speake of, is wysdome amonge thē ỳ are perfecte: not ỳ wysdome of this worlde, nether of the rulers of this worlde which go to naughte: but we speake of the wysdome of God, which is in secrete and lyeth hyd: which God ordeyned before the worlde vnto oure glorye: * which none of ỳ rulers of this worlde knewe. For yf they had knowne it, they had not crucified the LORDE of glorye, but as it is wrytten: * The eye hath not sene, and the eare hath not herde, nether hath it entred in to the hert of man that God hath prepared for them that loue him.

But God hath opened it vnto vs by his spirete. * For the spirete searcheth out all thinges, yee euen the depenesses of the Godheade. For what mā knoweth what is in man, saue the spirete of mā which is in him? Euen so no man knoweth what is in God, saue ỳ spirete of God. As for vs, we haue not receaued the spirete of this worlde, but the spirete which cōmeth of God, so that we cā knowe what is geuē vs of God: which we also speake, not with commynge wordes of mās wysdome, but with the cōynge wordes of the holy goost, and iudge spirituall matters spiritually. Howbeit the naturall man perceaueth nothinge of ỳ spirete of God. It is foolishnes vnto him, and he can not perceaue it: for it must be spiritually discerned. * But he that is spirituall, discusseth all thinges, and he is iudged of no man. * For who hath knowne ỳ mynde of the LORDE? Or who shal enfourme him? But we haue the mynde of Christ.

The III. Chapter.

AND I brethren, coulde not speake vnto you as vnto spirituall, but as vnto carnall, euen as vnto babes in Christ. * I gaue you mylke to drynke, and not meate, for ye mighte not then awaye withall, nether maye ye yet euen now, in so moch as ye are yet fleshlye. For * seynge there is envyenge, stryfe, and discencion amonge you, are ye not fleshly, & walke after ỳ maner of men? For whan one sayeth: I holde of Paul: another, I holde of Apollo, are ye not thē fleshlye? What is Paul? What is Apollo? Euē mynisters are they, by whom ye are come to the beleue, and the same, accordinge as the LORDE hath geuen vnto euery man. I haue planted, Apollo hath watred, * but God hath geuen the increace. So then nether is he that planteth, eny thinge, nether he that watreth, but God which geueth the increace. As for him that planteth, and he that watreth, ỳ one is as the other: but yet shal euery one receaue his rewarde accordinge to his laboure. For we are Gods labourers, ye are Gods husbandry, ye are Gods buyldinge. Joh.6 g Act.2.c

Accordinge to the grace of God which is geuen vnto me, as a wyse buylder haue I layed the foundacion, but another buyldeth theron. Yet let euery man take hede how he buyldeth theron. * For other foūdacion can no man laye, then that which is layed, the which is Jesus Christ. But yf eny man buylde vpon this foundacion, golde, syluer, precious stones, tymber, haye, stobble, euery mās worke shal be shewed. * For the daye of the LORDE shal declare it, which shal be shewed with fyre: and the * fyre shal trye euery mās worke what it is. Yf eny mans worke that he hath buylde theron, abyde, he shal receaue a rewarde: Yf eny mans worke burne, he shal suffre losse: but he shal be saued himselfe, neuertheles as thorow fyre. B Mat.16.c Esa.28.c 1.Pet.1.b and 4.b

* Knowe ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirete of God dwelleth in you? Yf eny man defyle the tēple of God, him shal God destroye. For the temple of God is holy, which ye are. Let no mā disceaue himselfe. Yf eny man thinke himselfe wyse amōge you, let him become a foole in this worlde, that he may be wyse. For the wysdome off this worlde is foolishnes with God. For it is wrytten: * He compaseth the wyse in their craftynesse. And agayne: * The LORDE knoweth the thoughtes of the wyse, that they are vayne. Therfore let no man reioyse in men. For all is youres, whether it be Paul or Apollo, whether it be Cephas or the worlde, whether it be life or death, whether it be presente or for to come. All is youres, but ye are Christes, and Christ is Gods. 1.Cor.6.c 2.Cor.6. Heb.3.a Rom.1.c Iob.5.b Psal.93.b

The IIII. Chapter.

LEt every man this wyse esteme vs, euen for the mynisters of Christ, and stewardes of the * secretes of God. Now is there no more requyred of the stewardes, then, that they be founde * faithfull. It is but a small thinge vnto me, that I A 2.Cor.6.a *Deu.29.d Iere.23.e Luc.12.

shulde be iudged of you, or of mans daye, nether iudge I myne awne selfe. I knowe nought by my selfe, * yet am I not therby iustified. It is the LORDE that iudgeth me. Therfore iudge ye nothinge before ỹ tyme, vntyll the LORDE come, which shal bringe it to lighte that is hyd in darknesse, and opē the councels of ỹ hertes, and thē shal euery one haue prayse of God.

Ioh.9.a

B These thinges brethren haue I described in myne awne preson & in Apollos for youre sakes, that ye mighte lerne by vs, that no man counte hygher of him self, then aboue is wrytten, that one be not puft vp agaynst another for eny mans cause. For who preferreth the? * What hast thou that thou hast not receaued? Yf thou hast receaued it, why makest thou thē thy boost, as though thou haddest not receaued it? Now ye are full, now ye are made riche, ye raigne without vs, and wolde God ye dyd raigne, that we might raigne with you.

Iaco.1.a

Me thynketh that God hath set forth vs Apostles for the lowest off all, * euen as those that are appoynted vnto death. For we are a gasynge stocke vnto ỹ worlde and to the angels, and vnto men. We are fooles for Christes sake, but ye are wyse in Christ: We weake, but ye stronge: Ye honorable, but we despysed. Euen vnto this daye we hōger and thyrst, and are naked, and are boffetted with fystes, and haue no certayne dwellinge place, and laboure and worke with oure awne handes. We are reuyled, * and yet we blesse: we are persecuted, and suffre it: We are euell spoken of, and we praye: We are become as it were the very outswepinges of ỹ worlde, yee the of scowringe of all men vnto this tyme.

C I wryte not this to shame you, but as my deare childrē I warne you. For though ye haue ten thousande instructours in Christ yet haue ye not many fathers. For I haue * begotten you in Christ Jesu thorow ỹ Gospell: Wherfore I exhorte you, * be ye my followers. For this cause haue I sent vnto you Timotheus (which is my deare sonne, and faithfull in the LORDE) that he maye put you in remembraunce of my wayes, which are in Christ, euē as I teach euery where in all congregacions. Some are puft vp, as though I wolde come nomore at you. But I wil come to you shortly (* yf the LORDE wyl) and wyl knowe, not the wordes of thē that are puft vp, but ỹ power. For the kyngdome of God is not in wordes, but in power. What wil ye? Shal I come vnto you with the rodd, or with loue and the sprete of mekenesse?

IT here goeth a commen reporte, that A there is whordome amōge you, and soch whordome, as is not once named amōge the Heythen, * that one shulde haue his fathers wife. And ye are puft vp, and haue not rather sorowed, that he which hath done this dede, mighte be put frō amōge you. For I verely as absent in body, but present in sprete, haue determyned allready as though I were present (cōcernynge him that hath done this dede) in ỹ name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, whā ye are gathered together with my sprete, and with the power of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, * to delyuer him vnto Sathan for the destruccion of the flesh, that the sprete maye be saued in the daye of the LORDE Jesus.

For we also haue an * Easter lambe, which is Christ, that is offred for vs. Wherfore let vs * kepe Easter, not in ỹ olde leuen, ner in the leuen of maliciousnes, and wickednes, but in the swete bred of pureneße and of the trueth.

The VI. Chapter.

HOw dare one off you hauynge busy A nes with another, go to lawe before the vnrighteous, and not before the sayntes? * Do ye not knowe that the sayntes shal iudge the worlde? Yf the worlde then shalbe iudged off you, are ye not good ynough to iudge small matters? Knowe ye not that we shal iudge the angels? how moch more thinges that pertayne to the temporall life? Therfore yf ye haue iudgmentes of temporall matters, take them that are despysed in the congregacion, and set them to be iudges. This I saye to youre shame. Is there vtterly no wyse man amonge you? What not one at all, that can iudge betwene brother & brother? but one brother goeth to lawe with another, and that before the vnbeleuers?

Now therfore is there vtterly a faute amonge you, that ye go to lawe one with another. * Why rather suffre ye not wronge? Why suffre ye not youre selues rather to be defrauded? but ye youre selues do wronge and defraude, and that euen the brethren. Knowe ye not that the vnrighteous shal not inheret the kyngdome of God? Be not disceaued. Neither whoremongers, ner worshippers off ymages, ner breakers off wedlocke, ner weaklinges, nether abusers of them selues with mankynde, ner theues, nether the couetous, ner drōkardes, ner cursed speakers, ner extorcioners shal inheret the kyngdome of God. And soch haue some of you bene, but ye are waßhed, ye are sanctified, ye are made righteous by the name of the LORDE Jesus, and by the sprete of oure God.

C I maye do all thinges, but * all thinges are not profitable. I maye do all thinges, but I wil be bronghte vnder no mās power. Meates are ordeyned for the bely, & the bely for meates. But God shal destroye both it and them. The body belongeth not vnto whordome, but vnto the LORDE, and the LORDE vnto the body. * God hath rayſed vp the LORDE, and shal rayse vs vp also by his power. Knowe ye not that youre bodies are the membres of Christ? Shal I now take the membres of Christ, and make them the membres of an harlot? God forbyd. Or do ye not knowe, that he which cleueth vnto an harlot, is one body? For they shalbe two (* sayeth he) in one fleßhe. But he that cleueth vnto the LORDE, is one sprete.

Fle whordome. All synnes that a man doth, are without the body. But he that commytteth whordome, synneth agaynst his awne body. * Or knowe ye not that youre body is the temple of the holy goost? Whom ye haue of God, and are not youre awne? * For ye are dearly boughte. Prayse ye God therfore in yor body & in yor sprete, which are Gods.

The VII. Chapter.

AS concernynge the thinges wherof ye wrote vnto me, I answere: It is good for a man not to touche a woman. Nevertheles to avoyde whordome, let every man haue his awne wife, and let every woman haue hir awne hußbande. Let the mā geue vnto the wife due benevolence: likewyse also the wife vnto the man. The wife hath not power over hir awne body, but the hußbande: & likewyse the man hath not power over his awne body, but the wife. * Withdraw not yor selues one frō another, except it be with the consent of both for a tyme, that ye maye geue youre selues vnto fastinge and prayer, and thē come together agayne, lest Sathan tempte you for yor incontynēcye. But this I saye of fauoure, and not of commaundemēt. Howbeit I wolde rather that all mē were as I am. Nevertheles every one hath his proper gifte of God: one thus, another so. To them verely that are vnmaried and to wedowes I saye: It is good for thē that they abyde also as I do. * But yf they cannot absteyne, let them mary. For it is better to mary, then to burne. Tob 6.d and 8.a Ioel 2.c 1.Tim.5.b

But vnto them that are maried, commaunde not I, but the LORDE, * that the wife separate not her selfe from the hußbande: but yf she separate her selfe, that she remayne vnmaried, or be reconcyled to hir hußbande: and let not the hußbande put awaye his wife from him. B Mat.5.d

As for the other, vnto thē saye I, not the LORDE: Yf eny brother haue an vnbeleuynge wife, and she is content to dwell with him, let him not put hir awaye. And yf a woman haue an vnbeleuynge hußbande, and he is content to dwell with her, let her not put him awaye. For the vnbeleuynge hußbande is sanctified by the wife, and the vnbeleuynge wife is sanctified by the hußbande: or els were youre children vncleane, but now are they holy. But yf the vnbeleuynge departe, let him departe. A brother or a sister is not boūde in soch cases, but God hath called vs in peace. * For what knoweste thou O womā, whether thou shalt saue the mā? Or what knoweste thou O man, whether thou shalt saue the woman? But euen as God hath distributed vnto every one * and as the LORDE hath called every man, so let him walke: and so orden I in all congregacions. 1.Pet.3.a Ephe.4.a

C Yf eny man be called beynge circumcysed let him take no heythenshippe vpon him. Yf eny man be called in the heythenshippe, let him not be circumcysed. Circumcision is nothinge, and vncircumcision is nothinge, but the kepynge of the commaundementes of God. Let every one abyde in the callyn-

1.Tim.6.a ge wherin he is called. * Art thou called a seruaũt, care not for it: neuertheles yf thou mayest be fre, vse it rather. For he that is called in the LORDE beynge a seruaũte, is a free man of the LORDE. Likewyse he that is called beynge fre, is a seruaũt of Christ. * Ye are 1.Cor.6.c 1.Pet.1.c dearly boughte, be not ye the seruauntes of men. Brethren let euery one wherin he is called, therin abyde with God.

As concernynge virgins, I haue no commaundement of the LORDE, neuertheles I saye my goodmeanynge, as I haue optayned mercy of the LORDE to be faithfull. I suppose it is good for ỳ present necessite: for it is good for a man so to be. Art thou bounde vnto a wife, seke not to be lowsed: Art thou lowsed fro a wife, seke not a wife. But yf thou take a wife, thou synnest not. And yf a virgin mary, she synneth not. Neuertheles soch shal haue trouble in the flesshe. But I fauoure you.

D Howbeit this I saye brethren: * the tyme Ps.89.a 1.Pet.4.b is shorte. Farthermore this is the meanynge, ỳ they which haue wyues, be as though they had none: and they that wepe, be as though they wepte not: and they that reioyse, be as though they reioysed not: & they that bye, be as though they possessed not: & they that vse this worlde, be as though they vsed it not. For the fassion off this Mat.6.a Luc.12.c 1.Tim.5.a worlde passeth awaye. But I wolde that ye shulde be without care. * He that is syngle, careth for the thinges of the LORDE, how he maye please the LORDE. But he that is maried, careth for the thinges of the worlde, how he maye please his wife, and is deuyded. A woman and a virgin that is syngle, careth for the thinges of the LORDE, that she maye be holy both in body & also in spirite. But she that is maried, careth for ỳ thinges of the worlde, how she maye please hir husbande.

E This I saye for youre profit, not that I wil tangle you in a snare, but for that which is honest and comly vnto you, that ye maye cõtynually cleue vnto the LORDE without hynderaunce. But yf eny man thinke that it is vncomly for his virgin yf she passe the tyme of mariage, and yf nede so requyre, let him do what he lyst, he synneth not, let thẽ be coupled in mariage. Neuertheles he that purposeth surely in his hert, hauynge none nede, but hath power of his awne wyll, and determeth so in his hert to kepe his virgin, doth well. Fynally, he that ioyneth his virgin in mariage, doth well: but he that ioyneth not his virgin in mariage, doth better. * The wife is bounde to the lawe, as longe as hir husbande lyueth. But yf hir husbande slepe, she is at liberty to mary vnto whom she wil, onely that it be done in the LORDE. But she is happier yf she so abyde after my iudgment. I thinke verely that I also haue the spirite of God. Rom.

The VIII. Chapter.

AS touchynge thinges * offred vnto Idols * we are sure ỳ we all haue knowlege. Knowlege puffeth a mã vp, but loue edifyeth. Neuertheles yf eny mã thinke ỳ he knoweth eny thinge, he knoweth not yet how he oughte to knowe. But yf eny man loue God, the same is knowne of him.

So are we sure now cõcernynge the meates offred vnto Idols, * that an Idoll is nothinge in the worlde, and that there is none other God but one. And though there be that are called goddes, whether in heauen or in earth (as there be goddes many and lordes many) yet haue we but one God, euen the father, * of whõ are all thinges, and we in him: & one LORDE Jesus Christ, by whõ are all thinges, and we by him.

But euery man hath not knowlege: for some make yet * conscience ouer the Idoll, and eate it as a thinge offred vnto Idols: and so their conscience beynge weake, is defyled. Neuertheles meate furthureth not vs vnto God. Yf we eate, we shal not therfore be the better: yf we eate not, we shal not therfore be the lesse. But take hede that this youre liberty be not an occasion of fallynge vnto ỳ weake. For yf eny man se the (which hast knowlege) syt at the table in the Idols house, shal not his conscience whyle it is weake, be occasioned to eate of the Idoll offeringes? And so thorow thy knowlege shal the weake brother perishe, for whõ Christ dyed. But whan ye synne so agaynst the brethren, and wounde their weake cõscience, ye synne agaynst Christ. Wherfore * yf meate offende my brother, I wyl neuer eate flesh, lest I offende my brother.

The IX. Chapter.

AM I not an Apostle? Am I not fre? * Haue I not sene Jesus Christ oure LORDE? Are not ye my worke in the LORDE? Yf I be not an Apostle vnto other, yet am I youre Apostle: for the seale of myne Apostelshippe are ye in the LORDE. Myne answere vnto them that axe me, is this: Haue we not power to eate and drynke? Haue we not power also to leade aboute a sister to wife, as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren of the LORDE, and * Cephas? Luc.

Or haue onely I and Barnabas not power this to do? Who goeth a warfare at eny tyme vpon his awne wages? Who planteth a vynyarde, and eateth not of the frute therof? Who fedeth a flocke, and eateth not of the mylke of the flocke?

B Saye I these thinges after the maner of men? Sayeth not the lawe the same also? For * it is wrytten in the lawe off Moses: Thou shalt not mosell the mouth of the oxe that treadeth out the corne. Doth God take thought for the oxen? Or sayeth he it not altogether for oure sakes? For no doute it is wrytte for oure sakes. For he that eareth, shulde eare vpon hope: and he yͭ threshyth, shulde trosse he vpon hope, yͭ he mighte be partaker of his hope. * Yf we haue sowne vnto you spirituall thinges, is it a greate thinge yf we reape yͦ bodely thinges? But yf other be partakers of this power on you, wherfore are not we rather? * Neuertheles we haue not vsed this power, but suffre all thinges, lest we shulde hynder the Gospell off Christ. Knowe ye not that they which laboure in the temple, haue their lyuynge of yͭ temple: and they that wayte at the altare, enioye the altare? * Euen thus also hath yͭ LORDE ordeyned, that they which preach the Gospell, shulde lyue of yͭ Gospell. * But I haue vsed none of these thinges.

C Neither wryte I therof, that it shulde be done so vnto me: for I had rather dye, then that eny man shulde bringe my reioysinge to naughte. For in that I preach the Gospell, I neade not boost my selfe, for I must nedes do it. And wo vnto me, yff I preach not the Gospell. Yf I do it with a good wyll, I shall haue my rewarde: but yff I do it agaynst my wyll, yet is the office commyted vnto me. Wherfore the shal I be rewarded? (Namely therfore) that I preach the Gospell, and do the same frely for naughte, that I abuse not my libertye in yͭ Gospell. For though I am fre from all men, yet haue I made my selfe euery mans seruaunt, yͭ I mighte wynne yͭ moo. * Vnto the Iewes I am become as a Iewe, to wynne yͭ Iewes. To them that are vnder the lawe, I am become as though I were vnder the lawe, to wynne them which are vnder the lawe.

D Vnto them that are without lawe, I am become as though I were without lawe (where as yet I am not without the lawe of God, but am in yͭ lawe of Christ) to wynne the that are without lawe. To the weake, am I become as weake, to wynne the weake. * I am become of all fassions vnto euery man, to saue some at yͭ leest. But this I do for the Gospels sake, that I mighte be partaker therof.

Knowe ye not, that they which runne in a course, runne all, yet but one receaueth the rewarde? Runne ye so, that ye maye optayne. Euery one that proueth mastrye, absteyneth from all thinges, and they do it, that they maye optayne a corruptible crowne, but we to optayne an * vncorruptible crowne. I therfore so runne, not as at an vncertayne thinge: So fighte I, not as one yͭ beateth yͭ ayre: but I tame my body, and bringe it in to subiection, lest whan I preach vnto other: I my selfe be a cast awaye. 1.Pet.5.a

The X. Chapter.

A Brethren, I wolde not that ye shulde be ignoraunt of this, * that oure fathers were all vnder the cloude, * and all passed thorow the see, & were all baptised vnder Moses in the cloude and in the see, * and dyd all eate of one spirituall meate, and * dyd all drynke of one spirituall drynke: but they dronke of the spirituall * rocke that folowed the, which rocke was Christ. Neuertheles in many of them had God no delyte, * for they were smytten downe in the wylderneese. Exo.13.d Exo.14.c Exo.16.c Exo.17.b Nu.20.a Mat.16.c Num.14.

These are ensamples vnto vs, yͭ we shulde not lust after euell thinges, as they lusted. Nether be ye worshippers off ymages, as were some of them. Accordinge as it is wrytte: * The people sat downe to eate and drynke, and rose vp to playe. Nether let vs commytte whordome, * as some of them cõmytted whordome, and fell in one daye thre & twenty thousande. Nether let vs tempte Christ, * as some of them tempted him, and were destroyed of serpẽtes. Nether murmure ye, * as some of them murmured, and were destroyed thorow the destroyer. Exo.32.b Num.25. Psal.105. Num.21. Num.11.

All these thinges happened vnto the for ensamples, but they are wrytte to warne vs, vpon whom the ende of yͭ worlde is come. Therfore let him that thinketh he stondeth, take hede, lest he fall. There hath yet no tẽptacion ouertaken you, but soch as foloweth the nature of man. Neuertheles * God is faithfull, * which shal not suffre you to be tempted aboue youre strength, but shal in the myddes of yͭ temptacion make a waye to come out, that ye maye beare it. Wherfore my dearly beloued, flie from worshippinge of Idols. I speake vnto them which haue discrecio, iudge ye what I saye. The cuppe of thãkesgeuynge wherwith we geue thankes, is it not the partakinge of the blonde of B 1.Cor.1.a 1.Thes.2.c *2.Pe.2.b

Christ: The bred that we breake, is it not ỹ partakinge of ỹ body of Christ? For we many, are one bred & one body, in as moch as we all are partakers of one bred.

C Beholde Israel after the fleßhe. They ỹ eate the sacrifices, are they not partakers of the altare? What shal I now saye then? * 1. Cor. 8. a Shal I saye that the Idoll is eny thinge? Or that it which is offred vnto the Idoll is eny thinge? Nay. But this I saye, that loke what the Heythen offre, that offre they vnto deuels, and not vnto God. Now wolde I not that ye shulde be in the fellishippe of deuels. Ye can not drynke of the cuppe of the LORDE and of the cuppe of the deuels. Ye can not be partakers of the LORDES table, and of the table of deuels. Or wyl we 1. Cor. 6. c provoke the LORDE? * I maye do all thinges, but all thinges are not profitable. I maye do all thinges, but all thinges edifye not. Let noman seke his awne profit, but let euery man seke anothers welth. Eccli. 37. d

What soeuer is solde in the fleshmarket, that eate, and aske no question for conscience sake. Psal. 23. b * For the earth is the LORDES, and all ỹ therin is. Yf eny of thē ỹ beleue not, byd you to a feast, and yf ye be disposed to go, what soeuer is set before you, that eate, axinge no question for conscience sake.

D But yf eny man saye vnto you: This is offred vnto Idols, thē eate not of it, for his sake that shewed it, and for hurtinge of conscience. (The earth is the LORDES and all that therin is.) Neuertheles I speake of * 1. Cor. 8. b conscience, not thine, but of ỹ other. For why shulde my liberty be iudged of another mās conscience? * For yf I take my parte w̄ thankesgeuynge, why am I euell spoken of, for ỹ thinge wherfore I geue thankes? 1. Tim. 4. b

Col. 3. b * Therfore whether ye eate or drynke, or what so euer ye do, do all to ỹ prayse of God. Be not ye an occasion of fallinge, nether to the Iewes, ner to the Gentyles, ner to the 1. Cor. 9. d congregacion of God, * euē as I also please all men in all thinges, not sekinge myne awne profit, but the profit of many, that 1. Cor. 4. c they might be saued. * Folowe ye me, as I do Christ.

The XI. Chapter.

A I Commende you brethren, that ye remembre me in all poyntes, and kepe the ordinaunces, euē as I delyuered them vnto you. But I certifye you, that Ephe. 5. c Christ is the heade of euery man. * As for ỹ man, he is the heade of ỹ woman, but God is Christes heade. Euery man that prayeth or prophecieth, and hath eny thinge on his heade, shameth his heade. But euery woman that prayeth or prophecieth with vncouered heade, dishonesteth hir heade. For it is euen a lyke moch as yf she were shauen. Yf the womā be not couered, let hir heer also be cut of. But yf it be vncomely for a woman to haue hir heer cut of or to be shauen, then let hir couer hir heade. Neuertheles the man oughte not to couer his heade, * Ephe. for so moch as he is the ymage and glory of God: but the womā is the glory of the man. * For the man is not of the woman, but the Gen. woman of the man. Nether was the man created for the womans sake, but the womā for the mans sake.

Therfore ought the woman to haue a B power vpon hir heade, for the angels sakes. Neuertheles nether is the man without ỹ woman, nether the woman without the mā in the LORDE. For as the woman is of the man, euen so commeth the man also by the woman, but all of God. Iudge ye by yō selues, whether it be comly, ỹ a womā praye before God bare headed? Or doth not nature teach you, ỹ it is a shame for a man yf he weere lōge heer, & a prayse to ỹ womā, yf she weere lōge heer? For hir heer is geuē heer to couer her withall. But yf there be eny man amōge you that hath lust to stryue, let him knowe, that we haue no soch custome, nether the congregacions of God. But this must I warne you of: I commende it not, that ye come together not after a better maner but after a worse. First, whan ye come together in the congregacion, I heare, that there are diseensions amonge you, and I partly beleue it. * For there must be sectes amonge you, Mat. that they which are perfecte amonge you, Luke might be knowne.

Now whan ye come together, the LOR- C DES supper can not be kepte. For whan it shulde be kepte, euery mā taketh his awne supper afore. And one is hōgrie, another is dronkē. Haue ye not houses to eate and drynke in? Or despyse ye ỹ cōgregacion of God, and shame them that haue not? What shal I saye vnto you? Shal I prayse you? in this prayse I you not. That which I delyuered vnto you, receaued I of the LORDE. * For the LORDE Jesus the same nighte in Mat. the which he was betrayed, toke the bred, & Luke gaue thankes, and brake it, and sayde: Take ye, & eate ye, this is my body, which is broken for you. This do in the remembraunce of me. After the same maner also he toke ỹ cuppe whan supper was done, and sayde: This cuppe is the new Testament in my blonde, this do (as oft as ye drynke it) in the remembraūce of me. For as oft as ye shal eate of this bred, & drynke of this cuppe, ye shal shewe the LORDES death, vntyll he come.

Wherfore who soeuer shal eate off this bred, and drynke off this cuppe of the LORDE vnworthely, shalbe giltye of the body and blonde of the LORDE. * But let a man examen himselfe, and so let him eate of this bred, and drynke of this cuppe. For he that eateth and drynketh vnworthely, eateth & drynketh his awne damnacion, because he maketh no differēce of the LORDES body. Therfore are there so many weake and sicke amōge you, and many slepe. * For yf we iudged oure selues, we shulde not be iudged. But whan we are iudged, we are chastened of ỹ LORDE, that we shulde not be dāned with the * worlde. Wherfore my brethren, whan ye come together to eate, tary one for another. But yf eny man honger, let him eate at home, that ye come not together vnto cō dempnacion. As for other thinges, I wil set them in order whan I come.

The XII. Chapter.

AS concernynge spirituall giftes (brethren) I wolde not that ye were ignoraunt. Ye know that ye were heythē and wente youre wayes vnto dōme Idols, euē as ye were led. Wherfore I declare vnto you, * that no man speakynge thorow the sprete of God, defyeth Jesus. And no man can saye that Jesus is the LORDE, but by the holy goost.

There are dyuerse giftes, yet but one sprete: and there are dyuerse offices, yet but one LORDE: and there are dyuerse operacions * yet is there but one God, which worketh all in all. The giftes of the sprete are geuen vnto euery man to profit the cōgregacion. To one is geuen thorow the sprete the vtteraunce of wisdome: to another is geuen the vtteraunce of knowlege acordinge to the same sprete: to another, faith in the same sprete: to another, the giftes of healinge in the same sprete: to another, power to do miracles: to another, prophecienge: to another, * iudgment to discerne spretes: to another, dyuerse tunges: to another, the interpretacion of tunges. These all doth ỹ same onely sprete worke, and distributeth vnto euery man, acordinge as he will.

For as the body is one, and hath yet many membres, neuertheles all the membres of the body though they be many, are yet but one body: euen so Christ also. For we are all baptysed in one sprete to be one body, whether we be Jewes or Gentyles, whether we be bonde or fre, and haue all * dronke of one sprete. For the body also is not one membre, but many. Yf the fote saye: I am not ỹ hande, therfore am I not a membre of the body, is he therfore not a membre of ỹ body? And yf the eare saye: I am not the eye, therfore am I not a membre of the body, is he therfore not a membre of the body? Yf all the body were an eye, where were then the hearinge? Yf all were hearinge, where then the smellinge? But now hath God set the membres, euery one seuerally in the body, as it hath pleased him. Neuertheles yf all the membres were one membre, where were then the body? But now are the membres many, yet is the body but one.

Esa. 55. a
Ioh. 7. d

The eye can not saye vnto the hande: I haue no nede of the: or agayne the heade vnto the fete, I haue no nede of you: but rather a greate deale the membres of the body which seme to be most feble, are most necessary: and vpon those membres of the body which we thinke least honest, put we most honestie on: and oure vncomly partes haue most beutye on. For oure honest membres neade it not. But God hath so measured ỹ body, and geuen most honoure vnto that membre which had nede, that there shulde be no stryfe in the body, but that the membres shulde indifferently care one for another. And yf one membre suffre, all the membres suffre with him: and yf one membre be had in honoure, all the membres are glad with him also. But ye are the body of Christ, and membres, euery one of another.

And God hath ordeyned in the congregacion, first the * Apostles, secōdly prophetes, thirdly * teachers, then doers of miracles, after that the giftes of healinge, helpers, gouerners, dyuerse tunges. Are they all Apostles? Are they all prophetes? Are they all teachers? Are they all doers of miracles? Haue they all the giftes of healinge? Speake they all with tunges? Can they all interprete? But covet ye the best giftes. And yet shewe I you a more excellent waye.

The XIII. Chapter.

THough I spake with the tunges of men and angels, and yet had not loue, I were euen as sownding brasse, or as a tynklinge Cymball. * And though I coulde prophecy, & vnderstode all secretes, and all knowlege, and had all faith, so * that

I coulde moue mountaynes out of their places, and yet had not loue, I were nothinge. And though I bestowed all my goodes to fede ỳ poore, and though I gaue my body euen that I burned, and yet haue not loue, it profiteth me nothinge.

Loue is pacient & curteous, loue envyeth not, loue doth not frowardly, is not puft
Phil.2.b vp, dealeth not dishonestly, * seketh not hir awne, is not provoked vnto anger, thynketh not evell, reioyseth not over iniquyte, but reioyseth in the trueth, beareth all thinges, beleueth all thinges, hopeth all thinges, suffreth all thinges.

B Though prophecienges fayle, or tunges ceasse, or knowlege perishe, yet loue falleth neuer awaye. For oure knowlege is vnparfecte, and oure prophecienge is vnparfecte. But whā that which is perfecte, commeth, then shal the vnparfecte be done awaye. Whan I was a childe, I spake as a childe, I vnderstode as a childe, I ymagined as a childe. But as soone as I was a man, I put awaye childishnes. Now we se thorow a glasse in a darke speakynge, but thē shal we se face to face. Now I knowe vnperfectly: but thē shal I knowe euē as I am knowne. Now abydeth faith, hope, loue, these three: but the greatest of these is loue.

The XIIII. Chapter.

A Laboure for loue. Couet spirituall giftes, but specially that ye maye prophecye. For he ỳ speaketh with tunges, speaketh not vnto men, but vnto God: for no man heareth him. Howbeit in ỳ spirite he speaketh misteries. But he that prophecieth, speaketh vnto men to edifienge, & to exhortacion, and to cōforte. He that speaketh with tunges, edifieth himselfe: but he that prophecieth, edifieth the cōgregacion. I wolde that ye all spake with tunges, but rather that ye prophecied. For greater is he that prophecieth, then he that speaketh wt tūges: excepte he also expounde it, that the congregacion maye haue edifienge. But now brethren yf I come vnto you, and speake with tunges, what shal I profet you, excepte I speake vnto you ether by reuelacion or by knowlege, or by prophecienge, or by doctryne?

B Likewyse is it also in ỳ thinges that geue sounde, and yet lyue not: whether it be a pype or an harpe, excepte they geue distincte soundes from them, how shal it be knowne what is pyped or harped? And yf the trōpe geue an vncertayne sounde, who wil prepare him selfe to the battayll? Euen so ye like wyse, whan ye speake with tunges, excepte ye speake playne wordes, how shal it be knowne what is spokē? for ye shal but speake in ỳ ayre. So many kyndes of voyces are in the worlde, and none of them is without significacion. Yf I knowe not now what ỳ voyce meaneth, I shalbe an aleaunt vnto him that speaketh: & he that speaketh, shalbe an aleaūt vnto me. Euē so ye (for so moch as ye couet spirituall giftes (seke ỳ ye maye haue plentye to the edifienge of the congregacion. Wherfore let him that speaketh wt tunges, praye, that he maye interprete also. Yf I praye with tunges, my sprete prayeth, but my vnderstōdinge bryngeth no man frute. How shal it be then? Namely thus: I wil praye with ỳ sprete, and wil praye with the vnderstōdinge also: I wil synge psalmes in the sprete, and wil synge spalmes with ỳ vnderstondinge also.

But whan thou geuest thankes with ỳ sprete, how shal he that occupieth therowme of the vnlearned, saye Amē at thy geuynge of thankes, seynge he knoweth not what thou sayest? Thou geuest well thankes, but the other is not edifyed. I thanke my God, that I speake with tunges more then ye all. Yet had I leuer in the cōgregacion to speake fyue wordes with my vnderstondinge ỳ I maye enfourme other also, rather then ten thousande wordes with tunges. * Brethren be not children in vnderstondinge, howbeit as concerninge maliciousnes be children, but in vnderstondinge be parfecte. In the lawe it is wrytten: With other tunges and with other lippes wyl I speake vnto this people, and yet shal they not so heare me, sayeth the LORDE. Therfore are tunges for a token, not to thē that beleue, but to them that beleue not. Contrary wyse, prophecienge, not to them that beleue not, but to them which beleue.

Yf the whole cōgregacion now came together into one place, & spake all with tunges, and there came in they that are vnlearned, or they which beleue not, shulde they not saye, that ye were out of youre wyttes? But yff all prophecied, and there came in one ỳ beleueth not, or one vnlerned, he shulde be rebuked of them all, and iudged of all, and so shulde the secrete of his hert be opened, and so shulde he fall downe vpon his face, worshippinge God, and knowleginge, that of a trueth God is in you. How is it then brethren? Whan ye come together, every one hath a psalme, hath doctryne, hath a tunge, hath a reuelacion, hath an interpretacion.

Let all be done to edifyenge. Yf eny mā speake with tunges, let him do it him selfe beynge the seconde, or at the most him selfe beynge ye thirde, and one after another, and let one interprete it. But yf there be not an interpreter, then let him kepe sylence in the congregacion, howbeit let him speake to himselfe and to God. As for the prophetes, let two or three speake * and let the other iudge. But yf eny reuelacion be made vnto another that sytteth, then let the first holde his peace. a

Ye maye all prophecye one after another that they all maye lerne, and that all maye haue comforte. And the spretes of the prophetes are subiecte vnto the prophetes. For God is not a God off discension, * but off peace, like as in all congregacions off the sayntes. * Let youre wyues kepe sylence in the cōgregacion, for it shal not be permyted vnto thē to speake, but to be vnder obedience, * as ye lawe sayeth also. But yf they will lerne eny thinge, let them axe their husbādes at home. For it becommeth not wemē to speake in the congregacion. Or spronge the worde of God from amonge you? Or is it come vnto you onely? Yf eny man thynke himselfe to be a prophet, or spirituall, let him knowe what I wryte vnto you, for they are the commaundementes of the LORDE. But yf eny man be ignoraunt, let him be ignoraunt. Wherfore brethren, couet to prophecye, and forbyd not to speake with tunges. Let all thinges be done honestly and in order. a b b

The XV. Chapter.

I Declare vnto you brethren, the Gospell that I haue preached vnto you (which ye haue also accepted, and in the which ye stōde, by the which also ye are saued) after what maner I preached it vnto you, yf ye haue kepte it, excepte ye haue beleued in vayne. For first of all I delyuered vnto you that which I also receaued, how that Christ dyed for oure synnes acordinge to the scriptures, and that he was buried, and that he rose agayne ye thirde daye acordinge to the scriptures, and that he was sene of Cephas, then of the twolue: after that was he sene of mo then fyue hundreth brethren at once, wherof there are yet many alyue, but some are fallen aslepe. Afterwarde was he sene of James, then of all the Apostles. Last of all was he sene of me also, as of one borne out of due tyme. * For I am ye leest of the Apostles, which am not worthy to be called an Apostle, * because I persecuted the congregacion of God. But by the grace of God I am that I am. And his grace in me hath not bene vayne, but I haue laboured more then they all: howbeit not I but the grace of God which is wt me. Now whether it be I or they, thus haue we preached, and thus haue ye beleued. b b B

But yf Christ be preached, that he is rysen from the deed, how saye then some amōge you, that there is no resurreccion of the deed? Yf there be no resurrecciō of the deed, then is Christ not rysen. Yf Christ be not rysen, then is oure preachinge in vayne, and youre faith is also in vayne: yee and we are founde false witnesses of God, because we haue testified agaynst God, that he hath raysed vp Christ, whom he hath not raysed vp, yf the deed rise not agayne. For yf the deed rise not agayne, thē is Christ also not rysen agayne. But yf Christ be not rysen agayne, then is youre faith in vayne, and ye are yet in youre synnes: they also that are fallē aslepe in Christ, are perished. Yf in this life onely we hope on Christ, then are we of all men the most miserable.

But now is Christ rysen from the deed, and is become * ye first frutes of them that slepe. For by one man commeth death, and by one man the resurreccion of the deed. For as they all dye in Adam, so shal they all be made alyue in Christ, but euery one in his order. The first is Christ, then they that belōge vnto Christ, whan he commeth. Then the ende, whā he shal delyuer vp the kyngdome vnto God the father, whan he shal put downe all rule, and all superiorite, & power. * For he must raygne, tyll he haue put all his enemies vnder his fete. The laste enemye that shal be destroyed, is death, for he hath put all thinges vnder his fete. But whā he sayeth, that all thinges are put vnder him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which put all thinges vnder him. Whan all thinges shalbe subdued vnto him, then shal the sonne himselfe also be subiecte vnto him, which put all thinges vnder him, that God maye be all in all. C Col.1.b Psal.109.a Heb.2.b

Or els what do they which are baptised ouer ye deed, yf the deed rise not at all? Why are they then baptysed ouer the deed? And why stonde we in ioperdy euery houre? By oure reioysinge which I haue in Christ Jesu ō LORDE, I dye daylie. That I haue foughte with beestes at Ephesus after ye maner of men, what helpeth it me, yf the deed rise not agayne? * Let vs eate and drynke, for tomorow we shal dye. Be not ye disceaued. D Esa.22.b Sap.2.a

Euell ſpeakinges corruppe good maners. Awake righte vp, and ſynne not: for ſome haue not ỳ knowlege of God. This I ſaye to youre ſhame.

But ſome man mighte ſaye: How ſhal the deed aryſe? And with what maner off

¶ All fleßhe is not one maner of fleßhe, but there is one maner fleßhe of men, another of beaſtes, another of fißhes, another of byrdes. And there are heauenly bodies, and there are earthy bodies: but the heauenly haue one glory, and ỳ earthy another. The Sonne hath one clearnes, the Moone hath another clearneſſe, and the ſtarres haue another clearneſſe, for one ſtarre excelleth another in clearneſſe. ¶ Euen ſo the reſurreccion of the deed. It is ſowne in corrupcion, and ſhal ryſe in vncorrupcion: It is ſowne in diſhonoure, & ſhal ryſe in glory: It is ſowne in weakneſſe, and ſhal ryſe in power: It is ſowne a naturall body, & ſhal ryſe a ſpirituall body.

Yf there be a naturall body, there is a ſpi-

Howbeit the ſpirituall body is not the firſt, but ỳ naturall, and then the ſpirituall. The firſt man is of the earth, earthy: ỳ ſeconde mã is frõ heauẽ, heauẽly. As the earthy is, ſoch are they alſo that are earthy: and as ỳ heauenly is, ſoch are they alſo ỳ are heauenly. And as we haue borne the ymage of the earthy, ſo ſhal we beare the ymage of the heauenly alſo. This I ſaye brethren, that fleſh & blode can not inheret ỳ kyngdome of God: nether ſhal corrupcion inheret vncorrupcion.

The XVI. Chapter.

COncernynge the * gadderynge that is made for the ſayntes, as I haue ordeyned in the congregacions of Galacia, euen ſo do ye alſo. Vpon ſome Sabbath daye let euery one of you put aſide by him ſelfe, and laye vp what ſo euer he thinketh mete, that the collecciõ be not to gather whan I come. Whan I am come, whom ſo euer ye ſhal alowe by youre letters, thẽ wyll I ſende to bringe youre liberalite vnto Ieruſalem. Nevertheles yf it be mete that I go thither alſo, they ſhal go with me. * But I wil come vnto you, whan I go thorow Macedonia: for thorow Macedonia wyl I take my iourney. With you peraduẽture wil I abyde, or els wynter, that ye maye bringe me on my waye, whither ſo euer I go.

I wyl not ſe you now in my paſſage, for I hope to abyde a whyle with you, yf the LORDE ſhal ſuffre me. * But I wil tary at Epheſus vntyll whitſontyde. For a greate and frutefull dore is opened vnto me, and there are many aduerſaries. Yf Timotheus come, ſe that he be without feare with you, for he worketh ỳ worke of the LORDE as I do. Let no man therfore deſpyſe him, but conuaye him forth in peace, that he maye come vnto me, for I loke for him with the brethren.

As for brother Apollo, be ye ſure, that I greatly deſyred him to come vnto you with the brethrẽ. And his mynde was not at all to come at this tyme, but he wyl come whã he hath opportunyte. Watch ye, ſtonde faſt in the faith, quyte you like men, and be ſtronge: let all youre thinges be done in loue.

Knowe them therfore that are ſoch.

The congregacions of Aſia ſalute you.

The first Chapter.

PAul an Apostle of Jesu Christ, by the will of God, and brother Timothens. Vnto the congregacion of God which is at Corinthus, with all the sayntes which are in all Achaia. A

*Grace be with you, and peace frō God oure father, and from the LORDE Jesus Christ. Gal.1.a Ephe.1.a 1.Pet.1.a

Blessed be God the father of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, the father of mercy and of God of all comforte, which comforteth vs in all oure trouble: in so moch yͭ we are able to comforte them that are in eny maner of trouble, with the same comforte wherwith we oure selues are comforted of God. For as the afflictiōs of Christ are plenteous in vs, euen so is ō cōsolacion plenteous by Christ. But whether we haue trouble or comforte, it is done for youre welth. Yf it be trouble, it is done for youre cōforte and health, which health sheweth hir power, in that ye suffre the same afflictions which we suffre. Yf it be comforte, it is done also for youre comforte and health. Therfore is oure hope fast for you, in as moch as we knowe, that, like as ye are partakers of the afflictiōs, so shal ye be partakers also of the consolacion.

Brethren we wolde not haue you ignoraunt of oure trouble, *which happened vnto vs in Asia, for we were greued out off measure passynge strength, so that we euen dispared of life, and had concluded in oure selues yͭ we must nedes dye. But this was done, because we shulde not put oure trust B Act.19.c

in oure selues, but in God, which rayseth vp the deed to life agayne: which delyuered vs from so greate a death, and yet delyuereth daylie, On whom we trust, that he wil delyuer vs here after also, by the helpe of youre 2.Cor.4.c prayer for vs * that on oure behalfe many thankes maye be geuen by many persomes, for the gifte that is geuen vs.

For oure reioysinge is this, euen the testimony of oure conscience, that in synglenes & godly pureneſſe, not in fleshlye wyßdome, but in the grace of God, we haue had oure conuersacion in the worlde, but most of all with you. For we wryte nothinge els vnto you, then that ye rede and also knowe. Yee & I trust that ye shal fynde vs vnto the ende, euen as ye haue founde vs partly.

C For we are youre reioysinge, euē as ye also are oure * reioysinge in ỹ daye of the LORDE Jesus. And in this confidence was I mynded the other tyme to come vnto you (that ye mighte haue yet another pleasure
2.Co.16.a more) & to passe by you in to Macedonia, & to come againe out of Macedonia vnto you & to be led forth to Jewrye warde of you.

Ephe.4.c and hath anoynted vs, and sealed vs, and geuen the ernest of the sprete in oure hertes.

The II. Chapter.

A BVt I call God to recorde vnto my Rom.9.a soule, that to fauoure you withall I came not agayne vnto Corinthum.
1.Pet.5.a Not that we are * lordes ouer youre faith, but we are helpers of youre ioye, for ye stonde in faith. But I determyned this wt my selfe, that I wolde not come agayne to you in heuynes. For yf I make you sory, who is it that shal make me glad, but the same which is made sory by me? And the same haue I wrytten vnto you, lest whā I come, I shulde take heuynes of them, of whom I oughte to reioyse: for somoch as I haue this confidence in you all, that my ioye is the ioye of you all. For in greate trouble and anguysh of hert wrote I vnto you with many teares: not ỹ ye shulde be sory, but that ye mighte perceaue the loue, which I haue most specially vnto you.

But yf eny man haue caused sorowe, the same hath not made me sory, but parely, lest I shulde greue you all. It is sufficient, that * the same man is so rebuked of many, so that from hence forth ye oughte the more to forgeue him and to comforte him, lest he be swalowed vp in ouer moch heuynesse. Wherfore I exhorte you, that ye shewe loue vpō him. For therfore dyd I wryte vnto you also, that I mighte knowe the profe of you, whether ye were obediēt in all thinges. But loke vnto whō ye forgeue eny thinge, I forgeue hī also. For I also, yf I forgeue ought vnto eny mā, that forgeue I for youre sakes in the rowme of Christ, lest we shulde be preuented of Sathan. For his thoughtes are not vnknowne vnto vs.

But whā I came to * Troada to preach ỹ Gospell of Christ (and a dore was opened vnto me in ỹ LODRE) I had no rest in my sprete, because I founde not Titus my brother: but I toke my leue of them, and went awaye in to Macedonia. Yet thankes be vnto God, which allwaye geueth vs the victory in Christ, * and openeth ỹ sauoure of his knowlege by vs in euery place. For we are vnto God the good sauoure of Christ, both amonge thē ỹ are saued, & amonge thēm ỹ perishe. * To these, ỹ sauoure of death vnto death: but vnto ỹ other, the sauoure of life vnto life. And who is mete therto? For we are not as many are, which choppe & chaunge wt the worde of God, but euē out of pureneſſe, and out of God, in ỹ sighte of God, so speake we in Christ.

The III. Chapter.

BEgynne we then agayne to prayse ō selues? Or nede we (as some other) of pistles of commēdacion vnto you or letters of commēdacion from you? Ye are oure epistle wrytten in oure hertes: which is vnderstonde and red of all mē, in that ye are knowne, how that ye are ỹ epistle of Christ, mynistred by vs, and wryttē, not with ynke, but with the sprete of the lyuynge God: not in tables of stone, * but in fleshy tables of the hert. Soch trust haue we thorow Christ to God warde, not that we are sufficient of oure selues to thynke eny thinge, as of oure selues, * but oure ableneſſe commeth of God, which hath made vs able, to be * mynisters of the new Testament: not of the letter, but of the sprete. For the letter kylleth, but the sprete geueth life.

But yf the mynistracion ỹ kylleth thy-row the letter, and was figured in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel might not beholde the face of Moses, for the clearnesse of his countenaunce, (which glory nevertheles is done awaye) how shal not the mynistracion of the spirite be moch more glorious? For yf the office that preacheth damnacion be glorious, moch more doth the office that preacheth righteousnes exceade in glory. For the other parte that was glorified is not hinge glorified in respecte of this exceadinge glory. For yf that which is done awaye, be glorious, moch more shal that which remayneth, be glorious.

Seynge then that we have soch trust, we use greate boldnesse, and do not as Moses, which put a vayle before his face, so that the children of Israel might not se the ende of it, that is done awaye. But their myndes are blynded. For vnto this daye remayneth the same coveringe vntake awaye in the olde Testament, whan they rede it, which in Christ is put awaye. But even vnto this daye whan moses is red, the vayle hangeth before their hertes. Nevertheles whan they turne to the LORDE, the vayle shalbe taken awaye. For the LORDE is a sprete: and where the sprete of the LORDE is, there is libertye. But now the glory of the LORDE apeareth in vs all with open face, and we are chaunged into the same ymage, from one clearnes to another, even as of the sprete of the LORDE.

The iiij. Chapter.

Therfore seynge we have soch an office (even as mercy is come vpon vs) we faynte not, but cast from vs the dokes of vnhonestye, and walke not in craftines: nether corruppe we the worde of God but open the trueth, and reporte oure selves to every mans conscyence in the sighte of God.

Yf oure Gospell be yet hyd, it is hyd in them that are lost: amonge whom the God of this worlde hath blynded the myndes of them which beleve not, that the lighte of the Gospell of the glory of Christ (which is the ymage of God) shulde not shyne vnto them. For we preach not oure selves, but Jesus Christ to be the LORDE, and oure selves youre servauntes for Jesus sake.

For God that commaunded the light to shyne out of darcknesse, hath geven a clare shyne in oure hertes, that by vs the light of the knowlege of the glory of God might come forth, in the face of Jesus Christ.

But this treasure have we in earthen vessels, that the power which excelleth might be of God, and not of vs. We are troubled on every syde, yet are we not without shifte. We are in pouertie, but not vtterly without somwhat. We are persecuted, but we are not forsaken. We are oppressed, nevertheles we perish not. We allwayes beare aboute in oure body the dyenge of the LORDE Jesus that the life also of the LORDE Jesus might appeare in oure body. For we which lyve, are allwayes delyvered vnto death for Jesus sake, that the life also of Jesus might appeare in oure mortall flesh. Gal.6.b Rom.8.

Therfore is death now mightie in vs, but life in you. But seynge that we have the same sprete of faith (acordinge as it is wryten: I beleved, and therfore have I spoke.) we also beleve, and therfore we speake, for we knowe that he, which raysed vp the LORDE Jesus, shal rayse vs vp also by the meanes of Jesus, and shal set vs with you. For all thinges do I for youre sakes, that the plenteous grace by the thankesgevynge of many, maye redounde to the prayse of God. Therfore are we not weery, but though the outwarde man be corrupte, yet the inwarde is renewed daye by daye. For oure trouble, which is but temporall and lighte, worketh an exceadinge and an eternall weighte of glorye vnto vs, which loke not on the thinges that are sene, but on them which are not sene. For the thinges which are sene, are temporall: but the thinges that are not sene, are eternall. Pſal.115.i 2.Cor.1.b Pſal.19.a Ro.8.c

The v. Chapter.

We knowe surely, that yf oure earthy house of this dwellynge were destroyed, we have a buyldynge ordeyned of God, an house not made with handes, but euerlastynge in heaven. And in the same sighe we also after oure masion, which is from heaven: and longe to be clothed therwith, so yet, yf that we be founde clothed, and not naked. For as longe as we are in this tabernacle, we sighe and are greved, for we had rather not be vnclothed, but to be clothed vpon, that mortalite might be swalowed vp of life. But he that hath ordeyned vs for this, is God, which hath geven vs the earnest of the sprete. Therfore are we allwaye of good cheare, and knowe, that as longe as we dwell here in the body, we are not at home with the LORDE: for we walke in faith, and se him not. Nevertheles we are of good comforte, and had lever to be absent from the body, and to be at home with the LORDE. A 2.Cor.4.b Rom.8.c Apoc.16.c Rom.8.b 2.Cor.1.c

Seynge then that we knowe, how that the LORDE is to be feared, we fare fayre with men, but we are knowne well ynough vnto God: I trust also, that we are knowne in youre consciences. We prayse not oure selues agayne vnto you, but geue you an occasion to reioyse of vs, ỹ ye maye haue to reioyse agaynst them, which reioyse after the outwarde appearaunce, and not after the hert. For yf we do to moch, we do it vnto God: yf we kepe measure, we do it for youre sakes. For the loue of Christ constrayneth vs, in as moch as we thus iudge, that yf one be deed for all, selues as the * mynisters of God: in moch pacience, in troubles, in necessities, in anguysshes, in strypes, in presonmentes, in vprores, in laboures, in watchinges, in fastynges, in pureneße, in knowlege, in longe sufferynge, in kyndnesse, in the holy goost, in lone vnfayned, in the worde of the trueth, in the power of God, by the armoure of righteousnes on the righte hande and on the lefte, by honoure and dishonoure, by euell reporte and good reporte: as disceauers, & yet true: B as vnknowne, and yet knowne: as dyenge, and beholde, we lyue: as chastened, and not kylled: as sorowynge, and yet all waye mery: as poore, & yet make many riche: as hauynge nothinge, & yet possessynge all thinges.

O ye Corinthians, oure mouth is open vnto you, oure hert is made large. Ye are in no straytnesse on oure behalfe: but where as ye are in straytnesse, that do ye of youre owne hertely meanynge. I speake to you, as to childrē, that haue like reward with vs. Set youre selues therfore at large.

C Beare not a straunge yock with the vn beleuers. For what fellishippe hath righteousnes with vnrighteousnes? What company hath lighte w̄ darknesse? How agreeth Christ with Belial? Or what parte hath the beleuer with the infydele? How acordeth ỹ tēple of God with ymages? Ye are the temple of the lyuynge God, as sayeth God: I wyl dwell in them, and walke in them, and wyl be their God, & they shalbe my people. Wherfore come out from amōge them, and separate youre selues * (sayeth the LORDE) and touche no vncleane thinge, so wyl I receaue you, & be youre father, & ye shalbe my sonnes and doughters, sayeth ỹ Allmightie LORDE.

The VII. Chapter.

SEynge now that we haue soch promyses (dearly beloued) let vs cleanse oure selues from all fylthynes of the flesh and sprete, and growe vp to full holynes in ỹ feare of God. Understōde vs righte. We haue hurte no mā, we haue corrupte no man, we haue defrauded no man. I speake not this to cōdemne you, for I haue shewed you before, that ye are in oure hertes, to dye and to lyue w̄ you. I am very bolde towarde you, I make moch booste of you, I am filled with comforte, I am exceadynge ioyous in all oure tribulacion. * For whan we were come into Macedonia, oure flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on euery syde: outwarde was fightinge, inwarde was feare. Neuertheles God that comforteth the abiecte, comforted vs by the cōmynge of Titus.

Not onely by his commynge, but also by the cōsolacion wherwith he was cōforted of you, whan he tolde vs yo' desyre, youre mopynge, yō feruēt mynde for me, so ỳ I now reioyse ỳ more. For where as I made you sory by the letter, it repenteth me not, though I dyd repēte. For I se, that the same epistle made you sory (though it were but for a ceason). But now I reioyce, not that ye were sory, but that ye were sory to repentaunce. For ye sorowed godly, so that in nothinge ye were hurte by vs. For godly sorowe causeth repentaunce vnto saluacion, not to be repented of: * but worldly sorowe causeth death. Beholde, where as ye haue had godly sorowe, what diligence hath it wrought in you: yee a sufficiet answere, displeasure, feare, desyre, a feruēt mynde, punyshment. For in all poyntes ye haue shewed youre selues, that ye are cleare in that matter.

C Wherfore though I wrote vnto you, yet is it not done for his cause that dyd hurte, neither for his cause that was hurte, but that youre diligence (which ye haue for vs in the sighte of God) mighte be manifest vnto you. Therfore are we comforted, because ye are comforted: but exceadingly the more ioyed we, for the ioye of Titus, because his spirite was refreshed of you all. I am therfore not now ashamed, though I boasted my selfe vnto him of you: but like as all is true that I haue spokē vnto you, euen so is oure boastinge vnto Titus founde true also. And his inwarde affeccion is more abundaunt towarde you, whan he remembreth the obedience of you all, how ye receaued him with feare and trēblynge. I reioyse, that I maye be bolde ouer you in all thinges.

The VIII. Chapter.

A I Do you to wit (brethren) the grace of God, which is geuē in the congregacions of Macedonia. For their reioysinge was most abundaunt, whan they were tryed by moch trouble: & though they were exceadinge poore, yet haue they geuē exceadinge richely, and that in syngleneſſe. For to their power (I beare recorde) yee and beyonde their power, they were wyllinge of their awne acorde, and prayed vs with greate instaūce, that we wolde receaue their benefite and felliſhippe of the * hādreachinge that is done for the sayntes: And not as we loked for, but gaue ouer them selues first to the LORDE, and afterwarde vnto vs by ỳ wyl of God, so that we coulde not but desyre Titus, that like as he had begonne afore he wolde euen so accomplish the same benivolence amonge you. Now as ye are riche in all poyntes, in faith and in worde, and in knowlege, and in all diligence, and in youre loue towarde vs, euen so se that ye be plenteous also in this benyuolēce. This I saye not as commaūdynge, but seynge, other are so diligent, I proue youre loue also, whether it be perfecte or no. For ye knowe the liberalite of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, which though he be riche, yet for youre sakes he became poore, ỳ ye thorow his powerte mighte be made riche.

And my councell herin I geue, for this B is profitable for you, which haue begonne a yeare a goo, not onely to do, but also to wyll. But now perfourme the dede also, that like as there is a ready mynde to wil, there maye be a ready mynde also to perfourme the dede * of that which ye haue. * For yf there be a wyllinge mynde, it is accepted acordinge to that a man hath, not acordinge to that he hath not. This is not done to the intent, that other shulde haue ease, and ye cōbraunce, but that it be a lyke. Let youre abundaunce sucker their lacke in this tyme off derth; that their abundaunce also herafter maye supplee youre lacke, that there maye be equalite. As it is wrytten: He ỳ gathered moch, had not the more: and he that gathered litle, wanted nothinge. Thākes be vnto God, which put in the hert of Titus, the same diligence towarde you. For he accepted the request in dede, yee he was rather so well wyllynge, that of his awne acorde, he came vnto you.

We haue sent with him that brother, C whose prayse is in the Gospell thorow out all the congregacions. Not onely that, but he is chosen also of the congregacions, to be a felowe with vs in oure iourney, for this benyuolence that is mynistred by vs vnto the prayse of the LORDE, and to stere vp youre prompte mynde, and to bewarre, lest eny mā reporte euell of vs because of this plenteousnes, which is mynistred by vs: * and therfore make we prouision for honest thinges, not onely before the LORDE, but also before men.

We haue sent with them also a brother of oures, whom we haue oft proued diligēt in many thinges, but now moch more diligent. And this haue we done in greate hope towarde you, whether it be for Titus sake (which is my felowe and helper amonge you) or for oure brethrē (which are Apostles of the cōgregacions, & the prayse of Christ.) Shewe now the prose off youre loue and off oure boastinge of you, vnto these, and openly in the sighte of the congregacions.

A Of the * handreachinge vnto ỹ sayntes, it is no nede for me to wryte vnto you: for I knowe youre redyneſſe of mynde, wherof I boast my ſelfe amonge them of Macedonia, and ſaye: Achaia was ready a yeare agoo. And youre feruentneſſe hath prouoked many. Neuertheles yet haue we ſent theſe brethren, leſt oure reioyſinge ouer you ſhulde be in vayne in this behalfe, that ye mighte be ready, as I haue reported of you: leſt whan they of Macedonia come with me, and fynde you vnprepared, we (I wyl not ſaye ye) ſhulde be aſhamed in this preſumpcion of boostinge.

B Wherfore I thoughte it neceſſary to exhorte the brethren, to come before hande vnto you, for to prepare this bleſſynge promyſed afore, that it mighte be ready, ſo that it be a bleſſynge, and not a defraudynge. This I thynke: that * he which ſoweth litle, ſhal reape litle alſo: and he ỹ ſoweth plenteouſly, ſhal likewyſe reape plenteouſly, euery one accordynge as he hath purpoſed in his hert, not grudgingly, or of compulſion. * For God loueth a chearfull geuer. God is able to make you riche in all grace, ỹ ye in all thinges haunge ſufficiet to the vttemoſt, maye be riche to all maner of good workes. As it is wrytte: He hath ſparſed abrode & geue to ỹ poore, his righteouſnes remayneth for euer.

C He that geueth ſede vnto the ſower, ſhal mynyſtre bred alſo for fode, and ſhal multiplye youre ſede, and increaſe the frutes of yo righteouſnes, that in all thinges ye maye be made riche vnto all ſingleneſſe, which cauſeth thorow vs, thankeſgeuynge vnto God. For the hãdreachinge of this collecciõ not onely ſuppleeth the nede off the ſayntes, but alſo is abũdaunt herin, that for this laudable mynyſtracion many mighte geue thãkes vnto God, and prayſe God for yo obedient profeſſynge of the Goſpell of Chriſt, & for yo ſyngleneſſe in diſtributynge vnto thẽ, and to all men, and in their prayer for you, which longe after you, for the abundaunt grace of God in you. Thankes be vnto God for his vnoutſpeakeable gifte.

The X. Chapter.

A I Paul my ſelfe beſeke you by the mekeneſſe and ſofteneſſe off Chriſt, which when I am preſent amonge you, am of ſmall reputacion, but am bolde towarde you beynge abſent. I beſeke you that I nede not be bolde whan I am preſent, & to vſe ỹ boldneſſe wherwith I am ſuppoſed to be bolde, agaynſt ſome, which repute vs as though we walked after ỹ fleſh: for though we walke in the fleſh, yet fighte we not after a fleſhly maner. For the * wapens of oure warre are not fleſhly, but mightie before God to caſt downe ſtrõge holdes, wherwith we ouerthrowe ymaginacions, & euery hye thinge ỹ exalteth it ſelfe agaynſt the knowlege of God, and brynge in to captiuyte all vnderſtondinge to the obedience of Chriſt, & are ready to take vengeaunce on all diſobedience, whan youre obediẽce is fulfylled. Loke ye on thinges after ỹ vtter appearaũce:

B Yf eny man truſt of him ſelfe ỹ he is Chriſtes, let him thinke this alſo by himſelfe, ỹ like as he is Chriſtes, euẽ ſo are we Chriſtes alſo. And though I ſhulde boast my ſelfe somwhat more of oure auctorite * which ỹ LORDE hath geuẽ vs to edifye and not to deſtroye, it ſhulde not be to my ſhame. This I ſaye, leſt I ſhulde ſeme, as though I wente aboute to make you afrayed with letters. For the piſtles (ſaye they) are ſore and ſtronge, but his bodely preſence is weake, and his ſpeache rude. Let him ỹ is ſoche, thinke on this wyſe, that as we are in worde by letters whẽ we are abſente, ſoch are we alſo in dede whan we are preſent. For we darre not reken or compare oure ſelues, vnto ſome that prayſe them ſelues: Neuertheles whyle they meaſure them ſelues by them ſelues, and holde onely of them ſelues, they vnderſtonde not right.

C Howbeit we wil not boaſt o ſelues aboue meaſure, but onely accordinge to the meaſure of the rule, wherwith God hath diſtributed vnto vs the meaſure to reach euen vnto you. For we ſtretche not o ſelues to farre as though we had not reached vnto you. For euen vnto you haue we come with the Goſpell of Chriſt, and boaſt not oure ſelues out of meaſure in other mens laboures: Yee and we hope whan youre faith is increaſed in you, that we wil come farther (accordinge to oure meaſure) and preach the Goſpell vnto them that dwell beyonde you, and not tore ioyſe in that, which is prepared with another mans meaſure.

The XI. Chapter.

LEt him that reioyſeth, reioyſe in the LORDE: for he ỹ * prayſeth him ſelfe, is not alowed, but he whõ ỹ LORDE prayſeth. Wolde God ye coulde ſuffre me a litle in my foloſhnes, yet do ye forbeare me. For I am gelous ouer you wt godlyge louſy. For I haue maried you vnto one mã, to brynge a chaſte virgin vnto Chriſt. But I feare, leſt * as ỹ ſerpẽt begyled Eue wt his ſutteltie, euẽ ſo yo wyttes ſhulde be corrup-

te from the synglenesse that is in Christ. For yf he that commeth vnto you, preach another Jesus, whom we haue not preached, or yf ye receaue another spirite, ẏ ye haue not receaued, or another Gospell which ye haue not accepted, ye might right well haue bene cõtent. For I suppose that I am no lesse thẽ the hye Apostles are. And though I be rude in speakynge, yet am I not rude in knowlege. Howbeit amõge you I am knowne to the vttemost. Or dyd I synne therin because I submytted my selfe, that ye mighte be exalted?

B For I preached vnto you the Gospell of God * frely, and robbed other cõgregacions, and toke wages of thẽ, to preach vnto you. * And whan I was present with you, and had nede, I was greuous to no man: * for ẏ which was lackynge vnto me, the brethren which came fro Macedonia, suppleed. And in all thinges I kepte myselfe so, ẏ I shulde not be greuous to you, & so wyl I kepe my selfe. As surely as the trueth of Christ is in me, this reioysinge shal not be taken frome in the regions of Achaia. Wherfore? because I shulde not loue you? God knoweth. Neuertheles what I do and wyl do, that do I to cut awaye occasion, from thẽ which seke occasion, that they mighte boast thẽ selues to be like vnto vs. For soch false Apostles & disceatfull workers fashion them selues like vnto the Apostles of Christ. And that is no marueil: for Sathan himselfe is chaunged into ẏ fashion of an angell of light. Therfore is it no greate thinge, though his mynisters fashion them selues as though they were the preachers of righteousnes, * whose ende shalbe accordinge to their dedes.

C I saye agayne, lest eny man thynke that I am folish: or els take me euen now as a fole, ẏ I maye boast my selfe a litle also. That I speake now, that speake I not after the LORDE, but as it were in folishnes, whyle we are now come to boastinge: Seynge that many boaste them selues after ẏ flesh, I wil boast my selfe also. For ye suffre foles gladly, in so moch as ye youre selues are wyse. For ye suffre euen yf a man bringe you in to bondage, yf a man put you to dishonesty, yf a man take ought frõ you, yf a man exalte himselfe ouer you, yf a man smyte you on the face. I speake concernynge rebuke, as though we were weake.

Wherin so euer now eny man darre be bolde (I speake folishly) therin darre I be bolde also. They are Hebrues, so am I. They are Israelites, euen so am I. They are the sede of Abraham, so am I. They are the mynisters of Christ (I speake as a fole) I am more: in laboures more abũdaunt, in strypes aboue measure, in presõmentes more plenteously, in death oft. * Of the Jewes receaued I fyue tymes fortye strypes, one lesse. * Thryse was I beaten with roddes. * I was once stoned, * I suffred thryse shypwracke: nighte and daye haue I bene in the depe of the see: I haue oft iourneyed: I haue bene oft in parels of waters, in parels amonge murthurers, in parels amonge the Jewes, in parels amonge the Heythen, in parels in cities, in parels in the wylderners, in parels vpon the See, in parels amonge false brethrẽ, in laboure & trauayle, in moch watchinges, in honger and thyrst, in moch fastinges in colde and nakednesse: Besyde those thynges which are outwarde, namely my daylie combraunce, my daylie care for all cõgregacions. * Who is weake, and I be not weake? Who is offended, & I burne not? Yf I must nedes make my boast, I wil boast my selfe of myne infirmyte. God ẏ father of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, which is blessed for euer, knoweth that I lye not. * At Damascon the gouernoure of ẏ people vnder kynge Aretas, kepte ẏ cite of the Damascenes, & wolde haue taken me. and at a wyndowe was I let downe in a basket thorow the wall, & so escaped his handes.

The XII. Chapter.

A IT profiteth me nothinge (no doute) to boaste. Neuertheles I wil come to ẏ visions and reuelacions off the LORDE. I knowe a man in Christ aboue fourtene yeares a go (whether he was in ẏ body, I can not tell: or whether he was out of the body, I can not tell, God knoweth.) the same was taken vp in to the thirde heauen: and I knowe the same man (whether he was in ẏ body or out of the body, I can not tell, God knoweth) how that he was take vp in to Paradise, and herde wordes not to be spoken, which no man can vtter. Here of will I boast, but of my selfe wil I make no boast, excepte it be of myne infirmyties. And though I wolde boast my self, I dyd not foolishly, for I wolde saye the trueth. But I refrayne my selfe, lest eny mã shulde thinke of me aboue ẏ he seyth in me, or heareth of me. * And lest I shulde exalte my selfe out of measure becaus of the hye reuelacions, there is a warnynge geuen vnto my flesh, euen ẏ messaunger of Satan, to buffet me, that I shulde not exalte my selfe out off measure: for ẏ which I besoughte the LOR

DE thryse, that it mighte departe fro me. And he sayde vnto me: My grace is sufficiēt for the. For my strength is made perfecte thorow weaknes. Very glad therfore wil I reioyse in my weaknesses, that the strength of Christ maye dwell in me.

B Therfore am I contente in infirmities, in rebukes, in necessities, in persecucions, in anguyshes for Christes sake: for whā I am weake, thē am I stroge. I am become a fole ī boastinge my selfe: ye haue cōpelled me. Cor.9.a For I oughte to be cōmended of you, * in so moch as I am in nothinge inferior to ỹ hye Apostles. Though I be nothinge, yet are ỹ tokens of an Apostle wrought amōge you, with all pacīēce, with signes, & with wōders & with mightie dedes. For what is it, wherin ye are inferiours to the other congregacions: excepte it be ỹ I haue not bene greuous vnto you. Forgeue me this wrōge. Behold, I am ready the thirde tyme to come vnto you, and wyl not be chargeable vnto Ca.12.c you. * For I seke not youres, but you. For ỹ childrē ought not to gather treasure for the elders, but the elders for the children. I wil very gladly bestowe, and wyl be bestowed for youre soules: though ỹ more I loue you, the lesse am I loued agayne.

C But let it be so that I greued you not, nevertheles for so moch as I was craftye, I toke you wt gyle. Haue I defrauded you by eny of thē, whō I sent vnto you? I desyred Titus, & with him I sent a brother: dyd Titus defraude you? Haue we not walked in one sprete? Wēte we not in like fotesteppes? Agayne, thynke ye ỹ we excuse oure selues? We speake in Christ in the sighte off God. But all this (dearly beloued) is done for yō edifyenge. For I feare, lest whan I come, I shal not fynde you soch as I wolde: and lest ye shal fynde me soch as ye wolde not: lest there be amonge you, debates, envyenges, wrathes, stryvynges, bacbytinges, whysperinges, swellinges, vproures: lest whan I come agayne, God bringe me lowe amōge you & lest I be constrayned to bewayle many of thē ỹ haue synned before, & haue not repented ouer ỹ vnclennesse and whordome, and wantonnes, which they haue cōmytted.

The XIII. Chapter.

A NOw come I the thirde tyme vnto you. * In the mouth of two or thre Deut.19.c witnesses shal euery matter be stablisshed. Mat.18.b I haue tolde you before, & tell you before as present ỹ seconde tyme, & wryte it now beynge absent, vnto thē which in tyme passed haue synned, & to all other: & yf I come agayne, I wil not spare, seynge that ye seke experiēce of him, * which speaketh in me, Rom. euen Christ, which amonge you is not weake, but is mightie amōge you. And though he was crucified in weaknes, yet lyueth he in the power of God. And though we are weake in him, yet lyue we with him in the power of God amonge you.

* Proue youre selues, whether ye are in the B faith, examē youre selues. Or knowe ye not 1.Cor. yō selues, ỹ Jesus Christ is in you? Except ye be cast awayes. But I trust ye knowe, ỹ we are not cast awayes. I desyre before God ỹ ye do no euell: not ỹ we shulde seme comendable, but ỹ ye shulde do ỹ which is good, & let vs be as cast awayes. For we maye do nothinge agaynst ỹ trueth, but for ỹ trueth. We are glad whan we are weake, & ye stronge: & the same also we wysshe for, namely yō perfectnesse. Therfore wryte I these thinges beynge absent, lest whā I am present, I shulde vse sharpnesse, acordinge to the power which the LORDE hath geuē me to edifye, and not to destroye.

Fynally brethren, reioyse, be parfecte, cōforte yō selues, be of one mynde, be peaceable, and the God of loue and peace shalbe with you. Salute one another with an holy kysse. All the sayntes salute you. The grace of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, & the loue of God, and the felloshippe of ỹ holy goost be with you all. Amen.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Galathians.

The first Chapter.

PAul an Apostle (not of men, nor by mā, but by Jesus Christ & by God the father, which raysed him vp frō ẏ deed) & all the brethrē which are wt me. Vnto the cōgregaciōs in Galacia. Grace be with you, and peace frō God the father, and oure LORDE Jesus Christ, which gaue him selfe for oure synnes, that he mighte deliuer vs from this present euel worlde, accordinge to the wyll of God oure father, to whom be prayse for euer and euer. Amen.

I marueil ẏ ye are so soone turned (from him that called you in the grace of Christ) vnto another Gospell: which is nothinge els, but that there be some, which trouble you, and intende to peruerte the Gospell of Christ.

Neuertheles though we oure selues, or an angell from heauē preach vnto you eny other Gospel, thē ẏ which we have preached vnto you, the same be acursed. As we have sayde afore, so saye we now agayne: Yf eny mā preach vnto you eny other thinge, thē ẏ ye have receaued, ẏ same be acursed. Preach I men now or God: Or go I about to please men? Yf I shulde yet please men, I were not the seruaunt of Christ.

But I certifye you brethren, ẏ the Gospell which is preached of me, is not of men. For I nether receaued it ner lerned it of mā, but by the reuelacion of Jesus Christ. For ye have herde of my conuersacion afore tyme in the Jewe shippe, how that beyōde measure I persecuted the cōgregacion of God, and spoyled it, and prevayled in the Jewe shippe aboue many of my companyons in my nacion, & was a moch more feruent mantayner of the tradicions of the fathers.

But whan it pleased God which separated me fro my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace, for to declare his sonne in me, that I shulde preach him thorow the Gospell amonge the Heythen, immediatly I commened not of the matter with flesh and bloude: nether came I to Jerusalem vnto them which were Apostles before me: but wente my wayes in to Arabia, and came agayne to Damascon. Then after thre yeare I came to Jerusalē to se Peter, and abode with him fyftene dayes. As for the other Apostles, I sawe none of them, saue James the LORDES brother. C

The thinges that I wryte vnto you, beholde, God knoweth, I lye not. After that wente I into the coastes of Syria and Celicia: but of face I was vnknowne to ẏ Christen congregacions in Jewrye. Neuertheles they had herde onely, that he that persecuted vs in tyme passed, preacheth now ẏ faith which some tyme he destroyed, and they praysed God in me. 2. Cor. 11. G

The II. Chapter.

THen after fourtene yeares, I wente vp agayne to Jerusalē with Barnabas, and toke Titus with me also. But I wente vp by reuelacion, and commened with thē of ẏ Gospell, which I preach amonge the Heythē: but specially with thē which were in reputacion, lest I shulde runne or had runne in vayne. But Titus which was also with me, was not compelled to be circumcysed, though he was a Greke: and that because of certayne vncommers beynge false brethrē, which came in amōge other, to spye oure oure libertye, which we have in Christ Jesus, that they mighte bringe vs in to bondage: To whom we gaue no rowme, no not for the space of an houre, as concernynge to be broughte in to subiection: ẏ the trueth of the Gospell mighte contynue with you. A Act. 15. a

As for thē that semed to be greate, what they were in tyme passed, it maketh no matter to me. For God loketh not on the outwarde appearaunce of men. Neuertheles they which semed greate, taught me nothinge: but contrary wyse, whan they sawe that the Gospell ouer the vncircumcision was cōmytted vnto me, as ẏ Gospell ouer ẏ circumcision was commytted vnto Peter. (For he ẏ was mighty with Peter to the Apostle- Act. 18. a. Act. 16. a. 1. Cor. 9. c. Act. 10. d. Rom. 2. b. Ephe. 6. a. B shippe ouer the circumcision, the same was mightie with me also amõge the Heythen) they perceaued the grace that was geuen vnto me.

James and Cephas and Jhon, which semed to be pilers, gaue me and Barnabas ỹ righte handes, and agreed with vs, that we shulde preach amonge the Heythẽ, and they amonge the Jewes: onely that we shulde remẽbre the poore, * which thinge also I was Act.11.e 2.Co 9.a diligent to do.

But whã Peter was come to Antioche, I withstode him in ỹ face: for he was worthy to be blamed. For afore there came certayne from James, he ate with the Heythẽ. But whã they were come, he withdrue and separated himselfe, fearinge thẽ which were of the circumcision. And the other Jewes dyssembled with him likewyse, in so moch ỹ Barnabas was brought in to their symulacion also. But whan I sawe that they walked not right after ỹ trueth of the Gospell, I sayde vnto Peter openly before all: Yf thou be ynge a Jewe, lyuest after the maner of the Gentyles, and not as do the Jewes, why causest thou the Gentyles then to lyue as do the Jewes?

C * Though we be Jewes by nature, and Phil.3.a not synners of the Gentyles, yet (in so moch Rom.3.b as we knowe, that a man is not made righteous by the dedes off the lawe, but by the faith on Jesus Christ) we haue beleued also on Jesus Christ, ỹ we might be made righteous by the faith of Christ, and not by the dedes of the lawe, because that by the dedes of the lawe no flesh shal be iustified.

Yf we then which seke to be made righteous by christ, shulde be yet founde synners ỏselues, is not Christ then the mynister of synne? God forbyd. For yf I buylde agayne ỹ which I haue destroyed, then make I myselfe a trespacer. But I thorow the lawe am deed vnto the lawe, that I might lyue vnto God. I am crucified with Christ, yet do I lyue: neuertheles now not I, but Christ lyueth in me. For ỹ life which I now lyue in ỹ flesshe, I lyue in the faith of ỹ sonne of God phe.5.a * which loued me, and gaue himselfe for me. I cast not a waye the grace of God. For yf righteousnes come by the lawe, then dyed Christ in vayne.

The III. Chapter.

A O Ye folishe Galathiãs, who hath bewitched you, that ye shulde not beleue the trueth? To whõ Jesus Christ was described before the eyes and amonge you crucified. This onely wolde I lerne of you: Receaued ye the spriete by the dedes of the lawe, or by the preachinge of the faith? Are ye so vnwyse? Ye begane in the spriete, wolde ye ende now thẽ in the flesh? Haue ye suffred so moch in vayne? Yf it be els in vayne. He that geueth you the spriete, and doth soch greate actes amõge you, doth he it thorow the dedes of the lawe, or by ỹ preachinge of the faith? * Euen as Abrahã beleued God, and it was counted vnto him for righteousnes. Thus ye knowe, that they which are of faith, are Abrahams children.

The scripture sawe afore hãde, that God iustifieth the Heythen thorow faith. Therfore shewed it glad tydinges afore vnto Abraham, and sayde: * In the shal all the Heythen be blessed. So then they which be of faith, are blessed with faithfull Abraham. For as many as go aboute with the workes of the lawe, are vnder ỹ curse: For it is writtẽ: * Cursed be every man, which cõtynueth not in all thinges that are writtẽ in the boke of the lawe, to do them. That no man is iustified by the lawe in the sighte of God, it is euydẽt: * For ỹ iust shal lyue by his faith. The lawe is not of faith, * but the mãne doth ỹ same, shal lyue therin. But Christ hath delyuered vs from ỹ curse of the lawe, whan he became a curse for vs. (For it is writtẽ: * Cursed is every man that hangeth on tree) ỹ the blessynge of Abraham might come on the Gentyles in Christ Jesu, and we might so receaue ỹ promysed spriete, thorow faith.

Brethren, I wil speake after the manner (of men. Though it be but a mãs Testamẽt, yet no man despyseth it, or addeth eny thinge therto, * whan it is confirmed. To Abraham and his sede were the promyses made. He sayeth not: In the sedes, as in many, but in thy sede, as in one, which is Christ. This Testament (I saye) which afore was confirmed to Christ warde, is not disanulled (that the promes shulde be made of none affect) by the lawe * which was geuen beyonde foure hundreth yer thirtie yeares therafter. * For yf the enheritaunce be gotten by the lawe, then is it not geuen by promes. But God gaue it frely vnto Abraham by promes.

Wherfore thẽ serueth the lawe? * It was added because of trangression, tyll the sede came, to the which the promes was made. * And it was geuen of angels, by the hande of the * mediatoure. A mediatour is not a mediatour of one onely, but God is one.

Is the lawe then agaynst the promyses of God? God forbyd. Howbeit yf there had bene geuen a lawe which coulde haue geue life, the no doute rightcousnes shulde come of the lawe. * But ỹ scripture hath shut vp all vnder synne, that ỹ promes shulde come by the faith on Jesus Christ, geuē vnto thē that beleue. Before faith came, we were kepte and shut vp vnder the lawe, vnto the faith which shulde afterwarde be declared. Thus ỹ lawe was o scolemaster vnto Christ, that we might be made righteous by faith. But now that faith is come, we are nomore vnder the scolemaster. * For ye all are the children of God by the faith in Christ Jesu. * For as many of you as are baptysed, haue put on Christ. Here is nether Jewe ner Grete: here is nether bōde ner fre: here is nether man ner woman, for ye are all * one in Christ Jesu. Yf ye be Christes, thē are ye Abrahās sede and heyres acordynge to the promes.

The IIII. Chapter.

BVt I saye: As longe as the heyre is a childe, there is no difference betwene him and a seruaunt, though he be lorde of all ỹ goodes: but he is vnder tuters and gouerners, vntyll the tyme appoynted of the father. Euen so we also, whā we were children, were in bondage vnder the outwarde traditions. But whan the tyme was fulfilled, God sent his sonne, borne of a womā, * and put vnder the lawe, to redeme them which were vnder the lawe, that we might receaue ỹ childshippe. * For so moch thē as ye are children, God hath sent the sprete of his sonne into ouke hertes, which cryeth: Abba, deare father. Wherfore now, thou art not a seruaunt, but a sonne. Yf thou be a sonne, then art thou the heyre of God thorow Christ. Notwithstondinge whan ye knewe not God, ye dyd seruyce vnto them, which by nature are no Goddes. But now seynge ye knowe God (yee rather are knowne off God) how is it * that ye turne you backe agayne vnto the weake and beggerly traditions, wher vnto ye desyre agayne a fresh to be in bondage:

Ye obserue dayes and [illegible]nethes, and tymes and yeares. I am in feare o[illegible] you, lest I haue bestowed laboure on you in vayne. Brethrē I beseke you, be ye as I am, for I am as ye are. Ye haue not hurte me at all. For ye knowe how that in weaknes after ỹ flesh I preached ỹ Gospell vnto you at the first: and my tentacion which I suffred after the flesh, ye despysed not, nether abhorred, but receaued me as an angell of God, yee euen as Christ Jesus. How happy were ye then: For I beare you recorde, that yf it had bene possible, ye had plucked out youre awne eyes, and geuē them vnto me. Am I therfore become yo' enemy, because I tell you ỹ trueth:

They are gelous over you amysse. Yee they wolde make you to fall backe, that ye might be feruēt to thē warde. It is good to be feruent, so ỹ it be allwaye in a good thinge, and not onely whan I am present wt you. My litle children (of whom I trauayle in byrth agayne, vntyll Christ be fashioned in you) I wolde I were wt you now, and coulde chaūge my voyce, for I stōde doute of you.

Tell me ye that wylbe vnder the lawe, ha C ue ye not herde the lawe: For it is wrytten, that Abraham had two sonnes * the one by Gen.16.d a bonde mayde, * the other by a fre woman. Gen.21.a
As for him that was of the bōde mayde, he was borne after ỹ flesh: but he which was of the fre woman, was borne by promes. These wordes betoken somwhat. For these wemen are the two Testamentes: The one from the mount Sina, that gendreth vnto bondage, which is Agar. For Agar is called in Arabia ỹ mount Sina, and reacheth vnto Jerusalem which now is, and is in bondage with hir children.

* But Jerusalem that is aboue, is the fre Apoc.21.a woman, which is the mother of vs all. For it is wrytte: * Reioyse thou baren, that bearest no childrē: breake forth and crye thou ỹ trauaylest not, for the desolate hath many mo childrē, then she which hath an hußbande. As for vs (brethren) we are the children of Jsaac acordinge to the promes. Esa.54.a

* But like as at that tyme, he that was Gen.21.a borne after the flesh, persecuted him ỹ was borne after the sprete, euen so is it now also.
But what sayeth the scripture: Put awaye Gen.21.b
the bonde mayden and hir sonne: for the sonne of ỹ bondmayde shal not be heyre with ỹ sonne of the fre woman. So now brethren, we are not children of the bonde mayde, but of the fre woman.

The V. Chapter.

STonde fast therfore in the libertye A wherwith Christ hath made vs fre, and be not wrapped agayne in the yocke off bondage. Beholde, I Paul saye vnto you: Yf ye be circumcysed, Christ profiteth you nothinge at all. I testifye agayne vnto euery man which is circumcyse that he is bounde to kepe the whole law. Ye are gone quyte from Christ, as many as you as wylbe made righteous by the law and are fallen from grace. But we wayte in the sprete off hope, to be made righteous by faith. * For in Christ Jesu neyther circumcision eny thinge worth ner vncircumcision, but faith which * by loue is mighty in operacion. Ye ranne well, who was a let vnto you, that ye shulde not obeye the trueth? Soch councell is not of him that hath called you. * A litle leuen soureth the whole lompe of dowe.

B I haue trust towarde you in ỹ LORDE, that ye wylbe none otherwyse mynded. But he that troubleth you, shal beare his iudgment, what so euer he be. Brethren yf I yet preach circumcision, why do I suffre persecucion? then had the slaunder off the crosse ceassed. Wolde God they were roted out frō amōge you, which trouble you. But brethrē, ye are called vnto liberty, onely let not youre libertie be an occasion vnto the flesh, but by loue serue one another. For all the lawe is fulfylled in one worde, namely in this: * loue thy neghboure as thy selfe. But yf ye byte and deuoure one another, take hede, that ye be not consumed one of another.

Leuit 19.c Ro.13.b

C I saye: Walke in the sprete, and so shal ye not fulfill the * lustes off the fleßhe. For the flesh lusteth agaynst the sprete, and the sprete agaynst the flesh. These are contrary one to the other, so that ye can not do that which ye wolde: But and yf ye be led of the sprete, then are ye not vnder the lawe. * The dedes of ỹ flesh are manifest, which are these: Aduoutrye, whordome, vnclēnes, wantānes, Idolatrye, witchcraft, hatred, variaunce, zele, wrath, stryfe, sedicion, sectes, envyenge, murthur, dronkennes, glotony, and soch like: of the which I tell you before, as I haue tolde you in tyme past, * that they which commytte soch, shal not inheret the kyngdome of God. * But the frute of the sprete, is loue, ioye, peace, longe sufferinge, gētlenes, goodnesse, faithfulnes, mekenesse, tēperaunce, * Agaynst soch is not ỹ lawe: * But they that are Christes, haue crucified their flesh, with the lustes and desyres.

A YF we lyue in the sprete, let vs walke also in the sprete. Let vs not be vayne glorious, prouokinge one another, and envyenge another. Brethren, Yf eny mā be ouertaken of a faute, ye which are spirituall, enfourme him with a meke sprete: and consydre thine owne selfe, that thou also be tempted. * Beare ye one anothers burden, and so shal ye fulfyll the lawe of Christ. For yf eny man thynke himselfe to be somwhat (whan in dede he is nothinge) the same deceaueth himselfe. Let euery man proue his owne worke, and thē shal he haue reioysinge in his awne selfe, and not in another. For * euery one shal beare his owne burthen.

* But let him that is taughte with the worde, mynister in all good thinges, vnto him that teacheth him. Be not disceaued, God wil not be mocked. * For what soeuer a man soweth, that shal he reape. He that soweth vpon the flesh, shal of the flesh reape destruccion: But he that soweth vpon ỹ sprete, shal of the sprete reape life euerlastinge. * Let vs not be weery of well doynge: for whā the tyme is come, we shal reape without ceassinge. Whyle we haue tyme therfore, let vs do good vnto all men * but specially vnto thē which are of ỹ housholde of faith.

Behold, with how many wordes I haue wrytten vnto you with myne awne hande. They that wil please in the flesh, constrayne you to be circumcysed, onely lest they shulde be persecuted with the crosse of Christ. For euē they them selues which are circumcysed, kepe not the lawe, but wolde haue you circūcysed, that they mighte reioyse in youre flesh. But God forbyd that I shulde reioyse, saue onely in the crosse of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, wherby the worlde is crucified vnto me, and I vnto the worlde. * For in Christ Jesu nether circūcision auayleth eny thinge, ner vncircumcision, but a new creature. * And as many as walke acordynge to this rule, peace and mercy be vpon the, and vpon Israel of God. From hence forth let no man put me to busynesse, * for I beare in my body the markes of the LORDE Jesu. Brethren, the grace of oure LORDE Jesu Christ be with youre sprete Ameh.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Ephesians.

The first Chapter.

PAul an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God. To ỹ sayntes which are Ephesus, & to thē that beleue on Jesus Christ.

*Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, & frō the LORDE Jesus Christ.

Blessed be God the father of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, which hath blessed vs wt all maner of spirituall blessynge in heauenly thynges by Christ * acordinge as he had chosen vs by him, or euer the foundacion of the worlde was layed, that we shulde be holy and without blame before him in loue, & ordeyned vs before, to receaue vs as children thorow Jesus Christ, acordinge to the pleasure of his will, vnto the prayse of the glory of his grace, wherby he hath made vs accepted in the * Beloued, in whom we haue redempcion thorow his blonde (namely) the forgeuenes of synnes, acordynge to ỹ riches of his grace, which he hath shed vpon vs abundauntly in all wyßdome and prudēce: and hath opened vnto vs the mystery of his wil acordinge to his pleasure, which he had purposed in himselfe, ỹ it shulde be preached * wha the tyme was fulcome, that all thinges shulde be gathered together by Christ, both the thinges which are in heauen, and also the thinges that are vpon earth, euen by him, by whom also we are come to the inheritaunce * we that were therto predestinate before, acordinge to ỹ purpose of him, which worketh all thinges after ỹ counsell of his owne wyll, that we mighte be to the prayse of his glory, euen we that before beleued on Christ, on whō also ye beleued, after that ye herde the worde of trueth, namely ỹ Gospell of youre saluacion: wherin whan ye beleued, ye were * sealed with the holy spirete of promes, which is the erneste of oure inheritaunce to oure redempcion, that we mighte be his owne to the prayse off his glory.

Wherfore I also, (in so moch as I haue herde of the faieth which ye haue in ỹ LORDE Jesu, and of youre loue vnto all ỹ sayntes) ceasse not to gene thankes for you, and make mencion of you in my prayers, that ỹ God of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, the father of glory maye gene vnto you the spirete of wyßdome, and open vnto you the knowlege of himselfe, and lighten the eyes of youre vnderstondinge, that ye maye knowe what is the hope of youre callynge, and what the riches of his glorious enheritaunce is vpon the sayntes, & what is the exceadinge greatnesse of his power towarde vs, which beleue acordinge to ỹ workynge of his mighty power, which he wroughte in Christ, whan he rayse him vp frō the deed, * and set him on his righte hāde ī heauēly thinges, aboue all rule, power, and mighte, and dominaciō, and aboue all that maye be named, not onely in this worlde, but also in ỹ worlde to come. * And hath put all thinges vnder his fete, and hath made him aboue all thinges * the heade of the cōgregacion, which is his body, and the fulnesse of him that fylleth all in all.

Esa.25.b Act.15.b enē whā we were deed in synnes, hath quyckened vs in Christ (* for by grace are ye saued) and hath raysed vs vp with him, and set vs with him in heauenly thinges thorow Christ Jesus, ỹ in tymes to come he might shewe the exceadinge riches of his grace, in kyndnesse to vs warde in Christ Jesu. Wherfore remēbre, that ye (which afore tyme were Gentyles after the flesh, and were called vncircumcision, of thē that are called Phil.3.a Col.2.b * circumcision after the flesh, which circumcision is made with the hande) that ye at the same tyme were without Christ, and reputed aleauntes from the comen welth of Israel, and were straungers from the Testamentes of promes, therfore had ye no hope, and were without God in this worlde. For he is ō * peace, which of both hath

Now therfore ye are nomore gestes and straungers, but citesins with the sayntes, & of the housholde of God, buylded vpon * ỹ

The III. Chapter.

For this cause I Paul am * a prysoner of Jesus Christ for you heythen, Gal.1.a acordinge as ye have herde of ỹ office of the grace of God which is genen me to you warde. For by * reuelacion was this Gal.1.a mystery shewed vnto me, as I wrote afore in fewe wordes: wherby whan ye rede it ye maye perceaue myne vnderstondynge in ỹ mystery of Christ, which (mystery) in tymes past was not opened vnto the childrē of men as it is now declared to his holy Apostles and prophetes by the sprete: namely, that the heythen shulde be inheritours also, and of the same body, and partakers of his promes in Christ by the Gospell, wherof I am made a mynister acordynge to the gifte of the grace of God, which is genē me acordinge to the workynge of his power.

Vnto me * the leest of all sayntes is this
1.Cor.15.a grace genen, that I shulde preach amonge the heythē ỹ vnsearcheable riches of Christ, and to make all men se, what is the fellisshype of the * mystery, which frō the begynninge of the worlde hath bene hyd in God, Col.1.a which made all thinges thorow Jesus Christ, to the intent that now vnto the rulers and powers in heauē might be knowne by the congregacion the manifolde wysdome of God, acordinge to ỹ eternall purpose, which he hath shewed in Christ Jesu oure LORDE by whom we have boldnesse and intraunce in all confidēce thorow faith on him. Wherfore I desyre that ye saynte not because of my tribulacions, ỹ I * suffre for you, which Col.1.a is youre prayse.

For this cause I bowe my knees vnto the father of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, which is the true father, ouer all that is called father in heauen and in earth, that he graunte you (acordinge to ỹ riches of his glory) to be strengthed with power by his sprete in ỹ inwarde mā, that Christ maye dwell in youre hertes by faith, that ye beynge rooted and grounded in loue, maye be able to cōprehende with all sayntes, what is the bredth, and the length, and the deepth, and the heyth, and to knowe the loue of Christ, which loue yet passeth all knowlege: that ye maye be fylled with all maner of fulnesse of God.

Vnto him that is able to do exceadinge abundauntly, aboue all that we axe or vnderstonde (acordinge to ỹ power that worketh in vs) be prayse in the congregacion, which is in Christ Jesu, at all tymes for ever and ever, Amen.

The IIII. Chapter.

I Therfore which am presoner in the LORDE, exhorte you, that ye walke as it becōmeth yo' callinge wherin ye are called, with all humblenes off mynde and mekenes, and longe sufferinge, forbearinge one another in loue, and be diligent to kepe the vnite of the spirete thorow the bonde of peace. One body and one spirete, euē as ye are called in one hope of youre callynge. One LORDE, one faith, one baptyme, one God and father of vs all, which is aboue all, and thorow all, and in you all.

* Vnto euery one of vs is geuen grace, acordinge to the measure off the gifte off Christ. Therfore sayeth he: * He is gone vp an hye, and hath led awaye captiuyte captyue, and hath geuē gifres vnto men. That he wente, vp what is it, but that he first came downe in to ỹ lowest partes of ỹ earth: * He that came downe, is euen the same which is gone vp aboue all heauens, to fulfill all. * And ỹ same hath set some to be Apostles, some to be prophetes, some to be Euangelistes, some to be shepherdes ꝛ teachers, wherby the sayntes might be coupled together thorow comen seruyce to the edifienge of ỹ body of Christ, tyll we all come vnto one maner of faith and knowlege of the sonne of God, and become a perfecte man in to the measure of the perfecte age of Christ * that we be nomore children, * waueringe ꝛ caried aboute with euery wynde of doctryne thorow the wickednes of men and craftynes, wherby they laye awayte for vs to disceaue vs.

B But let vs folowe the trueth in loue, and in all thinges growe in him, * which is the heade, euen Christ, in whom all the body is coupled together, and one membre hangeth by another thorow out all ỹ ioyntes. * Wherby one mynistreth vnto another (acordinge to the operacion as euery membre hath his measure) and maketh, that ỹ body groweth to the edifienge of it selfe in loue.

This I saye therfore, and testifye in the LORDE, that ye walke nomore * as ỹ other heythen walke in the vanite of their mynde, blynded in their vnderstondinge, beynge straungers frō the life which is in God thorow the ignoraunce that is in them, because of the blyndnes of their hert: which beynge past repentaunce, haue geuē them selues ouer vnto wantonnes, to worke all maner of vnclennes euen with gredynesse.

But ye haue not so learned Christ, yf so be that ye haue herde of him, ꝛ are taught in him, euen as the trueth is in Jesu. So then as concernynge the conuersacion in tyme past * laye from you that olde man which marreth himselfe thorow disceanable lustes: but be ye renued in the spirete of youre mynde, and put on that new man, which is shapen after God, in true righteousnes and holynes. * Wherfore put awaye lyenge, and speake euery man the trueth vnto his neghboure, for as moch as we are membres one of another. * Be angrie, but synne not. Let not ỹ Sonne go downe vpō youre wrath: nether geue place to the backbyter. He that hath stollen, let him steale nomore: * but let him laboure rather, and do some good with his hondes, that he maye haue to geue vnto him that nedeth. C

Let no filthy communicacion proceade out of youre mouth, but that which is good to edifye withall, whā nede is, that it be gracious to heare. And greue not the holy spirete of God, wherwith ye are * sealed vnto ỹ daye of redempcion. Let all bytternes, and fearsnes, and wrath, and roaringe, ꝛ cursed speakynge be farre frō you with all maliciousnes. But be ye curteous one to another, mercifull, * and forgeue one another, euē as God hath forgeuen you in Christ.

BE ye the * folowers therfore of God as deare children, and walke in loue, euen as Christ loued vs, and * gaue him selfe for vs an offerynge and sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto God. As for whordome and all vnclennes, or couetousnes, let it not be named amōge you, as it becommeth sayntes: * nether fylthines, ner folish talkynge, ner ieastynge (which are not comly) but rather geuynge of thākes. * For be sure, that no whore monger, or vncleane person, or couetous person (which is a worshipper off ymages) hath inheritaunce in the kyngdome of Christ and of God. * (Let no man disceaue you with vayne wordes) for because of these commeth the wrath of God vpon the children of vnbeleue. Be not ye therfore companions with them. For sometyme ye were darknesse, * but now are ye lighte in the LORDE.

The VI. Chapter.

Ye * children, obey youre elders in the LORDE, for that is righte. Honoure thy father and thy mother (* That is the first commaundement, that hath eny promes) that thou mayest prospere, and lyue longe vpon earth. And ye fathers, prouoke not youre children vnto wrath, but brynge thē vp in the nourtoure and informacion of the LORDE.

* Ye seruauntes, obey youre bodely masters, with feare and tremblynge, in synglenes of youre hert, euen as vnto Christ, not with seruyce onely in the eye sighte, as men pleasers: but as the seruauntes off Christ, doynge the wyll off God from the hert with good wyll. Thynke that ye serue the LORDE and not mē: and be sure, that what good soeuer a man doth, he shal receaue it agayne of the LORDE, whether he be bonde or fre.

And ye masters, do euen the same vnto thē, puttynge awaye threatenynges, and knowe that euen youre master also is in heauen, * nether is there eny respecte of personnes with him.

Fynally my brethren, be stronge in the LORDE, and in the power of his mighte: put on the armō of God, that ye maye stonde stedfast agaynst the craftie assautes off the deuell. For we wrestle not agaynst flesh and blonde, but agaynst rule, agaynst power namely, agaynst the rulers of the worlde, of the darknesse of this worlde, agaynst ỳ spirites of wickednes vnder the heauen. For this cause take ye the armoure of God, ỳ ye maye be able to resiste in the euell daye, and stonde perfecte in all thinges.

* Stonde therfore, and youre loynes gyrde aboute with the trueth, hauynge on the brest plate of righteousnes, and shod vpō ỳ fete with the gospell of peace, that ye maye be prepared: Aboue all thinges take holde of the shylde of faith, wherwith ye maye quenche all the fyrie dartes of the wicked. And take the helmet of saluacion, & the swerde of the sprete, which is the worde of God.

* And praye allwayes with all maner of prayer and supplicacion in the sprete, and watch there vnto with all instaunce and supplicacion for all sayntes and for me, that the worde maye be geuen me, that I maye open my mouth boldly, to vtter the secretes of the Gospell, wherof I am a messaunger in bondes, that I maye speake therin frely, as it becommeth me to speake.

But that ye maye also knowe, what case I am in, and what I do, Tichicus my deare brother and faithfull mynister in the LORDE, shal shewe you all: whom I haue sent vnto you for the same cause, that ye mighte knowe what case I stonde in, and that he mighte comforte youre hertes.

Peace be vnto the brethre, and loue with faith, from God the father, & from the LORDE Jesu Christ. Grace be with all them that loue oure LORDE Jesus Christ vnfaynedly. Amen.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Philippians.

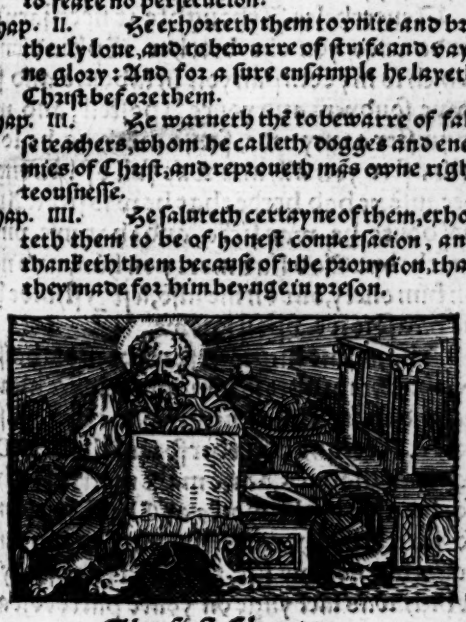
The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. He exhorteth them to increase in lone, in knowlege and experience of godly thinges: maketh mencion of his presonment at Rome, is glad to heare Christ preached, is content ether to dye or lyue, and prayeth them to lede a godly conversacion, to be of one mynde, and to feare no persecucion.

Chap. II. He exhorteth them to vnite and brotherly loue, and to bewarre of strife and vayne glory: And for a sure ensample he layeth Christ before them.

Chap. III. He warneth the to bewarre of false teachers, whom he calleth dogges and enemies of Christ, and reprooueth mas owne righteousnesse.

Chap. IIII. He saluteth certayne of them, exhorteth them to be of honest conuersacion, and thanketh them because of the prouysion that they made for him beynge in preson.



The first Chapter.

PAul and Timotheus the seruauntes of Jesu Christ. Vnto all the sayntes in Jesu Christ, which are at Philippos, with the Bisshoppes and * mynisters.

Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the LORDE Jesus Christ.

* I thanke my God, as oft as I remembre you (which I allwayes do in all my prayers for you all, and praye with gladnesse) because of youre fellishippe which ye haue in the Gospell from the first daye vnto now, and am surely certified of this, þ he which hath begonne that good * worke in you, shal go forth with it vntyll þ daye of Jesus Christ: as it becommeth me to iudge of you all, because I haue you in my hert, as those that are partakers with me of grace in my bondes, in defendinge and stablyshinge of the Gospell. Col. 1.a 1. Thes. 1.a Ioh. 6.d

For God is my * recorde, how I loge after you all euen frō the very hert rote in Jesus Christ. * And for the same I praye, þ yō lone maye increase more & more in all maner of knowlege and in all experience, þ ye maye proue what is best, that ye maye be pure, & soch as hurte no mans conscience, vnto the daye of Christ: fylled with the frutes of righteousnes, which come by Jesus Christ vnto the glorye and prayse of God. B 1. Thes. 2.a * Ephe. 1.c Col. 1.a 2. Thes. 1.b

I wolde ye vnderstode brethren, that my busynes is happened vnto the greater furtheraunce of the Gospell, so that my bondes in Christ are manifest thorow out all þ inding mēt hall, and in all other places: In so moch that many brethren in the LORDE, are bolded thorow my bōdes, and darre more largely speake the worde without feare. Some (no doute) preach Christ of enuye and stryfe, but some of good wil. The one parte preacheth Christ off stryfe and not purely, supposynge to adde more aduersite vnto my bondes. The other parte of lone, for they knowe that I lye here for the defence of the Gospell.

What then? So that Christ be preached all maner of wayes (whether it be done by occasion or of true meaninge) I reioyce therin, and wil reioyce. For I knowe that the same shal chaunce to my saluacion, * thorow youre prayer and mynistrynge of the spirete of Jesu Christ, as I loke for and hope, that in nothinge I shalbe ashamed: but þ with all cōfidence (as allwayes in tymes past, euē so now) Christ shalbe magnified in my body whether it be thorow life or thorow death. For Christ is to me life, & death is to me auantage. But in as moch as to lyue in þ flesh is frutefull to me for the worke, I wot not what I shal chose, for both the hange vpon me. * I desyre to be with Christ, which is thinner (for me) but to abyde in the flesh is more needefull for you. C 2. Cor. 1.a

D And this am I sure of, that I shal abyde, and contynue with you all, for the furtheraunce and ioye of youre faith, that ye maye abundauntly reioyse in Christ Jesu thorow me, by my cõmynge to you agayne.
Ephe.4.a Col.1.a 1.Tess.4.a Onely let youre conuersacion be * as it becommeth the Gospell of Christ, that whether I come & se you, or els be absent, I maye yet heare of you that ye cõtynue in one spirite and one soule, labourynge (as we do) to mayntayne the faith of the Gospell, and in nothinge fearinge youre aduersaries, which is to them a token off perdicion, but vnto you of saluacion, and that of God. For vnto you it is geuen, not onely that ye shulde beleue on Christ, but also suffre for his sake, and to haue euen the same fighte, which ye haue sene in me, and now heare of me.

The II. Chapter.

A YF there be amonge you eny consolacion in Christ, yf there be eny comforte of loue, yf there be eny fellishippe off the spirite, yf there be eny compassion and mercy, fulfyll my ioye, that ye drawe one waye, hauynge one loue, beynge of one accorde, and of one mynde: that there be nothinge done thorow stryfe and vayne glory, but that thorow mekenesse of mynde euery man esteme another better then himselfe: and let euery mã loke not for his awne profet, but for the profet of other.

Let the same mynde be in you, that was in Christ Jesu: which beynge in the shappe of God, thought it not robbery to be equall with God, but made himselfe of no reputacion, and toke vpon him the shappe of a seruaunt, * became like another man, and was founde in his apparell as a man: he humbled himselfe, and became obedient vnto the death, euen vnto the death of the crosse.
b.5.a

Mat.28.e Heb.2.b Esa.45.c Dan.7.c Ro.14.b * Therfore hath God also exalted him, and geuen him a name, which is aboue all names, * that in the name of Jesus euery kne shulde bowe, both of thinges in heauen & of thinges vpõ earth, and vnder the earth, and that all tunges shulde confesse, that Jesus Christ is the LORDE vnto the prayse of God the father.

Wherfore my dearly beloued, as ye haue obeyed (not onely in my presence, so much more in my absence) euen youre awne saluacion with feare. * For it is God which worcketh in you both the wyll and the deed, euen of his owne good wyll. Do all thinges without murmurynges and disputinges, that ye maye be fautles and pure, and the children of God * without rebuke, in the myddes of ye croked and peruerse nacion, * amonge whom se that ye shyne as lightes in the worlde, holdinge fast the worde of life, vnto my reioysinge in the daye of Christ, that I haue not runne in vayne, nether laboured in vayne. * Yee and though I be offred vp vpõ the offerynge & sacrifice of youre faith, I am glad, and reioyce with you all: be ye glad also, and reioyce ye with me.

I trust in the LORDE Jesus, to sende Timotheus shortly vnto you, that I also maye be of good comforte, whan I knowe what case ye stonde in. For I haue no man that is so like mynded to me, which with so pure affeccio careth for you: for all other seke their awne, not that which is Jesus Christes. But ye knowe the prose of him: for as a child vnto the father, so hath he ministred vnto me in the Gospell. Him I hope to sende, as soone as I knowe how it wyll go with me. But I trust in the LORDE, that I also my selfe shal come shortly.

Neuertheles I thoughte it necessary to sende vnto you the brother Ephraditus, which is my companyon in labour and fellowe soudyer, and youre Apostell, and my minister at my nede, for so moch as he longed after you all, and was full of heuynes, because ye had herde that he was sicke. And no doute he was sicke, and that nye vnto death: but God had mercy on him, and not on him onely, but on me also, lest I shulde haue had sorowe vpon sorowe.

I haue sent him therfore the more hastely, that ye mighte se him, and reioyce agayne, and that I also mighte haue the lesse sorowe. Receaue him therfore in the LORDE with all gladnes, * and make moch of soche: for because of the worke of Christ, he went so farre, that he came nye vnto death, and regarded not his life, to fulfyll that seruyce which was lackynge on youre parte towarde me.

The III. Chapter.

MOREOVER my brethren, reioyce in the LORDE. Where as I wryte euer one thinge vnto you, it greueth me not, and maketh you the surer. Bewarre off dogges, bewarre of euell workers, bewarre off discension: * for we are the circumcision, euen we that serue God in the spirite, and reioyce in Christ Jesu, and haue no confidence in the flesh, though I haue wherof I mighte reioyce in ỹ flesh. If eny other mā thynke that he hath wherof he mighte reioyce in the flesh, moch more I, which was circūcysed on the eight daye, one of the people of Israel, of the trybe off Ben Jamin, an hebrue of the Hebrues: as concernynge the lawe * a Pharise: as concernynge feruentnes * I persecuted the cōgregacion: and as touchinge the righteousnes which is in the lawe, I was vnrebukable.

* But the thinges that were vauntage vnto me, haue I counted losse for Christes sake. Nee I thynke all thinges but losse, for that excellent * knowleges sake of Christ Jesu my LORDE: for whom I haue counted all thinge losse, and do iudge them but donge, that I mighte wynne Christ, & be founde in him, not hauynge myne awne righteousnes which commeth of the lawe, but by the faith of Christ (namely) the righteousnes which commeth of God in faith, to knowe him and the vertue of his resurreccion, and the fellishippe of his passion, * that I maye be conformable vnto his death, yff by eny meanes I mighte attayne to the resurreccion from the deed. Not that I haue attayned vnto it all ready, or that I am allready perfecte: but I folowe, yf I maye comprehende that, wherin I am comprehended off Christ Jesu. Brethren, I counte not my selfe yet that I haue gotten it: but one thinge I saye: I forget that which is behynde, and stretch my selfe vnto that which is before, & preace vnto ỹ marck apoynted, to optayne the rewarde of the hye callynge of God in Christ Jesu.

Let vs therfore (as many as be parfecte) be thus wyse mynded: and yf ye be otherwyse mynded, I praye God open euen this vnto you. Neuertheles in that wher vnto we are come, let vs procede by one rule, that we maye be of one accorde. * Brethren, be ye ỹ folowers of me, and loke on thē which walke euē so as ye haue vs for an ensample. For many walke (off whom I haue tolde you often, but now I tell you wepynge) euē enemies of the crosse of Christ, whose ende is damnacion, * whose God is the bely, & whose glory shalbe to their shame, which are earthly mynded. * But oure conuersacion is in heauen, from whence we loke for the Sauioure Jesu Christ ỹ LORDE, * which shal chaūge ỏ vyle body, ỹ it maye be like fashioned vnto his glorious body, acordinge to ỹ worckynge wherby he is able to subdue all thinges vnto himselfe.

The IIII. Chapter.

Wherfore my brethrē dearly beloued & longed for, my ioye & my crowne contynue so in the LORDE ye beloued. I praye Euodias, & beseke Syntiches, that they be of one mynde in the LORDE. Yee and I beseke the my faithfull yoke felowe, helpe the wemen, which haue laboured with me in the Gospell, with Clement & with my other helpers, * whose names are in the boke of life. Reioyce in the LORDE allwaye, & agayne I saye, Reioyse. Let youre softnes be knowne vnto all men. The LORDE is euen at honde. Be not carefull, but in all thinges let yo^ peticions in prayer and supplicacion, with geuynge of thankes be knowne before God. And ỹ * peace of God, which passeth all vnderstōdinge, kepe youre hertes and myndes in Christ Jesu. A

Luc.10.b
Apo.17.b

Furthermore brethren, what soeuer thinges are true, what soeuer thinges are honest, what soeuer thinges are iust, what soeuer thinges are pure, what soeuer thinges pertayne to loue, what soeuer thinges are of honest reporte: yf there be eny vertuous thinge, yf there be eny laudable thinge, haue those same in yo^ mynde, which ye haue both lerned and receaued, and herde and sene in me: those thinges do, and the God of peace shal be with you. I reioyse greatly in ỹ LORDE, that now at the last ye are renyued agayne to care for me, as ye cared for me afore, but ye lacked oportunyte. I speake not this because of necessite: for I haue lerned in what soeuer estate I am, * therwith to be contēte I can be lowe, and I cā be hye. Euery where and in all thinges I am mete, both to be full, and to be hongrie: to haue plentye, and to suffre nede. I can do all thinges thorow Christ, which strēgtheth me. Notwithstondinge ye haue done well, that ye bare parte with me in my tribulacion. B

1.Tim.6.b

But ye of Philippos knowe, that in the begynnynge of the Gospell whan I departed fro Macedonia, no congregacion bare parte with me concernynge geuynge and receauynge, but ye onely. For vnto Tessalonica ye sent once and afterwarde agayne vnto my necessite. Not that I seke giftes, but I seke the frute, that it be abūdaunt in yo^ rekenynge. For I haue all, and haue plentye. I was euen fylled whā I receaued of Epaphroditus, that which came from you, an odoure of swetenes, * a sacrifice accepted & pleasaunt vnto God. My God fulfyll all yo^ nede, acordinge to his riches in glory ỹ Christ Jesu. C

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Colossians.

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. I. He geveth thankes vnto God for their faith, loue, and hope: prayeth for their increase and sheweth how we are the kyngdome of God, optayned by Christ, which is the heade of the congregacion.

Chap. II. What greate care Paul toke for all congregacions. He exhorteth them to be stedfast in Christ, to beware of false teachers and worldly wysdome, and describeth the false prophetes.

Chap. III. He putteth them in remembraunce of the spirituall resurrecciō, to laye asyde all maner of corrupte lyuynge, to be frutefull in all godlynesse and vertue, and sheweth all degrees their dutye.

Chap. IIII. He exhorteth them to be feruent in prayer, to walke wysely vnto them that are not yet come to the true knowlege of Christ, and so saluteth them.

The first Chapter.

PAul an Apostle of Jesu Christ by the will of God, and brother Timotheus.

To ȳ sayntes which are at Colossa and brethren that beleue in Christ.

Grace be with you and peace from God oure father & frō the LORDE Jesus Christ.

* We gene thankes vnto God and the father of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, prayenge allwayes for you (sence we herde of youre faith in Christ Jesu, and of youre loue to all sayntes) for ȳ hopes sake which is layed vp in stoare for you in heauen: of the which ye haue herde before by the worde of trueth in the Gospell, which is come vnto you, euē as it is in to all the worlde: and is frutefull, as it is in you, sence ȳ daye ȳ ye herde and knewe the grace of God in ȳ trueth, as ye learned of * Epaphras oure deare felowe seruaunt, which is a faithfull mynister of Christ for you, which also declared vnto vs youre loue in the sprete.

* For this cause we also, sence the daye ȳ we herde of it, ceasse not to praye for you, & desyre that ye mighte be fulfylled with the knowlege of his will, in all wysdome and spirituall vnderstondinge, that ye mighte walke worthy off the LORDE, to please him in all thinges, * and to be frutefull in all good workes, and growe in the knowlege of God: & to be strengthed wt all power accordinge to the mighte of his glory, to all pacience and longsufferynge with ioyfulnes, and gene thankes vnto the father, which hath made vs mete for the enheritaunce of sayntes in lighte.

Which hath delyuered vs frō the power of darknesse, & translated vs in to the kyngdome of his deare sonne (* in whom we haue redempcion thorow his bloude, namely, the forgeuenes of synnes.) * Which is the ymage of the inuysyble God, first begotte before all creatures. * For by him were all thinges created, that are in heauen and earth, thinges vysible and thinges inuysible, whether they be maiesties or lordshippes, ethnrules or powers: All thinges are created by him and in him, and he is before all thinges, and in him all thinges haue their beynge.

* And he is the heade of the body, namely, of the cōgregacion. he is the begynnynge and first begotten from the deed, that in all thinges he mighte haue the preemynence. For it pleased the father, that in hym shulde dwell all * fulnesse, and that by him all thinges shulde be * reconciled vnto himself, whether they be thinges vpon earth or in heauen, that thorow the bloude on his crosse he mighte make peace euen thorow his owne selfe. And you (which were in tymes past straungers and enemies, because youre myndes were set in euell workes) hath

C he now reconcyled in the body of his flesh thorow death, to make you holy, and vnblameable & with out faute in his awne sighte, yf ye contynue grounded and stablished in the faith, and be not moued awaye from ỹ hope of the Gospell, wherof ye haue herde: which is preached amonge all creatures ỹ are vnder heauen, wherof I Paul am made a myniſter.

* Now ioye I in my sufferynges, which I suffre for you, and fulfill that which is behynde of the passions of Christ in my flesh, for his bodyes sake, which is the congregacion, * wherof I am made a myniſter, acordinge to ỹ Godly office of preachinge, which is geuen vnto me amonge you, that I shulde richely preach the worde of God, namely, that mystery which hath bene hyd sence the worlde beganne, and sence the begynnynge of tymes: but now is * opened vnto his sayntes, to whom God wolde make knowne the glorious riches of this mistery amõge ỹ Heythen: which (riches) is Christ in you, euẽ he that is the hope of glory, whõ we preach, and warne all men, and teach all men in all wyßdome, to make euery man parfecte in Christ Jesu: Wherin I also laboure, and stryue acordinge to the workynge of him which worketh mightely in me.

The II. Chapter.

A I Wolde ye knewe what fightinge I haue for youre sakes, and for them of Laodicea, and for as many as haue not sene my personne in the flesh, that their hertes mighte be comforted and knytt together in loue, to all riches of full vnderstõdinge, * which is in the knowlege of the mystery of God the father and of Christ, * in whom are hyd all the treasures of wyßdome and knowlege.

* This I saye, lest eny man shulde begyle you with entysinge wordes. * For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I present with you in the spirite: ioyenge, and beholdinge youre order and the stedfastnes of youre faith in Christ. * As ye haue therfore receaued Christ Jesu the LORDE, euen so walke in him, and be roted & buylded in him, and be stedfast in faith, as ye haue learned: & be plenteous in the same in geuynge thankes.

B * Bewarre lest eny mã spoyle you thorow philosophy and disceatfull vanite after the tradicions of men, and after the ordinaũces of the worlde, and not after Christ. * For in him dwelleth all the fulnes of the Godheade bodely, and ye are complete in him, which is the heade of all rule and power: in whom also ye are circumcysed with * circumcision without handes, by puttynge of the synfull body of the flesh: (namely) with the circumcysion of Christ, * in that ye are buried with him thorow baptyme: in whom ye are also rysen agayne thorow faith, that is wrought by the operacion of God, which rayſed him vp from the deed. Rom.2.d Phil.3.a Rom.6.a

* And with him he quyckened you, whan ye were deed in synnes, and in the vncircumcision of youre flesh, and hath forgeuen vs all synnes, and put out the handwrytinge that was agaynst vs (cõtayned in the lawe wrytten) and that hath he taken out of the waye, and fastened it to the crosse: * And hath spoyled rule and power, and hath made a shewe of them openly, and triumphed ouer them in his awne persone. Rom.5.a Ephe.2.a Col.2.b Gen.3.c Luc.11.c Ioh.12.d

C Let no man therfore trouble youre consciences aboute meate or drynke, or for a pece of an holy daye, as the holy daye of ỹ newe Mone, or of the Sabbath dayes, * which are the shadowe of the thinges that were for to come: but the body selfe is in Christ. Let no man make you shote at a wronge mark, which after his owne chosynge walketh in humblenes and spiritualtye of angels, thinges which he neuer sawe, and is vayne, and puft vp in his owne fleshly mynde: and holdeth not himselfe to the heade, wherof the whole body by ioyntes and couples receaueth norishment, and is knyt together, and so groweth to the greatnes that commeth of God. The first Chapter.

PAVL and Siluanus and Timotheus.

Vnto the cōgregacion of the Tessalonyans, in God the father and in the LORDE Iesus Christ.

Grace be with you, and peace from God oure father and from the LORDE Jesus Christ.

We geue thankes vnto God allwaye for you all, makynge mēsion of you in oure prayers without ceassynge, and call to remembraunce youre worke in the faith, and youre labour in loue, & youre pacience in hope, * which is oure LORDE Jesus Christ before God oure father: Because we knowe (brethren, beloued of God) how that ye are electe: * for oure Gospell hath not bene with you in worde onely, but both in power and in the holy goost, and in moch certayntie, as ye knowe after what maner we were amonge you for youre sakes.

And ye became the folowers of vs and of the LORDE: and receaued the worde in moch affliccion with ioye of the holy goost: so that ye were an example to all that beleued in Macedonia and Achaia. For frō you was the worde of the LORDE noysed out, not onely in Macedonia & Achaia, but ī all quarters also is yō faith ī God spred abrode so that it nedeth not vs to speake eny thinge at all. For they them selues shewe of you, what maner of entrynge in we had vnto you, and how ye are turned vnto God from ymages, for to serue the lyuynge and true God, and to loke for his sonne * from heaue: whom he raysed vp from the deed, euen Jesus, which hath delyuered vs frō the * wrath to come.

The II. Chapter.

FOr ye youre selues (brethren) knowe of oure intraūce vnto you, how that it was not in vayne, but as we had suffred afore, & * were shamefully intreated at Philippos (as ye knowe) we were bolde in oure God, * to speake vnto you ỹ Gospel of God with moch stryvynge. For oure exhortacion was not to brynge you to errour ner yet to vnclennes, nether was it with gyle: but as we are alowed of God, that the Gospell shulde be commytted vnto vs to preache, euen so we speake, * not as though we wolde please mē, but God, which tryeth oure hertes.

For we haue not gone aboute with flateringe wordes (as ye knowe) ner wayted for oure owne profit (* God is recorde) nether soughte we prayse of men, nether of you ner of eny other, whan we mighte have bene chargeable vnto you as the Apostles off Christ, but we were tender amonge you.

Like as a norsse cherisheth hir children, euen so had we hartely affeccion towarde you, and wolde with good wyl haue dealte vnto you, not onely the Gospell of God, but oure lyues also, because ye were deare vnto vs.

Ye remembre brethren oure laboure and trauayle. * For daye and nighte wroughte we (because we wolde not be chargeable vnto eny of you) and preached the Gospell of God amonge you. Ye are witnesses, and so is God, how holyly and iustly and vnblameable we behaued oure selues amōge you that beleue: as ye knowe, how that as a his children, euen so exhorted and besoughte everyone that wolde walke worthely before God, which hath called you vnto his kyngdome

For this cause thanke we God without ceassynge, because that whā ye receaued of vs the worde of the preachinge of God, ye receaued it not as ẏ worde of men, but (euē as it is of a trueth) the worde of God, which worketh in you that beleue.

C For ye brethren are become the folowers

But we (brethren) for as moch as we haue bene kepte from you for a season, as concernynge the bodely presence, but not in the hert, we haue haisted the more with greate desyre to se you personally. Therfore wolde we haue come vnto you, (I Paul) two tymes,

The III. Chapter.

A Wherfore sence we coulde no longer forbeare, we thoughte it good to Act.17.c remayne at * Athens alone, & sent Timotheus oure brother and mynister of God, and oure helper in ẏ gospell of Christ, to stablysh you and to comforte you in youre faith, that noman shulde be moued in these troubles: (for ye youre selues knowe, that we are euen appoynted there vnto. And whan we were with you, we tolde you before, that we shulde suffre tribulacion, euen as it is come to passe, & as ye knowe.) For this cause seynge I coulde no longer forbeare, I sent, that I might haue knowlege of youre faith, lest happly the tempter had tempted you, and lest oure laboure had bene in vayne.

But now that Timotheus is come frō you vnto vs, and hath shewed vs of youre
B faith and loue, & how that ye haue allwaye good remembraunce of vs, desyringe to se vs [illegible] to se you: therfore brethren [illegible]ion in you in all oure trou[illegible]e thorow youre faith. For [illegible]lyne, yf ye stonde stedfast in ẏ [illegible]DE. For what thankes can we recom-pēce to God agayne for you, because of this ioye that we haue concernynge you before oure God? We praye exceadingly daye and nighte, that we might se you presently, and fulfill that which is lacknge in yor faith.

God himselfe & father & our LORDE Jesus Christ gyde oure iourney vnto you. But the LORDE increace you, & make you flowe ouer in loue one towarde another, and towarde all men (euen as we do towarde you) that yor hertes maye be stable and vnblameable in holynes before God oure father, at the commynge of oure LORDE Jesus Christ with all his sayntes.

The IIII. Chapter.

Furthermore we beseke you brethren & exhorte you in the LORDE Jesus, that ye increace more and more, euen as ye haue receaued of vs how ye ought to walke and to please God. For ye knowe what commaundementes we gaue you by oure LORDE Jesus Christ. For this is the * will of God, euen youre sanctifienge, that ye shulde absteyne from whordome, * & that euery one of you shulde knowe how to kepe his vessell in holynes and honoure, & not in the lust of concupiscence, * as the heythen which knowe not God. And that no man go to farre, ner defraude his brother in bargaynynge. For the LORDE is the auenger of all soch thinges, as we haue sayde & testified vnto you afore tyme. For God hath not called vs to vncleannesse, but vnto holynes. * He therfore that despyseth, despyseth not man, but God, * which hath geuen his holy spirite into you.

But as touchinge brotherly loue, ye nede not that I wryte vnto you, * for ye youre selues are taught of God to loue one another: yee and that thinge ye do vnto all the brethē, which are thorow out all Macedonia. But we beseke you brethren that ye increace yet more and more, and that ye study to be quyete, and to medle with youre awne busynesse, * and to worke with youre awne hādes, as we commaunded you, that ye maye walke honestly towarde thē that are without, and that nothinge be lacknge vnto you.

We wolde not brethren that ye shulde be ignorāunt concernynge them which are fallen a slepe, that ye sorowe not as other do which haue no hope. For yf we beleue that Jesus dyed and rose agayne, euen so thē also which slepe by Jesus, shal God bringe with him. For this we saye vnto you in the worde of the LORDE, * that we which lyue and are remaynynge in the cōmynge of the LORDE, shal not come yer they which slepe. * For the LORDE himselfe shal come downe frō hea nen with a shoute and voyce of ỹ Archan gell and with the trompe of God, and the dead in Christ shal aryse first: then shal we which lyue and remayne, be caught vp wt them also in the cloudes, to mete the LOR-DE in the ayre, and so shal we euer be with the LORDE. Wherfore comforte youre sel-ues one another with these wordes.

The V. Chapter.

BVt of ỹ tymes and seasons (brethrē) it is no nede to wryte vnto you. For ye youre selues knowe perfectly, that * the daye of the LORDE shal come euen as a thefe in the nighte. For whan they shal saye: Tush, It is peace, there is no daunger, then shall soden destruccion come vpō thē, euen as the payne of a woman trauaylinge with childe, and they shal not escape. But ye brethren are not in darknes, that that daye shulde come on you as a thefe. Ye are altogether children of lighte, and children of the daye. We are not of the night, nether of darknesse.

* Therfore let vs not slepe as do other, but let vs watch, and be sober. For they that slepe, slepe in the nighte: and they that be dronken, are dronken in the nighte. But let vs which are of the daye, be sober, armed wt the brestplate of faith and loue, and with ỹ helmet of hope to saluacion.

For God hath not appoynted vs vnto wrath, but to optayne saluacion by ỹ mea-nes of oure LORDE Jesu Christ, which dyed for vs: that whether we wake or slepe, we shulde lyue together with him. Wherfore comforte youre selues together, and edifye one another, euen as ye do.

We beseke you brethren, * that ye knowe them which laboure amonge you, and haue the oversighte of you in the LORDE, and ge ue you exhortacion, that ye haue thē the mo ce with them. We desyre you brethrē, warne them that are vnruly, cōforte the feble myn ded, forbeare the weake, be pacient towarde all men. * See that none recompence euell for euell vnto eny man: but euer folowe that which is good, both amōge youre selues and

Chap. I. He thanketh God for their faith and loue, and prayeth for the increase of the same.

Chap. II. He sheweth them that the daye of the LORDE shal not come, till the departinge frō the faith come first: and therfore he exhorteth them not to be disceaued, but to stonde stedfast in the thinges that he hath taught them.

Chap. III. He desyreth them to praye for him that the gospell maye prospere, and geueth the warnynge to reproue the ydle, and yf they wil not labour with their handes, that they shal not eate.

PAVL and Siluanus and Timotheus. A
To the congrega-cion of ỹ Tessalonias in God oure father and in the LORDE Jesus Christ.

Grace be with you, and peace from God oure father, and from the LORDE Jesus Christ.

We are bounde to thanke God allwayes for you brethren, as it is mete: because that youre faith groweth exceadingly, and the loue of euery one of you increaseth towarde another amōge youre selues, so that we oure selues make oure boast of you (in the congre gacions of God) of youre pacience and faith in all youre persecucions and troubles that ye suffre, which is a token of the righteous iudgment of God, that ye are counted wor thy of the kyngdome of God, for the which ye also suffre.

For it is a righteous thinge with God, to recõpence tribulacion vnto thē ỹ trouble you: but vnto you which are troubled, rest with vs, * whā the LORDE Jesus shal shewe himselfe from heauen, with the angels of his power, and with flammynge * fyre, to geue vengeaūce vnto them that knowe not God, * and to them that obeye not the Gospell of oure LORDE Jesus Christ. * Which shalbe punyshed with euerlastinge damnacion, * from ỹ presence of the LORDE, and from the glory of his power, whan he shal come to be glorified in his sayntes, and to be come marvelous in all them that beleue: because ye haue beleued oure testimony vnto you of the same daye. * Wherfore we praye allwayes for you, that oure God make you worthy of ỹ callynge, and fulfill all delectacion of goodnes, and the worke of faith in power, that ỹ name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ maye be praysed in you, and ye in him, acordinge to the grace of oure God, and of the LORDE Jesus Christ.

The II. Chapter.

A WE beseke you brethren by the commynge of ỹ LORDE Jesus Christ, and in that we shal assemble vnto him, that ye be not sodenly moued frō youre mynde, and be not troubled, nether by sprete, nether by wordes, ner yet by letter, which shulde seme to be sent from vs, as though ỹ daye of Christ were at hande. Let noman disceaue you by eny meanes. For the LORDE commeth not, excepte the * departynge come first, and that that Man of synne be opened, euen the sonne of perdicion, which is an aduersary, and is exalted aboue all ỹ is called God or Gods seruyce, so that he sytteth as God in the * temple of God, * and boasteth himselfe to be God.

But we are bounde to geue thankes allwaye vnto God for you, brethren beloued of the LORDE, because that God hath from the begynnynge chosen you to saluacion in the sanctifienge of the sprete and in beleynge of the trueth, whervnto he hath called you by oure Gospell, to optayne the glory of oure LORDE Jesus Christ.

Therfore brethren stonde fast, and kepe the ordinaunces which ye haue lerned, whether it were by oure preachinge or by epistle. But oure LORDE Jesus Christ himselfe, and God oure father, which hath loued vs and geuen vs euerlastinge consolacion, and a good hope thorow grace, comforte youre hertes, and stablysshe you in all doctryne & good doynge.

The III. Chapter.

FVrthermore brethren * praye for vs, that the worde of God maye haue free passage and be glorified as it is with you, and that we maye be delyuered from vnreasonable and euell mē. * For faith is not euery mās. But the LORDE is faithfull, which shal stablysshe you and kepe you from euell. We haue confidence in the LORDE to you warde, that ye both do and will do that which we cōmaunde you. The LORDE gyde youre hertes vnto the loue of God and pacience of Christ.

* But we requyre you brethren, in the name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw youre selues from euery brother that walketh inordinatly, and not after the institucion which he receaued of vs. For ye yo' selues knowe, how ye oughte to folowe vs: for we behaued not oure selues inordinatly amonge you, nether toke we bred of eny man for naughte * but wrought wt labour and trauayle night and daye, lest we shulde be chargeable to eny of you. Not but that we had auctorite, but to geue oure selues for an ensample vnto you to folowe vs. And whan we were wt you, this we warned you of, that yf there were eny which wolde not worke, ỹ same shulde not eate. For we heare saye, that there are some which walke amonge you inordinatly, and worke not at all, but are busy bodies. * But them that are soche we commaunde and exhorte by oure LORDE Jesus Christ, that they worke with quyetnes, and eate their awne bred.

Neuertheles brethren, * be not ye weery of well doynge. * But yf eny man obey not oure sayenges, sende vs worde of him by a letter, and haue nothinge to do with him, ỳ he maye be ashamed. Yet counte him not as an enemye, but warne him as a brother.

The very LORDE of peace geue you peace allwayes by all meanes. The LORDE be with you all. The salutacion of me Paul with myne awne hande: This is the token in all epistles, So I wryte, The grace of oure LORDE Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

Chap. V. He teacheth him how he shal behaue himselfe in rebukynge all degrees. An ordre concernynge wyddowes.

Chap. VI. The dutye of seruauntes towarde their masters. Agaynst soch as are not satisfied with the worde of God. Agaynst cuvetousnes. A good lesson for riche men.

The first Chapter.

Aul an Apostle of Jesus Christ accordinge to the * commaundement of God oure Sauioure, and of the LORDE Jesus Chuist, * which is oure hope. A Act.9.b 1.Tess.1.a

Vnto Timothy my naturall sonne in the faith.

Grace, mercy, and peace from God oure father, and oure LORDE Jesus Chuist.

As I besoughte ỳ to abyde still at Ephesus (* whan I departed in to Macedonia) euē so do, that thou commaunde some, that they teach none other wyse, * nether gene hede to fables and genealogies, which are endlesse, and brede doutes more then godly edifyenge, which is by faith. * For ỳ chefe summe of the commaundement is love of a pure hert, and of a good cōscience, and of faith vnfayned. From the which some haue erred, & haue turned vnto vayne iangelynge, wyllinge to be doctours of the scripture, and vnderstonde not what they speake, nether wherof they affirme. Act.19.20. 2.Tim.2.c Tit.3.b Rom.13.b Gal.6.a

B * But we knowe that the lawe is good, ỳf a man vse it lawfully, vnderstōdinge this, * that the lawe is not genen vnto the righteous, but to the vnrighteous & disobedient, to the vngodly & to synners, to the vnholy & vncleane, to murthurers of fathers and murthurers of mothers, to manslayers, to whoremongers, * to thē that defyle them selues with mankynde, to menstealers, to lyars, to periured, & so forth ỳf there be eny other thinge ỳ is cōtrary to ỳ wholsome doctryne, accordinge to ỳ Gospell of ỳ glory of the blessed God, which (Gospell) is cōmytted vnto me. Rom.7.b Gal.3.c Rom.1.d

And I thanke Christ Jesus o' LORDE, which hath made me stronge, for he counted me faithfull, & put me in office, whā before I was a blasphemer, * & a persecuter, & a tyraunt: but I optayned mercy, because I dyd it ignorauntly in vnbelefe. Neuertheles the grace of o' LORDE was more abūdaunt, with fayth & loue which is in Christ Jesu. Act.9.a Gal.1.b

C For this is a true sayenge, and by all meanes worthy to be receaued, * that Christ Jesus came in to ỹ worlde to saue synners, of whom I am chefe. Notwithstondynge for this cause optayned I mercy, that Jesus Christ mighte pryncipally shewe in me all longe pacience, to the ensample of them which shulde beleue in him vnto eternall life. So then vnto God kynge euerlastinge, immortall and * invisible, and wyse onely, be honoure and prayse for euer and euer Amen.

This commaundement commytte I vnto the (my sonne Timotheus) accordinge to ỹ prophecies which in tyme past were prophecied of the, that thou in them shuldest fighte a good fighte, haynge faith & good conscience, which some haue put awaye frō them, and as concernynge faith haue made shypwracke: of whose nombre is * Hymeneos and * Alexander, * whom I haue delyuered vnto Sathan, that they might be taught, nomore to blaspheme.

A I Exhorte therfore, ỹ aboue all thinges, prayers, supplicacions, intercessions and geuynge of thākes be had for all men * for kynges, and for all that are in auctorite, that we maye lyue a quyete & peaceable life in all godlynes and honestie. For that is good and accepted in ỹ sighte of God oure Sauioure, which wil haue all men saued, and to come vnto the knowlege of ỹ trueth. For there is one God, and * one mediatour betwene God and men, (namely) the man Christ Jesus, which gaue him selfe a raunsome for all men, that at his tyme it shulde be preached, wherevnto * I am ordeyned a preacher & an Apostle (I tell ỹ trueth in Christ and lye not) a teacher of the Heythē in faith and in the trueth.

The III. Chapter.

THis is a true sayēge: Yf a mā coueyt ỹ office of a Bisshoppe, he desyreth a good worke. But a Bisshoppe must be blameles, * the husbāde of one wife, sober, discrete, manerly, harberous, * apte to teach: Not geuen to moch wyne, no fighter, not geuen to filthy lucre: but gentle, abhorrynge stryfe, abhorrynge couetousnes: & one that ruleth his awne house honestly, hauynge obedient children with all honestye. (But yf a man can not rule his owne house, how shal he care for the congregacion of God:) He maye not be a yōge scolar, lest he be pust vp, and fall in to the iudgment of ỹ euell speaker. He must also haue a good reporte of them which are without, lest he fall in to the rebuke and snare of the euell speaker.

Likewyse must the * mynisters be honest, & not double tonged, not geuen to moch wyne, nether vnto fylthie lucre, but hauynge the mystery of faith in pure conscience. And let them first be proued, and then let them mynister, yf they be blameles.

Euen so must their wyues be honest, not euell speakers, but sober and faithfull in all thinges. Let the mynisters be, euery one the husbāde of one wyfe, and soch as rule their children well, and their owne housholdes. * For they that mynister well, get them selues a good degree and greate libertye in the faith which is in Christ Jesu.

These thinges wryte I vnto the, trustinge shortly to come vnto the: but yf I tary lōge, that then thou mayest yet haue knowlege, how thou oughtest to behaue thy selfe in Gods house, which is the congregacion of the lyuynge God, the piler and grounde of trueth: and without naye, greate is that mystery of godlynes. * God was shewed in the flesh: was iustified in the spirite: * was seene of angels: was preached vnto the Heythen: was beleued on in the worlde: * was receaued vp in glory.

The IIII. Chapter.

THe spirite speaketh euydently, * that in ỹ latter tymes sōme shal * departe from the faith, and shal geue hede vnto spirites of errour, and deuelish doctrynes, of them which speake false thorow ypocrysie, and haue their cōscience marked with an whote yron, forbyddinge to mary, and cōmaundynge to abstayne frō the meates, which God hath created to be receaued wt geuynge thankes of them which beleue and knowe the trueth. * For euery creature off God is good, and nothinge to be refused, yt is receaued with thankesgeuynge: for it is sanctifyed by the worde of God and prayer. If thou shalt put the brethren in remembraunce of these thinges, thou shalt be a good myniſter of Jesu Christ, * which hast bene norished vp in the wordes of faith and of good doctryne, which thou hast folowed hither to.

* As for vngooſtly and olde wyues fables, cast them awaye, but exercyse thy selfe vnto godlynes. For bodely exercyse profyteth litle, but godlynes is profytable vnto all thinges, as a thinge which hath promyses of the life that is now, and of the life for to come. This is a sure sayenge, & of all partes worthy to be receaued. For therfore we laboure and suffre rebuke, because we hope in the lyuynge God, which is the Sauioure of all men, but specially of those that beleue. Soch thinges commaunde thou and teach. * Let no man despyse yt youth, * but be thou vnto them that beleue, an ensample, in worde, in cõuersacion, in loue, in yt spirite, in faith, in pureneſſe.

Geue attendaunce to readynge, to exhortacion, to doctryne, vntyll I come. Be not necligent in the gifte that is geuen the thorow prophecye, * with layẽge on of the handes of the Elders. These thinges exercyse, and geue thy selfe vnto them, that thine increace maye be manifest vnto euery man. Take hede vnto thy selfe, and to learnynge, cõtynue in these thinges. For yf thou so do, thou shalt saue thy selfe, and them that hearethe.

The V. Chapter.

REbuke not an Elder, but exhorte him as a father: and the yõger men as brethren: the elder wemen as mothers: the yonger as sisters with all pureneſs. Honor wedowes, which are true wedowes. If eny wedowe haue children or neves, let them lerne first to rule their awne houses godly, and to recompence their elders. For yis good & acceptable before God. * But she that is a right wedowe, & desolate, putteth hir trust in God, & cõtynueth in prayer and supplicacion nighte and daye. But she that lyueth in pleasures, is deed, euen yet a lyue. And these thinges commaunde, that they maye be without blame. * But yf there be eny man that prouydeth not for his awne, and specially for them of his houſhold, the same hath denyed the faith, and * is worse then an infydele. 1. Pet. 2. d

Let no wedowe be chosen vnder three score yeare olde, and soch one as was yt wife of one man, and well reported of in good workes, yf she haue brought vp children well, yf she haue bene * harberous, yf she haue washed the sayntes fete, yf she haue myniſtred vnto thẽ which were in aduersite, yf she were continually geuen to all maner of good workes. But yt yonger wedowes refuse. For whan they haue begonne to waxe wanton agaynst Christ, then wil they mary, hauynge their damnacion, because they haue broke yt first faith. Besydes this they are ydell, and lerne to runne aboute frõ house to house. * Not onely are they ydell, but also tryflinge & busybodies, speakynge thinges which are not comly. 1. Pet. 4. b B Tit. 2. a

* I wil therfore that the yonger wemen mary, beare children, gyde the house, to geue yt aduersary no occasion to speake euell. For some are turned back allready after Sathã. If eny man or woman that beleueth haue wedowes, let them make prouysion for thẽ, and let not the congregacion be charged: that they which are righte wedowes, maye haue ynough. 1. Cor. 7. a

The Elders that rule well, are worthy of double honoure, most specially they which laboure in the worde & in teachinge. For yt scripture sayeth: * Thou shalt not mosell the mouth of yt oxe yt treadeth out yt corne. And: * The labourer is worthy of his reward. C Deut. 25. a 1. Cor. 9. b *Mat 10. a

* Agaynst an Elder receaue none accusacion, but vnder two or three witnesses. Thẽ that synne, rebuke in the presence of all, that other also maye feare. Deut. 19. c

I testifye before God and the LORDE Jesus Christ, and yt electe angels, that thou obserue these thinges without haistie iudgment, and do nothinge parcially. Laye hondes sodenly on no mã, nether be partaker of other mẽs synnes. Kepe yt selfe pure. * Drynke no lenger water, but vse a litle wyne for yt stomackes sake, and because thou art oft tymes sicke. Some mẽs synnes are opẽ, so that they maye be iudged afore hande: but some mens (synnes) shal be manifest heraftter. Likewyse also good workes are manifest afore hãde: and they that are other wyse can not be hyd. Eccli. 31. d

The VI. Chapter.

LEt as many seruauntes as are vnder the yocke, counte their maysters worthy of all honoure, that the name of God and his doctrine be not euell spoken of. Se that they which haue beleuynge masters, despyse them not because they are brethrē, but rather do seruyce, for so moch as they are beleuynge, and beloued, and partakers of the benefite.

These thinges teach and exhorte. Yf eny mā teach otherwyse, and agreeth not vnto the wholsome wordes of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, and to the doctryne of godlynes, he is puft vp, and knoweth nothinge, but waysteth his brayne aboute questions and Chap. II. Like as in the first chapter, so hath he exhorteth him to be constant in trouble, to suffre manly, and to byde fast in the wholsome doctrine of oure LORDE Jesus Christ.

Chap. III. He prophecieth of the parelous tymes, setteth out ypocrites in their colours, & leth vs what they be within, for all their fayre faces outwardly. Persecucion for the gospell.

Chap. IIII. He exhorteth Timothy to be stedfast in the worde, and to suffre aduersite: maketh mension of his awne death, and byddeth Timothy come vnto him.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the wyll of God, to preach the promes of ỹ life which is in Christ Jesu.

To my deare sonne Timotheus.

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the father and from Christ Jesu oure LORDE.

I thanke God, * whome I serue from my fore elders in a pure conscience, that without ceassynge I make mencion of the in my prayers night and daye: and longe to se the (whan I remembre thy teares) so that I am fylled with ioye, whan I call to remembraunce the vnfayned faith that is in the, which dwelt first in thy graundemother Lois, and in thy mother Eunice: And am assured, that it dwelleth in ỹ also. Wherfore I warne the, that thou stere vp ỹ gifte of God which is in the by puttynge on of my handes. * For God hath not geuen vs the spirete of feare, but of power, and of loue, and of right vnderstondynge.

* Be not thou ashamed therfore of ỹ testimony of ỹ LORDE, nether of me, * which am his presoner: but suffre thou aduersite also wt the Gospell, acordinge to the power of God * which hath saued vs, and called vs with an holy callynge: not acordinge to oure dedes, but acordinge to his owne purpose and grace, which was geuen vs in Christ Jesu before the tyme of the worlde, but is now declared openly by the appearynge of oure Sauioure Jesu Christ. * Which hath taken awaye ỹ power of death, and hath brought life and immortalite vnto lighte, thorow the Gospell: * wherunto I am appoynted a preacher and an Apostell, and a teacher of the heythen: for the which cause I also suffre these thinges, nevertheles I am not ashamed. For I knowe whom I haue beleued, and am sure that he is able to kepe that which I haue commytted vnto his kepynge agaynst that daye.

* Holde the after ỹ ensample of the whol some wordes, which thou heardest of me, concernynge faith and loue in Christ Jesu. This hye charge kepe thou thorow the holy goost, which dwelleth in vs. This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia, be turned fro me, of which sorte are Phigelus and Hermogenes. The LORDE geue mercy vnto the house of * Onesiphorus: for he oft refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my cheyne: but whan he was at Rome * he soughte me out very diligently, and founde me. The LORDE graunte vnto him, that he maye fynde mercy with the LORDE in that daye. And how mych he ministred vnto me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well.

The ij. Chapter.

Thou therfore my sonne, be stronge thorow the grace which is in Christ Jesu. And what thinges thou hast herde of me by many witnesses, * the same commytte thou vnto faithfull men, which are apte to teach other. Thou therfore suffre affliccion as a good soudyer off Jesu Christ. No mā that warreth, tangleth him selfe with wordly busynesses, ỹ that be cause he wolde please him, which hath chosen him to be a soudyer. And though a man stryue for a mastrye, yet is he not crowned, except he stryue lawfully. * The husbandman that laboureth, must first enioye the frutes. Consydre what I saye. The LORDE shal geue the vnderstondynge in all thinges.

Remembre that Jesus Christ, beynge * of the sede of David, rose agayne frō the dede, acordynge to my Gospell, wherin I suffre as an euell doer euen vnto bandes: but the worde of God is not bounde. * Therfore suffre I all for the electes sakes, that they also mighte optayne the salvacion in Christ Jesu with eternall glory.

This is a true sayenge: * If we be dede wt him, we shal lyue with him also: * If we be pacient, we shal also raigne with him: * If we denye him, he also shal denye vs: * If we beleue not, yet abydeth he faithfull, he can not denye himselfe. Of these thinges put thou them in remēbraunce, and testifye before the LORDE, that they stryue not about wordes, which is to no profit, but to peruerte the hearers.

Study to shewe thy selfe vnto God a laudable workman, that nedeth not to be ashamed, denydynge the worde of trueth iustly. * As for vngoostly and vayne talkynges, eschue them: for they helpe moch to vngodlynes, and their worde fretteth as doth a canker: Of whose nombre is * Hymeneos ỹ Philetus, which as concernynge the trueth haue erred, sayenge, that the resurreccion is past allready, and haue destroyed the faith of dyuerse personnes.

But ỹ sure grounde of God stondeth fast, and hath this seale: * The LORDE knoweth them that are his, and let euery mā that calleth vpon the name of Christ, departe from iniquyte. Not withstondynge * in a greate house are not onely vessels of golde and of syluer, but also of wod and of earth: some for honoure, and some to dishonoure. But ỹ a man pourge himselfe from soch felowes, he shalbe a vessell sanctified vnto honoure, mete for the LORDE, and prepared vnto all good workes. * Fle thou the lustes of youth but folowe righteousnes, faith, loue, peace with all them that call vpon the LORDE with pure hert. * As for folish questions and soch as teach not, put them frō the: for thou knowest that they do but gēder stryfe. The seruaunt of the LORDE ought not to stryue, but to be gentle vnto euery man: apte to teach, one that can forbeare the euell, one ỹ can * with mekenesse enfourme hem ỹ re[sist] ỹ of God at eny tyme wyl geue the[m] taunce for to knowe the trueth [and] agayne from the snare of th[e] are holden in preson of him

The seconde epistle vnto Timothy, wrytten from Rome, whā Paul was presented the seconde tyme before the Emperoure Nero.

The Epiſtle of the Apoſtle S. Paul vnto Titus.

The ſumme of this epiſtle.

Chap. I. Paul exhorteth Titus to ordene preſtes or biſſhoppes in euery cite, declareth what maner of men they ought to be that are choſen to that office, and chargeth Titus to rebuke ſoch as withſtonde the goſpell.

Chap. II. He telleth him how he ſhal teach all degrees to behaue them ſelues.

Chap. III. Of obedience to ſoch as be in auctorite. He warneth Titus to bewarre of fooliſh and vnprofitable queſtions.

The firſt Chapter.

PAVL the ſeruaunt of God, and an Apoſtle off Jeſus Chriſt, * to preach the faith off Gods electe, and the knowlege of ỹ trueth, which ledeth vnto godlynes, vpon the hope of eternall life: which God * that can not lye hath promyſed before the tymes of the worlde: but at his tyme hath opened his worde thorow preachinge, which is commytted vnto me acordinge to the commaundemēt of God oure Sauioure.

* Vnto Titus my naturall ſonne after ỹ comen faith.

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the father, and frō the * LORDE Jeſu Chriſt oure Sauioure.

For this cauſe left I the in Creta, that thou ſhuldeſt perfourme that which was lackynge, and ſhuldeſt ordeyne Elders in euery cite, as I appoynted ỹ. If eny be blameleſſe, the hußbande of one wife, hauynge faithfull children, which are not ſlaundred of ryote, nether are diſhobedient. * For a Biſſhoppe muſt be blameleſſe, as the * ſtewarde of God: not wylfull, not angrye, * not geuen vnto moch wyne, no fyghter, not gredye of filthye lucre: but harbarous, one that loueth goodnes, ſobermynded, righteous, holy, temperate, and ſoch one as cleueth vnto the true worde of doctryne: that he maye be able to exhorte with wholſome lernynge, & to improue them that ſaye agaynſt it.

* For there are many diſhobedient, and talkers of vanite, and diſceauers of myndes: namely they of the circūciſion, whoſe mouthes muſt be ſtopped: * which peruerte whole houſes, teachinge thinges which they oughte not, becauſe of filthye lucre. One of them ſelues euen their awne prophet, ſayde: * The Cretayns are alwayes lyars, euell beeſtes, and ſlowe belies. This witneſſe is true. Wherfore rebuke them ſharply, ỹ they maye be ſounde in the faith, and not to take hede vnto Jewes fables and commaundementes of men, which turne them awaye from the trueth. * Vnto ỹ cleane are all thinges clene: but * to the vncleane & vnbeleuers, there is nothinge cleane, but both their mynde & conſcience is defyled. They ſaye that they knowe God, but with the dedes they denye him: for ſo moch as they are abhominable and diſhobedient, and vnmete to all good workes.

The II. Chapter.

BVt ſpeake thou that which becommeth wholſome lernynge. That ỹ elder men be ſober, honeſt, diſcrete, ſounde in the faith, in loue, in pacience. And the elder wemen likewyſe that they ſhewe them ſelues as it becommeth holynes, that they be no falſe accuſers, not geuen to moch wyne, that they teach honeſt thinges, that they enfourme the yonge wemen to be ſobermynded, to loue their hußbandes, to loue their childrē, to be diſcrete, chaſte, hußwyfly, good, * obedient vnto their awne hußbandes, that the worde of God be not euell ſpoken of. Exhorte the yonge men likewyſe, that they be ſobermynded. Aboue all thinge ſhewe thy ſelfe * an enſample off good workes, with vncorrupte doctryne, with honeſtye, with the wholſome worde which can not be rebuked: * that he which withſtōdeth maye be aſhamed, hauynge nothinge in you that he maye diſpraiſe.

* Exhorte the ſeruauntes, to be obedient vnto their maſters, to pleaſe in all thinges, not anſwerynge agayne, nether to be pykers, but to ſhewe all good faithfulnes in all thinges they maye do to the doctryne off God oure Sauioure. For the grace of God that bryngeth

I thanke my God, makynge mencion all

I heare of thy loue and faith which thou hast on the LORDE Jesu, and towarde all consolacion haue I in thy loue. For by the Wherfore though I haue great boldnes in Christ to commaunde the that which becommeth the, yet for loues sake I rather beseke ỹ, though I be as I am, euē Paul aged, and now a presoner also of Jesu Christ. I beseke the for my sonne * Onesimus (whom I haue begotten in my bondes) which in ty profitable both to the and me. Whom I sha-

Yf thou holde me for thy companyon, receaue him then euen as my selfe. But yf he haue hurte the, or oweth the oughte, that laye to my charge. I Paul haue wrytten it with myne awne hande, I wil recompence it: so that I do not saye vnto ỹ, how that thou owest vnto me euen thine owne selfe. The first Epistle of the Apostle S. Peter.

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. I. He sheweth that thorow the abundaunt mercy of God we are begotten agayne to a lyuely hope: and how faith must be tryed: how the saluacion in Christ is no newes, but a thinge prophecied of olde. He exhorteth them to a godly conuersacion, for so moch as they are now borne a new by the worde of God.

Chap. II. He exhorteth men to laye asyde all vyce, sheweth that Christ is the foundacion wher vpon they be buylt, prayeth them to absteyne frõ fleshly lustes, and to obeye worldly rulers. Yow seruauntes shulde behaue them selues towarde their masters. He exhorteth to suffre after the ensample of Christ.

Chap. III. Yow wyues ought to ordre them selues towarde their husbandes and in their apparell. The dutye of mẽ towarde their wyues. He exorteth all men to vnite and loue, and patiently to suffre trouble. Of true baptyme.

Chap. IIII. He exhorteth men to ceasse from syne, to spende no more tyme in vyce, to be sober and apte to prayer, to loue eche other, to be pacient in trouble, and to bewarre that no man suffre as an euell doer, but as a Cristen man, and not to be ashamed.

Chap. V. A specialll exhortacion for all bisshoppes or prestes to fede the flocke of Christ, and what their dutie is, and what rewarde they shal haue yf they be diliget. He exhorteth yonge personnes to submytt thẽ selues to the elder, euery one to loue another, to be sober, & to watch, that they maye resist the enemye.

The first Epistle of the Apostle S. Peter.

The first Chapter.

PETER an Apostle of Jesu Christ, to thẽ that dwell here and there as straungers thorow out pontus, Galacia, Capadocia, Asia and Bithinia, electe acordinge to the foreknowlege of God the father thorow sanctifienge of the spirete, vnto obedience and * sprenklynge of the bloude of Jesus Christ. Heb. 9. b and 10. c

Grace and peace be multiplied with you.

* Blessed be God and the father of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, which acordinge to his greate mercy hath begotten vs agayne vnto a lyuely hope * by the resurreccion of Jesus Christ from the deed, to an vncorruptible and vndefyled inheritaunce, which neuer shal fade awaye, but is reserued in heauen for you that are kepte by the power of God thorow faith to saluacion, which is prepared all ready to be shewed in the last tyme: in the which ye shal reioyse, though now for a litle season (yff nede requyre) ye are in heuynes thorow manyfolde temptacions: that youre faith once tryed (beynge moch more precious then the corruptible golde that is tryed thorow the fyre) might be founde vnto laude, glory and honoure at the appearynge of Jesus Christ: whom ye haue not sene, and yet loue him: * in whom now ye belene, though ye se him not. Euen so shal ye reioyce also with mouthspeakable and glorious ioye, receauynge the ende of youre faith, euen the saluacion of youre soules. 2. Cor. 1. a Ephe. 1. a 1. Co. 15. c Joh. 20. d

Of which saluacion the prophetes haue enquyred and searched, which prophecied off the grace that shulde come vpon you: searchinge whan or at what tyme the spirete off Christ that was in them, shulde signifye, which (spirete) testified before the passions that shulde come vnto Christ, and the glory that shulde folowe after. Vnto the which (prophetes) it was declared, that not vnto them selues, but vnto vs they shulden ymister the thinges which are now shewed vnto you, bythem which thorow holy goost sent downe from heauen, haue preached vnto you the thinges which angels delyte to beholde.

Wherfore gyrde op the * loynes of youre mynde, be sober, and truste on the grace that is brought vnto you, by the declarynge of Jesus Christ, as obedient children, not fashionynge youre selues to yo^r olde lustes of ignoraunce: but as he which hath called you is holy, euē so be ye holy also in all youre conuersacion: for it it wrytte: Leuit 11. g and 19 a * Be ye holy, for I am holy.

And yf so be that ye call on the father, which without respecte of personnes iudgeth * acordynge to euery mans worke, se yͭ ye passe yͭ tyme of youre pilgremage in feare: and knowe, that ye were not redemed wͭ corruptible syluer and golde, from youre vayne conuersacion (which ye receaued by the tradicions of the fathers) * but with the precious bloude of Christ, as of an innocēt and vndefyled lambe, which was ordeyned before the worlde was made, but is declared in these last tymes, for youre sakes, which thorow him beleue on God, that raysed him vp from the dede, * and hath geuē him the glory, that ye might haue faith & hope in God: Mat. 25. c 1. Cor. 6. c and 7. c Heb. 9. b 1 Ioh. 1. b Apo 1 a D Esa. 9 b Luc 2. b * Phil. 2. a Act. 15. b Euen ye which haue purifyed youre soules * in obeyenge the trueth thorow the spirite, for to loue brotherly without fayninge, & fervently one to loue another wͭ a pure hert, as they that are borne a new, not of corruptible sede, but of vncorruptible, euē by the lyuynge worde of God, which endureth for euer. * For all flesh is as grasse, and all the glory of man is as the floure of grasse. The grasse withereth, & the floure fadeth awaye but the worde of the LORDE endureth for euer. This is the worde, that is preached amonge you. Esa. 40. a Eccli. 14. b Jaco 1. b

The II. Chapter.

Wherfore laye aside all maliciousnes and all gyle, and ypocrisye, and envye, and all backbytinge, & * as new borne babes desyre that reasonable mylke, which is without corrupcion, that ye maye growe therin, yf so be that ye haue * taisted how frendly the LORDE is. Vnto whom ye are come, * as to the lyuynge stone, which is disalowed of men, but chosen of God and precious. And ye also as lyuynge stones are made a spirituall house, and an holy prestho de, to offre vp * spirituall sacrifices, acceptable vnto God by Jesus Christ. Wherfore it is conteyned in the scripture: * Beholde, I put in Sion an heade corner stone, electe & precious, and he that beleueth on him, shal be cōfounded. Vnto you therfore which he is precious: but vnto them that is yͭ same stone which the * buyl made the heade stone in the cor one to stomble at, and a rock Ephe. 4. a Col. 3. a Hebr. 12. a a a Psal 33 a Ephe 2. c Rom 12. a Esa. 28. c Mat. 21. c Act 4. a Psal 1 Esa 8. c to be offended at, namely in thē which stomble at yͭ worde, and beleue not that wherof they were set.

* But ye are that chosen generacion, that kyngly presthode, that holy nacion, that peculier people, yͭ ye shulde shewe the vertues of him, which hath called you out of darknesse in to his marvelous lighte: * Euen you which in tyme past were not a people, but now are the people of God: which were not vnder mercy, but now haue optayned mercy.

Dearly beloued, I beseke you as straungers and pilgrems, * absteyne frō the fleshly lustes, which fighte agaynst the soule, and lede an honest conuersacion amonge the heythen, * that they which backbyte you as euell doers, maye se youre good workes, and prayse God in the daye of visitacion.

Submytte youre selues vnto all manner ordinaunce of men for the LORDES sake: whether it be vnto the kynge as vnto yͭ chefe heade, or vnto rulers, as vnto them that are sent of him, for the punyshment of euell doers, but for the prayse of thē that do well. For so is the will of God, that ye with well doynge shulde put to sylence the ignoraunce of folishmen: as fre, and not as hauynge the libertye for a cloke of wickednes, but euē as the seruauntes of God. Honoure all men. Loue brotherly fellishippe. Feare God. * Honoure the kynge.

* Ye seruauntes, obey youre masters with all feare: not onely yf they be good and curteous, but also though they be frowarde. For that is grace, yf a man for conscience towarde God endure grefe, and suffre wronge. For what prayse is it, yf whā ye be bussted for yo^r fautes, ye take it pacyently? * But yf whan ye do well, ye suffre wronge, and take it pacyently, that is grace with God. For here vnto are ye called, for so moch as Christ also suffred for vs, leauynge vs an * ensample, that ye shulde folowe his foresteppes, which dyd no synne, nether was there gyle founde in his mouth: * which whan he was reuyled, reuyled not agayne: whā he suffred, he threatened not: but commytted the cause vnto him, that iudgeth righteously: * which his owne selfe bare oure synnes in his body vpon the tre, that we shulde be delyvered from synne, & shulde lyue vnto righteousnes: by whose strypes ye were healed. * For ye were as shepe goinge astraye, but now are ye turned vnto the shepherde and Bissh̄oppe of youre soules.

The seconde Epistle of the Apostle S. peter.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. For so moch as the power of God hath geuen them all thinges pertayninge to life, he exhorteth thē to flye the corrupcion of worldly lust, to make their callynge sure with good workes and frutes of faith. He maketh mencion of his owne death, declaringe the LORDE Jesus to be the true sonne of God, as he himself hath sene vpon the mount.

Chap. II. He prophecieth of false teachers, and sheweth their punyshment.

Chap. III. He exhorteth men to beware of soch as wolde make thē beleue, that the dede of the LORDE were slacke in commynge: exhorteth them to lede a godly life, and to loke warely for the commynge of the LORDE, whose tarienge is saluacion, and because he wolde haue no man lost, but wolde receaue all men to repentaunce.

The first Chapter.

Symon Peter a seruaunt and an Apostle of Jesus Christ.

Vnto thē which haue optayned like fayth with vs in the righteousnes that commeth of oure God, and Sauioure Jesus Christ.

* Grace and peace be multiplied with you thorow the knowlege of God and of Jesus Christ oure LORDE.

For so moch as his godly power hath geuen vs all thinges (that pertayne vnto life and godlynes) thorow the knowlege of him that hath called vs by his owne glorie and power, wherby the excellent and most great promyses are geuē vnto vs: namely, that ye by the same shulde be * partakers of the godly nature, yf ye flye the corrupte lust of the worlde: Geue ye all youre diligence therfore here vnto, and in youre faith minister vertue: in vertue, knowlege: in knowlege, temperancy: in temperancy, pacience: in pacience, godlynes: in godlynes, brotherly loue: in brotherly loue, generall loue. For yf these thinges be plenteous in you, they will not let you be ydle nor vnfrutefull in ye knowlege of oure LORDE Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these thinges, is blynde, & gropeth for the waye with the hāde, and hath forgotten, that he was clensed from his olde synnes.

Wherfore (brethrē) geue the more diligence

ce, to make youre callynge and eleccion sure: for yf ye do soch thinges, ye shal not fall, and by this meanes shal there be plenteously mynistred vnto you an entrynge in vnto ỹ euerlastinge kyngdome of oure LORDE and Sauioure Jesus Christ.

C Therfore wil I not be necligēt to put you allwayes in remembraunce of soch thinges: though ye knowe them youre selues, and be stablished in the present trueth. Notwithstondinge I thinke it mete, as lōge as I am in this * tabernacle, to stere you vp by puttinge you in remembraunce. For I am sure, that I must shortly put of my tabernacle, euen as oure LORDE Jesus Christ hath shewed vnto me. Yet wyl I do my diligēce, that allwaye after my departynge ye maye haue wherwith to kepe these thinges in remembraunce.

For we folowed not deceaueable fables, whan we declared vnto you the power and commynge of oure LORDE Jesus Christ: * but with oure eyes we sawe his maiestie, whan he receaued of God the father honoure & prayse, by a voyce that came vnto him from the excellent glory, after this maner: * This is my deare sonne, in whom I haue delyte. And this voyce herde we broughte downe frō heauen, whan we were with him on the holy mount.

We haue also a sure worde of prophecie, and ye do well that ye take hede thervnto, as vnto a lighte * that shyneth in a darke place vntyll the daye dawne, and the daye starre aryse in youre hertes. And this shal ye knowe first, that no prophecie in the scripture is done of eny priuate interpretacion. * For the prophecie was neuer broughte by the wyll of man, but the holy men of God spake, as they were moued of ỹ holy goost.

The II. Chapter.

BVt there were false prophetes also amonge the people, * euen as there shalbe false teachers amonge you lykewyse, which preuely shal brynge in damnable sectes, euen denyenge the LORDE that hath boughte them, and shal brynge vpon them selues swift damnacion: and * many shal folowe their damnable wayes, by whō the waye of the trueth shal be euell spokē of: and thorow cuvetousnes shal they with fayned wordes make marchaundise of you, vpō whō the iudgment is not necligēt in tarienge of olde, and their damnacion slepeth not.

* For yf God spared not the angels that synned, but cast them downe with the cheynes of darknes in to hell, and delyuered thē ouer to be kepte vnto iudgment: * Nether spared the olde worlde, but saued Noe the preacher of righteousnes himselfe beynge ỹ eight, and brought the floude vpō the worlde of the vngodly: * And turned the cities of Sodom and Gomor into aßhes, ouerthrue them, damned them, and made on them an ensample, vnto those that after shulde lyue vngodly: And delyuered inst Loth which was vexed with the vngodly conuersacion of ỹ wicked. For in so moch as he was righteous and dwelt amonge them, so that he must nedes se it and heare it, his righteous soule was greued from to daye to daye with their vnlawfull dedes. * The LORDE knoweth how to delyuer the godly out of tentacion, and how to reserue the vniust vnto the daye of iudgment for to be punyshed: but specially them that walke after the flesh in ỹ lust C of vnclennes, and despyse the rulers: beynge presumptuous, stubborne, and feare not to speake euell of thē ỹ are in auctorite * whā the angels yet which are greater both in power and might, beare not that blasphemous iudgment agaynst them of the LORDE. * But these are as ỹ brute beestes, which naturally are broughte forth to be takē and destroyed: * speakynge euell of ỹ they knowe not, and shal perisshe in their owne destruccion, and so receaue ỹ rewarde of vnrighteousnes.

They counte it pleasure to lyue deliciously for a season: Spottes are they and fylthynes: lyuynge at pleasure and in disceaueable wayes: feastynge wt that which is youres, hauynge eyes full of aduoutrye, and cā not ceasse from synne, entysinge vnstable soules: hauynge an hert exercysed wt couetousnes: they are cursed children, and haue forsaken the righte waye, and are gone astraye: folowinge the waye of * Balaam the sonne of Bosor, which loued the rewarde of vnrighteousnes: but was rebuked of his iniquyte. The tame and domme beast spake with mās voyce, & forbad the foolishnes of ỹ prophet.

These are welles without water, & * cloudes caried aboute of a tēpest: to whō ỹ myst D of darknesse is reserued for euer. For they speake ỹ proude wordes of vanite, vnto ỹ vttemost, and entyse thorow wantannes vnto ỹ luste of the flesh, euen them that were cleane escaped, and now walke in errour: and promyse them libertye, where as they them selues are seruauntes off corrupcion. * For off whom so euer a man is ouercome, vnto the same is he in bondage. * For yf they (after they haue escaped from the fylthynes of the

A THis is the seconde Epistle that I now wryte vnto you (ye dearly beloued) wherin I stere vp and warne youre pure mynde, that ye maye remembre the wordes, which weretolde before of the holy prophetes: and also the commaundement of vs, that be the Apostles of the LORDE and Sauioure.

Yf all these thinges shal perisshe, what maner persons then ought ye to be in holy cōuersacion and godlynes, lokynge for and hastynge vnto the commynge of the LORDE: In the which the heauens shal perisshe with fyre, and the elementes shal melt with heate. Nevertheles * we loke for a new heauen and a new earth (acordynge to his promes) wherin dwelleth righteousnes.

Wherfore dearly beloued, seynge that ye loke for soch thinges, be diligent, ỹ ye maye be founde before him in peace without spot and vndefyled: and counte the longsufferynge of oure LORDE youre saluacion, Euen as oure dearly beloued brother Paul (acordinge to the wyßdome geuē vnto him) wrote vnto you: yee speakinge therof allmost in all Epistles, wherin are many thinges harde to be vnderstonde, which they that are vnlerned and vnstable, peruerte, as they do the other scriptures also, to their awne dānacion.

Ye therfore beloued, seynge ye knowe it before hande, bewarre, lest ye also be pluckt awaye thorow the errour of ỹ wicked, and fall from yo owne stedfastnes. But growe in grace, and in the knowlege of oure LORDE and Sauioure Jesus Christ. To him be prayse now and for euer, Amen.

The first Epistle of the Apostle and Euangelist S. Jhon.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. True wytnesse of the euerlastinge worde of God. The bloude of Christ is the purgacion from synne. No man is without synne.

Chap. II. Christ is oure aduocate. Of mās loue, and how it is tryed.

Chap. III. The synguler loue of God to vs warde vs: and how we agayne oughte to loue one another.

Chap. IIII. Difference of spretes, and how the spirete of God maye be knowne from the spirete of errour. Of the loue of God and of oure neighbours.

Chap. V. To loue God, is to kepe his commaundemētes. Faith ouercommeth the worlde. Euerlastinge life is in the sonne of God. Of the synne vnto death.

The first Chapter.

That which was from ỹ begynnynge, which we haue herde, which * we haue sene with ỹ eyes, which we haue loked vpon, * and ỹ handes haue handled of the worde of life: and the life hath appeared, and we haue sene, and beare wytnes, and shewe vnto you ỹ life that is euerlastinge, which was with the father, and hath apeared vnto vs. That which we haue sene & herde, declare we vnto you, that ye also maye haue felliship with vs, and that oure felliship maye be with the father and with his sonne Jesus Christ. And this wryte we vnto you, * that youre ioye maye be full.

And this is the tydinges which we haue herde of him, & declare vnto you, that God is lighte, and in him is no darknes at all. Yf we saye that we haue felliship with him, and yet walke in darknes, we lye, and do not the trueth. But yf we walke in lighte, euen as he is in lighte, then haue we felliship together, * and the blonde of Jesus Christ his sonne clenseth vs from all synne.

* Yf we saye that we haue no synne, we disceaue oure selues, and the trueth is not in vs. * But yf we knowlege oure synnes, he is faithfull and iust to forgeue vs oure synnes, & to clense vs from all vnrighteousnes. Yf we saye, we haue not synned, we make him a lyar, and his worde is not in vs.

The II. Chapter.

MY litle children, these thinges wryte I vnto you, that ye shulde not synne: and yf eny man synne, we haue an aduocate with the father, euen Jesus Christ which is righteous: * and he it is that optayneth grace for oure synnes: not for oure synnes onely, but also for the synnes of all the worlde. And hereby are we sure that we knowe him, yf we kepe his cõmaundemẽtes. * He that sayeth: I knowe him, and kepeth not his cõmaundemẽtes, is a lyar, and the trueth is not in him, But who so kepeth his worde, in him is the loue of God perfecte in dede. * Hereby knowe we, that we are in him. He ỹ sayeth he abydeth in him, oughte to walke euen as he walked. Ioh. 4.c Ioh. 13.d

Brethren, I wryte no new commaundement vnto you, but that olde commaundement, which ye haue herde from the begynnynge. The olde cõmaundement is the worde, which ye haue herde from the begynnynge. Agayne, * a new cõmaundemẽt wryte I vnto you, a thinge that is true in him & also in you: for the darknesse is past, and the true lighte now shyneth. Ioh. 13.d

He that sayeth he is in lighte, and hateth his brother, is yet in darknesse. He ỹ loueth his brother, abydeth in the lighte, and there is none occasion of euell in him. But he ỹ hateth his brother, is in darknes, and walketh in darknes, and can not tell whither he goeth, for ỹ darknes hath blynded his eyes. B

Babes, I wryte vnto you, * that yo^r synnes are forgeuen you for his names sake. I wryte vnto you fathers, how that ye haue knowne him which is from ỹ begynnynge. I wryte vnto you yonge mẽ, how that ye haue euercome the wicked. I wryte vnto you litle children, how that ye haue knowne the father. I haue wrytten vnto you fathers, how that ye haue knowne him, which is frõ the begynnynge. I haue wrytten vnto you yonge men, how that ye are stronge, and the worde of God abydeth in you, and ye haue ouercome that wicked. Luc. 24.c Act. 4.a

Se that ye loue not the worlde, nether ỹ thinges that are in the worlde. Yf eny man loue the worlde, the loue of the father is not in him: for all that is in the worlde (namely the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pryde of life) is not of the father, but of the worlde. And * the worlde passeth awaye and the lust therof. But he that fulfylleth the wyll of God, abydeth for euer. C 1.Cor. 7.d

Litle children, it is the last houre, and (as ye haue herde that * Antechrist shal come) euen now are there many become Antechristes allready: wherby we knowe, that it is ỹ last houre. They went out * frõ vs, but they were not of vs: for yf they had bene of vs, they wolde no doute haue contynued with vs. But * that they maye be knowne, how that they are not all of vs. Mat. 24.a Ioh. 5.d Ioh. 11.c Act. 20.d 1.Ioh. 2.b

But ye haue the * anoyntinge of the holy, & ye knowe all thinges. I haue written vnto you, as though ye knewe not ỹ trueth 1.Ioh. 2.b

but ye knowe it, & are ſure, ỹ no lye cõmeth of ỹ trueth. Who is a lyar, but he ỹ denyeth ỹ Jeſus is Chriſt? The ſame is ỹ Antichriſt, ỹ denyeth the father & ỹ ſonne. Whoſoeuer denyeth the ſonne, the ſame hath not the father. Loke what ye haue herde now from ỹ begynnynge, let the ſame abyde in you. Yf ỹ which he herde from the begynnynge ſhal remayne in you, then ſhal ye alſo abyde in ỹ ſonne and in the father. And this is the prõmes ỹ he hath promyſed vs, euẽ eternall life.

These haue I wrytte vnto you cõcerninge thẽ that diſceaue you. * And the anoyntinge which ye haue receaued of him, dwelleth in you: & ye nede not ỹ eny mã teach you, but as the anoyntinge teacheth you all thinges, euen ſo is it true, & is no lye. And as it hath taughte you, euẽ ſo abide ye therin. And now babes, abyde in hi, ỹ whã he ſhal appeare, we maye be bolde, & not be made aſhamed of him at his commynge. Yf ye knowe ỹ he is righteous, knowe alſo that he which doth righteouſnes, is borne of him.

Esa.54.c Ioh.6.c 14.c.16.b

The III. Chapter.

A BEholde what loue the father hath ſhewed on vs, ỹ we ſhulde be called the childrẽ of God. Therfore ỹ worlde knoweth you not, becauſe it knoweth not him. Dearly beloued, we are now ỹ * childrẽ of God, and yet hath it not appeared what we ſhalbe. * But we knowe ỹ when he ſhal appeare, we ſhal be like him: for we ſhal ſe him as he is. And euery man ỹ hath this hope in him, pourgeth him ſelfe, euen as he is pure. Who ſo euer cõmytteth ſynne, cõmytteth vnrighteouſnes alſo, and ſynne is vnrighteouſnes. * And ye knowe that he appeared to take awaye oure ſynnes: and in him is no ſynne. Who ſo euer abydeth in him, ſynneth not: who ſoeuer ſynneth, hath not ſene him nether knowne him.

B Babes, let no man diſceaue you. He that doeth righteouſnes, is righteous, euen as he is righteous. He that commytteth ſynne, is of the deuell: * for the deuell ſynneth ſence ỹ begynnynge. * For this purpoſe appeared the ſonne of God, to lowſe the workes of the deuell. * Who ſo euer is borne of God, ſynneth not: for his * ſede remayneth in him, & he cã not ſynne, becauſe he is borne of God. * By this are the children of God knowne & the children of the deuell. Who ſo euer doeth not righteouſnes, is not of God, nether he that loueth not his brother.

Ioh.8.d

1.Ioh.3.a

For this is the tydinges which ye haue cõuerſed from the begynnynge, that ye ſhulde haue loue one nother, * not as Cain, which was of the wicked, and ſlewe his brother. And wherfore ſlewe he him? euen becauſe his awne workes were euell, and his brothers righteous. * Marueyle not (my brethren) though the worlde hate you. We knowe ỹ we are trãſlated from death vnto life, becauſe we loue the brethren. He that loueth not his brother, abydeth in death. * Who ſoeuer hateth his brother, is a manſleyer. And ye knowe that a manſleyer hath not eternall life abydinge in him.

Hereby haue we perceaued loue, that he gaue his life for vs, and therfore ought we alſo to geue oure lyues for the brethrẽ. But he ỹ hath this worldes good, & ſeyth his brother haue nede, and ſhutteth vp his hert frõ him, how dwelleth the loue of God in him? My litle children, * let vs not loue with worde nether with tonge, but with ỹ dede, and with the trueth. Hereby knowe we, that we are of the verite, and can quyete oure herte before him. But yf oure hert condemne vs, God is greater thẽ oure hert, and knoweth all thinges. Dearly beloued, yf oure hert condemne vs not, then haue we a fre boldnes to God warde. * And what ſo euer we axe we ſhal receaue it: becauſe we kepe his commaundemẽtes, and do thoſe thinges, which are pleaſaunt in his ſighte.

1.Ioh.4.a

1.Ioh.2.a

And this is his cõmaundement, that we beleue on ỹ name of his ſonne Jeſus Chriſt, and loue one another, * as he gaue commaundement. And he that kepeth his commaundementes, dwelleth in him, and he in him. And hereby knowe we that he abydeth in vs, euen by the ſprete which he hath geuen vs.

The IIII. Chapter.

DEarly beleued, beleue not ye euery ſprete, * but proue the ſpretes, whether they be of God. For many falſe prophetes are gone out in to the worlde. Hereby ſhal ye knowe the ſprete of God: Euery ſprete which confeſſeth, that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh, is of God. And euery ſprete which confeſſeth not that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh, is not of God. And this is that ſprete of Antechriſt, of whom ye haue herde, how that he ſhal come, and euen now allready is he in the worlde. Litle children, ye are of God, and haue ouercome them: for greater is he that is in you, then he that is in the worlde. They are of the worlde, therfore ſpeake they of the worlde, and the worlde herkeneth vnto them. We are of God, * and he that knoweth God, herkeneth vnto vs.

he that is not of God, heareth vs not. Here by knowe we the sprete of trueth, and ỳ sprete of errour.

B Dearly beloued, let vs loue one another, for loue commeth of God. And euery one ỳ loueth, is borne of God, and knoweth God. He that loueth not, knoweth not God: for God is loue. * By this appeared the loue of God to vs warde, because that God sent his onely begotten sonne in to this worlde, that we mighte lyue thorow him. Herein is loue, not that we loued God, but that he loned vs, * and sent his sonne to make agremēt for oure synnes.

Dearly beloued, yf God so loued vs, we oughte also to loue one another. * No man hath sene God at eny tyme. Yf we loue one another, God dwelleth in vs, and his loue is perfecte in vs. Hereby knowe we that we dwell in him, and he in vs, because he hath geuen vs of his sprete. And we haue sene, & testifye that the father sent the sonne to be the Sauioure of the worlde. * Whosoeuer now confesseth ỳ Jesus is the sonne of God in him dwelleth God, and he in God: and we haue knowne and beleued the loue that God hath to vs.

C God is loue, and he that dwelleth in loue dwelleth in God, and God in him. Here in is the loue perfecte with vs, that we shulde haue a fre boldnesse in the daye of iudgment: for as he is, euē so are we in this worlde. Feare is not in loue, but perfecte loue casteth out feare: for feare hath payne fulnes. He that feareth, is not perfecte in loue.

Let vs loue him, for he loued vs first. * Yf eny man saye: I loue God, & yet hateth his brother, he is a lyar. For he that loueth not his brother whom he seyth, how can he loue God, whom he seyth not? And this cōmaundement haue we of him, * that he which loueth God, shulde loue his brother also.

The V. Chapter.

A Who so euer beleueth that Jesus is Christ, * is borne of God. And who soeuer loueth him that begat, loueth him also which was begotten of him. By this we knowe that we loue Gods children, whan we loue God, and kepe his commaundementes. For this is the loue of God, that we kepe his commaundementes, * and his commaundemētes are not greuous. For all that is borne of God, ouercommeth the worlde: and this is the victory that ouercommeth the worlde, euē oure faith. Who is it ỳ ouercommeth the worlde, but he which beleueth that Jesus is the sonne of God?

This is he that cōmeth with water and bloude, euen Jesus Christ: not with water onely, but with water and bloude. * And it is the sprete that beareth wytnes: for the sprete is the trueth. (For there are thre which beare recorde in heauen: the father, the worde, and the holy goost, & these thre are one.) And there are thre which beare recorde in earth: the sprete, water and bloude, and these thre are one. Mat.3.b and 17.a Ioh.1.d and 12.d

B Yf we receaue the witnesse of men, the witnesse of God is greater: for this is the wytnesse of God, which he testifyed of his sonne. * He that beleueth on ỳ sonne of God, hath the wytnes in him selfe. He that beleueth not God, hath made him a lyar. And this is that recorde, euen ỳ God hath geuē vs euerlastinge life. * And this life is in his sonne. He that hath the sonne of God, hath life: he that hath not the sonne of God, hath not life. Ioh 3.e Rom.3.b Gal.4.a Ioh.1.a

These thinges haue I wrytte vnto you, which beleue on the name of the sonne of God, that ye maye knowe, how that ye haue eternall life, and that ye maye beleue on ỳ name of the sonne of God. And this is the fre boldnesse which we haue towarde him, that yf we axe eny thinge acordinge to his wyll, he heareth vs. And yf we knowe that he heareth vs what so euer we axe, then are we sure that we haue ỳ peticions, which we haue desyred of him.

C Yf eny man se his brother synne a synne not vnto death, let him axe, and he shal geue him life, for thē ỳ synne not vnto death. There is a * synne vnto death, for the which saye I not that a man shulde praye. All vnrighteousnes is synne, and there is synne not vnto death. Iere.7.b Mat.12.c Ioh.5.b

We knowe, that whosoeuer is borne off God, synneth not: but he that is begottē of God, kepeth himselfe, & ỳ wicked toucheth him not. We knowe that we are of God, & the worlde is set altogether on wickednes. But we knowe, that the sonne of God is come, * and hath geuen vs a mynde, to knowe him which is true: and we are in him ỳ is true, in his sonne Jesu Christ. This is the true God, and euer lastinge life. Babes kepe youre selues from ymage Luc.24.c

He wryteth vnto a certayne lady, reioyseth that her children walke in the trueth, exhorteth thē vnto loue, warneth them to bewarre of soch disceauers as denye that Jesus Christ came in the flesh, prayeth them to contynue in the doctryne of Christ, and to haue nothinge to do with them that bringe not this lernynge.

THe Elder. To y elect lady and hir childrē whom I loue in the trueth: & not I onely, but all they also that haue knowne the trueth, for the truthes sake which dwelleth in vs, and shalbe with vs for euer.

Grace, mercy, and peace be with you frō the LORDE Jesus Christ y sonne of the father in the trueth and in loue.

I am greatly reioysed, that I haue found amonge thy children, them that walke in y trueth, as we haue receaued a commaundement of the father. And now lady I beseke the (not as though I wrote a new commaundement vnto the, but the same which we haue had from the begynnynge) that we loue one another. And this is the loue, that we walke after his commaundementes.

This is the commaundement (as ye haue herde frō the begynnynge) that we shulde walke therin. * For many disceauers are come in to the worlde, which confesse not y Jesus Christ is come in the flesh: this is a disceauer and an Antechrist. Take hede to youre selues, that we lose not that which we haue wrought, but that we maye receaue a full rewarde. Who so euer transgresseth, and abydeth not in the doctryne of Christ, hath not God: he that abydeth in y doctryne of Christ, hath both the father and the sonne.

* Yf eny man come vnto you, and bringe not this doctryne, receaue him not in to the house, nether salute him: for he that saluteth him, is partaker of his euell dedes. I had many thinges to wryte vnto you: neuerthe-

The thirde Epistle of S. Jhon.

The summe of this epistle.

He is glad of Gaius, that he walketh in the trueth: exhorteth him to be louynge vnto the poore christen in their persecucion, sheweth the vnkynde dealynge of Diotrephes, and the good reporte of Demetrius.

THe Elder. To the beloued Gaius, whom I loue in the trueth. My beloued, I wysshe in all thinges, that thou prospere and fare well euen as thy soule prospereth. I reioysed greatly, whan the brethren came, and testified of the trueth that is in y, how thou walkest in the trueth. I haue no greater ioye, thē to heare that my childrē walke in the trueth.

My beloued, * thou doest faithfully what so euer thou doest to the brethren and to straūgers, which haue borne witnesse of thy loue before the congregacion: and thou hast done well that thou dyddest bringe them forwarde on their iourney, worthely before God. For because of his names sake they wente forth, and toke nothinge of the Heythen. We therfore oughte to receaue soch, that we mighte be helpers vnto the trueth.

I wrote to the congregacion, but Diotrephes, which loueth to haue the preemynence amonge them, receaued vs not. Wherfore, yf I come, I wil declare his dedes which he doeth, ieastinge vpō vs with malicious wordes: nether is he therwith cōtent. Not onely he himselfe receaueth not the brethrē, but also he forbyddeth them that wolde, and thrusteth them out of the congregacion.

My beloued, folowe not y which is euell, but that which is good. He that doeth well, is of God: but he that doeth euell, seyth not God. Demetrius hath good reporte of all men, and of the trueth: yee and we oure selues also beare recorde, and ye knowe that oure recorde is true. I had many thinges to wryte, but I wolde not with ynke, and pen wryte vnto the. But I trust shortly to se the, and so wyl we speake together mouth to mouth. Peace be with the. The louers salute the. Grete the louers by name.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Hebrues.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. How God dealt louyngly with the of the olde tyme in sendynge them his prophetes, but moch more mercy hath he shewed vs in that he sent vs his owne sonne. Of the most excellent glory of Jesus Christ, which in all thinges is like to his father.

Chap. II. He exhorteth vs to be obedient vnto the new lawe which Christ hath geuen vs and not to be offended at the infirmite and lowe degre of Christ: & why: it was necessary that for oure sakes he shulde take soch an humble state vpon him, that he might be like vnto his brethren.

Chap. III. He requyreth vs to be obedient vnto the worde of Christ, which is more worthy then Moses. The punyshment of soch as wyll nedes harden their hertes.

Chap. XIII. He exhorteth vs vnto loue, to hospitalite, to thinke vpon soch as be in aduersite, to manteyne wedlocke, to auoyde cuvetousnesse, to make moch of thē that preach Gods worde, to bewarre of straunge lernynge, to be content to suffre rebuke with Christ, to be thankfull vnto God, and obedient vnto to oure heades.

The first Chapter.

GOD in tyme past dyuersly & many wayes, spake vnto ỹ fathers by prophetes, but in these last dayes he hath spoken vnto vs by his sonne, * whom he hath made heyre of all thinges, by whom also he made the worlde. * Which (sonne) beynge the brightnes of his glory, & the very ymage of his substaunce, bearinge vp all thinges with the worde of his power, * hath in his owne persōne pourged oure synnes, and is set on the righte hande of the maiestie on hye: beynge enē as moch more excellēt thē ỹ angels, as he hath optayned a more excellēt * name then they. A

For vnto which of the angels sayde he at eny tyme: Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begotten the? And agayne: * I will be his father, & he shalbe my sonne: And agayne, whā he bryngeth in the fyrst begottē sonne in to the worlde, he sayeth: * And all the angels of God shal worshippe him. And of the angels he sayeth: He maketh his angels spretes, & his mynisters flāmes of fyre. But vnto ỹ sonne he sayeth: * God, ỹ seate endureth for euer & euer: the cepter of ỹ kyngdome is a right cepter. Thou hast loued righteousnes, & hated iniquyte: wherfore God (which is thy God) hath anoynted the with the oyle of gladnesse aboue ỹ felowes. * And thou LORDE in ỹ begynnynge hast layed the foundacion of the earth, and ỹ heauēs are the workes of thy handes, * they shal perisshe, but thou shalt endure: they all shal ware olde as doth a garmēt, and as a vesture shalt thou chaunge them, and they shalbe chaunged. But thou art ỹ same, and thy yeares shal not fayle. Vnto which of the angels sayde he at eny tyme: * Syt thou on my righte hāde, tyll I make thyne enemyes thy fote stole? Are they not all mynistring spretes, sent to mynister for t[illegible]es, which shalbe heyres of saluacion.

The II. Chapter.

A Wherfore we ought to geue the more hede vnto the thinges which we haue herde, lest we perish ye. For yf the worde which was spoke by angels, was stedfast, and euery trāsgression and disobedience receaued a iust recompence of rewarde, how shal we escape, yf we despyse so greate a saluacion: which * after that it begane to be preached by the LORDE himselfe, Marc.1.b
Marc.16.c * was confirmed vpon vs, by them that herde it, God bearynge witnesse therto, with tokens, wonders and dyuerse powers, and giftes of the holy goost acordinge to his awne wyll.

B For vnto the angels hath he not subdued the worlde to come, wherof we speake. But one in a certayne place witnesseth & sayeth: Psal.8.b
* What is man, that thou art myndefull of him? or the sonne of man, that thou vysitest him? After thou haddest for a litle season made him lower the ȳ angels, thou crownedst him with honoure and glory, and hast set him aboue the workes of thy handes. Thou hast put all thinges in subiection vnder his fete. 1.Cor.15.c
* In that he subdued all thinges vnto him, he lefte nothinge that is not put vnder him. Neuertheles now se we not all thinges yet subdued vnto him. But him, which for a litle season was made lesse then the angels, we se that it is Jesus: which is Phil.2.b
* crowned with honoure and glory for the sufferynge of death, that he by the grace of God, shulde taist of death for all men. For it became him, for whom are all thinges, and by whō are all thinges (after ȳ he had brought te many children vnto glory) that he shulde make the LORDE of their saluacion perfecte thorow sufferynge, for so moch as they all come of one, both he that sanctifieth, & they which are sanctified.

C For the which causes sake, he is not ashamed to call them brethren, sayenge: Psal.21.c
* I will declare thy name vnto my brethren, and in the myddes of the cōgregacion wil I prayse the. And agayne: Psal.17.a
* I wyl put my trust in him. And agayne: Esa.8.d
* beholde, here am I and my children, which God hath geuen me.

For as moch then as the children haue flesh and blonde, he also himselfe likewyse toke parte with them, Heb.2.a
* ȳ he thorow death, Cor.15.f
* might take awaye ȳ power of him, which had lordshippe ouer death, that is to saye, ȳ deuell: & that he might delyuer thē which thorow feare of death were all their lyfe tyme in dan[illegible]dage. For he in no place taketh on hi[illegible]ngels, but ȳ sede of Abraham taketh he on him. Wherfore in all thinges it became him to be made like vnto his brethren, that he might be mercyfull and a faithfull hye preist in thinges concernynge God, to make agrement for the synnes of ȳ people. Heb.4.a
* For in that he himselfe suffred and was tempted, he is able to succer them that are tempted.

The III. Chapter.

Wherfore holy brethren, ye that are A partakers of the heauenly callynge, consyder the Embassiatour and hye preist of ō profession, Christ Jesus, which is faithfull to him that ordeyned him, euen as was * Moses in all his house. But this man is worthy of greater honoure then moses, in as moch as he which prepareth the house, hath greater honoure in it, then the house it selfe. For euery house is prepared of some mā: but he that ordeyned all thinges, is God. And Moses verely was faithfull in all his house as a mynister, * to beare witnes of those thinges which were to be spoken afterwarde: But Christ as a sonne hath rule ouer his house, * whose house are we, yf we holde fast the confidence and reioysinge of that * hope vnto the ende.

Wherfore, as ȳ holy goost sayeth: * To daye yf ye shal heare his voyce, harden not youre hertes, * as in the prouokynge in the daye of temptacion in the wyldernes, where youre fathers tempted me, proued me, and sawe my workes fortye yeares longe. Wherfore I was greued wt that generacion, and sayde: They erre euer in their hertes. But they knewe not my wayes, so that I sware in my wrath, that they shulde not enter into my rest.

Take hede brethren, that there be not in eny of you an euell hert of vnbeleue, to departe from the lyuynge God: but exhorte youre selues daylie, whyle it is called to daye, lest eny of you ware harde harted thorow ȳ disceatfulnes of synne. For we are become partakers of Christ, yf we kepe sure vnto ȳ ende the begynnynge of the substāce, solonge as it is sayde: To daye, yf ye shal heare his voyce, hardē not youre hertes, as in the prouocaciō. For some whan they herde, prouoked. Howbeit not all they ȳ came out of Egipte by Moses. But with whom was he displeased fortye yeares longe? Was he not displeased with them ȳ synned, whose carcases were ouerthrowne in ȳ wylderneſſe? To whom sware he, ȳ they shulde not enter in to his rest, but vnto thē ȳ beleued not? And we se ȳ they coulde not enter in because of vnbeleue.

The IIII. Chapter.

A Let vs feare therfore, lest eny of vs forsakynge the promes of entrynge in to his rest, shulde seme to come behinde: for it is declared vnto vs as well as vnto thē. But the worde of preachinge helped not thē, whā they that herde it, beleued it not. (For we which haue beleued, enter in to his rest) acordynge as he sayde: Euen as I haue swome in my wrath, They shal not enter in to my rest. And that (spake he) verely lōge after that the workes frō the begynnynge of the worlde were made: For he spake in a certayne place of the seuēth daye, on this wyse: * And God rested on the seuenth daye from all his workes. And in this place b 4 agayne: * They shal not come in to my rest.

Seynge it foloweth thē, that some must enter there in to: and they, to whom it was first preached, entred not therin for vnbelenes sake, therfore appoynteth he a daye agayne after so longe tyme, and sayeth: Todaye (as it is rehearsed by Dauid) Todaye yf ye shal heare his voyce, then harden not youre hertes. For yf Josua had geuen them rest, thē wolde he not afterwarde haue spoken, of another daye. Therfore remayneth there yet a rest vnto the people of God. For he that is entred in to his rest, ceasseth from his workes, * as God doth from his

C Let vs make haist therfore to enter in to that rest, lest eyman fall after the same ensample of vnbeleue. For ỳ worde of God is quycke, and mightie in operacion, and sharper thē eny two edged swerde, and * entreth thorow, euen to the deuydinge of the soule & the sprete, and of ỳ ioyntes & the mary, and is a iudger of the thoughtes & intētes of the hert, neither is there eny creature invisible in ỳ sighte of him. But all thinges are naked & bare vnto ỳ eyes of hī of whō we speake.

The V. Chapter.

A Seynge then that we haue a greate hye preist, enē Jesus ỳ sonne of God, which is entred in to heauen, let vs holde oure profession. For we haue not an hye preist which cā not haue cōpassion on o infirmities, but was in all poyntes tēpted, like as we are, but * without synne. Let vs therfore go boldely vnto the * seate of grace that we maye receaue mercy, and fynde grace to helpe in the tyme of nede.

B For euery hye preist that is taken frō amōge men, is ordeyned for men in thinges perteynynge to God, * to offer giftes and sacrifices for synne: which can haue cōpassion on the ignoraunt, and on them that are out of the waye, for so moch as he himselfe also is compased aboute with infirmyte. Therfore is he bounde to offer for synnes, as well for him selfe as for ỳ people. And noman taketh ỳ honoure vnto himselfe, but he that is called of God, * as was Aaron. Exo. 28. a

C Euen so Christ glorified not himselfe to be made hye preist, but he ỳ sayde vnto him: * Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begotten the. As he sayeth also in another place: * Thou art a preist for euer after ỳ order of Melchisedech. * And in ỳ dayes of his flesshe, he offred vp prayers & supplicacions, w strōge cryenge & teares vnto him ỳ was able to saue him frō death: & was herde also, because he had God in honoure. * And though he was Gods sonne, yet lerned he obedience, by those thinges which he suffred. And he beynge made perfecte, became the cause of euerlastinge saluacīō, vnto all thē ỳ obeye him, and is called of God an hye preist after the order of Melchisedech. Wher of we haue many thinges to saye, which are harde to be vttered, because ye are dull of hearynge. * For where as concernynge the tyme ye ought to be teachers, yet haue ye nede agayne, ỳ we teach you the first preceptes of the worde of God: and are become soch as haue nede of mylke, and not stronge meate. For euery one that is fed yet with mylte, is vnexperte in the worde of righteousnes, for he is but a babe. But stronge meate belongeth vnto them ỳ are perfecte, which thorow custome haue their wyttes exercysed to iudge both good and euell. Psal. 2. a Psal. 109. a *Luc. 23. c Ioh. 17. a Phil. 2. a 1. The VI. Chapter.

A Wherfore let vs leaue the doctryne pertaynynge to the begynnynge of a Christen life, and let vs go vnto perfeccion: and now nomore laye ỳ foundacion of repētaunce from deed workes, and of faith towarde God, of baptyme, of doctryne, of layenge on of hādes, of resurreccion of the deed, & of eternall iudgment. And so wil we do * yf God permytte. * For it is not possible, that they which were once lighted, and haue taisted of the heauēly gyfte, and are become partakers of the holy gooste, & * haue taisted of ỳ good worde of God, and of the power of the worlde to come, yf they fall awaye (and concernynge them selues crucifye the sonne of God afreshe, and make mocke off him) that they shulde be renewed agayne vnto repentaunce. But God, wyllinge very abundauntly to shewe vnto the heyres of promes the stablenes of his councell, added an ooth ỹ by two immutable thinges (in the which it is vnpossible ỹ God shulde lye) we mighte haue a stronge consolacion: euen we, which are fled to holde fast the hope that is set before vs, which (hope) we haue as a sure and stedfast anker of oure soule. Which (hope) also entreth in, in to those thinges that are within ỹ vayle, whither the forerũner is for vs entred in, euẽ Jesus, which is made an hye preest for euer after ỹ order of Melchisedech.

Gen.14.a THis Melchisedech * kynge of Salem (which beynge preest of the most hye God, met Abraham as he returned agayne from the slaughter of the kynges, & blessed him, vnto whom Abraham also gaue tithes of all the goodes) first is by interpretacion kynge of righteousnes: after that is he kynge of Salem also (that is to saye, kynge of peace) without father, without mother, without kynne, and hath nether begynnynge of dayes, ner ende of life: but is likened vnto the sonne of God, and contynueth a preest for euer.

But cõsider how greate a man this was, to whom the patriarke Abraham gaue tithes of the spoyles. * And verely the children eni, whan they receaue the preesthode, mmaundement accordynge to the he tithes of the people, that their brethrẽ, though they also came out of the loynes of Abraham.

But he whose kynred is not counted amõge them, receaued tithes of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promes. Now is it so without all naysayenge, that the lesse receaueth blessynge of ỹ better. And here men that dye, receaue tithes. But there he receaueth tithes, of whom it is witnessed that he lyueth. And to saye the trueth, Leui himselfe also which receaueth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham: for he was yet in the loynes of his father Abraham, whan Melchisedech met him.

If now therfore perfeccion came by the preesthode of the Leuites (for vnder the same (preesthode) the people receaued the lawe) what neded it then furthurmore, that another preest shulde rise after the order of Melchisedech, and not after the order of Aaron?

* For yf the preesthode be trãslated, thẽ of necessite must the lawe be translated also. For he of whom these thinges are spoken, is of another trybe, of the which neuer man serued at the altare.

C For it is euidẽt, * that oure LORDE spronge of the trybe of Juda, to the which trybe Moses spake nothinge cõcernynge preesthode. And it is yet a more euident thinge, yf after the symilitude of Melchisedech there arise another preest, which is not made after ỹ lawe of the carnall commaundement, but after the power of the endlesse life (For he testifieth: Thou art a preest for euer after the order of Melchisedech) then the commaundement that wente before, is disanulled, because of his weaknesse, and vnprofitablenes. For the lawe made nothinge perfecte, but was an introduccion of a better hope, by ỹ which hope we drawe nye vnto God. And for this cause is it a better hope, ỹ it was not promysed without an ooth. Those preestes were made without an ooth, but this preest with an ooth, by him that sayde vnto him: The LORDE sware, and wyl not repente: Thou art a preest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. Thus is Jesus become a stablißher of so moch a better Testamẽte.

And amonge them many were made preestes, because they were not suffred to endure by the reason of death. But this man, because that he endureth euer, hath an euerlastinge preesthode. Wherfore he is able also euer to saue them, that come vnto God by him, & lyueth euer, * to make intercession for vs.

For it became vs to haue soch an hye preest as is holy, innocent, vndefyled, separate from synners, and made hyer then heauen:

which nedeth not daylie (* as yonder hye prestes) to offre vp sacrifice first for his awne synnes, and then for the peoples synnes. For that dyd he once for all, whan he offered vp him selfe. * For the lawe maketh men prestes which haue infirmitie: but the worde of the ooth, that came sence the lawe, maketh the sonne prest, which is perfecte for euermore.

The VIII. Chapter.

A Of the thinges which we haue spoken, this is the pyth: * We haue soch an hye prest, that is set on ỹ righte hande of the seate of maiestie in heauē: and is a mynister of holy thinges, and of the true Tabernacle, which God pitched, & not man. For euery hye prest is ordened to offre giftes and sacrifices: Wherfore it is of necessite, ỹ this man haue somwhat also to offer. For he were not a prest, yf he were vpon earth, where are prestes ỹ acordynge to the lawe offer giftes (which prestes serue vnto the ensample and shadowe of heauēly thinges, euen as the answere of God was geuen vnto Moses, whan he was aboute to fynish the Tabernacle: * Take hede (sayde he) that thou make all thinges acordinge to the patrone shewed the in the mount.) But now hath he optayned a more excellent office, in as moch as he is the mediatour of a better Testament, which was made for better promyses. For yf that first (Testament) had bene faultles, then shulde no place haue bene soughte for the secōde. For in rebukynge thē he sayeth: * Beholde, the dayes wyll come (sayeth the LORDE) that I wyl fynish vpō the house of Israel, and vpon the house off Juda, a new Testament: not as the Testament which I made with their fathers, in that daye whan I toke them by the handes, to lede them out of the londe of Egipte: * for they contynued not in my Testament, and I regarded them not, sayeth the LORDE.

C For this is the Testament, that I wil make wt the house of Israell after those dayes, sayeth the LORDE. I wyl gene my lawes in their mynde, and in their hertes wyl I wryte them: * And I wil be their God, and they shal be my people: and they shal not teach euery mā his neghboure, and euery man his brother, sayenge: knowe ỹ LORDE, for they shal knowe me from the leest to the most of them: for I wil be mercifull ouer their vnrighteousnesses: And on their synnes & on their iniquyties wyl I not thynke eny more. In that he sayeth: A new, he weereth out ỹ olde. Now ỹ which is worne out and wared olde, is ready to vanish awaye

The IX. Chapter.

A That first Tabernacle verely had ordinaunces, and seruynges off God and outwarde holynes. * For there was made a foretabernacle, wherin was ỹ candilsticke, and the table, and the * shewe bred: and this is called ỹ Holy. But behynde the seconde vayle was the Tabernacle which is called Holiest of all, which had the golden censor, and the * Arke of the Testament ouerlayed rounde aboute with golde, wherin was the * golden pot with Manna, and Aarons rodd * that flourished, and the tables of the Testament: Aboue therin were the Cherubins off glory ouershadowynge the Mercyseate: Of which thinges it is not now to speake perticularly.

When these thinges were thus ordeyned, the prestes wente allwayes in to the first Tabernacle, and excuted ỹ seruyce of God. * But in to the seconde wente the hye prest alone once in the yeare, not without blonde, which he offred for himselfe and for the ignoraunce of the people. Wherwith the holy goost this signifyeth, that the * waye of holynes was not yet opened, whyle as yet the first Tabernacle was stondynge. Which was a symilitude for the tyme then present, in the which were offred gifies and sacrifices, and coulde not make perfecte (as partaynynge to the conscience) him, that dyd the Gods seruyce onely with meates and drynkes, and dyuerse waßhinges, and iustifienges of the flesh, which were ordeyned vnto the tyme of reformacion.

Ioh.10.a and 14.a

But Christ beynge an hye prest of good thinges to come, came by a greater and a more perfecte * Tabernacle, not made with handes, that is to saye, not of this maner buyldynge: nether by the blonde of goates or calues: * but by his owne blonde entred he once for all in to the holy place, and hath founde eternall redempcion. For yff the blonde off oxen and off goates, * and the aßhes off the cowe whan it is sprenkled, haloweth the vncleane as touchynge the purificacion of the flesh, how mych more shal the blonde of Christ (which thorow the eternall spirite offred him selfe without spot vnto God) pourge oure conscience from deed workes, * for to serue the liuynge God: And for this cause is he the Mediatour of the new Testament, that * thorow death which chaunced for the redempcion of those trāsgressions (that were vnder the first Testament) they which were called mighte receaue the promes of eternall inheritaunce. For where soeuer is a Testament, there must also be the death of him that maketh the testament.

Gal.3.c * For a Testamēt taketh auctorite whan men are deed: for it is of no value, as longe as he that made it is alyue. For the which cause that first Testamēt also was not ordeyned without blonde. For whan all the commaundementes (accordinge to the lawe) were red of Moses vnto all the people, he toke ỹ blonde of calues and of goates, with water and purple woll and ysope, and sprenkled the boke and all the people, sayenge: * This is the blonde of the Testament, which God hath appoynted vnto you. And the Tabernakle and all the vessels of the Gods seruyce sprenkled he with blonde likewyse. And allmost all thinges are pourged with blonde after the lawe: and without sheddynge of blonde is no remyssion. It is necessary then, that the symilitude of heauenly thinges be purified with soche: but ỹ heauenly thinges them selues are purified with better sacrifices, then are those.

D For Christ is not entred into the holy places ỹ are made with handes (which are but symilitudes of true thinges) but into the very heauen, for to apeare now before the face of God for vs: Not to offer himselfe offt Leui.16.g * as the hye preest entreth into the holy place euery yeare with straunge blonde: for thē must he often haue suffred sence the worlde beganne. But now in the ende of the worlde hath he appeared once, to put synne to flight, by the offerynge vp of himselfe. And as it is appoynted vnto mē ỹ they shal once dye, and then cōmeth the iudgmēt: 1.Cor.5.a 1.Per.3.c * Euē so Christ was once offred, to take awaye the synnes of many. And vnto them that loke for him, shal he appeare agayne without synne vnto saluacion.

The X. Chapter.

FOr the lawe * which hath but the shadowe off good thinges to come, and not the thinges in their awne fashion, can neuer by the sacrifices which they offer yeare by yeare continually, make the commers there vnto perfecte: Els shulde they haue ceassed to haue bene offred, because that the offerers once pourged, shulde haue had nomore conscience of synnes. [illegible] les in those sacrifices there is ma[illegible] but a mi[illegible]rbraunce of synnes euery yeare. For [illegible]mpossible ỹ the blonde of oxen and of goates shulde take awaye synnes.

Wherfore whan he commeth in to the worlde, he sayeth: * Sacrifice & offerynge thou woldest not haue, but a body hast thou ordeyned me. Burntofferynges and synneofferynges hast thou not alowed. Then sayde I: Lo, I come. I the begynnynge of the boke it is wrytten of me, that I shulde do ỹ wyll O God. Aboue whā he had sayde: Sacrifice and offerynge, and burntsacrifices & synofferynges thou woldest not haue, nether hast alowed (which yet are offered after ỹ lawe). Thē sayde he: Lo, I come to do wil thy O God: there taketh he awaye the first, to stablyshe the latter: In the which wyll we are sanctified by the offerynge vp of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

And euery preest is ready daylie mynistringe, and oftymes offereth one maner of offerynges, which can neuer take awaye synnes. But this man whan he had offred for synnes, one sacrifice which is of value for euer, sat him downe on the righte hande of God, and from hence forth tarieth, * tyll his foes be made his fote stole. For with one offerynge hath he made perfecte for euer, thē that are sanctified. And the holy goost also beareth vs recorde of this, euen whan he sayde before: * This is the Testament, that I wyl make vnto them after those dayes, sayeth ỹ LORDE: I wyl geue my lawes in their hertes, and [illegible]yndes wyl I wryte them, and their synnes and iniquities wil I remembre nomore. And where remyssion of these thinges is, there is nomore offerynge for synne.

Seynge now brethrē, that we haue a * sure (sure) intraunce in to that holy place, by the blonde of Jesu (which he hath prepared vnto vs for a new and lyuynge waye, thorow the vayle, that is to saye, by his flesh) and seynge also that we haue an hye preest ouer the house of God, let vs drawe nye with a true hert in a full faith, sprenkled in oure hertes from an euell conscience, and washed in oure bodies with pure water: and let vs kepe the profession of oure hope without wauerynge (for he is faithfull that hath promysed) and let vs considre one another to ỹ prouokinge of loue and of good workes: and let vs not forsake the fellushippe that we haue amōge oure selues, as the maner of some is: but let vs exhorte one another, and that so moch the more, because ye se that the day draweth nye.

* For yf we synne wylfully after that we haue receaued the knowlege of the truth, there remayneth vnto vs nomore sacrifice for synnes, but a fearfull lokynge for iudgmentand violente fyre, which shal deuoure ye aduersaries. * He ye despyseth Moses lawe, dyeth without mercy vnder two or three witnesses: Of how moch sorer punyshment (suppose ye) shal he be counted worthy, which treadeth vnder fote the sonne of God, and coũteth the bloude of ye Testamẽt (wherby he is sanctified) an vnholy thinge, & doth dishonoure to the spirite of grace? For we knowe him that hath sayde: * Vengeaunce is myne, I wil recompence, sayeth the LORDE. And agayne: * The LORDE shal iudge his people. It is a fearfull thinge to fall in to the handes of the lyuynge God.

But call ye to remẽbraũce ye dayes ye are past, ĩ ye which after ye had receaued lighte, ye endured a greate fighte off aduersities: partly whyle all mẽ wõdred & gased at you for the shame and tribulacion that was done vnto you: and partly whyle ye became cõpanyons of them which so passed their tyme. For ye haue suffred with my bõdes, and toke a worth ye spoylinge of youre goodes, and that with gladnes, knowynge in youre selues, how that ye haue in heauen a better & an enduringe substaunce. Cast not awaye therfore yor confidence, which hath so greate a rewarde. * For ye haue nede of pacience, that after ye haue done the wil of God, ye might receaue the promes. * For yet ouer a litle whyle, and then he that shal come, wyl come, and wyl not tary. * But the iust shal lyue by his faith: And yf he withdrawe himselfe awaye, my soule shal haue no pleasure in him. As for vs, we are not of those which withdrawe them selues to damnacion: but of them that beleue to the wynnynge of the soule.

The XI. Chapter.

FAith is a sure confidence of thinges which are hoped for, and a certaynte of thinges which are not sene. By it ye Elders were well reported of. Thorow faith we vnderstonde, that the worlde and all the thinges which are sene, were made of naughte by the worde of God.

* By faith offered Abell vnto God a more plenteous sacrifice: by the which he optayned wytnesse, that he was righteous: God testifyenge of his giftes, by the which also he beynge deed, yet speaketh.

* By faith was Enoch take awaye, that he shulde not se death: and was not founde, because God had taken him awaye. For afore he was taken awaye, he had recorde that he pleased God. But without faith it is vnpossible to please God. For he that commeth vnto God, must beleue that God is, & ye he is a rewarder of them that seke him.

* By faith Noe honoured God, after ye he was warned of thinges which were not sene, & prepared the Arke to ye sauinge of his housholde: thorow the which Arke he condemned the worlde, and became heyre of the righteousnes, which commeth by faith.

By faith Abraham (whã he was called) obeyed, to go out in to the place, which he shulde afterwarde receaue to inheritaunce: and he wente out, not knowynge whither he shulde go.

By faith was he a straunger in the lõde of promes as in a straunge countre, & dwelt in tabernacles: and so dyd Isaac & Jacob, heyres with him of the same promes: for he loked for a cite which hath a foundacion, whose buylder and maker is God.

By faith Sara also receaued strength to be with childe, and was delyuered of a childe whan she was past age, because she iudged him to be faithfull which had promysed. And therfore spronge there of one (yee euen off one which was as good as deed concernynge the body) so many in multitude * as the starres off the skye, and as the sonde off the See shore, which is innumerable.

All these dyed acordinge to faith, and receaued not the promyses, but sawe thẽ afarre off, and beleued them, and saluted them: * and cõfessed, that they were straungers & pilgrems vpõ earth. For they that saye soch thinges, declare, that they seke a naturall countre. And doutles yf they had benemynde full off that countre from whence they came out, they had leysure to haue returned agayne. But now they desyre a better, that is to saye, a heauẽly. * Wherfore God is not ashamed of thẽ, euẽ to be called their God: for he hath prepared a cite for them.

By faith Abrahã offered vp Isaac, whã he was tempted, and gaue ouer his onely begotten sonne, in whom he had receaued the promyses, of whom it was sayde: In Isaac shal thy sede be called: For he considered, ye God was able to rayse vp agayne from the deed. Therfore receaued he him for an ensample.

By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, concernynge thinges to come.

By faith Jacob, whan he was a dyenge, blessed both the sonnes off Joseph, & bowed himselfe towarde the toppe of his cepter.

By faith Joseph whan he dyed, remembred ye departynge of the childre of Israel, & gaue cõmaundemẽt concernynge his bones.

Exod.2.a By faith Moses whã he was borne, was hyd thre monethes of his Elders, because they sawe that he was a proper childe, nether feared they the kynges cõmaundemẽt.

Exod.2.b By faith Moses whan he was greate refused to be called the sonne of Pharaos doughter: and chose rather to suffre aduersite with the people of God, then to enioye ỹ pleasures of synne for a season: and estemed the rebuke of Christ greater riches, then the treasure of Egipte: for he had respecte vnto the rewarde.

E Exod.12.f By faith he forsoke Egipte, and feared not the fearcenes of the kynge: for he endured, enẽ as though he had sene him which is inuisible.

Exod.12.b * By faith he helde Easter, and the effusion of blonde, lest he which slewe the firstborne, shulde touche them.

Exod.14.e By faith they passed thorow the reed See as by drye londe: which whã the Egipcians assayed to do, they were drowned.

By faith the walles of Jericho fell, whã they were compased aboute seuen dayes.

By faith the harlot Raab perished not with the vnbeleuers, whã she had receaued the spyes to lodginge peaceably.

And these all thorow faith optayned good reporte, and receaued not ỹ promes: because God had prouyded a better thinge for vs, that they without vs shulde not be made perfecte.

The XII. Chapter.

WHerfore seynge we haue so greate a multitude of witnesses aboute vs * let vs also laye awaye all ỹ presseth downe, and the synne that hangeth on, and let vs runne with pacience vnto the batayl that is set before vs, lokynge vnto Jesus ỹ aucto͂r and fymßher of faith: * which whan the ioye was layed before him, abode the crosse, and despysed the shame, and is set downe on ỹ righte hãde of ỹ trone of God. Cõsidre him therfore that endured soch speakinge agaynst hi of synners, lest ye be weery and faynte in youre myndes: for ye haue not yet resisted vnto blonde, stryuynge agaynst synne, and haue forgotten the consolacion, which speaketh vnto you as vnto children: * My sonne, despyse not the chastenynge off the LORDE, nether faynte whan thou art rebuked of him: * for whõ the LORDE loueth, him he chasteneth, yee and he scourgeth euery sonne that he receaueth.

If ye endure chastenynge, God offereth himselfe vnto you as vnto sonnes. What sonne is that, whom the father chasteneth not? If ye be not vnder correccion (wherof all are partakers) then are ye bastardes and not sonnes. Moreouer seyenge we haue had fathers off oure flesh which corrected vs, & we gaue them reuerence, shulde we not then much rather be in subieccion vnto ỹ father of spirituall giftes, ỹ we might lyue? And they verely for a few dayes nurtred vs after their awne pleasure: but he lerneth vs vnto ỹ which is profitable, that we might receaue of his holynes. No maner chastisynge for the present tyme semeth to be ioyous, but greuous: neuertheles afterwarde it bringeth the quyete frute of righteousnes, vnto them which are exercysed therby. * Lyse vp therfore the handes which were let downe, and the weake knees, and se that ye haue straight steppes vnto youre fete, lest eny halting turne you out of the waye, yet let it rather be healed.

Folowe after peace with all men, and holynes, without the which no man shal se the LORDE, & loke well, that no mã be destitute of the grace of God, lest there sprynge vp eny bytter rote, and cause disquyetnes, and therby many be defyled: that there be no whoremonger, or vncleane person, as Esau, * which for one meate sake solde his byrthright. For ye knowe, how that afterwarde whan he wolde haue inhereted the blessynge, he was put by: for * he foũde no place of repentaunce, though he desyred (ỹ blessynge)

12.19.b * And yf a beest had touched the mountayne, it must haue bene stoned, or thrust thorow with a darte. And so terrible was the sighte which appeared, that Moses sayde: I feare and quake. But ye are come to the mount Sion, and to the cite of the lyuynge God, to

The Epistle of S. James.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. He exhorteth to reioyse in trouble, to be fervent in prayer with stedfast beleue, to loke for all good thinges from aboue, to forsake all vyce: and thankfully to receaue the worde of God, not onely hearynge it and speakynge of it, but to do therafter in dede. True religion or deuocion what it is.

Chap. II. He forbyddeth to haue eny respecte of personnes, but to regarde the poore as wel as the ryche, to be louynge and mercifull, and not to boast of faith where no dedes are: for it is but a dead faith, where good workes folowe not.

Chap III. What good and euell commeth thorow the tonge. The dutye of soch as be lerned. The difference betwixte the wysdome of the gospell and the wysdome of the worlde.

Chap. IIII. Warre and fightinge commeth of voluptuousnesse. The frendshipe of the worlde is enemyte before God. An exhortacion to flye slaunder and the vanite of this life.

Chap. V. He threateneth the wicked rych me, exhorteth vnto pacience, to bewarre of swearynge, one to knowlege his fautes to another, one to praye for another, and one to laboure to bringe another to the trueth.

The first Chapter.

James the servaunt of God and of the LORDE Jesus Christ, sendeth gretinge to the xij. trybes which are *scatered here & there. My brethren, counte it exceadynge ioye whē ye fall in to diuers temptacions, for as moche as ye knowe, how yͭ the *tryinge of youre faith bringeth pacience: and let pacience haue her parfecte worke, yͭ ye maye be parfecte and sounde, lakinge nothinge.

*Yf eny of you lacke wysdome, let him axe of God, which geueth to all men indifferentlie, and casteth no man in the teth: and it shal be geuē him. But let him axe in faith and waver not. For he that douteth, is lyke the wawes of yͭ See, tost of the wynde, and caried wͭ violence. Nether let yͭ man thinke that he shal receaue enythige of yͭ LORDE. A waverynge mynded mā ys vnstable in all his waies.

Let the brother of lowe degre reioyce, in yͭ he is exalted: and the rich, in yͭ he is made lowe. For euē as the flō of yͭ grasse shal he vanyshe awaye. The Sonne ryseth wͭ heat and the grasse wydereth, & his floure falleth awaye, and the beautie of the fassion of it perissheth: euen so shal the ryche man perisshe with his abundaunce.

Happy is the man that endureth in tēptacion, for when he is tryed, he shal receaue the crowne of life, which the LORDE hath promised to them that loue him.

Let no man saye when he is tempted, yͭ he is tempted of God. For God tēpteth noe vnto euell, nether tēpteth he eny man. But euery mā is tēpted, drawne awaye, & entysed of his awne cōcupiscēce. Thē whē lust hath conceaued, she bringeth forth synne, & synne when it is fynished, bringeth forth deeth.

Erre not my deare brethrē. *Euery good gifte, & euery parfait gifte, is from aboue, and cōmeth downe from yͭ father of light, with whom is no variablenes, nether is he chaunged vnto darcknes. *Of his awne will begat he vs with the worde of life, that we shulde be the fyrst frutes of his creatures.

*Wherfore deare brethren, let euery man be swifte to heare, slowe to speake, and slowe to wrath. For the wrath of mā worketh not that which is righteous before God.

Wherfore laye aparte all fylthines, all superfluite of maliciousnes, & receaue with meknes yͭ worde yͭ is grafted in you, which is able to saue youre soules. *And se that ye be doers of yͭ worde & not heares only, deceauinge youre awne selues. *For yf eny heare the worde, and do it not, hᵉ is lyke vnto a mā that beholdeth his bodily face in a glasse. For assone as he hath loked on him selfe, he goeth his waye, and forgetteth immediatly what his fassion was. *But who so loketh in yͭ perfect lawe of libertie, and continueth therin (yf he be not a forgetfull hearer, but a doar of the worke) the same shalbe happie in his dede.

Yf eny man amonge you seme deuoute, & refrayne not his tōge: but deceaue his awne herte, this mannes deuocion is in vayne. Pure deuocion and vndefiled before God the father, is this: to vyset the frendlesse and widdowes in their aduersite, and to kepe him self vnspotted of the *worlde.

The II. Chapter.

Brethren, haue not the faith of oure LORDE Jesus Christ yͭ LORDE of glory in *respecte of persons. Yf there come in to yͭ cōpany a mā wͭ a goldē ringe and in goodly aparell, & ther come in also a poore man in vyle raymēt, & ye haue a respecte to him yͭ weareth the gaye clothinge & saye vnto hī: Sit thou here ī a good place, & saye vnto yͭ poore, stonde thou there or sit here vnder my fote stole: are ye not parciall in youre selues, and haue iudged after euyll thoughtes?

Harken my deare beloued brethrē. * Hath not God chosen the poore of this worlde, which are ryche in faith, and heyres of the kyngdom which he promysed to thē that lo ue him? But ye haue despised the poore. Are not the rych they which oppresse you: & they which drawe you before iudges? Do not they speake euell of that good name after which ye be named.

B If ye fulfill the royall lawe accordinge to the scripture which saith: Thou shalt loue thyne neghbour as thy selfe, ye do well. But yf ye regarde one person more then another, ye cōmit synne, and are rebuked of the lawe as trāgressours. * Whosoeuer shal kepe the whole lawe, and yet fayle in one poynt, he is gyltie in all. For he that sayde: * Thou shalt not commit adulterie, sayed also: thou shalt not kyll. Though thou do none adulterie, yet yf thou kill, thou art a transgresser of the lawe. So speake ye, and so do as they that shalbe iudged by the lawe of libertie. * For ther shalbe iudgement merciles to him that sheweth no mercy, & mercy reioiseth against iudgment.

* What a vayleth it my brethrē, though a man saye he hath faith, when he hath no dedes? Can faith saue him? If a brother or a sister be naked or destitute of dayly fode, & one of you saye vnto them: Departe in peace, God sende you warmnes and fode: not withstōdinge ye geue them not tho thinges which are nedfull to the body: what helpeth it them? Euen so faith, yf it haue no dedes, is deed in it selfe.

C Ye & a man might saye: Thou hast faith, and I haue dedes: Shewe me thy faith by thy dedes: and I wil shewe the my faith by my dedes. Beleuest thou yt ther is one God? Thou doest well. * The deuils also beleue and tremble.

Wilt thou vnderstōde o thou vayne man that faith with out dedes is deed: Was not Abraham oure father iustified thorow workes when he offered Isaac his sonne vpon the aulter? Thou seist how yt faith wrought with his dedes, and through yt dedes was the faith made perfect: & the scripture was fulfilled which saith: * Abrahā beleued God and it was reputed vnto him for rightewesnes: and he was called yt frende of God. Ye se then how that of dedes a man is iustified, and not of faith only. Likewise also was not Raab the harlot iustified thorow workes, when she receaued the messengers, and sent them out another waye? For as the body, with oute the sprete is deed, euen so faith wt out dedes is deed.

able to tame all the body. Beholde, we put bittes into the horses mouthes yt they shulde obeye vs, and we turne aboute all the body. Beholde also yt shyppes, which though they be so gret, and are dryuen of fearce windes, yet are they turned about with a very smale helme, whither soeuer the violence of the gouerner wyll. All the natures of beastes, and of byrdes, and of serpentes, and thinges of the see, are meked and tamed of the nature of mā. But the tōge can no man tame. It is an vnruely euell full of deedly poyson. Therwith blesse we God the father, and therwith curse we men which * are made after the similitude of Gen. 1. d
God. Out of one mouth proceadeth blessynge and cursynge. My brethrē these thinges ought not so to be. Doth a fountayne sende forth at one place swete water and bytter also? Can the fygge tree, my Brethren, beare oline beries: ether a vyne beare fygges? So can no fountayne geue bothe salt water and freshe also. If eny man be wyse and endued with learnynge amonge you, let him shewe C the workes of his good cōuersacion in meknes that is coupled with wisdome.

But yf ye haue bitter enuyenge and stryfe in yor hertes, reioyce not: nether be lyars agaynst the trueth. This wisdome descendeth not from aboue: but is erthy, and naturall, and dyuelishe. For where enuyenge and stryfe is, there is vnstablenes and all māner of euell workes. But the wisdom that is frō aboue, is fyrst pure, thē peasable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good frutes, without iudgynge, and without simulacion: yee, and the frute of righteweshes is sowen in peace, of thē that mayntene peace.

He rebuketh soch as beynge blynded with their owne lustes, resist the trueth, & that we maye knowe them the better, he sayeth they be soch as synne beastly agaynst nature, and despise rulers &c. He exhorteth vs to edifie one another, to praye in the holy goost, to continue in loue, to loke for the cõmynge of the LORDE, and one to helpe another out of the fyre.

IVdas the seruaunt of Jesus Christ, the brother off James. To thē which are called, and sanctified in God the father, and preserued in Jesu Christ. Mercy vnto you, and peace and loue be multiplied.

Beloued, when I gaue all diligence to wryte vnto you of the commen saluacion: it was nedefull for me to wryte vnto you, to exhorte you, that ye shulde continually laboure in the faith which was once geuē vnto the sayntes. * For there are certayne craftely crept in, of which it was wrytten afore tyme vnto soche iudgement. They are vngodly, and turne the grace of oure God vnto wantānes, and denye God the onely LORDE, and oure LORDE Jesus Christ.

My minde is therfore to put you in remēbraūce, for as moche as ye once knowe this, how that ỳ LORDE (after that he had deliuered the people out of Egipt) destroyed them which afterwarde beleued not. * The angels also which kept not their first estate: but lefte their awne habitacion, he hath reserued in euerlastinge chaynes vnder darcknes vnto the iudgement of the greate daye: euen as * Sodom and Gomor, and the cities aboute them (which in lyke maner defiled them selues with fornicacion and folowed straunge fleßhe) are set forth for an ensample, and suffre the vengeaunce of eternall fyre. Lykewyse these dremers defyle the fleßhe despyse rulers, and speake euell of them that are in auctoritie.

* Yet Michael the archangell when he stroue agaynst the deuell, & disputed aboute the body of Moses, durst not geue raylinge sentence, but sayde: the LORDE rebuke the. * But these speake euell off those thinges which they knowe not: and what thinges they knowe naturally, as beastes which are without reason, in tho thinges they corrupte them selues. Wo be vnto thē, for they haue folowed the waye of Cain, and are vtterly geuē to the errour of Balaam for lukers sake, and perysshe in the treason of Core. Gen.4.B Nu.24.E Num.16.

These are spottes which of youre kindnes feast togedder, without feare, fedynge thē selues. Cloudes they are withouten water, caried about of wyndes, and trees without frute at gadringe tyme, twyse deed and plucked vp by the rotes. They are the ragynge waues of the see, fominge out their awne shame. They are wandrynge starres, to whō is reserued the myst of darcknes for euer. C 2.Pet.2.B

* Enoch the seuenth from Adam prophecied before of suche, saienge: Beholde, the LORDE shal come with thousandes of sayntes, to geue iudgemēt agaynst all men, and to rebuke all that are vngodly amonge thē, of all their vngodly dedes, which they haue vngodly committed, and of all their cruell speakynges, which vngodly synners haue spoken agaynst him. Apoc.1.B Esa.3.C

These are murmurers, complaners, walkynge after their awne lustes, whose mouthes speake proude thynges. They haue mē in greate reuerence because of avauntage. But ye beloued, remēber the wordes which were spoken before of the Apostles of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, how that they tolde you ỳ their shulde be begylers in the last tyme, which shulde walke after their awne vngodly lustes. These are makers off sectes fleshlie, hauynge no spriete. 1.Tim.4.I 2.Tim.3.I 2.Pet.3.B

But ye derlye beloued, edifye youre selues in youre most holy faith, prayenge in the holy goost, and kepe youre selues in the loue of God, lokinge for the mercy of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, vnto eternall life. And haue cō passion on some, separatinge thē: and other saue with feare, pullinge them out of the fyre, and hate the fylthy vesture of the fleshe. D

Vnto him that is able to kepe you, that ye saule not, and to present you fautlesse before ỳ presence of his glory with ioye, ỳ is to saye, to God oure saueoure which only is wyse, be glory, maiestie, dominion, & power, now and for euer. Amen.

The first Chapter.

THe reuelacion of Jesus Christ, which God gaue vnto him, for to shewe vnto his seruauntes thinges which muste shortly come to passe. And he sent and shewed by his angel vnto his seruaunt Jhon, which bare recorde of the worde of God, and of the testimony of Jesus Chriſte, and of all thinges that he sawe. Happy is he ỹ readeth, and they that heare the wordes of the prophesy and kepe thoo thinges which are wrytten therin. For the tyme is at honde.

Jhon to the seuen cõgregacions in Asia. Grace be with you & peace, frõ him which is and which was, and which is to come, & frõ the seuen spretes which are prepared before his trone, and from Jesus Christ which is a faithfull witnes, and first begotten of the deed: & LORDE ouer ỹ kinges of the earth. Vnto him that loued vs and weßhed vs frõ synnes in his awne blond, and made vs kinges & prestes vnto God his father, be glory and dominion for euer more. Amen. Behold, he commeth with cloudes, and all eyes shall se him: & they also which peersed him. And all kinredes of the earth shal wayle. Euen so. Amen. I am Alpha and Omega, the begynninge and the endinge, sayeth ỹ LORDE almighty, which is and which was and which is to come.

I Jhon youre brother and cõpanyon in tribulacion, and in the kyngdome and pacïence which is in Jesu Christe, was in the yle of Pathmos for the worde of God, and for ỹ witnessynge of Jesu Christe. I was in the spriete on a sondaye, and herde behynde me, a gret voyce, as it had bene of a trompe, sayenge: I am Alpha and Omega, the fyrst and ỹ laste. That thou seist, write in a boke, and sende it vnto the cõgregacions which are in Asia, vnto Ephesus and vnto Smyrna, and vnto Pargamos, and vnto Thiatira, and vnto Sardis, and vnto Philadelphia, and vnto Laodicia.

C And I turned backe to se the voyce that spake to me. And whē I was turned: I sawe seuē goldē candestyckes, and in the myddes of the candelstyckes, one like vnto the sonne of man clothed with a lynnin garmēt downe to the ground, and gyrd aboute the brest with a golden gyrdle. His heed, and his heares were whyte, as whyte woll, & as snowe: * and his eyes were as a flamme of fyre: and his fete like vnto brasse, as though they brēt in a fornace: and his voyce as the sounde of many waters. And he had in his right honde seuē starres. * And out of his mouth went a sharpe two edged swearde. And his * face shone euen as the sonne in his strength.

D And when I sawe him, I fell at his fete, euen as deed. And he layde his right honde vpon me, sayenge vnto me: feare not. I am the fyrst, and the laste, and am alyue, and was deed. And beholde, I am alyue forevermore * and haue the kayes of hell & of deth. Wryte therfore the thinges which thou hast sene, and the thinges which are, and ỹ thinges which shalbe fulfylled here after: & the mistery of the seuen starres which thou sawest in my right honde, and the seuen golden candelstickes. The seuen starres are the angels of the seuē congregacions: And the seuen candelstyckes which thou sawest, are the seuen congregacions.

The II. Chapter.

A Vnto the angell of the congregacion of Ephesus wryte: These thinges sayth he that holdeth the seuen starres in his right honde, and walketh in the myddes of the seuen goldē candelstickes: I knowe thy workes, and thy labour, and thy pacience, & howe thou canneste not forbeare them which are euell: and examineste them which saye they are Apostles, and are not: & hast founde thē lyars and hast suffred. And hast pacïēce: and for my names sake hast laboured and hast not fayynted. Neuertheless I haue somwhat agaynst the, forthon hast leste thy fyrst loue. Remember therfore frō whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the fyrst workes. * Or elles I wyl come vnto the shortly, and wil remoue thy cādelstycke out of his place, excepte thou repent. But this thou hast because thou hatest ỹ dedes of the * Nicolaitans, which dedes I also hate. Let him ỹ hath eares, heare, what ỹ spriete saith vnto the congregacions. To him that ouercommeth, will I. geue to eate of the tree of life, which is in the myddes of ỹ paradise of God. Luc. 13. a Act. 6. a Gen. 2. b

B And vnto the angell of the congregacion of Smyrna wryte: These thinges saith he that * is fyrst, and the last, which was deed, and is alive: I knowe thy workes and tribulacion and pouerte, but thou art ryche: And I knowe the blaspheny of them which call them selues Jewes and are not: but are the cōgregacion of Sathan. Feare none of tho thinges which thou shalt soffre. Beholde, ỹ deuell shal cast of you in to prison, to tempte you, and ye shal haue tribulacion x. dayes. Be faithfull vnto the deeth, and I wil geue ỹ a crowne of life. Let him that hath eares, heare, what the spriete saith to the congregacions: He that ouercōmeth, shal not be hurte of the seconde deeth. Esa. 41. a

And to the angell of the congregacion in Pergamos wryte: This sayth he which * hath the sharpe swearde with two edges: Heb. 4. c I knowe thy workes, and where thou dwelleste, euen where Sathans seat is, and thou kepest my name, & hast not denyed my faith. And in my dayes Antipas was a faithfull witnes of myne, which was slayne amonge you, where Sathan dwelleth. But I haue a fewe thinges agaynst the: that thou hast there, thē that manyntayne the doctryne of * Balaam, which taught in Balak, to put occasion of syn before the children of Jsrael, that they shulde eate of meate dedicat vnto ydoles, and to commyt fornicacion. Euen so hast thou them that mayntayne ỹ doctryne of the Nicolaytans, which thinge I hate. But be cōuerted, or elles I wil come vnto the shortly, and wil fight agaynste thē with the swearde of my mouth. Let him ỹ hath eares, heare, what the spriete saith vnto the cōgregacions: To him that ouercommeth, wil I geue to eate māna that is hyd, and wil geue him a whyte stone, & in the stone a newe name wryttē, which no man knoweth, sauinge he that receaueth it. C Num. 25. a and 31. c

And vnto the angell of the cōgregacion of Theatira write: This saith the sonne of

D she repented not. Beholde, I wil cast her into a bed, and them that commit fornicacion with her, in to gret aduersite, excepte they turne from their dedes. And I wil kyll her childrē with deeth. And all the cōgregacios shal knowe, ỹ I am he which searcheth the reynes and hertes. And I wil gene vnto euery one of you acordynge vnto youre workes.

Vnto you I saye, and vnto other of thē of Thiatyra, as many as haue not this lernynge and which haue not knowen the depnes of Sathan (as they saye) I wil put vpō you none other burthen, but ỹ which ye haue already. Holde fast tyll I come, and whosoeuer ouercōmeth and kepeth my workes Euē as I receaued of my father, so wil I gene him ỹ mornynge starre. Let him ỹ hath eares, heare, what the spriete sayth to the cōgregacions.

The III. Chapter.

A AND wryte vnto the angell of the congregacion off Sardis: this sayth he that hath the seuen spretes of God, & the seuen starres. I knowe thy workes, thou hast a name that thou lyuest, and thou art deed. Be awake, and strengthe the thinges which remayne, that are redy to dye. For I haue not founde thy workes perfecte before God. Remember therfore how thou hast receaued and hearde, and holde fast, and re-

And wryte vnto ỹ angell of the cōgregaciō of Philadelphia: this sayth he ỹ is holy and true, which hath the keye of Dauid: which openyth and noman shutteth, and shutteth and no man openeth. I knowe thy workes. Beholde, I haue set before the an open doore, and no man can shut it, for thou hast a lyttell strength and hast not denyed my name. Beholde, I shal gene some of the congregacion of Sathan, which call them selues Jewes and are not, but do lye: Beholde: I wil make them, that they shal come & worshippe before thy fete: and shal knowe that I haue loued the.

Because thou hast kept the wordes of my pacience, therfore wil I kepe the from the houre of temptacion, which will come vpon all the worlde, to tempte them that dwell vpō the earth. Beholde, I come shortly. Holde that which thou hast, that no mā take awaye thy crowne. Him that ouercometh, will I make a pyllar in the temple of my God, and he shal goo no more out.

And I will wryte vpon him, the name of my God, and the name of ỹ cite of my God, newe Jerusalem, which cōmeth downe out of heauen from my God, and I will wryte vpō him my newe name. Let him that hath eares, heare, what the spriete saith vnto the congregacions.

And vnto the angell of the cōgregacion, which is in Laodicia wryte: This sayth Amen the faithfull and true witnes, the begynnynge of ỹ creatures of God. I knowe thy workes, ỹ thou art nether colde nor hote: I wolde thou were colde or hote. So then because thou art bitwene bothe, and nether colde ner hote I wyll spew the out off my mouth: because thou saist thou art riche and incresyd with goodes and hast nede of nothinge, and knowest not how thou art wretched & miserable, poore, blynde, and naked. I counsell the to bye of me golde tryed in the fyre, that thou mayste be riche: and whyte rayment, that thou mayste be clothed, that thy fylthy nakednes do not apere: anoynt thine eyes with eye salue, ỹ thou mayste se.

* As many as I loue, I rebuke & chastē. Be feruent therfore and repent. Beholde, I stonde at the doore & knocke. Yf eny man heare my voyce and vpen the dore, I wil come in vnto him and will supp with him, & he with me. To him that ouercōmeth, will I graūte * to sytt with me on my seate, euē as I ouercam and haue sytt with my father on his seate. Let him that hath eares, heare, what the sprete saith vnto the cōgregaciōs.

The IIII. Chapter.

After this I loked, and beholde, a dore was open in heauē, and the fyrste voyce which I harde, was as it were of a tromper talkinge with me, which sayde: cōme vp hydder, and I wil shewe the thinges which must be fulfylled her after. And immediatly I was in the sprete: & beholde, a seate was set in heauen, and one sat on the seate. And he that sat, was to loke vpon like vnto a iaspar stone, and a sardyne stone: And there was a rayne bowe aboute the seate, in syght like to a Smaragde. And aboute the seate were xxiiij. seates. And vpon the seates xxiiij. elders syttinge clothed in whyte rayment, and had on their heades crownes of golde.

And out of ỹ seate proceded lightnynges, and thundrynges, & voyces, and there wer seuen lāpes of fyre, burninge before the seate, which are the seuen spretes of God. And before the seate there was a see of glasse like vnto crystall, and in the mydes of the seate, and rounde aboute the seate, were foure beastes full of eyes before and behynde. And the first beest was like a lion, the seconde beest like a calfe, and the thyrde beest had a face as a man and the fourth beest was like a flyenge egle. And the foure beestes had eche one of them vj. wynges aboute him, and they were full of eyes with in. And they had no rest daye nether nighe, sayenge: Holy, holy, holy, is the LORDE God almyghty, which was, and is, and is to come.

And when those beestes gaue glory and honour and thankes to him that sat on the seate, which lyueth for euer and euer: ỹ xxiiij. elders fell downe before him that sat on the trone, and worshipped him ỹ lyueth for euer, and cast their crounes before ỹ trone, sayenge: thou art worthy LORDE to receaue glory, and honor, and power, for thou hast created all thinges, and for thy willes sake they are, and were created.

The V. Chapter.

And I sawe in the right hōde of him, that sat in the trone, a boke wrytten with in & on the backside, sealed with seuē seales. And I sawe a stroge angell preachinge with a loude voyce: Who is worthy to open the boke, and to loose the seales ther of? And no mā in heauē ner in earth, nether vnder ỹ earth, was able to opē ỹ boke, nether to loke thereon. And I wepte moch, because no man was founde worthy to open and to rede the boke, nether to loke thereon.

And one of the elders sayde vnto me: wepe not: Beholde, the lyon which is off the trybe of Juda, ỹ rote of Dauid, hath obtayned to opē the boke, and to lowse the seuē seales therof. And I behelde, & lo, in the mydes of the seate, and of ỹ foure beastes, and in the mydes of ỹ elders, stode a lambe as though he had bene kylled, which had seuen hornes and seuē eyes, which are the seuē spretes of God, sent in to all the worlde. And he came and toke the boke out of the right hōde of him that sat vpon the seate. Esa. 49. b Esa. 11. b

And when he had taken the boke, the foure beestes and the xxiiij. elders fell downe before the lambe, hauinge harpes and golden vialles full of odoures (which are ỹ prayers of the sayntes) and they songe a newe songe sayinge: thou art worthy to take the boke & to opē the seales therof: for thou wast kylled, and hast redemed vs by thy bloud, out of all kynreddes, and tōges, and people, and nacions, & hast made vs vnto ỹ God, kynges and prestes, and we shal raygne on ỹ earth. B Heb. 9. b 1. Pet. 1. c 1. Ioh. 1. b Apo. 1. a

And I behelde, and I herd the voyce of many angilles aboute the trone, and aboute the beestes and ỹ elders, and I herde thousand thousandes, sayenge with a loude voyce: Worthy is the lambe that was killed, to receaue power, and riches & wißdome, and strength, and honoure and glory, and blessynge. And all creatures, which are in heauē, & on the earth, & vnder the earth, & in the see, & all ỹ are in thē, herd I sayenge: blessinge, honoure, glory, & power, be vnto him, ỹ sytteth vpō the seate, and vnto the lābe for euermore. And the foure beestes saide: Amē. And ỹ xxiiij. elders fell vpon their faces, and worshipped him that lyueth for euermore. Dan. 7. b

The VI. Chapter.

And I sawe when the lābe opened one of the seales, & I herde one of the foure beestes saye, as it wer the noyse off thonder: come and se. And I sawe, and beholde, there was a whyte horsse, and he ỹ sat on him had a bowe, and a crowne was geuen vnto him, and he went forth conquerynge and for to ouercome. And whē he opened the seconde seale, I herde the seconde beeste saye: come and se. And there went out another horsse that was reed, & power was geuen to him that sat there on, to take peace from the earth, and that they shulde kyll one another. And there was geuē vnto him a gret swearde. A Zach. 1. b and 6. a

And when he opened the thyrde seale, I herde the thyrde beeste saye: come & se. And I behelde, and lo, a blacke horsse, and he that sate on him, had a payre of balances in his honde. And I herde a voyce in the myddes of the foure beastes saye: a measure of whete for a peny, and thre measures of barly for a peny: and oyle and wyne se thou hurte not.

B And when he opened the fourth seale, I herde the voyce of the fourthe beaste saye: come and se. And I loked, and beholde a pale horsse, and his name that sat on him was deeth, and hell folowed after him, & power was geuē vnto them ouer the fourthe parte of the earth, to kyll with swearde, and with honger, and with deeth, of the vermen of the earth.

And when he opened the fyfte seale, I sawe vnder the aultre, the soules of them ỹ were kylled for the worde of God, and for ỹ testimony which they had, and they cryed with a lowde voyce sayēge: How lōge tariest thou LORDE holy and true, to iudge & 4.Esd.15.b to auenge oure blonde on them that dwell Dan.11.b on the earth? And longe whyte garmentes Esa.26.c were geuen vnto euery one of them. And it was sayde vnto them, that they shulde reste for a lyttle seasō, vntyll the nomber of their felowes, and brethrē, and of them that shulde be killed as they were, were fulfilled.

C And I behelde when he opened the sixte seale, and loo, there was a grett earthquake, and ỹ sonne was as blacke as sacke cloth made of heare. And the mone wered euē as blonde: and the starres of heaven fell vnto the earth, euen as a fygge tree castith from her her fygges, when she is shaken off a mighty wynde. And heauen vanyßhed awaye, as a scroll when it is rolled togedder. And all mountayns and yles, were moued out of their places. Esa.2.c
And the kynges of ỹ earth, and the grete men, and the riche men, and the chefe captaynes, and the myghte men, and euery free man, hyd them selues in Apo.9.b
dennes, and in rockes of ỹ hylles, and sayde to the hylles, and rockes: fall on vs, and hyde vs from the presence of him that sytteth on the seate, and from the wrath of the lambe, for the grete daye of his wrath is come. And who can endure it?

The VII. Chapter.

A AND after that sawe I foure angels stōde on ỹ foure corners of the earth, holdinge ỹ foure wyndes of ỹ earth, ỹ ỹ wyndes shulde not blowe on ỹ earth, nether on ỹ see, nether on eny tree. And I sawe another angel ascende frō the rysinge of the sonne, which had the seale of ỹ lyuinge God and he cryed with a lowde voyce to the foure angelles (to whom power was geuen to hurt the earth and the see) sayenge: Hurt not the earth nether the see, nether the trees, till we have sealed the seruātes of oure God in their forheddes.

And I herde the nombre of them which were sealed, and there were sealed an c. and xliiij. M. of all the trybes of the children of Israell. Of ỹ trybe of Juda were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Ruben were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Gad were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Asser were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Neptalym were sealed xij. M. Of ỹ trybe of Manasses were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Symeon were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Leui were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Isacar were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Zabulon were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Joseph were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Beniamin were sealed xij. thousande.

After this I behelde, and lo, a grete multitude (which no man coulde nombre) of all nacions and people, and tonges, stode before the seate, and before the lambe, clothed with longe whyte garmētes, and palmes in their hondes, and cryed with a loude voyce, sayenge: saluacion be asscribed to him ỹ sytteth vpon the seate of oure God, and vnto the lambe. And all the angels stode in the compase of the seate, and of the elders and of the foure beastes, and fell before ỹ seat on their faces, and worshipped God, sayenge, amen. Blessynge and glory, wisdome and thākes, and honour, and power and might, be vnto oure God for euermore Amen.

And one of the elders answered, sayenge vnto me: what are these which are arayed in longe whyte garmētes, and whence came they? And I sayde vnto him: LORDE thou woteste. And he sayde vnto me: these are they which cam out of grete tribulacion, and made their garmentes large, and made them whyte in the blonde of the lambe: therfore are they in the presence of the seate of God, and serue him daye and night in his temple, and he that sytteth in the seate, wyll dwell amonge them. They shal honger nomore nether thyrst, nether shal the sonne lyghte on them, nether eny heate: For the lāde which is in the myddes of the seate, shal fede them, and shal leade them vnto fountaynes of lyuynge water, and God shal wype awaye all teares from their eyes.

The VIII. Chapter.

AND when he had opened the seuenth seale, there was silēce in heauen about the space of halfe an houre. And I shal reigne for eurmore. And the foure and twentye Elders, which sat before God on their seatts, fell vpon their faces, and worshipped God sayenge: we geue the thankes LORDE God allmyghte: which art and wast, and art to come, for thou hast receaued thy greate might, and hast raygned. And the heythen were angry, & thy wrath is come, and the tyme of the deed that they shulde be iudged, and that thou shuldest geue reward vnto thy seruaūtes the prophettes and sayncte, and to thē that feare thy name, small & greate: and shuldest destroye them which destroyethe earth. And the temple of God was opened in heauen, and there was sene in his temple the arcke of his testament: and there folowed lightnynges, and voyces, and thondrynges and earth quake, and a greate hayle.

And there appeared a greate token in heauen. A woman clothed with the Sonne, and the mone vnder her fete, and vpon her heed a crowne of twolue starres. And she was with childe, and cryed trauaillinge in byrth, and payned redy to be delyuered. And there appeared another token in heauen, and beholde a greate reed dragon, hauinge seuen heades, and ten hornes and seuē crownes vpō his heades: and his tayle drue the thyrde parte of the starres, and cast them to the earth.

And the dragon stode before the womā, which was ready to be delyuered: for to deuoure her childe as sone as it were borne. And she brought forth a man childe, which shulde rule all nacions with a rod of yron. And her sonne was taken vp vnto God, and to his seate. * And the woman fled in to wyldernes, where she had a place prepared off God, that they shulde fede her there a M.ij.C. and lx. dayes.

And there was a greate batayll in heauē Michael and his angels foughte with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels, and preuayled not, nether was their place founde eny more in heauen. And the greate dragon that olde serpent (called the deuell and Sathanas) was cast out. Which disceaued all the worlde. And he was cast in to the earth, and his angelles were cast out with him also.

And I harde a lowde voyce, which sayde in heauen: Now is saluacion, and strength and the kyngdome become oure Gods, and ỹ power his Christes: For he is cast downe, which accused them before God daye and nyght. And they ouercame him by the blode of the lambe, and by the worde of their testimony, and they loued not their lyues vnto the deeth. Therfore reioyce ye heauens, and ye that dwell in them. Wo to the inhabiters of the earth, and of the see: for the deuell is come downe vnto you, which hath greate wrath, because he knoweth, that he hath but a short tyme.

And when the dragon sawe, that he was cast vnto the earth, he persecuted the woman, which brought forth the man childe. And to the woman were geuē two wynges of a greate egle * that she might flye in to the wyldernes, in to her place, where she is norysshed for a tyme, two tymes, and halffe a tyme, from the presence of the serpēt. And the dragon cast out of his mouth water after the womā, as it had bene a ryuer, that he might cause her to be caught of ỹ floud. And the earth holpe the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swalowed vp the ryuer which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth with the womā: and went and made warre with the remnaunt of hyr sede, which kepe the cōmaundementes of God, and haue the testimony of Jesus Christ. And I stode on the see sonde.

The XIII. Chapter.

AND I sawe a beest rise out of the see, hauinge seuen heades, and x. hornes, and vpon his hornes x. crownes, and vpō his heed, the names of blasphemy. And the beest which I sawe was lyke a catt of the mountayne, and his fete were as the fete of a bear, and his mouth as the mouthe of a lyon. And ỹ dragō gaue him his power and his seate, and greate auctorite: and I sawe one of his heades as it were wounded to death, and his dedly wounde was healed. And all the worlde wōdred at the beest, and they worshipped the dragon which gaue power vnto the beest, and they worshipped the beest, sayenge: who is like vnto the beest: who is able to warre with him?

And there was geuen vnto him a mouth to speake greate thinges & blasphemies, and power was geuen vnto him, to do xlij. monethes. And he opened his mouth vnto blasphemy agaynst God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle and them that dwell in heauen. * And it was geuen vnto him to make warre with the sayntes, and to ouercome them. And power was geuen him ouer all kynred, tonge, and nacion: * and all that dwell vpon the earth worshipt him: whose names are not wrytten in the boke of life of the lambe, which was kylled from the begynnynge of the worlde. If eny man haue an eare, let him heare. He that leadeth in to captiuite, shal go in to captiuite: * he that killeth with a swearde, must be killed with ỹ swearde. * Heare is the pacience, and the faith of the saynctes.

Gen. 9 a
Lat. 26. c
Apo. 14 c

And I behelde another beest commynge vp out of the earth, and he had two hornes like a lambe, and he spake as dyd the dragō. And he dyd all that the first beest coulde do in his presence, and he caused the earth, and them which dwell therin, to worshippe the fyrst beest, whose deedly wounde was healed. And he dyd greate wonders, so that he made fyre come downe from heauē in the sight of men. And deceaued them that dwelt on the earth by ỹ meanes of those signes which he had power to do in the sight of the beest, sayenge to them that dwelt on the earth: that they shulde make an ymage vnto the beest, which had the wounde of a swearde and dyd liue.

C

And he had power to geue a spriete vnto the ymage of the beest, and that the ymage of the beest shulde speake, and shulde cause, that as many as wolde not worshippe the ymage of the beest, shulde be kylled. And he made all bothe smale and greate, ryche and poore, fre and bond, to receaue a marke in their right hondes, or in their forheades. And that no man might by or sell, saue he ỹ had ỹ marke, or the name of the beest, ether the nombre of his name. Here is wißdome. Let him that hath wyt, count the nombre of the beest. For it is the nombre of a man, and his nombre is fyre hondred, thre score and fyre.

The XIIII. Chapter.

AND I loked, and lo, a lambe stode on the mount Syon, and with him. C. and xliiij. thousande hauynge his fathers name wrytten in their forheades. And I herde a voyce from heauen, as the sounde of many waters, and as the voyce of a greate thondre. And the voyce that I herde, was as the harpers that playe vpon their harpers. And they songe as it were a newe songe, before the seate, & before ỹ foure beestes, and the elders, and no man coulde learne ỹ songe, but the hondred and xliiij. M. which were redemed from the earth. These are they, which were not defyled with wemen, for they are virgyns. These folowe the lambe whither soeuer he goeth. * These were redemed from men, beynge the fyrst frutes vnto God and to the lambe, and in their mouthes was founde no gyle. For they are without spot before the trone of God.

And I sawe an angell flye in the myddes of heauen hauinge an euerlastinge Gospell, to preache vnto them that syt and dwell on the earth, and to all nacions, kinredes, and tōges and people, sayēge with a lowde voyce: Feare God, and geue honour to him, for the houre of his iudgement is come: and worshippe him * that made heauen and earth, and the see, and the fountaynes off water. And there folowed another angell, sayenge: She is fallen, she is fallen: euē Babilon that greate cite, for she made all nacions drynke off the wyne off hyr whordome.

And the thyrde angel folowed thē, sayenge with a loude voyce: If eny man worshippe the beest and his ymage, and receaue his marke in his forhed, or on his honde, the same shall drynke of the wyne of the wrath of God, which is powred in the cuppe of his wrath. And he shalbe punyßhed in fyre and brymstone, before the holy Angels, and before the lambe.

And the smoke of their torment ascendeth vp evermore. And they haue no rest daye ner nyght, which worshippe the beast and his ymage, and whosoever receaueth the prynt of his name. * Here is the pacience of sayntes. Heare are they that kepe the commaundementes and the faith off Jesu.

And I herde a voyce from heauen, sayenge vnto me: wryte: Blessed are ỹ deed, which here after dye in the LORDE. Yee the spirite sayeth, that they rest from their laboures, for their workes folowe them. And I loked and beholde, a whyte cloude, and vpō ỹ cloude one syttynge like vnto the sonne of man, hauinge on his hēde a golden crowne, and in his hōde a sharpe sykle. And another angell came out of the temple, cryenge with a loude voyce to him that sat on the cloude: * Thruste in thy sycle and reepe: for the tyme is come to reepe, for the corne of the earth is rype. And he that sat on ỹ cloude thrust in his sykle on the earth, and the earth was reeped.

And another angell came out of the temple, which is in heauen, hauinge also a sharpe sykle. And another angel came out from the [illegible] which had power ouer fyre eryed with a lowde crye vnto hym that had the sharpe syckle, and sayde: Thruste in thy sharpe syckle, and gather the clusters of ỹ earth, for hir grapes are rype. And the angell thrust in his syckle on the erthe, and cut downe the grapes of the vynyarde of the earth, and cast them in to the greate wynefat of ỹ wrath of God: & the wynefat was trodden without the cite, and blonde came out of the fat, euen vnto the horsse brydles by the space of a thousande and sixe hundreth furlonges.

The XV. Chapter.

A AND I sawe another signe in heuen gret & mervellous. vii. angells havinge the seven laste plages, for in thē is fulfylled the wrath of god. And I sawe as it were a glassye see, mingled with fyre, and them that had gotten victory of the beest, and of his ymage, and of his marke, and of the nombre of his name, stonde on the glassye see, hauinge ỹ harpes of God: and they songe the songe of Moses the servaunt of God, and the songe of the lambe, saynge: Greate and marvellous are thy workes LORDE God almyghty, iust and true are thy wayes, thou kynge of sayntes. * Who shal not feare the O LORDE and glorysie thy name? For thou only art holy, for all gētiles shall come and worshippe before the, for thy iudgmentes are made manyfest.

B And after that, I loked, and beholde, the temple of the Tabernacle of testimony was open in heauen, and the seuen angelles came out of the temple, which had the seuen plages, clothed in pure and bryght lynnē, and hauynge their brestes gyrded with golden gerdelles. And one of the foure beestes gaue vnto the seuen angelles seuen golden vialles, full of the wrath of God which liueth for euermore. * And the temple was full of smoke for the glory off God, and for his power, and no man was able to entre in to the temple, tyll the seuen plages of the seuē angels were fulfilled.

The XVI. Chapter.

A AND I herde a greate voyce out of the temple, sayenge to the seuen angels: go youre wayes, poure out youre vialles of wrath vpon the earth. And the fyrst went, and poured out his viall vpon the earth, and there fell a noysome [illegible] vpon the men which had the marke of the beest, and vpon them that worshipped his ymage. And the seconde angel shed out his viall vpō the see, and it turned as it were in to the blond of a dead man: and every lyuinge thinge dyed in the see. And the thyrde angel shed out his vyall vpon the ryuers and fountaynes of waters, and they turned to blonde. And I herde an angel saye: LORDE which art and wast, thou art righteous and holy, because thou hast gevē soche iudgmentes, for they shed the blonde of sayntes, and prophetes, and therfore hast thou geuen them blonde to drynke: for they are worthy. And I herde another angell out of the aulter, saye: euen so LORDE God almighty, B true and righteous are thy iudgmentes.

And the fourth angell poured out his viall on the Sonne, and power was geuen vnto him to vexe men with heate of fyre. And the men raged in gret heate, and spake euell of the name of God, which had power ouer those plages, and they repented not, to geue him glory. And the fifte angell poured out his vyall vpon the seate of the beest, and his kyngdome wexed derke, and they gnewe their tonges for sorowe, and blaspheamed the God of heauē for sorowe, and payne of their sores, and repented not of their dedes.

And the sixte angell poured out his vyall C vpon the gret ryuer Euphrates, and the water dryed vp, that the waye of the kynges of the Easte shulde be prepared. And I sawe thre vncleane spretes like frogges come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out off the mouth off the beest, and out off the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spretes of deuels worckynge myracles, to go out vnto the kynges of the earth and of the whole worlde, to gadder them to the battayle of that gret daye of God allmighty. * Be holde, I come as a thefe. Happy is he that watcheth and kepeth his garmentes, lest he be founde naked, and men se his filthynes. And he gaddered them togedder in to a place, called in the hebrue tonge, Armagedon. Mat. 24. Luc. 12. 1. Thes. 5. 2. Pet. 3.

And the seuenth angell poured out his D viall in to the ayre. And there came a greate voyce out of heauen from the seate, sayenge: It is done. And there folowed voyces, & dringes, and lightenynges, and there was a gret earthquake, soch as was not sence men were vpon the earth, so myghty an earthquake and so greate. And was devyded in to thre parties. And the cities of nacions fell. And greate Babilon came in remembraunce before God, to geve vnto hyr the cuppe of wyne of the fearcenes of his wrath. And every yle fled awaye, and the mountaynes were not founde. And there fell a greate hayle, as it had bene talentes, out of heauē vpon the men, and the men blasphemed God, because of the plage of the hayle, for it was greate, and the plage of it sore.

The XVII. Chapter.

A AND there cam one of the seuē angels, which had the seuen vialles, and talked with me, sayenge vnto me: Come, I wil shewe the the iugdment of the greate whore, that sytteth vpon many waters, with whom the kynges of the earth haue commytted whordome, and the inhabiters of the earth are dronken with the wyne of her fornicacion. And he caryed me awaye into the wildernes in ỹ spirete. And I sawe a woman syt vpon a rose colored beest, full of names of blasphemie, which had seuē heades & ten hornes. And ỹ woman was arayed in purple and rose color, and decked with golde, precious stone, and pearles, and had a cupp of golde in her honde, full of abhominacions, and fylthines of her wordome. And in her forhed was a name writtē, a mistery: greate Babilon the mother of whordome,
B and abominaciōs of the earth. And I sawe the wyfe dronkē with the blonde of sayntes, and with the blond of the witnesses of Jesu. And when I sawe her, I wondred with greate mervayle.

And the angell sayde vnto me: wherfore mervaylest thou? I wyl shewe the the mistery of the woman, and of the beest that beerith her, which hath seuen heades, and ten hornes. The beest that thou seest, was, and is not, and shall ascende out of the bottomlesse pytt, and shal go in to perdicion, and they that dwell on the earth shal wondre (whose names are not wrytten in the boke of life from the begynnynge of the worlde) when they beholde the beest that was, and is not. And here is a mynde, that hath wisdome.

The seuen heades are seuen mountanes, hich the woman sytteth: they are also nges. Fyue are fallen, and one is, er is not yet come. When he com te continue a space. And the and is not, is euē the eyght, and is of the seuen, and shal go in to destruc-cion. And ỹ ten hornes which thou sawest, are ten kynges, which have not yet receaued the kyngdome, but shal receave power as kynges at one houre with ỹ beest. These haue one mynde, and shal geve their power and strēgth vnto ỹ beeste. These shal fyght with the lambe, and the lābe shal overcome them: For he is LORDE of all lordes, and kinge of all kinges: and they that are on his syde, are called, and chosen and faithfull.

And he saide vnto me: The waters which thou sawest, where ỹ whore sytteth, are people, and folke, and nacions, and tonges. And the ten hornes, which thou sawest vpon the beest, are they that shal hate the whore, and shal make her desolate, and naked, and shall eate hir fleshe, and burne her with fyre. For God hath put in their hertes, to fulfill his wyll, and to do with one consent, for to geve hir kyngdome vnto the beest, vntill the wordes of God be fulfylled. And the womā which thou sawest, is that greate cite, which raigneth ouer the kynges of the earth.

The XVIII. Chapter.

AND after that I sawe another angel come downe frō heauē, hauinge grete power, and ỹ earth was lyghted with his bryghtnes. And he cryed mighty with a stronge voyce, sayenge: She is fallen, she is fallen, euen greate Babilon, and is become the habitacion of devels, and ỹ holde of all fowle spretes, and a cage of all vncleane and hatefull bydes: for all naciōs have dronken of the wyne of the wrath of her whordome. And the kynges of the earth have committed fornicacion with her, and the marchauntes are wexed ryche of the abundaunce of her pleasures.

And I herde another voyce from heauen saye: come awaye from her my people, that ye be not partakers of her synnes, lest ye receave of her plages. For her synnes are gone vpto heauen, and the LORDE hath remembred her wyckednes. Rewarde her euen as she rewarded you, and geve her dubble accordinge to her workes. And poure in dubble to her in the same cuppe, which she fylled vnto you. And as moche as she glorysfied her selfe and lyved wantonly, so moch poure ye in for her of punyshmēt, and sorowe, for she sayeth in her herte: I syt beinge a quene, and am no wyddowe, and shall se no sorowe. Therfore shal her plages come at one daye, deeth, and sorowe, and honger, and she shalbe brēt with fyre: for stronge is the LORDE God which shal iudge her.

And the kynges of the earth shal bewepe her and wayle ouer her, which haue committed fornicacion and lyued wantanly with her, when they shal se the smoke of her burnynge, and shal stonde a farre of for feare of her punyshment, sayenge: Alas, Alas, that greate cite Babylon, that mighty cite: For at one houre is thy iudgment come. And the marchauntes off the earth shall wepe and wayle in them selues, because no man will bye their ware eny more, the ware of golde, and syluer, and of precious stones, off pearle, & sylke, and purple, and starlet, & all Thynen wod, and all manner vessels of yuery, and all manner vessels of most precious wod, and of brasse, and of yron, & synomom and odours, and oyntmentes, and frankynsence, and wyne, and oyle, and fyne floure, and wheate, and catell, and shepe, and horses, and charrettes, and bodies and soules of men.

And the apples that thy soule lusted after, are departed from the. And all thinges which were deyntie, and had in pryce, are departed from the, and thou shalt fynde them no more. The marchauntes of these thinges which were wexed ryche by her, shall stonde a farre of for feare of the punyshment of her, wepynge and waylinge, and sayenge: alas alas, that greate cite, that was clothed in sylke, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with golde, and precious stone, and pearles: for at one houre so greate ryches is come to naught.

And euery shippe gouerner, and all they that occupie shippes, and shippmen which worke in the see, stode a farre of, and cryed, when they sawe the smoke of her burnynge, and sayde: what cite is like vnto this greate cite? And they cast dust on their heades, and cryed wepynge, and waylinge, and sayde: Alas, Alas the greate cite, wherin were made ryche all that had shippes in the see, by the reason of her wares: for at one houre is she made desolate.

Reioyce ouer her thou heauē, and ye holy Apostles, and prophetes: for God hath geuen youre iudgmēt on her. And a mighty angell toke vp a greate stone lyke a mylstone, and cast it in to the see, sayenge: with suche violēce shal that greate cite Babylon be cast, and shalbe founde no more. And the voyce of harpers, and musicions, and of pypers, and trompetters, shalbe herde no more in the: and no craftes man (of what soeuer craft he be) shalbe founde eny more in the: and the sounde of a myll shalbe herde no more in the: * and the voyce of the bryde grome and of the bryde, shalbe herde nomore in the for thy marchauntes were prynces of the earth. And with thyne inchaūtment were deceaued all nacions: and in her was founde the blonde of the prophetes, and of the sayntes, and of all that were slayne vpō the earth. Iere.16.25

The XIX. Chapter.

AND after that, I herde the voyce of A moch people in heauen, sayenge: Alleluia. Saluacion and glory and honour, and power be ascribed to the LORDE & God, for true and righteous are his iudgmentes, because he hath iudged the greate whore (which did corrupt ỹ earth with her fornicacion) and hath auenged the blond of his seruaūtes of her hond. And agayne they sayde: Alleluia. And smoke rose vp for euermore. And ỹ xxiiij: elders, & the foure beestes fell downe, and worshipped God that sat on the seate, sayenge: Amen: Alleluia. And a voice came out of the seate, sayenge: prayse & LORDE God all ye that are his seruaūtes, ye that feare him both small and greate. Apo.9.c 14.c

And I herde the voyce of moch people, [illegible] ỹ voyce of many waters, & as ỹ voyce of stronge thondrynges, sayenge: Alleluia, for God omnipotent raigneth. Let vs be glad and reioyce, and geue honour to him: for the mariage of the lābe is come, and his wife made her self ready. And to her was graunted, that she shulde be arayed with pure and goodly sylke. (As for the sylke, it is the righteweśnes of sayntes.) And he sayde vnto me: * Blessed are they which are called vnto the Lambes supper. And he sayde vnto me: these are the true sayenges of God. And I fell at his fete, to worshippe him. And he sayde vnto me: * Se thou do it not. For I am thy felowe seruaunt, and one of thy brethren, and of them that haue the testimony of Jesus. Worshippe God. For the testimony of Jesus is ỹ spirete of prophesy. And I sawe heauē open, & beholde, a whyte hors and he ỹ sat vpon him, was called faith and true, & in righteweśnes dyd indge and make battayle. His eyes * were fyre, and on his heade were many crownes: and he had a name wrytten, that no man knewe but him self. * And he was Luc.14.c Act.10.c 14.c Apo.22.c

And I sawe the beeste and the kynges of ỹ earth, and their warriers gadbred togedder, to make battayle agaynste him that sat vpon the horsse, and agaynst his sowdiers.

And the beeste was taken, and with him that false prophet that wroughte myracles before him, with which he disceaued them that receaued the beestes marke, and them

The XX. Chapter.

AND I sawe an angell come downe from heauen, hauinge the keye of the bottomlesse pyt, and a gret chayne in ab.4.b his honde. * And he toke the dragon that Pet.5.b olde serpent (which is the deuell and Satanas) and he bounde him a thousand yeares: and cast him in to the bottomlesse pyt, and he bounde him, and set a seale on him, that he shuld disceaue the people nomoare, tyll the thousand yeares were fulfilled. And after that must he be lowsed for a littell sea-

sones, and they sat vpon were beheaded for the witnes of Jesu for the worde of God: which had not wo shipped the beest, nether his ymage, neither had taken his marke vpon their fo-des, or on their hondes: and they lyued, and raygned with Christ a thousand yeare: bu the other of the deed men lyued not aga-ne, vntill the thousand yeare were fynished.

This is that fyrst resurreccion. Blessed an holy is he that hath parte in the fyrst rereccion. On soch hath the seconde deeth no power, but they shalbe the prestes of Go and of Christ, and shall raygne with him thousand yeare.

And when the thousand yeares are expi red, Sathan shalbe lowsed out of his prison, and shal go out to deceaue the people which are in the foure quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gadder them togedder to batayle, whose nombre is as the sonde of the see: and they went vp on the playne of the earth, and compased the tentes of the sayntes aboute, and the beloued cite. And fyre cam downe from God out of heauen, and deuoured them: * and the deuell that disceaued them, was cast in to a lake of fyre and brymstone, where the beest and the false prophet were, and shalbe tormented day and nyght for euermore.

And I sawe a gret whyte seate, and him that sat on it, from whose face fled awey both the earth and heauen, and their place was nomoare founde. * And I sawe the dead, both gret and small stonde before God: And the bokes were opened, and another boke was opened, which is (the boke) of life, and the deed were iudged of tho thinges which were wrytten in the bokes accordinge to their dedes: and the see gaue vp her dead, which were in her, and deeth and hell deliuered vp the deed, which were in them: and they were iudged euery man accordynge to his dedes. And deth and hell were cast in to the lake of fyre. This is that second deeth.
And whosoeuer was not founde wrytten in the boke off life, was cast in to the lake of fyre.

The XXI. Chapter.

AND I sawe a * newe heauen and a newe earth. For the fyrst heauen, and the fyrst earth were vanysshed awey, and there was nomoare See. And I Jhon sawe that holy cite newe Jerusalem come downe from God out of heauen, prepared garnißhed for hyr hußband. And e a greate voyce from the seate, sayen holde, the tabernacle of God is with and he wil dwell with them. And they be his people, and God himselfe shalbe with thē, and shalbe their God. * And God shal wipe awaye all teares from their eyes.

And there shalbe nomore deeth, nether so-rowe, nether shal there be eny more payne, for ye olde thinges are gone. And he that sat vpon the seate, sayde: * Beholde, I make all things newe. And he sayde vnto me: wryte for these wordes are faithfull and true, he sayde vn ie: it is done * I am nd En egynnynge, and he, I wi n that is a thyrst

the nynge, and the ab-hom ble, and murthurers, and whormongers, and sorcerers, and ydolaters, & all lyars, shal haue their parte in the lake, that bur-neth with fyre and brymstone, which is the seconde death.

And there came vnto me one of the seuen angels, which had the seuen vials full of the seuen last plages: and talked with me, sayege: come hydder, I wil shewe the the bryde, ye lābes wyfe. And he caryed me awaye in ye sprete to a greate and an hye moūtayne, and he shewed me the greate cite, holy Jerusalē descendinge out of heauen from God, hauyn ge the brightnes of God. And her shynynge was lyke vnto a stone most precious, euen a Jaspar cleare as cristall: & had greate and hye walles, and had twolue gates, and at ye gates twolue angels: and names wrytten, which are the twolue trybes of Israel: on the est parte thre gates, and on the north sy de thre gates, and towarde the south thre gates, and from the west thre gates: and the wall of the cite had twolue foundaciōs, and in them the names of the lambes twolue Apostles.

C * And he that talked with me, had a golden rede to measure the cite with all, and the gates therof, and the wall therof. And the cite was bylt foure square, and the lenth was as large as the bredth of it, and he measured the cite with the rede twolue M. fur-longes: and the length and the bredth, and ye heyth of it, were equall. And he measured the wall therof, an crliiij. cubittes, after ye measure of a man, which the angel had.
And the buyldinge of the wall of it was of Jaspar. And the cite was of pure golde, like vnto cleare glasse: and ye foundaciōs of the walles and of ye cite were garnyßhed with all maner of precious stones. The fyrst foun dacion was a Jasper, the seconde a Saphy re, ye thyrde a Calcedony, the fourth a Sma ragde: the fyft a Sardonix: the sixt a Sardeos: the seuenth a Crysolite, the eyght be-rall: the nynth a Topas: the tenth a Cryso-prasos: the eleuēth a Jacyncte: the twelfte an Amatist.

And the twolue gates were twolue pear D les, and euery gate was of one pearle, and ye strete of the cite was pure golde, as a throrowe shyninge glasse. And I sawe no temple therin. For the LORDE God allmighty and the lambe is the temple of it, and the cite hath no nede of the Sonne, nether of the mo ne to lyghten it. For the bryghtnes of God doth light it: and the lambe is the lyght of it. And ye people which are saued, shal wal-ke in the light of it: and the kynges of the earth shal brynge their glory vnto it. * And Esa.60.b the gates of it shal not be shut by daye. For there shalbe no nyght there. And there shal entre in to it none vncleane thinge: nether what soeuer worketh abhominacion: or ma-keth lyes: but they which are wrytten in the lambes boke of life.

The XXII. Chapter.

AND he shewed me a pure ryuer of wa A ter of life clere as cristall: proceadinge Eze.47.a out of the seate of God and of ye lam Zac.14.b be in the myddes of the strete of it, and of ether syde of the ryuer was there wod of life: which bare twolue māner of frutes: and gaue frute euery moneth: and the leaues of the wodd serued to heale the people with all.

And there shalbe no more curse, but the seate of God and ye lābe shalbe in it: and his seruauntes shal serue him: And shal se his face, and his name shalbe in their forheades.
* And there shalbe no night there, and they Esa.60.d
nede no candle, nether light of the Sonne:
for the LORDE God geueth thē light, and they shal reygne for euermore.

And he sayde vnto me: these sayenges are B faithfull, and true. And the LORDE God of the holy prophetes sent his angell to she we vnto his seruauntes, the thinges which muste shortly be fulfylled. Beholde, I come shortly. * Happy is he ye kepeth ye sayēge of Apoc.1.
ye prophesy of this boke. I am Jhon, which these thinges and herde them. And whē I had herde and seene them, I fell downe to worshippe before the fete of the angell which shewed me these thinges. And he saide vnto me: * se thou do it not, for I am thy felowe seruaunt and the felowe seruaūt of thy brethren the prophetes and of them, which kepe the sayenges of this boke. Worshippe God.

And he sayde vnto me: seale not the sayenges of the prophesy of this boke. For the tyme is at hōde. * He that hurteth, hurt him be euell styll: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy styll: and he that is righteous, let him be more righteous: and he that is holy, let him be more holy. And beholde, I come shortly, and my rewarde with me, to gene euery man accordinge as his workes shalbe. * I am Alpha and Omega, the begynnynge and the ende, the first and the laste. Blessed are they that kepe his commaundementes, that their power maye be in the tree of life, and maye entre in thorow the gates into the cite. For without are dogges and inchaunters and whoremongers, and murderers, and ydolaters, and whosoeuer loueth or maketh.

I Jesus haue sent myne angell, to testifye vnto you these thinges in the cōgregacions. I am the rote and the generacion of Dauid and the brighte morninge starre. And the spirite and the bryde saye: Come. And let him that heareth, saye also: Come. * And let him that is a thyrst, come. And let whosoeuer wyll, take of the water of life frely.

I testifye vnto euery man that heareth the wordes of prophesy of this boke: * yf any man shal adde vnto these thinges, God shal adde vnto him the plagues that are written in this boke. And yf any man shal take away of the wordes of the boke of this prophesy, God shal take away his parte out of the boke of life and out of the holy cite, and from the thinges which are written in this boke. He which testifyeth these thinges, saith: Surely I come quickly. Amen. Euen so, come LORDE Jesu. The grace of our LORDE Jesu Christ be with you all. Amen.
